As regards the first point, it is a matter of great practical importance to the Cutchi Memons to know as to how they stand with reference to this point. Is the question whether the rules of Hindu Law applicable to Cutchi Memons are strictly limited to matters of inheritance and succession settled beyond reasonable doubt or not? If not, the appellant must succeed: if it is, his contention on this point must fail. On behalf of the appellant reliance is placed upon the decisions in Ashabai v. Haji Tyeb Haji Rahimtulla (3) and Mahomed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed (4) and it is pointed out that the later decisions in Mangaldas v. Abdul Razak (5) and Advocate-General of Bombay v. Jimbabai (6) conflict with the earlier decisions, and that there is no decision of the Court of Appeal. Reference was also made in the course of the argument to the two cases relating to Khoja Muhammadans, viz., Ahmedbhoy Hubibbhoy v. Cassumbhoy Ahmedbhoy (7) and Jan Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar (8). I have examined these decisions in detial. In Ashabai v. Haji Tyeb Haji Rahimtulla (3) there was no decision on the question as to whether the application of the rules of Hindu Law to Cutchi Memons extended beyond the rules of inheritance and succession. The point decided there was, that the Hindu Law applied to them as to inheritance and succession. In Mahomed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed (4) the point is dealt with, and it was found that the custom of not recognising any distinction between the ancestral and self acquired property among the Cutchi Memons was not proved. The decision assumes that a Cutchi Memon cannot deal with his ancestral property and the custom alleged to the contrary was held not proved. As there is a certain degree of similarity in the extension of the rules of Hindu Law by custom to Khoja Muhammadans as well as to Cutchi Memons, it is relevant to point out that in Ahmedbhoy Hubibbhoy v. Cassumbhoy Ahmedbhoy (7), which related to Khoja Muhammadans, it was held that the rule that the Hindu Law as administered in this Presidency, in the absence of proof of custom to the contrary, is the law applicable to Khoja Muhammadans is not to be understood in its widest sense, but is confined to simple questions of inheritance and succession, and

(1) 15 B. 657; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 443.
(2) (1803) 8 Ves. 417 at p. 418; 32 E. R. 416; 7 R. R. 106.
(3) 9 B. 115; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 77.
(4) 10 B. 1; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 383.
(5) 23 Ind. Cas. 565; 16 Bom. L. R. 224.
(6) 31 Ind. Cas. 106; 41 B. 181; 17 Bom. L. R 799.
(7) 13 B. 534; 7 Ind. Dec. (N S.) 354.
(8) 22 Ind. Cas. 195; 15 Bom. L. R. 1044; 38 B 449.

in that case the question as to the right of a son to claim partition of the ancestral property was held not to be within the scope of rules of Hindu Law applicable to Khoja Muhammadans by custom. The observations which have been relied upon by Mr. Coltman in connection with this point from the judgment of the Court of Appeal do not, in my opinion, affect the main question which they decided, namely, that a son was not entitled to claim partition during his father's lifetime, which would be possible only if the application of the rules of Hindu Law was limited by custom only to rules of inheritance and succession. This, however, was a decision relating to the Khoja Muhammadans and would not directly apply to the case of the Cutchi Memons. The point was considered by Mr. Justice Beaman in Jan Mahomed v. Datu Joffar (8) generally with reference to the question as to how far Hindu Law applied to Khoja Muhammadans and Cutchi Memons by custom. But it was a case of Khojas and not of Cutchi Memons. The point arose directly later on with reference to Cutchi Memons; and in the two decisions which I have referred to, Mangaldas v. Abdul Razak (5) and Advocate-General of Bombay v. Jimbabai (6), this point was fully examined by Mr. Justice Macleod and Mr. Justice Beaman. It is true that those are decisions by Single Judges on the Original Side, and those particular cases were not taken to the Court of Appeal. But, after a close examination of the law relating to Cutchi Memons on this point, the decisions distinctly lay down that the application of the rules of Hindu Law by custom to the Cutchi Memons is limited to rules of inheritance and succession and does not extend to the rules relating to the joint family property as applicable to Hindus. They negative the view that a son has any vested interest by birth in the ancestral property of his father. The decision in Mahomed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed (4) has been considered and explained.

After those decisions it appears that, in response to a demand of the community, the Legislature passed Act XLVI of 1920 with a view to enable those members of the community who so desired to get rid of the application of Hindu Law as regards succession and inheritance. In the preamble of that Act the Hindu Law applicable to Cutchi Memons is referred to as relating to succession and inheritance. This Act received the assent of the Governor-General on September 17, 1920, shortly before the correspondence between the parties to the agreement in this case commenced. I refer to this Act only for the purpose of showing that the view taken in the later decisions has so far been accepted by the Legislature; and, indeed, if the rules of Hindu Law relating to joint family property, and in particular that relating to the vesting of property in a son by birth, were believed to be applicable to Cutchi Memons, it is reasonable to infer that the Legislature would have made provision for that in the Act to which I have referred. It is, therefore, really a serious matter at this stage in the absence of any evidence on the point, to hold that still it is a matter open to reasonable doubt whether the son of a Cutchi Memon has a vested interest in the ancestral property of his father according to the rule of Hindu Law. It is no doubt theoretically open to the defendant to urge that any such son may seek to establish such a custom at any time in spite of the decisions to the contrary of Single Judges, and that he may take such a case to the Court of Appeal and then to the highest Court of Appeal, and that he may be able to establish a special custom to the effect that a son has a vested interest in the ancestral property of his father. But the test on all these matters is, as pointed out in Fry on Specific Performance, whether the probability of litigation ensuing against the purchaser in respect of the matter in doubt is considerable or, as it was put by Alderson B. in Cattell v. Corrall (9), whether there is a "reasonable, decent probability of litigation." The question is, whether there is a reasonable and decent probability of litigation on that point against the purchaser or whether it is of such a remote character that it should not be considered to create any reasonable doubt. While I concede that it is possible that the son of Cutchi Memon may hereafter seek to establish such a custom as would give him a vested interest by birth in the property of his father. I am not prepared to hold that there is any decent and reasonable probability of such a claim being made : and, speaking particularly with reference to the son of Fakir Mahomed, there is no indication whatever on the facts of this case that it is any thing more than a remote possibility which ought not to be allowed to weigh against the effect of the later decisions as now understood and accepted by the Legislature. I may further point out that in the decision in Ahmedbhoy Hubibbhoy v. Oassumbhoy Ahmedbhoy (7), which was a case of Khoja Muhammadans, the Court of Appeal did not apply the Hindu Law to the extent of giving a son a vested interest by birth in the ancestral property of his father, and so far as it suggests an inference as regards Cutchi Memons it is against the possible view that a son of Cutchi Memon has a vested interest in the ancestral property of his father.

(9) (1840) 4 Y. & C. 228 at p. 237; 9 L. J. (N. S.) Ex. Eq. 37; 54 R. R. 483; 160 E. R. 989.

It may be relevant to point out in connection with this point that when Fakir Mahomed entered into this agreement on behalf of himself and his minor brother, Mahomed Saleh, he agreed to give a marketable title free from all reasonable doubts as would appear from clause 3 of Exhibit 1 at page 21 of the Paper-Book, Part III, and the present plaintiffs accepted that title as conveyed to them by Fakir Mahomed on behalf of his minor brother and himself. I do not say that that circumstance is in any sense binding upon the defendant ; but so far as it is an indication, it is in favour of the view that in dealing with the property belonging to the Cutchi Memons it is not considered necessary now to treat the sons of the owners as having any interest in the property by birth.

The second question is one of fact. It appears that when Fakir Mahomed agreed to sell this house to the present plaintiffs it was agreed, as would appear from clause 4 of the agreement between them, that the vendor would obtain the necessary order from the Court sanctioning the sale by him of premises, including the interest of his minor brother at his own costs. The property was described as having belonged to the estate of Joosub Hajee Cassum Pirmahomed who died on October 17, 1911, leaving Fakir Mahomed and his brother Mahomed Saleh as his heirs according to the Hindu Law applicable to Cutchi Memons. After this Fakir Mahomed made an application to the Court for his appointment as guardian of the property of his minor brother, and for leave to sell the property in question on behalf of the minor. That application was granted by the Court and he was authorized to complete the conveyance. In that application he stated that Joosub Haji, his father, died on October 17th 1911, leaving behind him his only heirs and next of kin according to Hindu Law applicable to Cutchi Memons, two sons, namely, a minor Mahomed Saleh Joosub and himself. He also made a declaration on the date of the conveyance in favour of the plaintiffs, i. e., on April 20 1920 that Joosub Haji died on October 17, 1911, leaving only two sons who were his only heirs according to Hindu Law as applicable to Cutchi Memons, namely, Mahomed Saleh and himself. This was accepted by the plaintiffs, and they now maintain that what was accepted by them as sufficient proof of the title of Fakir Mahomed and his minor brother is really sufficient to establish their title to the property and leaves no reasonable doubt as to that fact.

The defendant, however, insists upon the Letters of Administration being taken out to the estate of the deceased Joosub Hajee, because he contends that there is no satisfactory evidence, first, that Joosub died intestate, and, secondly, that he had only two sons and no more. On both these points it seems to me that the position of the defendant is not reasonable and the facts are not open to any reasonable doubt. It is quite true that in the present case, beyond putting in the documents to which I have referred, the parties have adduced no evidence. But beyond the suggestion that Letters of Administration are necessary to establish the fact of the representation beyond doubt, the defendant does not suggest any good reason to doubt the truth of the two statements which have been made by Fakir Mahomed in his petition to the Court and in the declaration to which I have referred. It is clear that the Indian Succession Act does not apply to Cutchi Memons who are Muhammadans and the Probate and Administration Act V of 1881, which would apply to them, does not contain any section corresponding to section 190 of the Indian Succession Act. It was not obligatory, therefore, upon Fakir Mahomed when he executed his conveyance in favour of the plaintiffs to have taken out Letters of Administration. The whole question to my mind is whether the two facts, namely, that Joosub Hajee died intestate, and that according to the Hindu Law applicable to him his heirs were only Fakir Mahomed and his brother Mahomed Saleh, were satisfactorily established when the plaintiffs accepted them and whether on the same materials they can be said to be satisfactorily established in the absence of the Letters of Administration. I do not say that in no case in which it is not obligatory upon a vendor to take out Letters of Administration to establish his title to the property according to law, could the purchaser require such Letters of Administration to be taken out to put an end to the doubts as to any disputed questions of fact. The simple question of fact in this case is whether in the absence of such letters, the facts in question are proved beyond reasonable doubt. Both those are facts about which ordinarily there should not be any doubt; for instance, whether Joosub died intestate is a fact which would be within the special knowledge of Fakir Mahomed. He has stated so in terms on oath, and in a manner which makes him responsible for the statement. There is no indication whatever on the present record to the contrary, and the mere suggestion that sometimes Wills of deceased persons are put forward many years after their death, is not sufficient, in my opinion, to justify any reasonable doubt as to the fact that Joosub, who died so far back as 1911, died intestate, particularly when we have the fact that during this interval nobody is shown to have ever suggested or come forward to say that he left a Will.

As regards the question whether he had two sons or more, ordinarily I should say that the statement of the son would be accepted as sufficient, and unless there is any real ground for doubting that statement, a mere suggestion of any doubt on that point would be considered either fanciful or unreasonable. In the present case there is no such ground. On the contrary we have the order of the Court appointing Fakir Mahomed as guardian of his minor brother on the footing that Joosub had only two sons and that the property belonged to the minor as an heir to his father along with Fakir Mahomed. On that point it appears that the plaintiffs offered to give further assurance to the defendant in the shape of a declaration from two respectable members of the Jamat. If there was any real doubt in the mind of the defendant, I think that that kind of assurance would be considered sufficient under the circumstances to satisfy any reasonable person. The plain fact seems to me to be that on these grounds of fact, which are not really open to any reasonable doubt, and which it is just possible may be even within the knowledge of the defendant, as he belongs to the same community and lives in the same locality, he wants to get out of the agreement.

I am, therefore, satisfied that in the present case a marketable title free from reasonable doubt has been made out; and I think that the conclusion reached by the Trial Judge on this point is right.

I may refer to the decision in Shrinivasdas Bavri v. Meherbai (10) which has been relied upon by the defendant. As I have said the question whether a marketable title free from reasonable doubt has been made out or not must be answered with reference to the facts of each case. In that case the release relied upon was in terms only by one of the two brothers, and beyond the recital in that release there was nothing to show that the other brother was dead or that the nearest heir to the deceased brother was the surviving brother who executed that release. That was held to be not sufficient to make out a title free from reasonable doubt. Here, however, the facts are different. In that case the test adopted with reference to the question whether the title was marketable or not was whether it was free from reasonable doubt. It appears that in the agreement preliminary to the conveyance sometimes the expression used is "marketable title free from reasonable doubt" or sometimes, as in the present case, "marketable title." But, as I have said, both practically mean one and the same thing; and I do not think that in that case any other test was adopted. It is difficult to apply the decision on the facts of that case to the facts of the present case. I would, therefore, affirm the decree appealed from, and dismiss the appeal with costs.

(10) 39 Ind. Cas. 627; 44 I.A. 36; 19 Bom. L.R.151; 21 M.L.T. 236; 32 M.L.J. 175; (1917) M.W.N. 258; 21 C.W.N. 558; 25 C.L.J. 311; 41 B. 300 (P.C.).

PRATT, J.—The plaintiffs, on April 29 1920, purchased the property in this suit from Fakir Mahomed and Mahomed Saleh Joosub, and the conveyance recited that these two had inherited the property from their father, Joosub Pirmahomed, as his only heirs.

On July 30, 1920, the defendant agreed to purchase this property from the plaintiffs who consented to give a marketable title.

The phrase "marketable title" is equivalent to the phrase "a title free from reasonable doubt" in section 25 of the Specific Relief Act. This simpler definition practically embodies the English Law. Many English cases have been cited to us but it is safer to rest upon the plain words of the Indian section; for most of the English cases turn upon the difficulties of the complex English Property Law—difficulties which do not appear in the simpler system of the Transfer of Property Act.

The sole question then is whether the doubts raised by the defendant as to plaintiffs' title are reasonable. The doubts are doubts of law and of fact.

The doubt of law is whether the vendors, Fakir Mahomed and his brother, being Cutchi Memons, took a vested interest at birth on their father's property. There was a time when it was assumed that the Hindu Law of joint property applied to Cutchi Memons: Ashabai v. Haji Tyeb Haji Rahmitulla (3) and Mahomed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed (4). But these decisions are now obsolete and the application of Hindu Law is now restricted to cases of succession and inheritance as it would apply in the case of an intestate separated Hindu possessed of self acquired property: Mangaldas v. Abdul Razak (5) and Advocate General of Bombay v. Jimbabai (6). This statement of the law has received legislative recognition in the Cutchi Memons Act, XLVI of 1920, I do not think the law on the point is now doubtful, and indeed it would be disastrous if it were, for many titles must have been taken on the faith of these decisions.

The doubts of fact are: (1) whether Fakir Mahomed and Mahomed Saleh Joosub are the only sons of Joosub Pirmahomed; (2) whether Joosub Pirmahomed left a Will.

On the first point much reliance is placed on the Privy Council case of Shrinivasdas Bavri v. Meherbai (10). In that case there was an incumbrance to Damodardas and a release by Gordhandas. The question then arose whether Damodardas was dead and, if so, whether Gordhandas was his sole heir. When the purchaser asked for these doubts to be cleared the vendor refused to do so and took his stand solely on the recitals. The Privy Council held that that was not sufficient, as the recitals would not bind Damodardas if he proved to be alive or a third person claiming to be his heir. Here then the purchaser raised the question of another possible son of Joosub Pirmahomed; he was given a declaration of Fakir Mahomed and offered a declaration of two members of the Jamat. The purchaser replied that he did not consider the first sufficient and he would not accept the latter. I think this refusal was unreasonable. The vendor offered the only possible evidence and the purchaser refused even to consider it. This fact differentiates the case from Shrinivasdas Bavri v. Meherbai (10). The vendor did not rest solely on recitals but offered evidence. The purchaser refused even to consider the evidence but insisted on Letters of Administration to Joosub Pirmahomed's estate. It is not clear how the purchaser could have procured such Letters of Administration and the purchaser's conduct shows that he in fact had no doubt but was only seeking for an excuse to avoid performance.

The second point of fact is whether Joosub Pirmahomed left a Will. This is possible of course but it is extremely improbable, for ten years had elapsed since his death. I do not think this bare possibility can be said to introduce a reasonable doubt in the title. I agree that the appeal should be dismissed and the decree of the lower Court confirmed.

W. C. A. Appeal dismissed.

SUBBE GOUNDAN v. KRISHNAMACHARI.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1549 OF 1920.

December 14, 1921.

Present :—Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri and Mr. Justice Devadass.

SUBBE GOUNDAN AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

KRISHNAMACHARI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Joint family—Invalid alienation by manager—Suit for possession by co-parcener—Alienation declared valid to extent of alienor's share—Plaintiff, right of, to possession of entire property—Mesne profits, determination of—Alienee, suit by, for partition of item sold, whether maintainable—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XX, r. 12—Suit for recovery of immovable property—Finding by Appellate Court that plaintiff entitled to possession—Remand for determination of mesne profits with direction to pass decree in favour of plaintiff—Remand, propriety of—Inherent jurisdiction—Appeal—Remand order, treatment of, as preliminary decree.

A Hindu co-parcener has the right to require an alienee of joint property to deliver possession of the entire property in cases where the alienation by the manager is not binding on the plaintiff. The purchaser cannot sue for a partition of the item sold to him and obtain an allotment by metes and bounds of his vendor's share in that portion of the property but is bound to file a suit for a general partition. [p. 873, col. 1.]

(Authorities reviewed.)

In such a case where there has been no repudiation of the alienation on the part of the other co-parceners before the institution of the suit, the claim for mesne profits would be limited to the period from the date of suit. [p. 876, col. 1.]

Kamini Debi v. Promotho Nath, 27 Ind. Cas. 317; 20 C. L. J. 476; 19 C. W. N 755, followed.

Kumud Lal v. Ramani Mohan Roy, 25 Ind. Cas. 436; 19 C. L. J. 346 at p 347, dissented from.

Where an Appellate Court can pass a preliminary decree it is its duty to do so and a remand as to matters which can be the subject-matter of the preliminary decree is not warranted. [p. 872, col. 1.]

In cases falling within O. XX, r. 12, Civil Procedure Code, the proper course for the Appellate Court to take is not to remand the suit where it finds that a person is entitled to possession but to pass a preliminary decree so far as possession is concerned and to direct an enquiry as to the mesne profits in cases where the lower Court has not dealt with the question. [p. 871, col. 2.]

Where a decree, being in substance a preliminary decree is not passed as such by an Appellate Court and the case is wrongly remanded, it is open to the High Court, in second appeal, to allow the appellant to argue the appeal on the footing that, though the form of the decree was wrong, it was in substance a decree adjudicating finally the rights of the parties and was thus appealable as a final decree. [p. 872, col. 2.]

Second appeal against a decree of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Coimbatore, in Appeal Suit No. 56 of 1920, (Appeal Suit No. 59 of 1920, District Court, Coimbatore) preferred against a decree of the Court of the District Munsif, Tiruppur, in Original Suit No. 726 of 1918, (Original Suit No. 34 of 1918, on the file of the Court of the Principal District Munsif, Coimbatore).

Mr. A. Krishnaswamy Ayyar (with him Mr. S. Subramania Ayyar), for the Appellants.

Mr. T. M. Krishnasamy Ayyar (with him Mr. P. Narayanasami Ayyar), for the Respondent.

This second appeal and the Memorandum of Objections coming on for hearing on the 29th and 30th November 1921 and having stood over for consideration, till this day the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.—Defendants are the appellants. This appeal arises out of a suit filed by the plaintiffs to recover possession of the properties claimed in the plaint on the ground that the sale of the properties by their father to the defendants is not valid and binding on the plaintiffs and for the recovery of past and future mesne profits. The case for the plaintiffs was that the land specified in the plaint and other properties belonged to their grandfather, that on a family partition the plaint properties fell to the share of their father, that he without any necessity sold the plaint properties to the defendants for a low price, that the sale was not binding on them and that they are under Hindu Law entitled to recover possession of the properties from the purchasers. The defendants put the plaintiff to the proof that he was born at the date of the sale and contended that the sale by the plaintiff's father was to discharge antecedent debts and for other family purposes, that the consideration was adequate, that the lands were subsequently improved by them, and that the suit filed for a declaration alone without asking for setting aside the sale was not maintainable, nor was the suit claiming possession without requiring a general partition and without impleading the other co-parceners. It was pleaded that the suit was barred by limitation, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to mesne profits, and that the mesne profits claimed were excessive. Various issues, seven in number, were settled on these pleadings and the District Munsif in an exhaustive judgment has dealt with the several issues. He found that the plaintiff was born at the date of the alienation, that the alienation was for valid purposes and was binding on the plaintiffs, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to any mesne profits, that the suit was not barred by limitation, that the claim for improvements was exaggerated, that the only amount which the defendants would be entitled to was Rs. 40, that the suit as framed was maintainable as the plaintiffs were not bound to set aside the sale-deed, and that as regards possession they were entitled to recover possession of the properties sold leaving to the purchasers to file a suit for partition in respect of the plaintiffs' father's share, if so minded. In the result the District Munsif dismissed the plaintiffs' suit. On appeal the Subordinate Judge stated that the only points for decision were—

SUBBE GOUNDAN v. KRISHNAMACHARI.

(1) Was the plaint mentioned alienation binding on the plaintiffs and to what extent?

(2) What mesne profits, if any, were the plaintiffs entitled to, and

(3) Were the defendants entitled to any and what compensation for improvements?

No objection seems to have been taken before him as regards the legal questions as to the maintainability of the suit or to the bar of limitation; and he held that the sale was not binding on the plaintiffs so far as their share of the plaint properties was concerned and that the defendants would have to bring a separate suit for partition, the plaintiffs being on the authorities entitled to recover possession of the entire property. As regrds mesne profits he held that the plaintiffs were entitled to mesne profits and that the suit would have to go back to the District Munsif for ascertaining the amount due to them. As regards improvements, he confirmed the finding of the District Munsif that only a sum of Rs. 40 was due to the defendants for improvements. He allowed the appeal with costs, reversed the decree of the District Munsif and remanded the suit to the District Munsif's Court for ascertaining the amount of mesne profits due to the plaintiffs, and directed the District Munsif to pass a decree in favour of the plaintiffs in the light of the above findings. Against this decree the defendants appeal.

A preliminary objection is taken that no appeal lies, as the order of remand was not passed under O. XLI, r. 23, Civil Prosedure Code, but was passed by virtue of the inherent power of the Court to order a remand apart from the provisions of that rule. There can be little doubt that if the order was simply an order of remand not falling within O. XLI, r. 23, it is not appealable under O. XLIII, as sub clause (u) only refers to an order under r. 23 of O. XLI, remanding a case. It is contended for the appellants that the decree of the Subordinate Judge is in effect a preliminary decree and that consequently, although it is in form a decree remanding the suit, it is appealable as a preliminary decree. We think that, as the Subordinate Judge has decided that the alienation is not binding on the plaintiffs, there was nothing for the District Munsif to do on remand and the decree is in effect a preliminary decree which has been wrongly drawn up as a decree remanding the whole suit. We think that the Subordinate Judge was wrong in reversing the decree of the District Munsif and remanding the entire suit for disposal. It is clear that the present case does not fall within O. XLI, r. 23, of the Civil Procedure Code, which provides for the remand of cases by the Appellate Court. This rule provides that "where the Court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the suit on a preliminary point and the decree is reversed in appeal, the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case and may further direct what issue or issues shall be tried in the case so remanded. ....." In the present case the District Munsif did not dispose of the suit on a preliminary point but tried all the issues and has given findings on all of them. The only thing he did not do was to ascertain the amount of mesne profits which would be due to the plaintiffs. In cases of suits to recover possession of immoveable property, r. 12 of O. XX provides that where a suit is for the recovery of possession of immoveable property and for rent or mesne profits, the Court may pass a decree (a) for the possession of the property, (b) for the rent or mesne profits which have accrued on the property during a period prior to the institution of the suit or directing an enquiry as to such rent or mesne profits, (c) directing an enquiry as to rent or mesne profits from the institution of the suit until (i) the delivery of possession to the decree-holder, (ii) the relinquishment of possession by the judgment-debtor with notice to the decree holder through the Court, or (iii) the expiration of three years from the date of the decree whichever event first occurs. It provides that where an enquiry is directed under clause (b) or clause (c) a final decree in respect of the rent or mesne profits shall be passed in accordance with the result of such enquiry. This rule, therefore, clearly contemplates the passing of a final decree as regards possession of the property and the amount which is payable as mesne profits or the passing of a preliminary decree for possession of the property and directing an account to be taken of the mesne profits and the passing of a final decree as regards mesne profits after the ascertainment. Turning to the definition of the decree in the Civil Procedure Code, section 2, clause (2), defines a decree as the formal expression of an adjudication which, so far as regards the Court expressing it, conclusively determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy in the suit and may be either preliminary or final. The explanation to that section is to the effect that a decree is preliminary when further proceedings have to be taken before the suit can be completely disposed of. It is final when such adjudication completely disposes of the suit. It may be partly preliminary and partly final. Having regard to the definition of decree and to the provisions of the O. XX, r. 12, it seems to us that the proper course which ought to have been adopted by the Subordinate Judge when he found that the plaintiffs were entitled to possession of the properties was to have passed a preliminary decree directing the defendants to deliver possession to the plaintiffs and to have directed the District Munsif to make the necessary enquiries as regards mesne profits provided for by O. XX, r. 12.

It has been argued by the respondents that the powers of remand conferred by the Code are not confined to the provisions of O. XLI, r. 23, and that, apart from the Code, the Court has inherent power to remand a suit and that the Subordinate Judge having exercised that inherent power the High Court has no power to interfere. There can be little doubt that, so far as the powers of remand are concerned, the powers conferred by O. XLI, r. 23, are not exhaustive. There are cases where, though the suit is not disposed of on a preliminary point, yet owing to an improper or defective enquiry in the lower Court, where, for example, relevent documents are not admitted or material witnesses have not been examined and the Appellate Court is not in a position to adjudicate finally upon the matters in dispute, the inherent jurisdiction to do justice between the parties has been invoked. The Civil Procedure Code of 1908 has expressly enacted section 151 in order to help the Court in doing justice to the parties in cases where there is no express provision in the Code; but the inherent power under section 151 can only be exercised in cases where, to use the words of the section, it is necessary to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court. A remand to a lower Court implies that something has to be done by the lower Court in relation to the matter remanded to it. In the present case it is difficult to see what the lower Court can do as regards possession of the property. The finding of the lower Appellate Court has left nothing to be done as regards the claim for possession and it is idle to remand the case, in so far as the claim to possession is concerned, to the lower Court, as all that it can do is to pass a decree for possession, a step which was within the competence of the Appellate Court to take. In cases falling within O. XX, r. 12, we think, the proper course for the Appellate Court to take is not to remand the suit where it finds that a person is entitled to possession but to pass a preliminary decree so far as possession is concerned and direct an enquiry as to the mesne profits, in cases where the lower Court has not dealt with the question. The course adopted by the Subordinate Judge leads to the anomaly that there will be a fresh decree passed by the lower Court and that it will be necessary to appeal against that decree, including the decree for possession, again to the Subordinate Judge who would be precluded on previous findings from going into the question of possession and to compel the party if he wants to appeal from the decree giving possession to file an infructuous appeal to the lower Appellate Court before the question can be agitated in the High Court in second appeal. This we think is a procedure which, apart from its cumbrousness and expense, is not warranted by the provisions of the Code. We think that where an Appellate Court can pass a preliminary decree it is its duty to do so and that a remand as to matters which can be the subject-matter of the preliminary decree is not warranted. It is contended by Mr. T. M. Krishnaswami Ayyar for the respondent that where several items of immoveable properties are concerned, difficulty would arise where the Subordinate Judge deals with only one or two items and that in such cases it would lead to difficulties if a preliminary decree is passed as regards these items and the suit remanded as regards the rest. In such cases we are of opinion that the various items of immoveable properties should, for the purposes of O. XX, r. 12, be regarded as one subject-matter for adjudication and that the Court is not bound to pass a preliminary decree for possession as regards each item. In Kamini Debi v. Promotho Nath (1) it was held that if a decision of the Appellate Court in reality amounts to a preliminary decree within the meaning of the definition of decree in the Civil Procedure Code and in cases falling within O. XX, rr. 12 to 18, of the Civil Procedure Code, the mere omission on the part of the Court to embody its effect in a formal expression in the form of a preliminary decree will not negative the right of the party affected to prefer an appeal. A similar view was taken in Kumud Lal v. Ramani Mohan Roy (2). In Sidhanath Dhonddev v. Ganesh Govind (3) it was held that where the decision of a Court on certain issues conclusively determined the right of the parties regarding some matters in controversy so far as that Court was concerned, it was the duty of the Court to draw up a preliminary decree so as to enable the party aggrieved to appeal. Sir Basil Scott, C. J., and Beaman, J., held that the Subordinate Judge, in declining to draw up preliminary decree committed a material irregularity in the exercise of his jurisdiction entitling the High Court to interfere under section 115, Civil Procedure Code, and observed: "The decision of the issues, to which we have referred, conclusively determined the rights of parties regarding some matters in controversy so far as his Court was concerned; the decision on each of those issues, therefore, was sufficient to constitute a preliminary decree. The defendant has a right to appeal from a decision of the Court amounting to a preliminary decree, but he can only appeal if the decree is existent in a formal shape. This we decided in Bai Divali v. Vishnav Manordas (4). It is the duty of the Court, where it is applied to after the passing of a preliminary decree, to have the decree drawn up so as to enable the party aggrieved to appeal". The High Court directed the lower Court to draw up a preliminary decree upon the questions decided. We do not think that in the present case it is necessary to send the case down for the Subordinate Judge to draw up a proper decree and to put the parties to the delay and expense involved in what we consider to be a purely formal matter. Now that the second appeal has been filed we think, following the views taken in Dorasami Aiyer v. Seshadri Venkatarama Aiyer (5), Kumud Lal v. Ramani Mohan Roy (2) and Kamini Debi v. Promotho Nath (1), it is open to us to treat the decree of the lower Court as a decree which in substance is a preliminary one and to allow the appellants to argue their appeal on the footing that though the form of the decree of the Appellate Court is wrong, it is in substance a decree adjudicating finally the rights of the parties as regards the immoveable properties and is thus appealable as a preliminary decree. We overrule the preliminary objection of the respondents.

Turning to the merits of the appeal, three points have been taken before us; (1) that the Subordinate Judge was wrong in holding that the alienation was not binding on the plaintiffs, (2) that, as the alienation was good to the extent of the father's share, the lower Court, instead of decreeing possession and leaving the defendants to a separate suit for partition, should, in this suit at their instance, have decreed a partition and

(1) 27 Ind. Cas. 317; 20 C. L. J. 476; 19 C. W. N. 755.
(2) 25 Ind. Cas. 486; 19 C. L. J. 346 at p. 347.
(3) 17 Ind. Cas. 637; 37 B. 60; 14 Bom. L. R. 916
(4) 4 Ind Cas. 829; 34 B. 182; 11 Bom. L. R. 1326.
(5) 63 Ind. Cas. 228; 13 L. W. 618.

put the plaintiffs in possession of half the share and the defendants in possession of the remaining half and (3) that mesne profits ought not to have been awarded.

As regards the first point we think that the finding of the Subordinate Judge is conclusive and that it is not to open us in second appeal to go behind it. The Subordinate Judge finds that there was no necessity for the alienation and that there were no bona fide enquiries made by the defendants. There is, therefore, a clear finding of fact.

As regards the second contention, it is argued by Mr. Krishnaswami Iyer that it is open to a purchaser in a suit for possession by a co parcener, on the ground of the invalidity of the alienation and in cases where the alienation is not impeached to the extent of the father's share, to require the plaintiff at his option either to consent to a partition of the specific items conveyed and to get possession of his share after partition by metes and bounds or to require a general partition of all the joint family properties so that the purchaser need not be driven to a separate suit. The right of a co-parcener to require an alienee to deliver possession of the entire joint family property in cases where the alienation is not binding on the plaintiff is clear and the current of authority has been simply to declare the interests of the purchaser and to leave the purchaser to a separate suit for partition, if he wants to work out his interest. So far as the co-parcener is concerned, it is open to him to accept the alienation as valid and seek a partition with the purchaser of the only properties in which the purchaser is interested: vide Subramanya Ohettyar v. Padmanabha Ohettyar (6), and Iburamsa Rowthan v. Thiruvenkatasami Noick (7). A purchaser, however, cannot sue for a partition of the item sold to him and obtain an allotment by metes and bounds of his vendor's share in that portion of the property but is bound to file a suit for a general partition [vide Venkatarama v. Meera Labai (8), and Palani Konan v. Masakonan (9), though it has now been settled by the decision of the Full Bench in Chinnu Pillai v. Kalimuthu Chetti (10), that there is no fluctuation in the share to which an alienee is entitled, his share being the share of the vendor at the date of the alienation, subject of course to the equities in favour of the other members of the family against the transferor. It has also been settled that a vendee from a co-parcener is not a tenant-in-common with the other members. The view taken by Sundara Ayyar and Benson, JJ., in Subba Row v. Anantha-narayana Iyer (11), has not been followed in Maharaja of Bobbili v. Venkataramanulu Naidu (12), and Nanjaya Mudali v. Shanmuga Mudali (13), and in Kota Balabhadra Patro v. Khetra Doss (14). A purchaser has only an equity as against the other members of the co parcenery to work out his interest by a suit for a general partition. In cases where possession of the property is claimed by a co-parcener on the ground of the invalidity of the alienation as against him the current of authority is to decree possession and simply declare the right of the purchaser to a partition. In Deendyal v. Jugdeep Narain Singh (15), their Lordships of the Privy Council, while directing possession of the property sold in execution of a decree to be given back to the co-parceners, added a declaration that the appellant as purchaser in execution sale acquired the share and interest of the judgment debtor in that property and was entitled to take proceedings to have that share ascertained. In Suraj Bunsi Koer v. Sheo Persad Singh (16), their Lordships of the Privy Council gave possession to the co-parceners who sued to set aside the sale in execution of a decree in respect of a debt which did not bind them but declared "that by virtue of the

(6) 19 M. 267; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 891.

(7) 7 Ind. Cas. 559; 34 M. 269; (1910) M. W. N. 380; 8 M. L. T. 269; 20 M. L. J. 743.

(8) 15 M. 275; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 903.

(9) 20 M. 243; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 173.

(10) 9 Ind. Cas. 596; 35 M. 47; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 238; 9 M. L. T. 389; 21 M. L. J. 246.

(11) 14 Ind Cas. 524; 23 M. L. J. 64; 11 M. L. T. 393.

(12) 25 Ind. Cas. 585; 39 M. 265; 27 M. L. J. 409; 16 M. L. T. 181.

(13) 22 Ind Cas. 555; 38 M. 684; 15 M. L. T. 186; (1914) M. W. N. 356; 26 M. L. J. 576.

(14) 37 Ind. Cas. 168; 31 M. L. J. 275; 4 L. W. 99; (1917) M. W. N. 149.

(15) 3 C. 198; 1 C. L. R. 49; 4 I. A. 247; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 730; 3 Suth P. C. J. 468; 1 Ind. Jur. 604; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 715 (P. C.).

(16) 5 C. 148; 6 I. A. 88; 4 C. L. R. 226; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 1; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 589; 2 Shome L. R. 242; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 705 (P. C.).

execution sale to them, the respondents acquire only the one undivided third share in the eight anna share of Mouza Bissumbhurpore, in the pleadings mentioned, which formerly belonged to Adit Sahai, with such power of ascertaining the extent of such third part or share by means of a partition as Adit Sahai possessed in his lifetime; and ordering that the appellants be confirmed in the possession of...Mouza Bissumbhurpore subject to such proceedings as the respondents may take in order to enforce their rights above declared." In Hardi Narain Sahu v. Ruder Perkash Misser (17), it was held that where joint family property is sold in execution of a decree to satisfy a claim against a co-parcener personally, all that the purchaser acquires is merely the right of the judgment-debtor to compel a partition against the other co-sharers. The High Court, when the case came before it in appeal, added the necessary party and effected a partition of the property. Their Lordships, in referring to this, observed "According to the judgment of their Lordships in Deendyal's case (15), the decree, which ought properly to have been made, would have been that the plaintiff, the first respondent, should recover possession of the whole of the property, with a declaration that the appellant, as purchaser at the execution sale, had acquired the share and interest of Shib Perkash Misser, and was entitled to take proceedings to have it ascertained by partition. So that, in fact, the appellant has got a decree more favourable to himself than he was entitled to. He retains possession of one-third, instead of being turned out of the possession of the whole and left to demand a partition. Their Lordships, therefore, think that there is no ground for altering the decree of the High Court, although it may have gone beyond what was necessary or proper. The decree is not strictly right, but the appellant does not suffer by that. He gets all that he would be entitled to if a partition were made." It is clear from the above observations that their Lordships were of opinion that the only right which the purchaser had in such cases is to obtain a declaration which would entitle him in a separate suit for partition to work out his interests. In Nanjya Mudali v. Shanmuga Mudali (13) it was held that where a co-parcener alienates his share in certain specific family property the alienee does not acquire any interest in that property but only an equity to enforce his rights in a suit for partition and to have the property alienated set apart for the alienor's share if possible, and that he is not, therefore, entitled to sue for partition and allotment to him of his share of the property alienated, nor has he a right to possession and to a status as a tenant-in-common. In Pandu Vithoji v. Goma Ramji (18) it was held that in a suit by a co-parcener to recover possession of property conveyed without any necessity, joint possession cannot be given to the purchaser but that he is merely entitled to a declaration that he has acquired the interest of the vendor whatever that may be in the particular property and a direction that he be left to recover that interest by separate suit for partition in which all necessary parties and properties should be joined. The learned Judges have followed the course taken by the Privy Council in Deendyal v. Jugdeep Narain Singh (15) and Hardi Narain Sahu v. Ruder Perkash Misser (17).

Reliance was placed by Mr. Krishnaswami Aiyar on Ramkishore Kedarnath v. Jainarayan Ramrachpal (19) which was a suit by the members of a joint family to set aside their father's alienation of ancestral property. The respondents in that case objected inter alia to the form of the suit which they contended should have been for partition. The suit was decided in the lower Court without any evidence and on the allegations in the plaint and written statement. Their Lordships of the Privy Council in holding that the plaintiffs would, in the absence of any other defense, be entitled to succeed went on to observe as follows:—

"With respect to the form of suit, it was rightly pointed out by the learned Counsel for the appellants that to deny any relief except in a suit for partition would be to deny the right of relief altogether, since the basis of their claim is that they are still entitled to the estate as a joint undivided estate, and desire to enjoy it as such. It may well be, however, that as between Kedarnath and Jainarayan, the latter may be entitled to insist that he stands in the shoes of the former as to the share which would come to Kedarnath upon a partition; and that the Court, if that position were established, would itself, at Jainarayan's instance, decree a partition as between the plaintiffs on the one hand and Kedarnath on the other. Their Lordships think that on the present pleadings it is open to Jainarayan to set up such a case, but express no opinion as to its validity either in law or fact." Their Lordships, therefore, remanded the case for trial "with a declaration that it is competent for the Court, in the event of the respondent Jainarayan failing in his other defences, to make the whole or any part of the relief granted to the plaintiffs conditional on their assenting to a partition so far as regards Kedarnath's interests in the estate, so as to give effect to any right to which the respondent may be entitled claiming through Kedarnath." It is argued that these observations show that the Privy Council upheld the right of an alienee from a member of a joint family to require that a partition should be effected in a suit filed at the instance of the co-parcener without the necessity of a separate suit being filed. We do not think that this is the effect of the observations. Their Lordships were dealing with a case where the suit was disposed of on a preliminary question. This contention was never raised before them and they guard themselves by stating that though it may be open to the defendant to raise that point they express no opinion as to its validity either in law or fact. We do not think that their Lordships intended to overrule the plain dictum in Hardi Narain Sahu v. Ruder Perkash Misser (17) where they held that relief by way of partition was not open to the purchaser in a suit by a co-parcener. Sadasiva Aiyar, J. in Subbaiya Mudaliar v. Thulasi Mudaliar (20) was of opinion that their Lordships of the Privy Council did not decide the point in Ramkishore Kedarnath v. Jainarayan Ramrachpal (19) and guarded themselves against any idea that they expressed any opinion as to the validity of the contention either in law or in fact.

(17) 10 C. 626; 11 I. A. 26; 8 Ind. Jur. 211; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 510; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 420 (P. C.).

(18) 50 Ind. Cas. 765; 43 B. 472; 21 Bom. L. R 213.

(19) 20 Ind. Cas 958; 40 C. 966; (1913) M. W. N. 661; 14 M. L. T. 163; 17 C. W. N. 1189; 18 C. L. J. 237; 15 Bom. L. R. 867; 11 A. L. J. 865; 25 M. L. J. 512; 10 N. L. R. 1; 40 I. A. 213 (P. C.).

Having regard to the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code which do not allow any wide rights of counter-claim, it is difficult to see how a suit by the plaintiffs for possession and mesne profits can be converted, at the instance of the defendants, into one for a general partition which would involve the presence of other parties and an enquiry into the debts and liabilities of the family. If the claim of the defendants is to be treated as a cross-suit and if the written statement is to be stamped as a plaint in such cross suit claiming a general partition there is no reason why the defendants should not file their own suit for a general partition and work out any decree which they may obtain in the decree in the suit by the co-parcener. There is no special advantage in the defendant's doing in their written statement what they could easily do in a plaint filed by them. It is open to them as soon as a co-parcener files a suit for possession to file a suit for partition, and where proper grounds exist the Court would try the suits together so as to afford relief to all parties. On the point of view of hardship we think that the hardship would be greater if a simple suit for possession which the co-parcener is in law entitled to file in cases of invalid alienations is converted into an elaborate enquiry as to a general partition of the family.

We are of opinion that the defendants are not in this suit entitled to a partition either of the specific item conveyed or of the joint family properties generally.

As regards the claim for mesne profits we do not see any reason for mesne profits being allowed before the suit. The alienation by the father to the extent of his share will be good. In the case of sales by a father or managing member of the joint family for alleged necessity, we think the sale will be good till avoided, as it is open to the other co-parceners to affirm the transaction. The position of such a purchaser cannot be worse than that of a purchaser from a widow without legal necessity, in whose case it has been held that the sale is good till repudiated by the reversioners. We respectfully dissent from the view taken by Krishnaswami Ayyar, J. in Kandasami Asari v. Somaskanta Ela Nidhi (21) that a sale without necessity is incapable of ratification by the other co-parceners. Following the decision in Bhirgee Nath Chaube v. Narsingh Tewari (22) we think the claim for mesne profits should be limited to the period from the date of suit as there was no repudiation before the suit. There will be a declaration that the defendants are entitled to the half share of the vendor which they will be at liberty to work out by a suit for partition. The decree of the Subordinate Judge will be modified accordingly. Memorandum of Objection is dismssed with costs.

(20) 22 Ind. Cas. 44; 1 L. W. 65 at p. 76; 14 M. L. T. 537 at p. 542; (1914) M. W. N. 16.

As the appellants have substantially failed, we direct them to pay the respondent's costs.

M. C. P. Decree modified.

(21) 5 Ind. Cas. 922: 35 M. 177; 7 M. L. T. 165; 20 M. L. J. 371; (1910) M. W. N. 580.

(22) 35 Ind. Cas. 475; 39 A. 61; 14 A. L. J. 1161.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

April 10, 1922.

Present :—Viscount Cave, Lord Shaw, Lord Phillimore, Sir John Edge and Mr. Ameer Ali.

Rani BIJAI RAJ KUNWAR—APPELLANT

versus

Thakur JAI INDRA BAHADUR SINGH—RESPONDENT.

Thakur JAI INDRA BAHADUR SINGH—APPELLANT

versus

Rani BIJAI RAJ KUNWAR—RESPONDENT.

Will—Interpretation—"Sir," meaning of, in Oudh—"Sirat," "Sirat Makbuza," meanings of—Record of Appeal to Privy Council, inclusion of irrelevant matter in, condemned.

By his Will a Talukdar bequeathed to his wife "Rs 500 per mensem from the estate besides the sir lands in her possession," and the question was what the testator meant by "sir lands in her possession":

Held, that the testator intended to bequeath to his wife an absolute estate for her life in the "sir lands in her possession" and not merely a right of tenancy, or other subordinate interest in them: that he intended that she alone should be the proprietor of those lands during her life without any liability to have them assessed to rent, and that, consequently, the Oudh Rent Act, XXII of 1886, as amended by Act IV of 1901 had no application.[p. 879, cols. 1 & 2.]

The word "sir" when used in Oudh has not the restricted meaning given to it in the Oudh Rent Act, but means land assigned to the junior branches of a family for their support, instead of breaking up the estate and giving them the ancestral shares to which they were entitled Such appanages are known in Oudh by the name of sir. They also form one and the chief class of Jewan Birt, which is a name also sometimes applied to this class of sir. Whole villages assigned in this way are also called Bhayai villages. [p. 881, col. 1.]

"Sirat" is the plural of "sir" and "sirat makbuza" means sir land in possession. [p. 879, col. 1]

The wholesale inclusion of irrelevant documents in the record of a Privy Council appeal prepared in India, condemned as "a scandal and a hindrance to the proper administration of justice." [p. 882, col. 2; p. 883, col. 1.]

Consolidated Appeals from a decree or order of the Board of Revenue of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, dated 16th December 1916, reversing the order of the Deputy Commissioner, Kheri, dated the 7th January 1916 and from a judgment and two decrees of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner, Oudh, dated 31st January and 30th August, 1918, affirming the judgment and decree of the Subordinate Judge, Lakhimpur.

Mr. Dunne, K. C., and Mr. Amiend Jackson, for the Rani, Bijai Raj Kunwar.

Mr. DeGruythar, K. C., and Mr. Kenworthy Brown, for Jai Indra Bahadur Singh.

JUDGMENT.—These are two consolidated appeals. In the earlier of these appeals Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar is the appellant, and Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh is the respondent. It is an appeal from a decree or order of the 16th December 1916 made by the Board of Revenue of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh in appeal in a suit which was brought in the Court of the Deputy Commissioner of Kheri on the 19th March 1915 by the then manager under the Court of Wards of the property of Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh, then a minor, against Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar, to have Rs 5,542-11-9 assessed as rent on Mauza Chhauch under section 107G of Act XXII of 1886. In the later of the two consolidated appeals Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh is the appellant and Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar is the respondent. It is an appeal from two decrees, of the 31st January and 30th August, 1918, made by the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh in appeal in a suit which was brought in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Lakhimpur on the 27th July 1915 by Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar against Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh for a declaration that she was entitled to hold Mauza Chhauch for her life rent-free, under her deceased husband's Will, and the Mauza was not liable to be assessed to rent during her lifetime. It is to be mentioned here that a Chak which is within Mauza Chhauch is known as Chak Khakra. That Chak belongs to other persons; in Chak Khakra neither of the parties to these consolidated appeals has or claims interest or title. Where Mauza Chhauch is later referred to in this judgment, it is to be understood that what is referred to is Mauza Chhauch, excluding Chak Khakra.

After the suppression of the Mutiny of 1857, the taluq or estate of Mahewa, which included Mauza Chhauch, was in the Oudh Summary Settlement settled with Gajrang Singh; he died in 1860, and his brother Girwar Singh succeeded to the estate. Girwar Singh died in 1865, and Balbhaddar Singh succeeded to the estate. Balbhaddar Singh died in 1898, and on his death his widow claimed to be entitled to the estate of Mahewa, her claim was resisted by Rajindra Bahadur Singh, who was Balbhaddar Singh's son. He claimed to be entitled to the estate. These conflicting claims resulted in litigation, and ultimately the Board of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council decided that Rajindra Bahadur Singh was entitled to the estate, and he entered into possession of the Mahewa estate in 1905 or 1906.

In the first Regular Settlement in Oudh Mauza Chhauch (except Chak Khakra) was, with plots of cultivated lands in eight other Mauzas, recorded under the heading "Sir" as in the possession of the widow of Girwar Singh. By that entry in the Register it was meant that Mauza Chhauch and those other plots had been given to her by Girwar Singh for her maintenance. Before the next regular Settlement in Oudh the Revenue Authorities decided that in future in the Revenue Registers only such lands as were actually home farm lands of the taluqdar should be entered under the heading of "Sir," and, accordingly, Mauza Chhauch was then entered in the Revenue Register as "muafi"—that is, as rent free land. When Raghubans Kunwar, widow of Balbhaddar Singh, took possession of the Mahewa estate under her claim of title, she was entered in the Revenue Register as muafidar of Mauza Chhauch.

After the decision in his favour of the Board of the Judicial Committee, Rajindra Bahadur Singh, on the 26th February 1906, obtained, as owner of the Mahewa estate, possession of Mauza Chhauch and of all those cultivated plots in the eight other villages.

Rajindra Bahadur Singh, as the owner of the estate of taluq Mahewa, had powers to give, sell, mortgage or bequeath the taluq or any part of it to whomever he pleased, but his widow, should he leave one, would be entitled to maintenance suitable to her condition as his widow. Rajindra Bahadur Singh in 1911 handed over to Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar, his wife, possession of Mauza Chhauch, and on the 1st September 1911 he presented a petition to the Revenue Authorities, which, so far as is material, was as follows:—

"1. The petitioner is the absolute owner of taluka Mahewa, District Kheri, and the village of Chhauch bearing the 'hadbast' (boundary) No. 249 forms part of taluka aforesaid. The petitioner has all proprietary powers in respect of his taluka.

"2. The petitioner has given the entire village of Chhauch to his wife as 'muafi.' The revenue of this village would be paid from the income of the taluka and the village would, always, remain in the possession of his wife, as revenue free 'muafi.'

"3. This application is, therefore, presented, and it is prayed that entries regarding mutation of names in favour of the aforesaid wife may be made in the revenue department as herein prayed for and the village may be entered as 'muafi' under clause 6."

On that the Tahsildar reported, on the 10th November 1911, to the Deputy Collector as follows:—

"SIR,—An application was made by Thakur Raj Indar Bahadur Singh, talukdar of Mahewa, to the effect that he had given Mauza Chhauch in Pargana Kheri to his wife as muafi, that its revenue would be paid from the taluka, and that it might be entered in the name of the Rani as muafi. An enquiry was made. A writing from the talukadar corroborates the contents of the application. The talukadar has given Mauza Chhauchha to his wife, the Rani, as muafi. As no document has been executed, mutation proceedings cannot be taken. Of course, as reported by the office, entries can be made in papers, under clause 6. In my opinion, there is no harm in making entries in this way. Under clause 6A, under the head of muafi in the column of remark, these words should be written: 'The whole of this village has been given by the talukadar to the Rani as "muafi" for her maintenance.' Hence this report is submitted to sanction the entries aforesaid."

Thereupon the Assistant Collector made the following order:—

"Claim for mutation of names in respect of Mauza Chhauch, Pargana Kheri.

"ORDER.

"I have no objection to the above being noted in the remarks column.

"(Sd.) M. ABDUL LATIF KHAN, Assistant Collector, First Class."

"11th December, 1912."

In the Register relating to Mauza Chhauch it was accordingly entered that the village was "rent-free land granted by the Zamindar," and under the heading "Remarks" that —"The whole of this village is by way of maintenance allowance of Bari Bahu Sahiba (the Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar) muafi on behalf of 'talukadar'" (taluqdar). It is not contended, on behalf of Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar, that by the petition of the 1st September 1911 and those entries in the Register any indefeasible title in Mauza Chhauch for her life was conferred on her by Rajindra Bahadur Singh, or that he could not thereafter have sued under Act XXII of 1886 as amended by Act IV of 1901, to have rent assessed upon the Mauza, but it is contended on her behalf that the petition of the 1st September 1911 and those entries in the Register consequent on it show that it was then Rajindra Bahadur Singh's intention that Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar should hold Mauza Chhauch for her life free of liability to pay rent. In fact, she held the Mauza from 1911 until his death rent free.

Rajindra Bahadur Singh died on the 1st October 1912. Rajindra Bahadur Singh had, on the 14th June 1907, made his Will, which so far as it is material, is as follows:—

"WILL.

"I, Thakur Rajendra Bahadur Singh, taluqdar of Mahewa, son of Thakur Sheo Singh, resident of Garhi Prasadpur, pertaining to Mauza Madhaia, Pargana and District Kheri, declare as follows:—

"This borrowed life is uncertain, and God has not as yet blessed me with a son; but I have a daughter, three years old. I have a strong hope that He will grace me with a male child. Therefore, in order to avoid a dispute in future, I make a Will to the effect that if a son is born to me, he will be the owner, and take possession of all my moveable and immoveable properties after my death, that in case I get more sons than one, the eldest will be the owner of all my estate according to the rule of succession to the 'gaddi,' and the remaining sons will get allowance; that if no male child is born to me, then dear Jai Indar Bahadur Singh, alias Jhunnu Bhaiya, son of Kunwar Sheo Indar Bahadur Singh, who is the son of my own brother, shall be the owner and take possession of all the moveable and immoveable properties owned and possessed by me at the time of my death, or to which I have a right of ownership, or possession of any kind, or to which I may acquire a right in future, without the exception of anything or right; that Musammat Jai Raj Kunwar, my wife, shall get Rs. 5)0 per mensem from the estate in cash, besides the 'Sir' lands in her possession; that my wife shall be the owner, and take possession of all my personal goods, such as clothes, ornaments, utensils used in eating and cooking, articles of decoration of the residential house, etc., that Rs. 250 per-mensem shall be paid from the estate to my younger brother, Kunwar Sheo Indar Bahadur Singh, who is living with me up to this time, besides the 'Sir' lands possessed by him, and both these two allowances in cash shall be a charge on the estate, and the person in possession of the estate shall be liable for the same; that the person in possession of the 'taluka' shall be responsible to pay Rs. 50,000 for the expenses of each of the daughters who may be unmarried at the time of my death; that if, God forbid, dear Jai Indar Bahadur Singh, aforesaid, die intestate without leaving a male child, then his nearest male heir descending from Mahendra Bahadur Singh, Narendra Bahadur Singh and Sheo Indar Bahadur Singh, will be entitled to succeed to the 'gaddi' and to be the owner of all the estate....."

Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh is the nephew described in the Will as Jai Indar Bahadur Singh, and Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar is in the Will referred to as Musammat Jai Raj Kunwar, the testator's wife.

Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh did not succeed by right of inheritance to the Mahewa estate or to any part of it; his title depends on the Will, and such interest in the Mahewa estate as he has depends on the Will. He took under the Will, and not otherwise. On behalf of Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar it is contended that under the Will Mauza Chhanch (Chak Khakra excepted) passed to her for her life free of rent, and that Mauza Chhanch will not vest in Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh until she has died, and that until that event shall have happened Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh will not be the proprietor of Mauza Chhanch within the meaning of Act XXII of 1886 as amended by Act IV of 1901, or entitled to sue to have any rent assessed upon that Mauza. That contention depends upon the true construction of the Will, which involves the meaning of words in the Will which have been thus translated by the official translator: "That Musammat Jai Raj Kunwar, my wife, shall get Rs. 500 per mensem from the estate in cash besides the 'Sir' lands in her possession." That is the official translator's rendering of the vernacular words in the Will. In the judgment of the Board of Revenue of July 1916, the words in question are translated thus: "To my wife for life five hundred rupees per mensem besides Sirat Makbuza will be given from the estate." In their Lordships' opinion the two translations have the same meaning. Sirat is the plural of Sir and Sirat Makbuza means Sir lands in possession. It does not appear to have been doubted by any of the Courts in India that the "Sir lands in her possession" passed by the Will to Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar as a rent-free estate for her life. But the question is, What did Rajindra Bahadur Singh mean by "Sir lands in her possession" in his Will. That he intended by his Will to bequeath to Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar an absolute estate for her life in the "Sir lands in her possession" and not merely a right of tenancy or other subordinate interest in them, and that he intended that she alone should be the proprietor of those lands during her life, their Lordships have no doubt.

The Courts in India who have had these suits before them arrived at different conclusions as to what Rajindra Bahadur Singh meant by the words "Sir lands in her possession." The Deputy Commissioner of Sitapur, who tried the Revenue Court suit, in reference to the words "Sir lands possessed by her," as he translated the Will, stated in his judgment that—"These last words must be taken to refer to the 'Sir' lands possessed by the Rani at the time of the testator's death. The village in suit is not 'Sir' land in the strict sense of the term, but I think there can be little doubt that the word 'Sir' is used by the testator in a loose sense, and signifies 'land held as 'guzara.' This is not seriously disputed by the plaintiff. It is then clear that the testator wished that the defendant should continue to hold her 'guzara' land rent-free for her lifetime."

He, however, being of opinion that Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh was proprietor, and was thus entitled to sue to have Mauza Chhanch assessed to rent, gave Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh a decree assessing the rent. From his decree there was an appeal by Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar Singh to the Commissioner of the Lucknow Division, who in his judgment stated, in reference to Rajindra Bahadur Singh's Will:

"By his Will he bequeathed to his widow .....and the 'sir' or 'guzara' land.....It had, before the talukdar's death, been duly entered as 'guzara' held rent-free.

"The present talukdar, nephew of the late talukdar, who is under the Court of Wards succeeded to the property under the terms of the Will. He sues now to have rent assessed, as the rent free 'guzara' of his aunt, the widow of the testator.

"The Deputy Commissioner has decreed the claim. It appears to me that the suit should never have been brought. The present talukdar, as represented by the Court of Wards, is willing himself to be benefited by the terms of the Will. But he wishes to deprive his benefactor's widow of the benefit, which was meant to accrue to her under the same Will. We must clearly take it that the defendant-appellant is entitled under the terms of the grant or Will to hold this village rent-free for her life."

BIJAI RAJ KUNWAR v. JAI INDRA BAHADUR SINGH.

The Commissioner of the Lucknow Division dismissed the Revenue Court suit. From that decree dismissing the suit Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh appealed to the Board of Revenue. The Board of Revenue in their judgment said:

"It is urged by the respondent that under the Succession Act of 1865, she has devised (had devised to her) the land held by her as 'Sirat Makbuza,' and the effect was to give her a proprietary title for life. It is further urged that, as the village in suit was held by her in the same way as she had held the other lands at the time of the Will, the result of the Will also was to confer on her a proprietary grant for life of this village. It may be admitted that the words 'Sirat Makbuza' in the Will were certainly intended to cover the rent-free grants held by her at the time of the execution of the Will. The appellant argues, however, that there is a great difference between a whole village and plots of land within a village, however numerous the latter might be, and that a whole village could not be termed 'Sir,' however loosely the word is used, and that the fact that the previous talukdar made a separate application in 1911 about the whole village clearly shows that he meant to differentiate it from the other land, and for this argument there is a good deal to be said."

In the result the Board of Revenue held that section 107G of Act XXII of 1886 as amended by Act IV of 1901 applied, and made a decree assessing Mauza Chhaunh to rent. From that decree Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar has appealed to His Majesty in Council.

The Subordinate Judge of Kheri, before whom the civil suit first came, framed six issues, the first of which was: "Is the suit not cognizable by the Civil Court?" He held that the questions whether the plaintiff (Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar) was "entitled to hold the village (Mauza Chhaunh) rent-free as a life-interest bequeathed to her under her late husband's Will and that she is not liable to assessment of rent during her lifetime" were exclusively for the Court of Revenue, and by his decree dismissed the suit. Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar appealed from that decree to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh. The learned Judicial Commissioners on the appeal held that the Civil Court had jurisdiction to entertain the suit for a declaration of Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar's legal title to Mauza Chhaunh under her husband's Will, but that the Civil Court had not jurisdiction to give her a declaration that Mauza Chhaunh was not liable to be assessed to rent during her lifetime, and remanded the suit to the Court of the Subordinate Judge for the trial of certain issues.

The suit on the remand came before another Subordinate Judge, who apparently was not himself familiar with the popular descriptions in Oudh applied to lands held for maintenance. He recorded much evidence on the subject. One of the witnesses, who had been for some years a Naib-Tahsildar in Lakhimpur, said: "Every sort of cultivated land, whether rent-free or assessed to rent, and whether held by grantee, or Shankahapdar and under-proprietor or ordinary tenant, is commonly called Sir. I never heard a whole village called as Sir of any body, though I heard a whole village called a guzara of a guzaradar." The Subordinate Judge's comment on the Naib-Tahsildar's evidence was: "His evidence goes to show that when a member of a Talukdar's family cultivates guzara land given to him and calls it his Sir others also call it by the same name." Another witness said: "Thakur Rajindra Bahadur Singh thought that land given to the members of a Talukdar's family for their guzara are called their Sir. He considered the village Chhaunh to be Sir of the plaintiff (Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar)." There was much other evidence, and in conclusion the Subordinate Judge found that "the word Sir is used in common parlance to describe a muafi grant of plots of land made to a member of the Talukdar's family for maintenance, but that a whole village assigned for a similar purpose is not called by the name of Sir...I find that the words 'Sirat Makbuza,' were used in the Will in this sense."

On the return to the order of remand the learned Judicial Commissioners proceeded to consider what Rajindra Bahadur Singh meant by the term "Sirat Makbuza" (Sir lands in possession) which he used to describe the bequest to his wife, Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar. They considered that the opinions expressed by the witnesses on that subject did not possess any particular value for the decision of that question. It has not been shown to their Lordships that the Judicial Commissioners formed an incorrect estimate of the value of that oral evidence. The learned Judicial Commissioners took, in their Lordships' opinion, safer ground for the consideration of the question in the history of the manner in which Mauza Chhaush had been dealt with since it had been settled with Gajrang Singh, and particularly by Rajindra Bahadur Singh. They also placed great reliance on the introduction to the late Mr. Sykes' well-known and valuable compendium of the Law relating to the Taluqdars of Oudh, and quoted the following passage which occurs in Mr. Sykes' observations on the various classes of Sir in Oudh. Mr. Sykes, in discussing that subject, stated that :—

"Amongst the various classes of Sir under-proprietors who never had the full and exclusive proprietary right of the whole village is the land frequently assigned to the junior branches of a family for their support, instead of breaking up the estate and giving them the ancestral shares to which they were entitled. Such appanages are known in Oudh by the name of Sir. They also form one and the chief class of Jewan Birt, which is a name also sometimes applied to this class of Sir. Whole villages assigned in this way were also called Bhayai villages."

In support of that statement by Mr. Sykes, the Judicial Commissioner quoted a passage from Volume I of the Oudh Gazetteer of 1877, which was published under the authority of the Government, and a passage from the Fyzabad Settlement Report of 1880. The passage from the Oudh Gazetteer is as follows :—

"Second, it was common to assign to the junior branches of a family certain lands for their support, instead of giving them the ancestral shares to which they were entitled. Such appanages were also known as Sir."

The passage quoted from the Fyzabad Settlement Report runs thus :—

"253. Sir is in most cases an appanage of proprietorship, the lands constituting the home-farm of a proprietor. It is the name, too, given to the lands assigned to the junior branches of a family in lieu of the ancestral share to which they were entitled."

The Judicial Commissioners did not overlook the fact that the passages which they quoted from the Oudh Gazetteer and the Fyzabad Settlement Report had reference to the District of Fyzabad and not to Oudh generally. They observed in their judgment : "The above quotations refer to the District of Fyzabad, but the meaning of the word Sir, given therein appears to us clearly to be a meaning which was applied generally in Oudh." Nor did the Judicial Commissioners overlook section 108 of Act XXII of 1886, which enacted how the term "Sir" should be understood officially in Oudh. In reference to that section they said : "The restricted meaning of the word Sir given in Act XXII of 1886 is a meaning based to some extent upon the meaning of the word in the Province of Agra, and is largely the creation of the English Revenue Authorities. We consider that the learned Counsel for the appellant (Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar) is correct in his contention that the word Sir used by an Oudh man would bear the meaning assigned to it by Mr. Sykes, and would not be confined to the meaning which it bears in Act XXII of 1886." Their Lordships see no reason to disagree with that conclusion of the learned Judicial Commissioners.

Referring to the history of taluka Mahewa, the Judicial Commissioners correctly stated in their judgment that Mauza Chhaush (excepting Chak Khakra, which belonged to another and distinct family) and cultivated plots in eight other villages of the taluka were in the possession of Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar at the time of her husband's death; that some of those plots had been handed over to her by her husband, Rajindra Bahadur Singh in 1907, and the remainder of them in 1908, that he had instructed the Patwari to have them entered in the Revenue Register in her name ; and that those plots of cultivated lands had been entered into the first Regular Settlement as the "Sir" of the widow of Girwar Singh. The Judicial Commissioners also state that the Counsel who appeared before them admitted that those plots of cultivated lands in the eight villages were Sirat Maqbuza, and must be given to Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar under the terms of the Will, but he contended that Mauza Chhaush could not pass to her under the description of Sirat Maqbuza. The Judicial Commissioners came to the conclusion that in 1911 Rajindra Bahadur Singh had given Mauza Chhaush (excepting Chak Khakra) to Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar as rent-free, and that the description Sir Maqbuza included Mauza Chhaunh (less Chak Khakra) and that under the Will she took an estate for her life in the taluka free of rent, and they gave her a decree declaring that she "is entitled to hold possession during her life of the village Chhaunh, less Chak Khakra, Pargana and District Kheri, under the Will dated the 14th June 1907 executed by Thakur Rajindra Bahadur Singh, the late talukdar of Mahewa." From that decree Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh has appealed to His Majesty in Council.

After a careful consideration of all the facts in these consolidated appeals, their Lordships have come to the conclusions that the words Sirat Maqbuza in the Will did apply to and cover not only Sir lands which might be accurately described as "Sir" but also Mauza Chhaunh (less Chak Khakra), and that Rajindra Bahadur Singh, in confirmation of his gift of 1911 to his wife Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar, of Mouza Chhaunh (less Chak Khakra) rent-fee for her life, did by his Will intend to bequeath, and did bequeath, to her Mauza Chhaunh (less Chak Khakra) for her life as a proprietor, and without any liability to have it assessed to rent, and they also are of opinion that Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh, who takes his interest in taluq Mahewa under that Will, and whose only title to any part of taluq Mahewa is under that Will, cannot repudiate the condition of the Will that Mauza Chhaunh should be held by Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar for her life rent-free.

It has been contended on behalf of Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh in these consolidated appeals that the decision of the Board in Parbati Kunwar v. Deputy Commissioner of Kheri (1) governs this case. That contention was based on a misconception. In that case the plaintiff, who sued for an enhancement of rent, was the "proprietor" of the mahal there in question within the meaning of section 107A of Act XXII of 1886 as amended by Act IV of 1901, and was suing a thikodar who held under a lease. In this case Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh is not a proprietor of Mauza Chhaunh or of any part of it, and will not be the proprietor while Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar continues to be the proprietor for her life, and Act XXII of 1886 as amended by Act IV of 1901 does not apply.

Their Lordships will humbly advise His Majesty that the appeal in which Rani Bijai Raj Kunwar is the appellant should be allowed with costs, and the decree or order of the Board of Revenue of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh of the 16th December 1916 be set aside and the decree of the Commissioner of the Lucknow Division of the 7th January 1916 be restored and affirmed, and that the appeal in which Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh is the appellant be dismissed with costs.

In parting with this case their Lordships desire to add one further observation upon a matter which in other cases has often before been animadverted upon, but apparently with small result, namely, the manner in which the record in Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh's appeal has been prepared. When this record, which consisted of 1,134 pages, was received by the Registrar of the Privy Council it appeared to him that a large part of it, consisting of lists of property in tabular form, was unnecessary for the purposes of the appeal, and he communicated this view to the London solicitors with a suggestion that Counsel should be consulted as to eliminating this portion of the printed book. As a result the parties agreed between themselves, on the advice of their Counsel, to omit over 200 pages, which were taken out of the books and not referred to again, and this shows that they should never have been included. The persons primarily responsible for this reckless waste of money were, no doubt, Thakur Jai Indra Bahadur Singh and his advisers in India, and had he won the appeal he would certainly not have received any costs in respect of this part of the record. But at the same time their Lordships think that a duty lies upon the Court to exercise control upon the wholesale inclusion of irrelevant documents, a duty which in this case was certainly not performed. A few weeks ago, in another appeal from the same Court their Lordships drew attention to the fact that the record contained at least 781 unnecessary pages, and they do so again with the earnest hope that the Judges of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner will take such steps as will prevent in the future the continuance of what their Lordships consider a scandal and a hindrance to the proper adminstration of justice.

(1) 47 Ind. Cas. 394; 45 I. A. 111; 5 O. L. J. 433; 24 M. L. T. 292; 35 M. L. J. 525; 16 A. L. J 865; 8 L. W. 586; 5 P. L. W. 30?; 28 C. L. J. 449; 41 A. 541; (1918) M. W. N. 880; 23 C. W. N. 125; 20 Bom. L. R. 1095 (P. C.).

W. C. A. First appeal allowed.
Second appeal dismissed.

Solicitors for the Appellant in 1st Appeal and Respondent in 2nd Appeal:—Messrs. James Gray & Son.

Solicitors for the Respondent in 1st Appeal and Appellant in 2nd Appeal:—Messrs. T. L. Wilson & Co.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1434 OF 1921.
March 27, 1922.

Present:—Justice Sir William Chevis, Kt.

ZORA—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
CHANDU AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Regulation XVII of 1806, ss. 7, 8—Mortgage—Foreclosure notice, proper form of—Defective notice, effect of—Mortgagee in possession, duty of.

Section 7 of Regulation XVII of 1806 provides either for payment or tender to the mortgagor or for deposit in Court, and a notice which simply informs the mortgagor that he must pay the money within the year and says nothing as to the alternatives of tenders and deposit in Court is misleading and the defect is not cured merely by the addition of the words "in the manner provided for in section 7 of the Regulation" [p. 884, col. 1.]

Fakira v Piyare Lal, 21 P. R. 1901; 57 P. L. R. 1901, Sardari v Chiranji Lal, 28 P. R. 1901; 9 P. L. R. 1901, distinguished.

Tara Chand v. Chiman, 12 Ind. Cas. 530; 3 P. L. R. 1912; 263 P. W. R. 1911, followed.

A defective notice is fatal to the validity of proceedings taken under Regulation XVII of 1806. [p. 884, col .]

Where a mortgagee is put in possession of the mortgaged property the intention of the parties is that the land shall be properly cultivated and that the mortgagee shall put it to the best use, so that a fair amount of profits may be realised and credited towards interest due on the principal mortgage debt. [p. 884, col. 2.]

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Hissar, dated the 28th February 1921, affirming that of the Subordinate Judge, Second Class, Hissar, dated the 10th April 1920.

Mr. Nanak Chand, for the Appellant.

Mr. Nanak Chand Pandit, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs sue for redemption of land mortgaged by their father and uncle in 1896 for Rs. 70. According to the terms of the mortgage-deed, the mortgagee was to hold possession and the principal sum was to carry interest at the rate of Rs. 1-9-0 per cent. per mensem and compound interest at the same rate in default but profits of the land were to be credited towards interest. At the end of three years, if the mortgage was not redeemed, the land was to be regarded as sold. In 1899 the mortgagee got a foreclosure notice issued by the Court of the District Judge. The notice warns the mortgagors that if within one year of the date of the notice they do not pay the money and redeem the land in the manner provided for in section 7 of the Regulation, then the land will be regarded as sold outright and the mortgagee will be entitled to sue for possession as owner. The year of grace passed and the land was not redeemed. The mortgagee brought no suit but quietly remained in possession of the land. Now, in 1919 the plaintiffs sued to redeem. The mortgagee objects that he holds possession as owner, but this plea was overruled by the lower Courts which held that the notice issued in 1899 was legally defective. The First Court gave a decree for redemption on payment of Rs. 70 principal and interest at 12 per cent. per annum from the date of the mortgage to the date of payment. The defendant appealed to the District Judge who held that the terms of the mortgage-deed were not harsh or unconscionable, but was of opinion that the defendant was really entitled only to interest for four years and that interest after the year of grace was not legally admissible. The District Judge, therefore, dismissed his appeal.

The defendant has lodged a second appeal to this Court, and the first question is whether the foreclosure notice issued in 1899 is legally defective. On behalf of the defendant reliance is placed on Fakira v. Piyare Lal (1) and Sardari v. Chiranji Lal (2). The latter ruling is extremely brief and does not, in my opinion, throw light on the present case. In the former ruling it is laid down that it is sufficient to inform the mortgagor that he must within one year redeem the land in the manner provided for in section 7 of the Regulation. For the respondents reliance is placed on Tara Chand v. Chiman (3), a judgment in which I laid down that a notice to the mortgagor which incorrectly or incompletely describes the manner in which redemption might be made was misleading and defective, even though a reference might be made in the notice to section 7 of the Regulation. I am still of the same opinion. Section 7 of the Regulation provides either for payment or tender to the mortgagor or for deposit in Court, and a notice which simply informs the mortgagor that he must pay the money within the year and says nothing as to the alternatives of tenders and deposits in Court is, in my opinion, misleading, and I do not consider that the defect is cured merely by the addition of words "in the manner provided for in section 7 of the Regulation". I note that in Fakira v. Piyare Lal (1) there was no misdescription of the manner provided for in section 7. The notice merely stated that the mortgagor must redeem in the manner provided for in section 7 without stating what that manner was; but in the present case the notice does not content itself with a reference to section 7 but incompletely describes the methods of redemption provided for in that section. I hold then that the notice is defective and that the mortgage still subsists.

(1) 21 P. R. 1901; 57 P. L. R. 1901
(2) 28 P. R. 1901; 9 P. L. R. 1901.

Another plea taken before me on behalf of the defendant but not pressed, was that the suit was barred as for more than 12 years after the year of grace the mortgagee held adverse possession, but the Article of the Schedule to the Limitation Act which governs the case is Art. 148 and not Art. 144. The mortgage is still subsisting and the mortgagors have a right to redeem at any time within 60 years, and the mortgagee cannot be allowed to set up any title of adverse possession within that period.

(3) 12 Ind. Cas. 520; 3 P. L. R. 1912; 263 P. W. R. 1911.

The only other question is what sum of money the plaintiffs should pay in order to redeem the land? On behalf of the defendant it is urged that the terms of the mortgage-deed should be strictly carried out, but the terms of the mortgage-deed are that profits shall be credited towards interest. Now, the interest on the principal sum was only Rs. 13 a year to within one or two annas, and the land revenue only Rs. 4-6-3. So if the mortgagee received as much as Rs. 17-6-3 yearly from the land he would be due nothing on account of interest. The mortgagee has produced no accounts, and on his behalf it is stated by Mr. Nanak Chand that the land is poor land and has yielded practically nothing. For this, however, we have only the bare statement of the mortgagee and I am not prepared to suppose that a money-lender would advance so much money on the security of land that the profits of the land would not be equal to the interest. The mortgagee was in possession and it was his duty, as long as the mortgage existed, to keep accounts. It is easy for him to keep no accounts and to assert at the time when the mortgagors sue to redeem that the land has yielded no profits. If he has neglected to cultivate the land that is his fault. The intention of the parties in such a case is clearly that the land shall be properly cultivated and that the mortgagee in possession of the land shall put it to the best use so that a fair amount of profits may be realised and credited towards interest due on the principal mortgage-debt. The mortgagee as it is gets 12 per cent. interest under the decrees of the lower Courts, and in addition he has had, or should have had, the profits of the land, and I am not prepared to hold that anything more is due to him even according to the terms of the deed. I, therefore, uphold the decrees of the lower Courts and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS CIVIL APPEAL No. 220 OF 1921.

April 6, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Pratt and Mr. Justice Duckworth.

A. K. R. M. C. T. CHETTY FIRM BY ITS AGENT KRISHNAPA CHETTY—APPELLANTS

versus

MAUNG AUNG BWIN—RESPONDENT.

Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920), ss. 24, 25—Insolvency petition by creditor—Debt, proof of.

Where a creditor applies to have his debtor adjudged an insolvent, the Court is bound to require the creditor to prove his debt, and ought not to require him to do this by means of a regular suit.

Miscellaneous appeal against an order passed by the District Judge, Pegu, dated the 10th November 1921.

Mr. Chari, for the Appellants.

Mr. Maung Tin, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—In this case a creditor Chetty applied to the District Court in order to have a debtor adjudicated insolvent.

For the purpose of this appeal, it will be enough to state that, when the debtor appeared, he denied that he owed any debts to the creditor.

The learned Judge of the District Court declined to permit the creditor to prove the alleged debts, requiring him to prove them by means of regular suits. He held rightly that, in order to enable a creditor to file such an application, there must be a debt, which must be a liquidated sum payable either immediately or at some future time. This represents section 9 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920. The learned Judge, however, went on to hold that clause (b) of section 9 seems to show that a debt must be indisputably due, and remarked that he could find no section, which empowered an Insolvency Court to make an inquiry into a question of this nature.

Here he was clearly wrong.

Section 24 (1) (a) of the Act lays down that the Court shall require proof of, amongst other matters, the fact that the creditor is entitled to present the petition. This undoubtedly refers back to section 9. This latter section lays down the conditions which entitle a creditor to present a petition against a debtor. In these are included that there must be a debt due to the creditor aggregating not less than Rs. 500. Therefore, it was incumbent on the petitioner to prove the debt.

The Act is based on the English Bankruptcy Act. Section 5 (5) of that Act provides expressly for an alternative reference of the creditor, in such circumstances as the present, to relief by regular suit. The omission of any similar provision from the Indian Act indicates that thereunder there is no similar alternative method of procedure, but that the creditor must be allowed under section 24 to prove the debt, when the debtor denies it. Further section 25 provides for dismissal of the petition on failure of the creditor to prove his right to present it, and this obviously involves the necessity of proving that right, in order to avoid dismissal.

The learned Judge of the District Court went astray by referring to the statements of objects and reasons given by the Legislature in enacting the Provincial Insolvency Act. The passage which he quoted relates, not to proceedings prior to adjudication, but to proceedings in the Insolvency, i. e., after the adjudication of the insolvent. The order of the District Court, dated 10th November 1921, is set aside, and the case is remanded to that Court, with orders to proceed according to law. The appellants' costs will be paid by respondent, with Advocates' fees of three gold mohurs.

W. C. A. Case remanded.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL No. 198 OF 1921.

February 4, 1922.

Present:—Sir Shadi Lal, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Campbell.

HARJAS AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

HARKE AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Custom—Succession—Non-proprietors.

By ordinary village custom a near collateral is entitled to retain possession of the house of a deceased Kamin in the village abadi in preference to a proprietor.

A collateral in the third degree is 'a near collateral' within the meaning of this rule.

Beli Ram v. Umar Bakhsh, 48 Ind. Cas. 723: 116 P. R. 1918; 25 P. L. R. 1919, Ata Ali Khan v. Kala, 50 Ind. Cas. 11; 103 P. R. 1919, referred to.

Where the custom of a particular village is uncertain, the rule of general custom should be applied.

Letters Patent Appeal from a decree of Mr. Justice Moti Sagar, dated the 26th of July 1921, passed in Civil Appeal No. 2 46 of 1920, affirming that of the District Judge, Karnal, dated the 9th August 1920.

Mr. Shamair Chand, for the Appellants.

Lala Jagan Nath, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This suit was for possession of a house owned by Udmi carpenter deceased. The plaintiffs were his first cousin once removed and his first cousin twice removed, both being descendants of Daulat Ram, a brother of Udmi's father. The defendants were two Jat proprietors of the village.

The first Court decreed in favour of the plaintiffs. Its judgment was reversed on appeal by the District Judge, and the learned Judge in Chambers affirmed the decision of the District Judge. The second appeal to this Court was accompanied by a certificate under section 41 (3) of the Punjab Courts Act.

The plaintiffs claimed to be owners in the abadi site, but the decision of the District Judge that they are not owners, and that Udmi was also not an owner is final.

The point for decision is whether by custom the plaintiffs-appellants are entitled to succeed as heirs of Udmi to his house in the village abadi of the site of which he was not a joint proprietor. The learned District Judge held that it was necessary for them to prove a special custom since they were not sufficiently nearly related to Udmi to be recognized as his heirs for this particular purpose by general custom. The finding of the learned Judge in Chambers was to the same effect.

In two recent rulings of this Court, Beli Ram v. Umar Bakhsh (1) and Ata Ali Khan v. Kala (2), it was held that by ordinary village custom a near collateral is entitled to retain possession of the house of a deceased kamin in the village abadi in preference to a proprietor. In the former case the collateral held to be so entitled was a first cousin and in the latter he was an uncle, that is to say, both were collaterals in the third degree. In the present instance the plaintiffs are descendants of the deceased's uncle and also collaterals in the third degree.

We are satisfied that both these rulings correctly state the general rule of custom and having regard to the customary method of computing relationship in degrees, we do not see why the direct descendants of an uncle should be in a worse position than the uncle himself would have been had he been alive. In our opinion the plaintiffs are such near collaterals as are permitted by general custom to succeed to the occupation of a deceased Kamin's house.

There is a copy on the record of a paragraph in the wajib ul-arz of 1879 of this particular village which deals with succession to the houses of non-proprietors and is in accordance with what we hold to be the rule of general custom. There is a footnote that at the time of attestation of the wajib-ul arz the proprietors urged that the house of a non-proprietor, who had died without male issue, should revert to the proprietary body. We read this merely as a protest and not as a statement of the existence of a special custom. At the utmost its effect can only be that the custom of this village is uncertain and this being so, the rule of general custom must be applied.

We accept the appeal, discharge the decree of the learned Judge in Chambers and restore the decree of the First Court. Respondents will pay the costs of the appellants throughout.

Z. K. Appeal accepted.

(1) 48 Ind. Cas. 723; 116 P. R. 1918; 25 P. L. R. 1919.

(2) 50 Ind. Cas. 11; 106 P. R. 1919.

KO TINE v. ISMAIL CASSIM MOORAD.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 164 OF 1920.

April 7, 1922.

Present:—Sir Sydney Robinson, KT., Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice Macgregor.

KO TINE AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

ISMAIL CASSIM MOORAD—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 60—Mortgage, splitting of—Mortgagee purchasing part of mortgaged property—Redemption by one of several mortgagors—Interest—Penalty—Question of law.

A mortgagee is entitled to claim that his security should not be split up, but if, by his own act, he becomes the purchaser of a portion of the mortgage-security, he has no longer any right to claim that the security should not be split up, and the mortgagor or his assignees become liable only for so much of the mortgage-debt as is proportionate to the portion of the mortgage-security they have purchased. Where the mortgagee seeks to bring the mortgaged property to sale in execution of a decree obtained on his mortgage, he must bring into account the full value of the mortgaged property purchased by him. [p. 889, cols. 1 & 2.]

Where the question whether the interest claimed on a mortgage-deed is a penalty, depends on an interpretation of a clause in the deed, the question is not a simple question of fact, and may be raised for the first time in first appeal [p 884, col. 2.]

Where a mortgage-deed provides for the payment of an increased rate of interest in case of default in paying the mortgage-money, and such increased rate is payable from the date of the mortgage, the provision is a penalty and ought not to be allowed. [p. 889, col. 2; p. 890, col. 1.]

First appeal against the judgment passed by the District Judge, Hanthawaddy.

Mr. Chari, for the Appellants.

Mr. Jeejeebhoy, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The facts of this case may be briefly stated as follows:—

Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 executed and registered a mortgage on various parcels of land in favour of the plaintiff-respondent. Subsequently the mortgagors sold various portions of the lands mortgaged to the other defendants in this case and they have erected buildings of various kinds on them. The plaintiff-respondent then brought a suit against defendants Nos. 1 and 2 based on certain promissory-notes and obtained a decree. In execution of that decree he brought a portion of the mortgaged properties to sale and became himself the purchaser. Subsequently the mortgagors allowed certain of the mortgaged properties to be sold for arrears of land revenue and thereby reduced the mortgage security. The plaintiff-respondent then brought the present suit seeking a mortgage-decree for the whole amount then due against the remaining properties, excluding those that he had purchased himself and those that had been sold for arrears of revenue. The defendants-appellants raised various defences and, amongst others, the defence that any decree that the plaintiff-respondent may obtain should be limited so as to preserve their rights to redeem the lands purchased by them on payment of a proportionate share of the mortgage-debt. The mortgage-deed contained a provision as to interest. Interest was fixed at 2 per cent. per mensem and the money was to be re paid by the 10th of February 1907. The deed provided that on failure to so redeem interest at the increased rate of 3 per cent. per mensem for the sum so remaining unpaid should be payable. The defendants did not in their written statement contest the liability to pay this increased rate of interest. It was apparently assumed that the plaint correctly set forth the terms of the mortgage-deed.

The learned District Judge has granted a mortgage-decree as prayed for, except in respect of certain defendants as to whose liabilities the claim was given up. Issues were drawn:—

(a) As to whether the plaintiff was estopped from asserting his right against all or any of the defendants who were bona fide purchasers.

(b) As to whether his suit was barred by limitation.

(c) As to whether, if there was no estoppel, the plaintiff was entitled to a mortgage-decree against the buildings as well as the lands, and lastly

(d) As to whether any of the defendants would be entitled to redeem the lands purchased by them for a proportionate share of the mortgage debt.

As regards those issues, the Trial Court stated that no evidence was led as to them, no argument was put forward and no law quoted in support of the defendants' claims. The judgment states that the learned District Judge cannot see how estoppel or limitation or right to redeem by payment of a proportionate amount of the debt arises.

In this appeal, which has been very ably argued by Mr. Chari he raises two points only:—

(i) That the defendants were entitled to redeem the lands purchased by them on payment of a proportionate share of the mortgage, and

(ii) That the increased rate of interest was a penalty and should not have been decreed.

As to the first point, he urges that, in consequence of the plaintiff respondent's purchase of certain of the mortgaged properties, the rights of the mortgagor and mortgagee in these properties were vested in one and the same person, viz., the mortgagee, and that, therefore, it must be held that the mortgage, which was originally indivisible, had become opened out. He relies on section 60 of the Transfer of Property Act and urges that, even though the section does not apply to the district where these lands are situate, the principle to be deduced therefrom should be applied as a rule of equity and good conscience.

For the respondent, it is urged that the whole of the burden of the mortgage could be and was transferred to the remaining properties, and reliance was placed on the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Bhora Thakur Das v. Collector of Aligarh (1). In that case two properties were mortgaged and the mortgagee purchased one of them in execution of a decree obtained by him on a prior mortgage, and it was held that the other property continued liable for the entirety of the mortgage-debt, and that a purchaser of the equity of redemption in such property could not be allowed to redeem it on payment of a proportionate share of the debt. It appears to me that this is an authority dealing with an entirely different case. The mortgagee held two mortgages, and he was entitled to bring the mortgaged property to sale in execution of his mortgage-decree without affecting the liability of the property to satisfy the subsequent mortgage. This was an appeal from the decision of the High Court of Allahabad, which is reported as Bohra Thakur Das v. Collector of Aligarh (2), and in the last page of the judgment of the High Court, the difference between the two positions is pointed out. It is there said: "Supposing A and B are mortgagors of certain property which they have jointly mortgaged to C. Now if C, the mortgagee himself, purchases the equity of redemption from A, it is clear that he cannot be permitted to throw on B.' share the whole burden of his mortgage. In such a case B.'s share can only be saddled with the proportionate amount of the mortgage debt. But if, as is the case here, C.'s purchase was at a sale in execution of a decree obtained on a prior mortgage, the case is different." I am, therefore, of opinion that the decision relied on is to be distinguished and does not apply to the facts of the present case.

In Kallan Khan v. Mardan Khan (3) it was held that where a mortgagee acquires a part of the mortgaged property, and thus a fusion takes place of the rights of the mortgagee and the mortgagor in the same person, the indivisible character of the mortgage is broken up, and one of several mortgagors may in such a case redeem his own share only on payment of a proportionate part of the mortgage-money. Again, in the case of Hamida Bibi v. Ahmad Hussain (4), it was held that where the equity of redemption in respect of a part of the mortgaged property becomes vested in the mortgagee, whether by purchase or by inheritance or otherwise, there is a merger of rights and the integrity of the mortgage is broken up. And in Narayan v. Ganpat (5) it was held that the general rule is that a

(1) 7 Ind. Cas. 732; 14 C. W. N. 1034; 12 C. L. J. 272; 8 M. L. T. 276; (1910) M. W. N. 665; 7 A. L. J. 1132; 12 Bom. L. R. 1005; 20 M. L. J. 890; 32 A. 612; 37 I. A. 182 (P. C.).

(2) 28 A. 593; 3 A. L. J. 439; A. W. N. (1906) 150.
(3) 28 A. 155; A. W. N. 1905) 225.
(4) 1 Ind. Cas. 779; 31 A. 335; 6 A. L. J. 387.
(5) 21 B. 619; 11 Ind. Dec. (N. s.) 415.

mortgagee has a right to insist that his security shall not be split up, but in the following cases there is no objection to do so and to rateably distribute the mortgage debt:—

(a) "When the mortgagee does not insist on keeping the security entire.

(b) "When the original contract itself recites that the mortgagors join together in mortgaging their separate shares.

(c) "When the mortgagee has himself split up the security, e. g., when he buys a portion of the mortgaged estate. In this case he is estopped from seeking to throw the whole burden on that part of the property still mortgaged with him."

I will refer to one more authority. In Ohunna Lal v. Anondi Lal (6) it was held that when a mortgagee holding a mortgage over two distinct properties brings one of them to sale in execution of a decree against the mortgagor not being a decree on his mortgage and purchases such property himself, the whole mortgage is not necessarily thereby extinguished; but, if the mortgagee subsequently seeks to bring the mortgaged property to sale in execution of a decree obtained on his mortgage, he will have to bring into account the full value of the portion of the mortgaged property purchased by him under his former decree.

There can, I think, be no question on the authorities, and under section 60 of the Transfer of Property Act, in cases to which that Act applies, that the law is so, and the mortgagee is entitled to claim that his security should not be split up but, if he becomes by his own act the purchaser of a portion of the mortgage-security, he has no longer any right to claim that the security should not be split up, and the mortgagors or assignees for mortgagors become liable for only so much of the mortgage-debt as is proportionate to the portion of the mortgage security that they have purchased. That this is so is merely equitable. Further, it is clear that the plaintiff's advisers realized the liability of the plaintiff to keep the lands purchased by him still subject to the mortgage and the right of the mortgagors and others to claim that this should be so. Accordingly, we find in the plaint that the amount paid for the properties which were brought to sale is said to have been credited towards the mortgage-debt, partly for principal and partly for interest. The object clearly was to avoid having to account for the full value of the property. It is, I think, clear that in a case such as this, the purchasers from the mortgagors would be entitled to redeem the lands they purchased on payment of a proportionate amount of the mortgage security.

It is urged that they cannot obtain the relief they seek in the present suit and that they must bring a separate suit against the mortgagee for this purpose. To compel them to bring a separate suit would clearly result in great delay, both in the present suit and before the rights of the various parties could be finally settled. I can see no reason, and I know of no rule of law, which would prevent the Court from passing a decree, limiting plaintiff's rights in consequence of certain findings of fact or of law.

Plaintiff seeks a mortgage decree and defendants desire and plead that, if he is to be granted a decree, that decree should be limited by setting out that he is not entitled to one indivisible decree against the whole of the properties, but only to a decree which would permit of each individual redeeming his own lands on payment of a proportionate share. I, therefore, think that there is no force in this objection and that it should not be allowed to prevail.

As to the second point: It is true that no defence was taken in the written statement as regards the interest; but seeing that the interest claimed was clearly one which might raise the question of its being a penalty and that the defending defendants were not parties to the document, the plaintiff ought clearly to have set out the terms of the deed as to interest. The matter depends on an interpretation of a clause in the deed. It is not a simple question of fact, and, that being so, I think it may be raised in first appeal.

It is perhaps not clear from the wording of the mortgage deed whether the increased rate of interest is to be payable from the date of the mortgage or only from the date of default; if the former, the provision is clearly a penalty and cannot be allowed; if the latter, it will fall within the provisions of the added explanation to section 74 of the Contract Act.

(6) 19 A. 196; A. W. N. (1897) 18; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 129.

CHIRAGH DIN v. SERAJ DIN.

The interest originally fixed, namely, 24 per cent. per annum was a very high rate of interest in the case of a mortgage with valuable properties as security; and to increase the rate of interest to 36 per cent. per annum has had the result of practically doubling the amount of interest that is now payable.

In my opinion, it is clear that, had the facts been brought to the notice of the Court, it would have been held that this stipulation for an increased rate of interest was a stipulation by way of penalty and that only 2 per cent. per mensem would have been decreed.

It is to be noted that plaintiff has waited for nearly 12 years in order to exact the uttermost farthing out of the increased rate of interest.

The appeal must, therefore, be accepted and the decree of the Trial Court must be varied. There will be the usual mortgage-decree for the principal sum due with interest at 2 per cent. per mensem up to the date of decree and for six months thereafter, with subsequent interest at 6 per cent. per annum with costs.

The decree will set out that each of the defendants appellants is entitled to redeem the lands purchased by him from the mortgagors on payment of a proportionate share of the mortgage-debt and that that proportionate share shall be arrived at by including the property purchased by the mortgagee himself, which is to be taken at what is fixed as its value and not merely at the amount realized at the auction sale. The whole of the mortgaged properties having been valued, the amount due will be proportioned amongst the various properties and the amounts for which each defendant-appellant may redeem his lands shall be set out and a time fixed within which he must do so. This will necessitate an enquiry, and I would remand the case to the District Court for an enquiry to be made on these lines and the result of the enquiry, together with the opinion of the District Judge, will be returned to this Court when a final decree will be drawn up.

As to costs: No orders can be passed at present, but the matter will be decided on the return being made.

W. C. A. Appeal accepted; Decree varied.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 3009 OF 1918.

April 18, 1922.

Present :—Mr. Justice LeRossignol and Mr. Justice Harrison.

CHIRAGH DIN AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

SERAJ DIN—PLAINTIFF, IMAM DIN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Pre-emption suit—Valuation—Compensation for improvements, whether to be included in valuation.

In determining the value for purposes of jurisdiction of a suit for pre-emption any compensation found to be equitably due to the vendee and not as a part of the price paid by the vendee, ought not to be taken into consideration [p. 891, cols. & 2.]

Muhammad Afzal Khan v Nand Lal, 16 P. R. 1908; 73 P. R. 1907; 146 P. L. R. 1908 (F B.) distinguished.

Abdur Rahman v. Charag Din, 19 P. R. 1908; 129 P. L. R. 1908; 38 P. W. R. 1908 (F. B.), Dharam Chand v. Girdhari Lal, 38 P. L R 1902, Hayat v Sant Ram, 20 P. R. 1894 and Muhammad Khan v. Ashak Muhammad Khan, 106 P. R. 1895 (F. B.), referred to.

Second appeal from a decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge, First Class, Lahore, dated the 13th May 1918, affirming that of the Munsif, First Class, Kasur, District Lahore, dated the 19th March 1918.

Diwan Mehr Chand, for the Appellants.

Malik Muhammad Hussain, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The first question in this second appeal is whether the appeal from the Munsif lay to the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge. In his plaint the plaintiff alleged that the property in suit belonged to him and Imam Din jointly, that it was sold by Imam Din to Chiragh Din, defendant, for Rs. 60 and that the plaintiff claimed one-half in his own right and the other half as a pre emptor on payment of Rs. 30. The Munsif found that the plaintiff had no share in the property but was entitled to pre-empt the whole on payment of Rs. 60 plus Rs. 71-2 0 representing compensation for improvements effected by the vendee since the sale. If the value of the original suit was Rs 60, the Senior Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to hear the appeal, but if the value of the original suit was Rs. 60; the price of the property, plus Rs. 71-2-0, the compensation payable for improvements, then the Senior Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction to hear the appeal which lay to the District Court. We have been referred to Muhammad Afzal Khan v. Nand Lal (1) but that does not afford much help, for all that it lays down is that the Munsif is not competent to pass a decree in a suit exceeding the limits of his pecuniary jurisdiction.

In Abdur Rahman v. Charag Din (2) it is laid down that in a suit for possession of a house the value of the improvements effected by defendants must be taken into consideration in determining the value of the suit, but in the body of the judgment of that case it is stated that cases relating to suits for pre-emption have only an indirect bearing on the point in issue.

In Dharam Chand v. Girdhari Lal (3) it was held that the value of the suit for the purposes of jurisdiction was the value of the property which it was sought to pre-empt and that value was not affected because the defendant claimed on equitable grounds compensation for improvements.

In Hayat v. Sant Ram (4) it was held that compensation for improvements was not to be taken into account in determining the value of the suit, and in Muhammad Khan v. Ashak Muhammad Khan (5) it was laid down that the question of jurisdiction had to be determined with reference to the claim made and not to the decision upon the claim.

From the foregoing it appears to us that any compensation found to be payable by the plaintiff pre-emptor to the vendee on equitable grounds and not as a part of the price paid by the vendee is not to be taken into consideration in determining the value of a suit in a pre-emption case. The only apparent ground on which the inclusion of the amount paid as compensation can be justified in determining the valuation of the suit is that the plaintiff should pay Court fee on the value of the property he seeks possession of. On the other hand, his claim is merely to be substituted for the vendee in respect of the property in the condition in which it stood at the time of the sale. He does not pray for possession of the improvements effected since the sale nor is he invariably bound to take over those improvements. Indeed the vendee may prefer to remove the improvements effected by him, and in some cases he will be allowed to do so whilst in others he may be forced to forego all claim to them. For these reasons we think the correct view is that compensation found to be equitably due to the vendee is not to be taken into calculation for the determination of the value of the suit, and on this finding we hold that the Senior Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to hear the appeal.

The only other point argued before us was that the Subordinate Judge was not correct in his finding that the plaintiff's property and the property sold had a common entrance from the street, and it is urged that the plan on the record is not correct. We are not, however, at this late stage prepared to allow the contention that the plan is incorrect, for its correctness was never challenged in the Courts below, and from that plan we find that the only entrance to the area in dispute is through the plaintiff's property. Consequently, the Senior Subordinate Judge is correct in his finding that the plaintiff's property and the property in dispute have a common entrance from the street.

For these reasons we dismiss the appeal with costs.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 16 P. R. 1908; 73 P. W. R. 1907; 146 P. L. R. 1908 (F. B.).
(2) 19 P. R. 1903; 126 P. L. R. 1908; 38 P. W. R. 1908 (F. B.).
(3) 38 P. L. R. 1902.
(4) 20 P. R. 1894.
(5) 103 P. R. 1895 (F. B.).

RAM NATH v. RAGGHA SAH.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 56 OF 1921.

February 10, 1922.

Present:—Pandit Kanhaiya Lal, J. C.

RAM NATH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

RAGGHA SAH—PLAINTIFF AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENTS.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 114—Presumption—Court, duty of—Document produced by obligor—Burden of proof—Question when immaterisal.

When a document creating an obligation is produced by the obligor the strength of the presumption authorised by section 114 of the Evidence Act varies in different circumstances and the Court has to take into regard any facts or circumstances indicating that the document might have been stolen. [p. 894, col. 1.]

In a suit upon a bond if the latter is produced by the defendant with an endorsement of payment on it, the burden of establishing that the debt was still outstanding, or in other words, of showing that the bond came in the possession of the defendant by dishonest means and that the signatures to the endorsements were either forgeries or unauthorised, is on the plaintiff [p. 894, col 2.]

Mohammad Mehdi Hasan Khan v. Sri Mandir Das, 17 Ind. Cas. 396; 15 O. C. 278; 12 M. L. T. 392; 34 A. 511; 14 Bom. L. R. 1078; 10 A. L. J. 373; 27 C. W. N. 49; 16 C. L. J. 629; (1912) M. W. N. 1052; 23 M. L. J. 741; 39 I. A. 68 (P. C.), referred to.

Harripria Debi v Rukmini Debi, 19 C. 439; 19 I. A. 79; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 177; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. s.) 736 (P. C.), relied on.

The burden of proof shifts as the evidence is developed: and when both the parties produce their evidence, the question on whom the initial onus lay ceases to be of much importance [p. 894, col. 2.]

Kundan Lal v. Musammat Begam-un-nisa, 47 Ind. Cas. 887; 22 C. W. N. 937; 8 L. W. 233 (P. C.), followed.

Appeal against a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Barabanki, dated the 13th August 1921.

Messrs. Bisheshwar Nath Srivastava and Har Dhian Chandra, for the Appellants.

Messrs. A. P. Sen and Ram Bharosa Lal, for Respondent No. 1.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit brought by the plaintiff for the recovery of money due on a mortgage-bond executed by Abdul Karim and Nasir Alam on the 23rd February 1912. The mortgage was effected in lieu of Rs. 1,000 re-payable within two years with interest at 2 per cent. per mensem compoundable half-yearly.

It is common ground that a dacoity was committed at the house of the plaintiff on the 14th June 1915. The plaintiff escaped by jumping down from the roof of his house but not without fracturing his arm. In the course of the dacoity the dacoits burnt the account books and other papers belonging to the plaintiff and are stated to have carried away other property including cash, ornaments and other articles.

The allegation of the plaintiff was that the original mortgage-bond in suit was lost by him in that dacoity. The defendants Nos. 2 and 3 produced that document and stated that they had obtained it from Abdul Karim, the original mortgagor, at the time they took a subsequent mortgage from him on the 26th August 1914. The learned Subordinate Judge in a well considered judgment came to the conclusion that the loss of the original bond was proved and that the defendants had failed to establish the alleged payment.

The decoity was committed in the village Paintipur near the border of the Barabanki District by about 40 men, 8 of whom were seen next morning passing by the village Mirzapur, which is in the Sitapur District with some bundles, the carrying of which aroused the suspicion of some of the villagers. They were arrested and the bundles were found to contain ornaments, some of which were identified as a part of the property which had been pledged with the plaintiff. Their capture led to the arrest of other persons. Many of those arrested were eventually convicted on the 8th December 1915. A list of the document lost in that dacoity was not then filed but the present plaintiff stated before the Committing Magistrate that the dacoits had burnt his account-books and other papers. He was under that impression when he filed the present suit, but the subsequent production of the mortgage bond in suit has led him to suggest that all the documents had not been burnt and some must have been removed by the dacoits.

The defendants have produced no direct evidence to prove that the money due on the bond in suit was paid by any of the executants to the plaintiff. They produced Abdul Karim, the original mortgagor, whose statement is that in 1913 he paid Rs. 1,000 to Nasir Alam, and got back the mortgage bond from him. In cross-examination he said that he had paid the money by making a fresh mortgage in favour of the late Raja of Belahra for Rs. 4,000; but no copy of that mortgage-deed has been filed, and it is admitted that no money was left out of the consideration of that mortgage with the Raja of Belahra for the payment of the money due to the plaintiff. He further stated that the payment was really made in 1914 and that the amount paid was Rs. 1,000 or 1,200. The mortgage-bond contains no endorsement evidencing the payment. The plaintiff is literate. The amount due on the mortgage-bond in 1914 must have been much more than what Abdul Karim professes to have paid. It is not likely that Abdul Karim or Nasir Alam would have paid the money due on the mortgage to the plaintiff without obtaining an endorsement from him thereon.

The story of the defendants-appellants is that Abdul Karim mortgaged the property comprised in the bond in suit with Kundan Lal on the 26th August 1914 for Rs. 2,000, the whole of which was paid in cash partly before execution and partly at the time of registration. It is also asserted that at the time of taking that mortgage Kundan Lal had searched the records and come to know that there was a mortgage on the said property held by the plaintiff and learnt from Abdul Karim that it had already been paid up and that the original mortgage-bond was then made over by Abdul Karim to him with two small holes at the places where the signatures of Abdul Karim and Nasir Alam existed to indicate that it had been rendered useless. Subsequently Abdul Karim sold the said property to Kundan Lal for Rs 7,000 on the 9th April 1915. The dacoity took place on the 14th June 1915. It is difficult to say that Abdul Karim could have any motive for bringing about the dacoity after he had sold his interest in the mortgaged property to Kundan Lal, though an insinuation of that effect has been made by the plaintiff in his evidence in this case. From the notes of search made at the time of the execution of the mortgage of the 29th March 1914, it appears that a mortgage bond was executed by Abdul Karim and certain other persons in favour of Raja Abul Hasan Khan of Belahra in respect of their share in the property mortgaged for Rs. 5,000 on the 22nd May 1912 within a few months of the execution of mortgage-bond in suit. No other loan on the security of the disputed property is shown to have been taken from Raja Abul Hasan Khan of Belahra either in 1913 or 1914. If Abdul Karim was unable to pay the money due on the mortgage in suit out of the consideration advanced by the Raja of Belahra on the 22nd May 1912, it is hardly likely that he would have been able to pay any money to the plaintiff in 1913 or 1914 unless a fresh loan was taken for the purpose, of which there is no proof.

The evidence of Kundan Lal about the original mortgage-bond having been returned to him by Abdul Karim on the 26th August 1914 is not supported by any reliable evidence. The statements of Abdul Karim and Kundan Lal are conflicting. Kundan Lal states that Abdul Karim told him when returning the mortgage bond in suit that no endorsement of payment could have been obtained thereon because the plaintiff was illiterate; but Abdul Karim states that he did not say so and that he knew that the plaintiff was literate. If the document was actually returned the probability is that it would have been returned before the Sub-Registrar and a note of return would have then found a place in the registration endorsement. In fact the mortgage of the 26th August 1914 does not even say that there was no previous encumbrance in existence, though the mortgage-bond in suit did say so. The statements of Ahmad Husain and Maikn Lal about the return of the original document are unreliable and have been rightly disbelieved by the learned Subordinate Judge. Kundan Lal states that Mathura Prasad was one of the persons present when the original mortgage bond was returned by Abdul Karim to Kundan Lal; but Mathura Prasad states that he was not present at the time of the execution of the mortgage by Abdul Karim in favour of Kundan Lal and that all he knew was that at the time of the execution of the sale-deed some papers had been returned by Abdul Karim to Kundan Lal but he did not know what they were.

There is a curious note on the back of the original mortgage-bond filed by Kundan Lal on the lower left hand corner, referring to the mortgage-bond in question in the following terms :—" Rs. 1,000 Raggha Sah ka bainama Abdul Karim deha ". The object of this note perhaps was to indicate to the holder who evidently did not know the language in which the document given was written that it was the mortgage of Rs. 1,000 in favour of Raggha Sah appertaining to the property about which a sale-deed had been taken from Abdul Karim. It might also mean that the document given was the sale-deed for Rs. 1,000 executed by Abdul Karim in favour of Raggha Sah or that the bond had been received from Abdul Karim in connection with the sale. Whatever the significance of that note might be, there can be no question that it could not have been made till after the sale deed executed by Abdul Karim in favour of Kundan Lal had come into existence and if the evidence produced by Kundan Lal to prove that the document in question had been returned to him by Abdul Karim on the 26th August 1914 fails, and no evidence is forthcoming to prove that Abdul Karim had paid any money to the plaintiff in satisfaction thereof in 1913 or 1914 as now stated, the story told by the plaintiff that the document had been lost at the time of the dacoity and had passed thereafter from the hands of one of the dacoits to the person interested in setting up the plea of payment becomes highly probable. The learned Subordinate Judge believed the evidence of the plaintiff and disbelieved that produced by the defendants and there is no sufficient reason for taking a different view.

Under section 114, clause (1), of the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872) it is open to the Court to presume that if a document creating an obligation is in the hands of the obligor, the obligation has been discharged. But in raising such a presumtion the Court has to take into regard any facts or circumstances indicating that it might have been stolen. It is not denied that a dacoity had been committed at the house of the plaintiff and it cannot be seriously disputed that the dacoits had burnt his account-books and other papers and possibly taken away such documents as they might have liked to remove, of which the plaintiff, who had jumped down from the roof soon after the arrival of the dacoits, could have had no knowledge. The learned Counsel for the defendants-appellants relies on the decision in Mohammad Mehdi Hasan Khan v. Sri Mandir Das (1) where their Lordships of the Privy Council observed that if the original bond was produced by the defendant with an endorsement of payment on it, the burden of establishing that the debt was still outstanding or, in other words, of showing that the bond came in the possession of the defendant by dishonest means and that the signatures to the endorsements were either forgeries or unauthorised is on the plaintiff. The plaintiff has stated on oath the circumstances in which he lost the document in the course of the dacoity. The learned Subordinate Judge has believed his evidence ; and as pointed out in Harripria Debi v. Rukmini Debi (2) his opinion as to the loss cannot be lightly set aside. The strength of the presumption, which might be raised when a document, creating the obligation is produced by the obligor, varies in different circumstances. The burden shifts, to use the language of Viscount Haldane in Kundan Lal v. Musammat Begam un nisa (3) as the evidence is developed; and when both the parties produce their evidence the question on whom the initial onus lay ceases to be of much importance. The plaintiff explained in his evidence that he was unable to file a suit earlier because his arm had been fractured and he was unable to do any work for two years and a half. The dacoity must naturally have upset him considerably, keeping him as far as his debtors went in fear of further trouble. He obtained a copy of the mortgage-bond on the 14th September 1917. The delay in the institution of the suit would not, therefore, justify an adverse inference. He states that he made demands from Abdul Karim from time to time ; that he had lost about 300 documents, out of which about 15 or 20 were registered. His account-books had been destroyed rendering a trace of the particulars of unregistered bonds difficult. He filed a suit on one of the registered documents and got a decree. The other documents might have been re-paid or renewed or the money due on them otherwise settled. No question was put to the plaintiff about them. His failure to file any other suit before the institution of the present one would not justify an inference that he had really lost none. The value of the property mortgaged which, according to Kundan Lal, yields a profit of Rs. 650 a year, is much more than the amount paid by Kundan Lal to Abdul Karim at the time of his purchase. Considering all the circumstances the view taken by the learned Subordinate Judge is fully justified by the evidence and the probabilities of the case.

(1) 17 Ind. Cas. 393; 15 O. C. 278; 12 M. L. T. 392; 34 A. 511; 14 Bom. L. R. 1073; 10 A. L. J. 373; 17 C. W. N. 49; 16 C. L. J. 629; (1912) M. W. N. 1052; 23 M. L. J. 741; 39 I. A. 38 (P. C.).

(2) 19 C. 438; 19 I. A. 79; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 177; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 736 (P. C.).

(3) 47 Ind. Cas. 337; 22 C. W. N. 937; 8 L. W. 233 (P. C.).

The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

W. C. A.

Appeal dismissed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS SECOND CIVIL APPEAL

No. 2511 OF 1921.

April 19, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Le-Rossignol.

SARDAR ALI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

FAZIL—PLAINTIFF, SHER—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENTS.

Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), s. 30—Pre-emption suit—Sale of undivided share in joint holding—Limitation—Physical possession of part.

Inasmuch as a co-sharer in a joint undivided property has a right to every part of that property until partition, what he sells is his share or a fraction of his share in the whole of that undivided property; in other words, he sells to the extent of his interest or a portion of his interest therein the whole property, and if his assignee takes possession under the sale of any portion of that joint property, limitation for a suit for pre-emption in respect of such a sale begins to run under the second clause of section 30 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act of 1913, from time of such assumption of possession.

Miscellaneous second appeal from an order of the District Judge, Mianwali, dated the 10th June 1921, reversing that of the Munsif, First Class, Mianwali, dated the 15th March 1921.

Mr. Abdul Ghani, for Mr. Zafrullá Khan, for the Appellants.

Mr. Mukand Lal Puri, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—In this and the two connected appeals the sole question is that of limitation. The suits are brought by the sons of the vendors in each case to pre-empt shares in a large area of shamilat. If the date of mutation be taken as the terminus a quo in each case, then each suit is within time, but the First Court has found that possession was delivered to the vendees at the time of sale long before mutation, and if the date of possession be regarded, then all three suits are barred by time.

The First Court dismissed the suits as barred by time. The learned District Judge held them to be within time and remanded them for decision on the other issues, holding that the limitation in such cases was governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act.

In second appeal it is conceded by the respondent that the learned District Judge is wrong in applying Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, but urges that under section 30 of the Pre-emption Act the suits are within time, inasmuch as what was sold was not capable of physical possession and, therefore, time began to run against the plaintiffs only from the date of mutation.

Whether an unascertained share in an undivided property is capable of physical possession is a matter on which the High Courts have dissented, but the balance of opinion appears to favour the view that a mere share in an undivided joint property is not capable of physical possession. For that reason Art. 10 of the Limitation Act is inapplicable to cases such as these. Now, I take it that inasmuch as a co-sharer in a joint undivided property has a right to every part of that property until partition, what he sells is his share or a fraction of his share in the whole of that undivided property; in other words, he sells (to the extent of his interest or a portion of his interest therein) the whole property, and if his assignee takes possession under the sale of any portion of that joint property, time begins to run under the second clause of section 30 of the Pre-emption Act from the time of such assumption of possess-sion. For these reasons I hold that all three suits are too late and accepting the appeals, I dismiss the suits with costs throughout.

KUBER SINGH v. RAJ KUNWAR.

Z. K.

Suits dismissed.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 65 OF 1921.

February 22, 1922.

Present :—Pandit Kanhaiya Lal, J. C.

KUBER SINGH—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

Musammat RAJ KUNWAR—

PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation - Mesne profits, decree for, affirmed on appeal - Application for determination of mesne profits —Limitation terminus a quo.

Where a decree for mesne profits is affirmed on appeal, the limitation for an application for determination of mesne profits is to be computed from the date of the decree of the Appellate Court.

First appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, Barabanki dated 17th August 1921.

Mr. Ram Bharose Lal, for the Appellant.

Mr. Bisheshwar Nath Srivastava, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal from a decree determining the amount of mesne profits payable to the decree-holder under O. XX, r. 12 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

It appears that Ahbaran Singh was the owner of a 6 pies share in the villages Kunwar Danda, Serai Motamid Nagar and Rampurwa and a 4-pies 10-kirants share in the village Baisara. He was also the owner of 10 bighas 11 biswas 5 biswansis of land in the village Nand Kuin. After his death Raghubir Singh, Narendar Singh, Hardat Singh and Sheo Singh, who claimed to be the heirs of Ahbaran Singh, mortgaged the said property with Maheshar Bakhsh Singh, agreeing to give him possession. A suit was subsequently filed by Maheshar Bakhsh Singh for possession of the said property with mesne profits, to which the mortgagors and a person named Kuber Singh were impleaded as defendants. On the 20th November 1916 a decree was eventually passed against them for possession and mesne profits for the two years preceding the suit, the amount of which was to be determined, it was said, in the execution department under O. XX, r. 12, of the Code of Civil Procedure and to be recoverable from Kuber Singh. The mortgagee executed this decree and obtained possession in December 1916. Kuber Singh meanwile filed an appeal from the entire decree. That appeal was dismissed on the 28th June 1917.

On the 2nd March 1920 the decree-holder applied for the determination of the mesne profits awarded to him for the years 1321, 1322 and Kharif 1323 Fasli. The Court below determined the mesne profits for 1321 and 1322 Fasli as amounting to Rs. 740 and those for Kharif 1323, Fasli, that is, till the date of the recovery of possession, as amounting to Rs. 135 ; but it awarded the decree-holder Rs. 600 out of the former amount and the whole of the latter amount.

In appeal it is contended that no decree for mesne-profits ought to have been passed for Kharif 1323 Fasli because the decree did not award mesne profits for any period in excess of two years. That contention is borne out by the decree. The amount awarded for Kharif 1323 Fasli, that is, for the period subsequent to the date of the suit must, therefore, be excluded. The amount, which the decree-holder is entitled to is, however, Rs. 740, because in the plaint an estimate of mesne profits was given by the plaintiff and it was distinctly stated that any amount that might be found due on account of mesne profits might be awarded to him. In the application filed by the decree-holder for the ascertainment of the mesne profits a demand was made for Rs. 600 ; but it was evidently not meant that he should get less than what was awarded to him by the decree. The correctness of the amount is not disputed. The decree-holder is, therefore, entitled to receive Rs. 740 for the two years preceding the suit.

It is also urged that the Court below has taken into consideration a larger share of the disputed property than was covered by the decree ; but this plea is clearly untenable, as the decree described the property as it existed prior to the partition. It is also urged that the application is barred by time, as it was not made within three years from the date when the original decree was passed. But by reason of the appeal the decree of the Original Court had merged in the decree of the Court of Appeal; and on the principle recognised in Abdul Majid v. Jawahir Lal (1) and Gajadhar Singh v. Kishen Jiwan Lal (2), the limitation for an application for the determination of mesne profits, if there is any limitation applicable, is to be computed from the date of the final decree, by which the award of mesne profits was confirmed. From that date the application is within time.

CHARU CHANDRA v. FANINDRA NARAIN.

The appeal is, therefore, dismissed except in so far that the amount awarded to the decree-holder will be reduced to Rs. 740, representing the mesne profits payable to him by Kuber Singh for the two years preceding the suit. The defendant-appellant will get his costs in proportion here and below from the plaintiff-respondent, who will get her costs in proportion here and below from the defendant-appellant.

W. C. A. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 23 Ind. Cas. 649; 36 A. 350; 12 A. L. J. 624; 16 Bom. L. R. 395; 18 C. W. N. 963; 19 C. L. J. 628; 27 M. L. J. 17; (1914) M. W. N 485; 16 M. L. T. 44; 1 L. W. 485 (P. C.).

(2) 42 Ind. Cas. 93; 39 A. 641; 15 A. L. J. 734.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORDER No. 81 OF 1921.

January 23, 1922.

Present:—Justice Sir Thomas Richardson, Kt., and Mr. Justice Ghose.

CHARU CHANDRA MAZUMDAR —DECREE-HOLDER—APPELLANT

versus

FANINDRA NARAIN CHOUHDURY AND OTHERS—JUDGMENT-DEBTORS —RESPONDENTS.

Execution of decree—Limitation—Execution stayed by order of Court—Period of stay, if can be deducted.

In computing the period of limitation for an application for execution of a decree, the decree-holder is entitled to deduct the period during which the execution of the decree was stayed by an order of Court

57

Appeal against an order of the Subordinate Judge, First Court, Pabna, in Pabna and Bogra, dated the 19th of January 1921, affirming that of the Munsif, First Court at Pabna, dated the 28th of June 1920.

FACTS appear from the judgment.

Babu Jatindra Nath Sanyal, for the Appellant.—The decree-holder is the appellant. The appeal is directed against an order dismissing an application for execution on the ground of limitation. The present decree was attached in execution of another decree against the decree holder in 24th January 1916, and the execution of the present decree was stayed on 25th January 1916. There was a sale held in execution of the present decree which was set aside on 5th February 1916. Then the order of attachment of the present decree was withdrawn on 3rd February 1917. The present application was made on 22nd January 1920. My submission is that the present application cannot be held to be barred by limitation. Attachment of a decree under O. XXI, r. 54, operates as a stay of execution and the period during which it was under attachment should be deducted in computing limitation. Refers to Kiran Shashi Debi v. Chandrika Prosad Singh (1). The judgment-debtors who had notice of this application took no objection. I submit the learned Judge was wrong in holding that the application was barred. Refers to Bindu Bashini Dasya v. Keshab Lal Basu (2), Gobindnath Choudhuri v. Basiruddin Mondal (3).

No one appeared for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal from an order of the learned Subordinate Judge of Pabna dismissing an application for execution of a decree on the ground that it is barred by limitation. We have not had the advantage of hearing the respondents in this case as they did not appear. The material dates which appear from the judgment of the learned Subordinate Judge are these. The decree which is sought to be executed was attached in execution of another decree which appears to have been obtained against the decree-holder on the 24th January 1916 and the execution of the present decree was stayed by an order dated 25th January 1916. The order, however, was modified to this extent that the decree-holder was allowed to proceed with the sale in execution of his decree, if the amount due on account of the other decree was kept in deposit out of the purchase money of the property which would be sold. The sale was held on the 26th January 1916 and the decree-holder applied for setting off the purchase money against his dues under the decree. That application was allowed apparently under some misapprehension. The judgment-debtors applied to have the sale set aside and it was set aside on the 5th February 1916. There was an appeal by the decree-holder and a second appeal both of which were dismissed and the execution of this decree was stayed by an order of the Court. Then on the 3rd February 1917 the attachment order against the present decree was withdrawn and the decree-holder applied for execution of his decree on the 22nd January 1920. A notice was issued on the judgment-debtors as to this application. Apparently the judgment debtors took no objection and an order was made on the 28th February 1920 for attachment of the properties mentioned in the application.

(1) 30 Ind. Cas. 587.

(2) 37 Ind. Cas. 66; 21 C. W. N. 945; 23 C. L. J. 109.

(3) 61 Ind. Cas. 504; 31 C. L. J. 163.

Two points have been urged on behalf of the decree-holder in support of his appeal. The first ground is that the present application for execution was not barred as he is entitled to deduct the period during which the execution of his decree was stayed by an order of the Court, that is to say, the period between the 5th February 1916 and the 3rd February 1917 when the attachment order against his decree was withdrawn. The last step previous to the 5th February 1916 taken by the decree-holder in aid of execution was on the 26th January 1916 and if the period stated above be deducted then his present application is within three years of the last step taken in aid of execution. It appears that it is so and, therefore, the present application for execution is within time. We need not therefore, consider the other point raised by the learned Vakil for the appellant.

The judgment of the lower Appellate Court is, therefore, set aside and the case is sent back to the Court of first instance in order that it may proceed with the execution of the decree.

The decree-holder is entitled to his costs in all Courts, hearing-fee in this Court being assessed at two gold mohurs.

B. N. Case remanded.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL No. 49 OF 1921.

August 1, 1922.

Present:—Sir Walter Schwabe, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Coutts-Trotter.

THE OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE OF MADRAS —APPLICANT—APPELLANT

versus

ALLU N. RAMACHANDRA AIYAR AND OTHERS—GARNISHEES—RESPONDENTS.

Insolvency—Manager of joint Hindu family adjudicated insolvent—Official Assignee, rights of.

The Official Assignee, on the insolvency of the managing member of a joint Hindu family, succeeds to,—

(a) the undivided interest of the insolvent in the joint property, and

(b) his rights as managing member, so far as they can be exercised for his benefit;

he is not entitled to have vested in him the shares of the other members, although he can deal with them if the insolvent could lawfully have done so if there had been no insolvency. [p 899, col. .]

Fakirchand Motichand v. Motichand Hurruckchand, 7 B. 438; 8 Ind. Jur 93. 4 Ind. Dec (N. S.) 294, Nunna Brahmayya Setti v. Chidaraboyina Venkataswamy, 26 M. 214, referred to.

The Official Assignee is entitled to all the rights of the insolvent, including the right to possession, except such rights as are in their nature personal to a member of the family as such. [p. 899, col. 2.]

Appeal from an order of Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastry, dated 23rd February 1 21, passed in the exercise of the Ordinary Insolvency Jurisdiction of this Court in Insolvency Petition No. 201 of 1919.

Mr. V. Varadharaja Mudaliar, for the Appellant.

Mr. A. Kandasami Mudaliar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The Official Assignee in the insolvency of N. B. Balaswami Aiyar and Narasimha Iyar brought this suit against the minor sons of N. B. Balusami Iyar to set aside a deed of partition executed by that insolvent in favour of his minor sons. The learned Judge, Kumaraswami Sastry, J., held that the deed was fraudulent and void against the Official Assignee. The Official Assignee asked for declarations that the interests of the minors in the property should be vested in him and that the possession of all the properties included in the deed should be delivered to him. These declarations were refused and hence this appeal. It has, however, been admitted before us that the declaration that the shares of the sons has vested was rightly refused and the only question remaining for our decision is whether possession ought to have been ordered to be delivered to the Official Assignee.

This involves a consideration of the rights of the Official Assignee to joint family property when the managing member is adjudicated insolvent, for N. B. Balusami Iyar was the managing member of the joint Hindu family consisting of himself and his sons and as such managing member had control over the properties in question. This insolvent's interest in the partnership business belonging to two insolvents was not an ancestral property. The minor sons had no interest in it and the debts of N. B. Balusami Iyar are in the main business debts incurred in the partnership business.

It can be taken as established law that the Official Assignee on the insolvency of the managing member of a joint Hindu family succeeds to two things, (1) the undivided interests of the insolvent in the joint property, and (2), his rights as managing member so far as they can be exercised for his own benefit. It is also established that he is not entitled to have vested in him the shares of the other members although he can deal with them if the insolvent could lawfully have done so if there has been no insolvency. The propositions are to be found clearly stated in the judgment of Latham, J., in Fakirchand Motichnnd v. Motichand Hurruckch nd (1) which has been followed in many subsequent cases. This is the combined effect of sections 7, 30 and 52 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act and of the Hindu Law as to the rights of a managing member. See Nunna Brahmayya Setti v. Chidaraboyina Venkataswamy (2). It follows that the Official Assignee standing for this purpose in the shoes of the insolvent can alienate the minor sons' interests in the joint property for the purpose of paying the insolvent's debts unless the debts in question were incurred for an illegal or an immoral purpose, the presumption being that they were not.

The question remains whether the Official Assignee is entitled to possession of the joint property. He is joint owner of the property, and, in my judgment, he must be entitled to joint possession thereof. It is no doubt true that a stranger cannot by reason of having purchased a share in the joint property insist on having a joint possession. But the Official Assignee is not an alienee but the representative of the insolvent.

There are certain rights of a managing member which the Official Assignee cannot exercise by reason of the personal nature of the rights such as the right to live in the family house or to share in the family meals. But in my judgment he is entitled to all the rights of the insolvent including the right to possession except such rights as are in their nature personal to a member of the family as such.

I expressly refrain from deciding anything as to what the respective rights of the parties will be hereafter. It is for the Official Assignee to decide after examining the nature of the debts whether he can exercise the insolvent's right as managing member of selling the assets for the benefit of the creditors; and if there are separate assets of the insolvent in which his co-parceners have no interest, to what extent they are to be used in paying the debts, in relief of the joint family property, and so on, and it may be open to the minor sons, if so advised, to object to any proposed sale on the ground that the debts that it is proposed to discharge were incurred for an immoral or illegal purpose, though it is right to point out that it has in this case already been argued, that the business was of an illegal or immoral character by reason of its alleged speculative nature and this point has been decided adversely to the contention of the minor sons by the learned Judge who heard the case. In Sanyasi Charan Mondal v. Asutosh Ghosh (3) where the persons entitled to 4/5th of the undivided joint family property were adjudicated insolvents but the member of the family

(1) 7 B. 438; 8 Ind. Jur. 93; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 294.

(2) 26 M. 214.

(3) 26 Ind. Cas. 836; 42 C. 225.

entitled to the other 1/5th was not, the Court directed that the Receiver who was in the position of the Official Asignee should take possession of 4/5th share of the property. In this case the Official Assignee as representing the managing member is entitled to joint possession of the whole and the order in this case must be varied accordingly. The case is one of general importance and there will be no order as to costs, except that the Official Assignee will take his taxed costs of this appeal on the original side scale out of the estate.

V. N. V.
W. C. A.

Order varied.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

May 12, 1922.

Present:—Lord Buckmaster, Lord Atkinson, Lord Sumner and Lord Parmoor.

PRAMATHA NATH ROY—APPELLANT

versus

THE HON. WILLIAM ARTHUR LEE—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 12 (2)—Time requisite for obtaining copy of decree, how determined—Conduct of appellant.

In determining what is the requisite time for obtaining a copy of a decree, the conduct of an appellant must be considered No period can be regarded as requisite under section 12 of the Limitation Act which need not have elapsed, if the appellant had acted with reasonable promptitude and taken reasonable and proper steps to obtain the copy. [p. 901, col 1.]

Bani Madhub Mitter v. Matungini Dassi, 13 C. 104; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 568 (F. B.), referred to.

Appeal from a decree of the Calcutta High Court (Sir Lancelot Sanderson, KT., Chief Justice, and Justice Sir Charlis Chetty KT.) dated the 29th January 1919 and printed as 52 Ind. Cas. 582.

JUDGMENT.

LORD BUCKMASTER.—The appellant in this case is the defendant in a suit which the respondent instituted by a plaint filed on the 24th June 1916. The various stages in the litigation are set out in detail in the judgment of the Chief Justice in the Appeal Court at Calcutta, and it is unnecessary that they should be repeated. Among these there was a decree made on the 14th February 1918 decreeing in favour of the respondent and against the appellant the sum of Rs. 27,443. Application made by the appellant to Mr. Justice Greaves to set that decree aside was refused on the 26th July 1918. The appellant desired to appeal from that refusal, and he produced his memorandum of appeal before the Court on the 30th August of that year, on the eve of the Court arising for the vacation.

By r. 3 of Chapter 32 of the Rules of the High Court of 1914, it is provided that every memorandum of appeal shall be accompanied by a copy of the decree or order appealed from, and with this rule the appellant did not comply. The memorandum of appeal was, however, admitted without the order, subject to all objections that might be raised on the hearing which took place on the 27th of January 1919. It was then decided by the High Court that the appeal was out of time, and it is from that judgment that the present appeal has been brought. That the notice of appeal was out of time, in fact, is beyond dispute, for the period of appeal is twenty days from the date of the decree or order which it is sought to impeach, and that period expired on the 15th August 1918. But there is a provision contained in section 12, subsection 2, of the Limitation Act of 1908, which provides that in computing the time for appeal there shall be excluded the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree. The appellant's contention is that the time "requisite" within the meaning of that subsection is the time which, in the circumstances of the case, is actually occupied in obtaining the decree, and that, so regarded, the time that ought to be deducted here is more than sufficient to rectify the delay.

The facts with regard to that matter are these:—After the order had been made on the 26th July no steps were immediately taken by the plaintiff to have the order drawn up, but after the lapse of four days it was competent to the defendant to apply for that purpose. The four days elapsed and nothing was done. On the 6th August application was made by the plaintiff to have the order drawn up, and on the 7th August the draft of the order was sent to the appellant. The order was simplicity itself, but the appellant only returned the draft on the 16th August. On the 28th August it was signed, and on the 3rd September it was filed by the plaintiff.

Now, the learned Judges in the Appeal Court have held that in determining what is the requisite time referred to in section 12 of the Limtation Act the conduct of the appellant must be considered, and their Lordships think that in so determining they have rightly regarded the statutory provision. In their Lordships' opinion, no period can be regarded as requisite under the Act, which need not have elapsed if the appellant had taken reasonable and propepr steps to obtain the order. In the present case he took none, and the periods between the 30th July and the 6th August, and again between the 7th August and the 16th August, which were within the appellant's control, are sufficiently great to prevent the appellant saying that the time that did elapse must have elapsed even if he had acted with reasonable promptitude.

It is then urged that there is an authority, decided in 1886, which has been the origin of a practice undeviatingly followed by the Courts in Calcutta in the interpretation of the Statute, and that practice is said to be that in determining what is the time requisite which may be deducted you are, in all cases, to look at the time that has actually elapsed in obtaining the order. Their Lordships are unable to see how this decision, Bani Madhub Mitter v. Matungini Dassi (1) which is reported in 13 Cal. at p. 104 can have been so misunderstood. In that case judgment was pronounced on the 17th July 1883, and the decree was signed on the 23rd July so that only six days elapsed between the pronouncing of the judgment and the signing of the decree. It would be impossible for anybody to suggest that that was an unreasonable time. Again, the application for the copy was made on the 3rd August, and it was obtained on the 11th August; another eight days elapsed there for which the appellant need not be held responsible. All that that case decided was that those two periods of time, one of which was prompt and effective and the other of which the appellant might not have been able to control, ought to be deducted from the length of time between the decree and the lodging of the memorandum. It certainly does not support the proposition that in determining what period is to be deducted in any case the time actually consumed in obtaining the decree is to be regarded. Their Lordships have been referred to a well-known book on practice which, it is said, shows that that is the practice notwithstanding the limited character of the judgment; but even there it is impossible to find this practice laid down in terms so plain and so unhesitating that their Lordships could rely upon that authority for the purpose of saying that it has become established as the equivalent of a rule of Court.

Their Lordships think that the appellant here is wrong, for the reason stated, which they regard as forming the foundation of the judgment appealed from.

For these reasons their Lordships will humbly advise His Majesty that this appeal should be dismissed with costs.

N. K. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 13 C. 104; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 563 (F. B.).

MADRAS HIGH COURT.
CIVIL APPEAL No. 65 OF 1920.
April 24, 1922.
Present:—Mr. Justice Phillipps and Mr. Justice Devadoss.

NALLANCHAKORAVARTHULA APPALACHARYULU AND OTHERS —DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
NALLANCHAKKRAVANTHULA RAMACHANDRACHARYULU, MINOR, BY MOTHER AND GUARDIAN, PERINDEVI THAYARAMMA— PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 22 (1) (2)—Notification under cl. (1)—Description of property—Refusal of Registration—Sufficiency of description for identification—Suit to enforce registration—Necessary parties.

The mere fact that there has been a notification under clause (1) of section 22 of the Registration Act would not, under clause (2) of the same section, be enough for refusal of registration to a document not described according to that notification, unless the power of refusal in such a case was expressly given by the notification. [p. 90², col. 2.]

Where a notification merely provides that in certain districts the description should be in a certain manner and does not give any further direction, the proviso under clause (2) of section 22 of the Registration Act would have the effect of entitling a document to be registered provided the description is sufficient to identify the property. [p. 902, col. 2.]

Where a compromise agreement contains a recital that "all the immoveable property pertaining to the family of the executants and mentioned in schedule A described herein below shall be divided into four equal shares," the description of the property, for purposes of registration, is sufficient for its identification. [p 902, col 2; p. 903, col. 1.]

Maulvi Sayid Mahmud v. Muhammad Zubair, 3 Ind. Cas. 506: 31 A. 523; 6 A. L. J. 627; 6 M. L. T. 5, doubted.

Narasimha Nayanevaru v. Ramalingama Rao, 10 M. L. J. 104, referred to.

When a document purports to be executed by certain persons it is essential that those persons, even though they are minors, should be brought on record in a suit to enforce registration so as to make the proceeding binding upon them in so far as the proceedings have been conducted bona fide by their guardians. [p. 903, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Bezwada, in Original Suit No. 31 of 1917.

Mr. A. Krishnaswami Aiyar, for the Appellants

Mr. P. Narayanamurthi, for the Respondent.

JUDGMEMT.—In this case the plaintiff has obtained a decree to compel registration of the document Exhibit A and an appeal is filed by the defendants. This document was presented for registration and registration was refused both by the Sub Registrar and by the Registrar on appeal on the ground that it was a document dealing with immoveable property and the description of the property was not sufficient to identify the same.

Under section 21 of the Registration Act there are certain provisions for the description of immoveable property in documents presented for registration; but under section 22, clause (2), it is provided that "save as otherwise provided by any rule made under sub-section (1), failure to comply with the provisions of section 21, sub section (2) or sub-section (3), shall not disentitle a document to be registered if the description of the property to which it relates is sufficient to indetify that property." In this appeal, it is first of all contended that there has been a notification relating to Kistna District under section 22 of the Act and apparently there has been some such notification, but it does not appear that the village in which the immoveable property is situated has been surveyed or that it would be possible to describe the property by its survey number as prescribed by the notification. Apart from this, it appears to us that clause (2) of section 22 provides that a document shall not be refused registration merely because there has been a notification under section 22 clause (1) unless that notification so provides. If such notification provides that "Certain description shall be given" of the immoveable property and failing such description registration can be refused, the question would be clear; but, if it merely provides that in certain districts the description should be in a certain manner and does not give any further direction, it seems to us that the proviso under clause (2) would have the effect of entitling a document to be registered provided the description is sufficient to identify the property. It would appear that in Maulvi Sayid Mahmud v. Muhammad Zubair (1) it was held that a rule framed under section 22, clause (1) was imperative and was not affected by the proviso in clause (2) of the same section. If that is the effect of that decision, we may say with respect that at present we are not altogether prepared to accept it, but in the present case this is a matter which need not be decided, for it does not appear that the property now in question can be described by survey numbers as directed in the notification of the Local Government regarding the Kistna District.

We then have to see whether the description of the property is sufficient to identify the same. The document sought to be registered is substantially a compromise agreement and one of the conditions of that compromise is that "all the immoveable properties pertaining to the family of the executants and mentioned in Schedule A described herein below shall be divided into four equal shares" and the division is to take six months after the execution of the document There is another provision also that "a deed of partition shall be executed separately on a proper stamp paper and that the same shall be got registered and that this agreement shall be got registered on 19th December 1916." No doubt the property is not very definitely described but it is stated to be the family property and we think that the description is sufficient for the identification of the property. It is not as if this were a document effecting an actual transfer of the property; it is merely a declaration of the intention to effect partition with a recital that the partition is to be finally effected by a separate registered instrument. Our view that this description is sufficient is completely supported by the decision of this Court in Narasimha Nayanevaru v. Ramacingama Rao (2) in which it was held that the description of the property as 'my family property' without anything further was sufficient. Here we have also a schedule which does to a certain extent define the lands referred to. We accordingly find that the description is sufficient.

(1) 3 Ind. Cas. 506; 31 A. 523; 6 A. L. J. 627; 6 M. L. T. 5.

Even if the document could be registered so far as regards the immoveable property, it contains various other provisions which do not relate to immoveable property and as decided in Amirdom v. Muthukumara Chetty (3) it could have been registered at least so far as it purports to be an agreement for partition. We accordingly hold that the Subordinate Judge was right and that the document should be registered.

A further objection is taken that defendants Nos. 4 and 5 who were minors at the time of execution and on whose behalf the document was executed by their guardians were unnecessary parties to this suit, the argument being that under the Registration Act, the executant of a document is the guardian and not the minor. Whether this is so or not is immaterial, for when a document purports to be executed by certain persons it is essential that those persons, even though they are minors, should be brought on record in a suit to enforce registration so as to make the proceedings binding upon them in so far as the proceedings have been conducted bona fide by their guardians. They are clearly necessary parties to this suit and this contention fails.

The appeal is accordingly dismissed with costs.

M. C. P.

N. H. Appeal dismissed.

(2) 10 M. L. J. 104.
(3) 13 M. L. J. 303.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

APPEALS FROM ORIGINAL DECREES NOS. 14 AND 15 OF 1918.

April 15, 1921.

Present:—Mr. Justice Das and Mr. Justice Ross.

SURAJ PRASAD PANDEY—DEFENDANT—FIRST PARTY—APPELLANT

versus

SOMRA MAHTO AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Mesne profits, application for ascertainment of—Venue—Application, nature of—Interest—Discretion—High Court, power of, to interfere.

The proper Court in which to institute proceedings for the ascertainment of mesne profits is the Court passing the decree, even though the claim exceeds the ordinary pecuniary jurisdiction of such Court. [p. 904, col 1.]

Robinson v. Duleep Singh, (1879) 11 Ch. D. 798 at p. 813; 48 L. J. Ch. 758; 39 L. T. 313; 27 W. R. 21, Dinanath Sahai v. Mayawati Kuer, 60 Ind. Cas. 346; 6 P. L. J. 54; 2 P. L. T. 143; (1921) Pat. 69, relied on.

An application for ascertainment of mesne profits decreed is not a suit, but a proceeding in a suit, consequently, where mesne profits are decreed, the plaintiff is entitled to such profits for three years before the date of the suit. [p. 904, col. 2.]

It is entirely within the discretion of a Court to fix the rate of interest decreed, and the High Court will not, in second appeal, interfere with that discretion. [p 905, col. 2.]

First Appeal.

Messrs. S. Sinha, Saroshi Charan Mitter and Ambica Pd. Upadhaya, for the Appellant.

Mr. Baikuntha Nath Mitter, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Ross, J.—The respondents in these two appeals were plaintiffs in Suits Nos. 827 and 826 of 1911, in which they claimed that two sale deeds, executed by the mother of the respondent, Somra Mahto, and other relations, in favour of the appellant in respect of an eight annas share in 9 bighas 3 kathas and 3 dhurs of land and a 12 annas share in 22 bighas and 14 dhurs of land in Gopowlia and Peperdarbi, did not affect their interests, and prayed for possession.

The suits were dismissed by the Munsif but were decreed by the Subordinate Judge on appeal and a second appeal to the High Court was dismissed in 1916. The present applications were made in 1918 for the ascertainment of mesne profits and the respondents claimed in the first case a sum of Rs. 8,500-14-0 from 1315 to 1320 and in the second case a sum of Rs. 13,197 from 1318 to 1320. The Subordinate Judge has given a decree for Rs. 1,425-14-4 in the first case and Rs. 2,219-7-8 in the second. The Appeal No. 15 of 1918 relates to the former and the Appeal No. 14 of 1918 relates to the latter suit and the defendant is the appellant. There are cross-objections in both the cases.

At the outset three legal objections were taken. It was contended, first, that the decree for mesne profits was without jurisdiction, because no mesne profits were asked for in the plaint; but, on the contrary, it was said that a separate action would be brought for mesne profits. Reference was made to the case of Robinson v. Duleep Singh (1) in support of the argument that the pleadings must be looked at in relation to the decree. In the present case, however, the decree is perfectly clear and there is no doubt about its meaning. It is, therefore, unnecessary to look at the pleadings in relation to it. And the relief granted, namely, mesne profits, is not inconsistent with the relief that had been asked for, namely, possession, except so far as there is a statement in the plaint that a separate action would be brought. But in any case this point is concluded by the decision of the High Court dismissing the second appeal which was preferred against the decision of the Subordinate Judge.

The second point was as to the jurisdiction of the Court. When the applications for ascertainment of mesne profits were made to the Subordinate Judge, he said that he had no jurisdiction and referred the plaintiffs to the Munsif. But his decision was reversed by the Calcutta High Court. According to the decisions of this Court the Subordinate Judge was right. In Dinanath Sahai v. Mayawati Kuer (2) it has been held that the proper Court in which to institute proceedings for the ascertainment of mesne profits is the Court passing the decree, even though the claim exceeds the ordinary pecuniary jurisdiction of such Court. The same view was taken in the case of Mohammad Abdul Ghafoor v. Mahtab Choudhury (3) in which case also, it may be noted, no claim for mesne profits was made in the plaint. But this plaint also is concluded by the decision of the High Court which granted a rule against the order of the Subordinate Judge and made it absolute and directed him to ascertain the amount of mesne profits.

The third point was that the claim for the first three years was barred by time according to the rule laid down in Art. 109, Schedule I of the Limitation Act and the decision in Krishnanand v. Kunwar Partab Narain Singh (4) that mesne profits can be claimed only for three years before suit. The learned Counsel for the appellant contended that the applications made in 1913 must be treated as the starting point for limitation and that the claim must, therefore, be limited to three years before that date. But the Act allows three years before the date of the suit, and the applications were not suits, but proceedings is the suits; and the decrees passed in these suits can only be understood on the assumption that the plaints were treated as stating claims for mesne profits. The material date, therefore, is the date of the suits. The suits were filed on the 8th of July 1911. Consequently the plaintiffs are entitled to mesne profits from the 8th of July 1908, that is, the 27th of Asarh 1315. But as this is almost the end of the agricultural year 1315 that year must be excluded from account and the decree of the Subordinate Judge must be modified by disallowing the claim for the year 1315.

On the merits three points were taken. The first was that the Commissioner had erred in allowing 30 maunds a bigha as the paddy crop. The oral evidence on both sides was disbelieved, but it was contended on behalf of the appellant that the evidence of the two Sub Inspectors was not open to objection. That evidence is supported in one case by receipts (Exhibits C and D) and in the other by the report of the Sub-Inspector of Police who made over the crops of the disputed land to the disputants. Their evidence relates to the years

(1) (1879) 11 Ch. D. 798 at p. 813; 48 L. J. Ch. 758; 39 L. T. 313; 27 W. R. 21.

(2) 60 Ind. Cas. 346; 6 P. L. J. 54; 2 P. L. T. 143; (1921) Pat. 69.

(3) 41 Ind. Cas. 231; 2 P. L. J. 394.

(4) 10 C. 785; 11 I. A. 88; 8 Ind. Jur. 335; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 551; Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 80; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 526 (P. C.).

1321 and 1323 and the amount of paddy made over in these years works out at 7 maunds a bigha in the first year and 8 maunds a bigha in the second. The Commissioner has discarded the evidence of these witnesses on the ground that they have been gained over by the appellant. This is manifestly an unfair criticism and is not open to him because there was nothing in the cross-examination of either witness to suggest such an idea. On the other hand, the appellant himself admitted in his written statement that the cutturn of paddy was 14 or 15 maunds a bigha and this admission itself shows that the figures arrived at from the Police report and the receipts cannot truly represent the cutturn of the total area. This confirms the finding of the Commissioner, that these figures cannot be accepted because they do not relate to the produce of the entire land in dispute in either year. These figures can, therefore, form no criterion. Moreover, the evidence on behalf of the appellant shows that the outturn is 12 maunds even in a year of drought. The Commissioner has given other reasons for his conclusion that the produce amounts to 30 maunds, the most important being the result of an experimental crop cutting. I do not think that it can be said then that the Commissioner's estimate is excessive; and certainly the evidence of the two Sub-Inspectors and the documents connected therewith do not afford a sufficient basis for disturbing the Commissioner's finding.

There is a cross-appeal on this point which may be dealt with at once. The learned Pleader for the respondents contends that the Commissioner ought to have allowed 50 maunds a bigha. He referred to the village note as showing the fertility of the land and the fact that it is irrigated by canal and to certain documents relating to the neighbouring village Jura which show a large outturn there. On the other hand, the learned Counsel for the appellant referred to certain deeds of sale as showing that land had been transferred at low rates and consequently cannot be very productive. On the whole I think that no good ground has been made out for raising the rate arrived at by the Commissioner after local enquiry.

The next point was that the costs of cultivation had been deducted at the rate of Rs. 8 a bigha, whereas two of the defendant's witnesses say Rs. 10 or 11 and Rs. 12 or 13 and the third witness on whose statement the Commissioner has proceeded says not Rs. 8 but Rs. 8 to 10. Now this was an allowance which the Commissioner need not have given at all and in giving it I think that he acted rightly in taking the lower figure stated by a defence witness.

The third point was that the rate had been fixed at 4 paseris a rupee whereas on the evidence it should be 6 paseris. The evidence on both sides having been disbelieved, the Commissioner would ordinarily proceed on the admission of the defense viz., 6 paseris. He has given no reason in his report for fixing the rate at 4 paseris nor has the Subordinate Judge dealt with this matter. The point is not expressly taken in the numerous objections to the Commissioner's report, and from the absence of any reference to it in the judgment it must be assumed that the point was not argued. If it had been argued before the Subordinate Judge he might have made a reference back to the Commissioner in order that he might state the reasons for which he had fixed the rate at 4 paseris. The point not having been taken before the Subordinate Judge it is not, in my opinion, fair to raise it now, and it must, therefore, be overruled.

One further point remains to be dealt with in the cross-objection. It was argued that interest had been allowed at only 6 per cent. whereas 12 per cent. ought to have been given. This was a matter entirely within the discretion of the Subordinate Judge and this Court will not interfere with his decision.

The result is that the Appeal No. 15 of 1918 is allowed to this extent only, that the sum awarded for 1315 must be disallowed. In other respects this appeal and the entire Appeal No. 14 are dismissed. The cross-objections are also dismissed. There will be no order as to costs of the appeals.

DAS, J.—I agree.

W. C. A.

Appeals dismissed.

MUHAMMAD ATA ULLAH KHAN v. GOPALA MAL.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2056 OF 1921.

February 17, 1922.

Present :—Mr. Justice Broadway.

MUHAMMAD ATA ULLAH KHAN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

GOPALA MAL AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS AND KANSHI RAM AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Punjab Pre-emption Act (1 of 1913), s. 30—Limitation—Physical possession—Joint holding.

A share in an undivided mahal is not susceptible of physical possession within the meaning of section 30 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act.

Ramsukh Das v. Fazal-ud-din, 19 P. R. 1898, referred to.

Bishen Singh v. Firoz Chand, 40 Ind. Cas. 618; 97 P. R. 1917; 93 P. W. R. 1917; 113 P. L. R. 1917, distinguished.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Karnal, dated the 22nd June 1921, reversing that of the Munsif, First Class, Karnal, dated the 6th May 1920.

Lala Tirth Ram, for the Appellant.

Mr. Rai Krishna, for the Plaintiffs-Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—On the 1st of November 1917 Singh Ram and Kanshi Ram e'c., sold certain lands to Khan Sahib Muhammad Ata Ullah. Two unregistered sale-deeds were executed, each being for Rs. 99. Mutation in connection with these two unregistered sale-deeds was effected, by a single mutation on the 30th June 1918. On the 12th May 1919 Gopala Mal and Salloo Mal sued for possession by pre-emption of the lands sold. It was admitted that the price mentioned in the sale-deeds had been paid and Khan Sahib Muhammad Atal Ulah admitted the plaintiff's right of pre emption. He, however, pleaded that the suit was time barred as he had taken physical possession of a part at any rate of the lands bought by him more than a year prior to the institution of the suit. The plaintiffs contended that what had been sold was 15/154th of an undivided holding which was incapable of physical possession and that, therefore, time began to run from the date of the mutation, i. e., 30th June 1918. The Trial Court upheld the defendants' plea and holding that the claim was time-barred dismissed the suit. Thereupon the plaintiffs appealed to the District Judge who took a different view and, holding that a share in an undivided holding was incapable of physical possession found the suit to be within time and granted the plaintiffs a decree. Against this decree Khan Sahaib Ata Ullah has come up to this Court in second appeal through Mr. Tirath Ram, and I have heard Mr. Raj Krishna for the respondent.

Ground No. 2 of the appeal was withdrawn by Mr. Tirath Ram as having been drafted on a misconception of the lower Appellate Court's judgment. He contended, however, that the lower Appellate Court was wrong in holding that physical possession had not been taken of a part of the property, namely, certain fields which were recorded in Kharif 1917 as Khali or banjar and in rabi 1918 as cultivated by tenants under the appellant. He referred to Bishen Singh v. Firoz Chand (1) and urged that, as in that case so in this, in regard to uncultivated field physical possession was sufficiently constituted by the vendor pointing such fields out to the vendees' agent on the spot when directing the tenants of the cultivated fields to give produce in future to the vendees. In the present case, however, my attention was not drawn to any evidence showing that the vendors had at any time told their tenants to pay the produce in the future to the appellant. From the authorities cited at page 410 of Ellis' Law of Pre-emption, 4th Edition, it will be seen that it has been respectively held that a share of an undivided Mahal is not susceptible of physical possession—see also Ramsukh Das v. Fasal-ud-din (2). It seems to me that the finding arrived at by the learned District Judge is that the property purchased by the appellant being not capable of physical possession, he did not obtain physical possession and this appears to me to be a finding of fact which I cannot examine in second appeal.

I accordingly dismiss this appeal with costs.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 40 Ind. Cas. 618; 97 P. R. 1917; 93 P. W. R. 1917; 113 P. L. R. 1917.

(2) 19 P. R. 1898.

DUVVURY RAMAMURTHY v. PABBINEEDI BULLIRAJU.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST ORDER No. 164 OF 1919.

March 24, 1921.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield and Mr. Justice Ramesam.

DUVVURY RAMAMURTHY—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

PABBINEEDI BULLIRAJU—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 3 (3)—"Holding" whether means ascertained holding—Co-tenants—Ejectment suit—Suit for ascertainment of shares in holding—Civil Court, jurisdiction of.

Under the Madras Estates Land Act a tenant cannot sue for ejectment of his co-tenant in the case of an unascertained holding, for the definition of the word "holding" in section 3 (3) of that Act shows that only ascertained holdings are contemplated by it.

Therefore, although in the case of a tenancy-in-common, a tenant cannot bring a suit for ejectment of his co-tenant in a Civil Court, yet he can sue for ascertainment of his share in the holding in that Court to enable him to bring the ejectment suit in the Revenue Court.

Appeal against a decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Cocanada, dated the 12th December 1918, in Appeal Suit No. 40 of 1918, preferred against a decree of the Court of the District Munsif, Cocanada, in Original Suit No. 39 of 1917.

Mr. V. Ramadoss, for the Appellant.

Mr. P. Somasundaram, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff, here appellant, has sued for ascertainment by division of his share of the property, which he and defendant are at present holding in common and for ejectment of defendant from that share, on the basis that defendant is in possession of it as a non-occupancy tenant. The lower Appellate Court returned the plaint for presentation to a Revenue Court.

This disposal would, no doubt, be appropriate, if the prayer for ejectment could be regarded separately and if that remedy were authorised by the Madras Estates Land Act in the circumstances. But the Act provides for the grant of relief only in respect of holdings; and the definition of holding in section 3 (3) by reference to parcels entails, in our opinion, that only ascertained holdings are contemplated. This is consistent with Chapter X and is supported by the interpretation placed on the similar provision of the law in Bengal in Parbatty

IND. ENG. & MOTOR CO. v. GLADSTONE WYLLIE & CO.

Debya[1] v. Mathura Nath Banerjee (1). Until the plaintiff has had the holding, in respect of which he asks for ejectment, ascertained it will be meaningless for him to approach a Revenue Court; and this is the real substance of the complaint he makes against the lower Court's direction to him to do so, that a Revenue Court cannot grant partition.

We may at this point observe that the opinion of the Full Bench in Gadadhara Das Bezbaii v. Suryanarayana Patnaik (2) would appear on the pleadings to be fatal to plaintiff's prayer for ejectment. That, however, is no reason why he should be refused the other relief to which he appears to be entitled.

The course we take is accordingly to set aside the decision of the lower Courts, to allow the plaintiff to amend his plaint by withdrawing the prayer for possession and to remand the suit to the District Munsif's Court for re-admission and disposal as a suit for ascertainment of plaintiff's share in the property, which, he alleges, is held by himself and defendant as tenants-in-common. Plaintiff must, of course, pay the deficient stamp duty on the prayer for partition within a reasonable time to be fixed by the District Munsif, since he has not paid duty on that amount already.

Each party will bear his own costs in this and the lower Appellate Court to date. Costs before the District Munsif will be costs in the cause.

M. C. P.

N. H. Appeal allowed; Case remanded.

(1) 15 Ind. Cas. 453; 16 C. W. N. 877; 16 C. L. J. 9; 40 C. 29.

(2) 64 Ind. Cas. 317; 41 M. L. J. 97; (1921) M. W. N. 413; 44 M. 677; 14 L. W. 453.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL RULE No. 427 OF 1921.

August 24, 1921.

Present:—Justice Sir N. R Chatterjea, KT., and Mr. Justice Cuming.

INDIAN ENGINEERING AND MOTOR COMPANY, LIMITED—PETITIONERS

versus

GLADSTONE WYLLIE AND CO., MANAGING AGENTS OF S. D. GARVIS & CO. AND OTHERS—OPPOSITE PARTIES.

Calcutta Rent Act (III B. C. of 1920), s. 2 (c)—

INDIAN ENGINEERING & MOTOR CO. v. GLADSTONE WYLLIE & CO.

'Premises' if includes workshop—Workshop having retiring room and office room, if "premises."

A workshop is not included in the word "premises" as defined in section 2 e of the Calcutta Rent Act, and the mere fact that an Engineer of the workshop has a retiring room, or that a room is used for the purpose of an office connected with the workshop does not bring the case within the word "premises" as used in the Act. [p 910, col. 1.]

Epsom Grand Stand Association Limited v. Clarke, (1919 35 T. L. R 525; 63 S. J. 642, distinguished.

Rule against an order of the Court of the Controller of Rents, Calcutta in Cases Nos. 1719 and 255 of 1921.

FACTS appear from the judgment.

Mr. P. N. Dutt (with him Babu Nripendra Chandra Das), for the Petitioners.—This Rule was directed against an order of the Rent Controller refusing my application for standardisation of the rent under section 15 of the Calcutta Rent Act (III of 1920 B. C). The facts briefly are these. Mr. Garvis obtained a lease of the premises in 1915 for two years with option of renewal for another two years for the purpose of a dwelling or factory. We took sub-lease from him from 1st November 1919. There were two applications under section 15 of the Act—one was by opposite party—Gladstone Wyllie & Co. and the other by me. Their case was taken up first, evidence was gone into and was finally dismissed. My application was next taken up and was dismissed on that ground. The Rent Controller says that the premises do not come within the meaning of the word "premises" as defined in section 2 (e).

[CHATTERJEA, J.—Can apply under section 15 as a sub-lessee?]

Undoubtedly. Refers to section 15 of the Calcutta Rent Act, section 2 (g); Epsom Grand Stand Association Limited v Clarke (1). occupying the premises as a retiring room. It was originally let out as a dwelling house. I have a right to live in that house. Refers to Ethari Lal v. Baldeo Narain (2).

[COMING, J.—What is the question of jurisdiction here?]

As to whether the Rent Controller had jurisdiction to fix standard rent. Refers to Balakrishna Udayar v. Vasudeva Aiyar (3).

(1) (1919) 35 T. L. R. 525; 63 S. J. 642.

(2) 48 Ind. Cas. 14; 40 A. 674; 16 A. L. J. 717.

(3) 40 Ind Cas. 650; 40 M. 793; 15 A. L. J. 645; 2 P. L. W. 101; 33 M. L. J. 69; 26 C. L. J. 143; 19 Bom. L. R. 715; (1917) M. W. N. 628; 6 L. W. 501; 22 C. W. N. 50; 11 Bur. L. T. 48; 44 I.A. 261 (P. C.).

The premises come within the operation of the Act as a shop. A shop includes a workshop. Refers to Oxford Dictionary, Volume VIII, Part II, page 736. The Controller was bound to consider the original purpose for which the premises were let. The previous occupier, my lessor, lived there for more than a year. Even in the present condition the house is undisputably let as an office in part. Refers to the Preamble of the Act. The Act ought to be liberally construed.

Mr. S. C. Bose (with him Babus Asita Ranjan Ghosh, Hira Lal Ganguli and Himadri Bhusan Roy), for the Opposite Parties.—On the evidence no other finding was possible. The house was let for the purpose of workshop. It is their evidence that the building was not used for residential purposes. As to the distinction between a shop and a workshop refers to Haynes v. Ford (4); Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume XIV, pages 441, 510; Stroude's Judicial Dictionary (2nd Edition) Volume III, 1873; A workship does not come within the operation of the Rent Act.

Mr. P. N. Dutt replied in brief.

JUDGMENT.—This Rule was directed against an order of the Rent Controller disallowing an application made by the petitioner under section 15 of the Calcutta Rent Act for fixing the standard rent of No. 40, Middle Road, Entally, on the ground that the place was not "premises" as defined in section 2 (e) of the Rent Act and as such it did not come within the purview of the Act.

It appears that one Mr. Garvis obtained a lease of 40, Middle Road, Entally, from the opposite party, Nanda Lal Counder, sometime in 1915 for a period of two years with option of renewal of the same for two years: Mr. Garvis took it for the purpose of "dwelling or a factory". He lived there for sometime but he used it mainly for the purpose of factory (for preparing specie boxes for Government). He then left for Japan sometimes in 1919.

The petitioner before us—the Indian Engineering and Motor Company Ltd.,—obtained a sub lease from Mr. Garvis from the 1st November 1919.

(4) (1911) 2 Ch. 237 at pp. 248, 256; 80 L. J. Ch. 490; 104 L. T. 696; 75 J. P. 401; 9 L. G. R. 702; 27 T. L. R. 416.

Two applications were made to the Rent Controller—one by Gladstone Wyllie & Co., Managing Agents of Mr. Garvis for fixing the standard rent, and another by the petitioners. The latter made an application to the Rent Controller, that their case might be heard along with the case instituted by their lessors. The first application, namely, that of Gladstone Wyllie & Co. was taken up and evidence was adduced in that case. The application was dismissed on the 31st March 1921. Messrs. Gladstone Wyllie & Co. have not taken any step for setting aside that order.

Subsequently on the 3rd June the case in which the petitioner was the applicant was taken up, and the Rent Controller held that no separate order was required in that case as it would be governed by the order passed in the case instituted by Gladstone Wyllie & Co.

It appears that the Rent Controller inspected the premises, and upon the evidence adduced on behalf of Messrs. Gladstone Wyllie & Co., came to the conclusion that the premises was nothing but a workshop, that although there was a small building which might, formerly, have been used as a residence, there was no doubt that it was a part of the workshop, that the building was now quite uninhabitable and that long disuse had brought on its present condition.

It is contended before us by the learned Counsel on behalf of the petitioner, first, that under section 2, clause (e) of the Rent Act the purpose for which the premises were let out should be considered, secondly, that even if the place was let out for the purpose of a workshop it comes within the definition of "premises" and that in any case, if any portion of it was used as an office or dwelling house, it would come within the said definition and lastly that the petitioner had no opportunity of adducing evidence in the case instituted by him.

So far as the second contention is concerned, namely, that a workshop comes within the definition of "premises" under section 2 of the Act, it is to be observed that that section lays down that "premises means any building or part of a building, or hut let separately for residential, charitable, educational or public purposes or for the purposes of a shop or an office, including any land appertaining thereto and let therewith.

It is said that a "workshop" would come within the word "shop" and we are referred to the Oxford Dictionary in support of the contention that a shop means a "place, a house or building where goods are made or prepared for sale and sold". That is not how the expression 'shop' is ordinarily understood. But apart from that, the word "shop" is defined in Wharton's Law Lexicon as being a "place where things are kept for sale." We have been referred to the case of Epsom Grand Stand Association Limited v. Clarke (1). But it seems that in that case the premises were let out for the purposes of residence, and business also. The defendant, his family and servants had continually lived on the premises and their residence was in accordance with the terms of the lease. A portion of it was used as a public house. Bankes, L. J., observed: "The house was dwelt in and it was let to the defendant for that purpose. In the fullest sense it was a dwelling house and nonetheless so because it was a public house."

All that the case establishes is that when premises are let out and occupied as a dwelling house, the fact that a part of them is also used for some business does not prevent them from being a "dwelling house." The learned Judge also observed that he could not accept the contention that because it was let for business purposes it could not be a dwelling house within the Act. But there the business for which a portion of the house was used was the business of a publican which is the sale of wines, spirits and beer. That case is no authority for holding that a workshop or factory comes within the definition of a "shop" or a "dwelling house."

With regard to the first contention, viz., the purpose for which the place was let out, should be considered, it appears that in the present case the letting to Mr. Garvis was for dwelling or for a factory. The petitioner before us—Indian Engineering and Motor Company, however, took a sublease in 1919. There was no lease drawn up, and there was merely an exchange of letter which, however, has not been produced. Mr. Garvis says "I have sub let the premises from November 1919 and ever since November 1919 they have been using the plase as their workshop in the same manner as they are doing now." He further states that negotiations about the lease to the Indian Engineering Company were made through one Mr. Mitter in October 1919 and that Mr. Mitter said that the plase was required for their workshop. Other evidense was to the same effect and there is no doubt that at any rate since the petitioners obtained the lease for the purpose of a workshop, they have used it as a workshop.

The fast that a room in the bungalow was used as an office does not, we think, bring the case within the word "pramisss". In a workshop or factory, a portion of it may be used for an office for supervising the work and keeping attendance registers, &c., and we think that the mere fast that the Engineer of the Company had a retiring room, or that a room was used for the purpose of an office connected with the workshop does not bring the case within the word "premises" as used in the Rent Act. It is clear that it was not let out to the Indian Engineering Company for the purpose of an office or for dwelling purposes.

As regards the third contention we are not satisfied that the petitioner has any reason for complaint. There is no suggestion that the petitioners had any further evidence to adduse other than the evidense adduced by Messrs. Gladstone Wyllie and Co. the Managing Agents of Mr. Gravis (the lessor of the petitioners.) As a matter of fast, Mr. Garvis, Mr. Mitter, the Engineer of the Indian Engineering Company, and two of the Directors of the Company were examined in the case instituted by Messrs. Gladstone Wyllie & Co. There was no petition made to the lower Court that the petitioners had any other evidence to adduse; and no ground has been taken before us complaining of any exclusion of evidense, nor that the petitioner had been prejudiced by anything done by the Rent Controller. On the contrary, one of the grounds in the petition to this Court is that the Rent Controller had acted illegally and with irregularity in failing to consider the purpose for which 40 Middle Road was let out, and the circumstances disclosed in the evidence.

In these circumstances, we think that the Rule must be discharged with costs—three gold mohurs to the opposite party Nanda Lal and one gold Mohur to Messrs. Gladstone Wyllie & Co.

P. N.

Rule discharged.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 536 OF 1920.

February 1, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri.

PERUMAL MOOPAN—RESPONDENT —PETITIONER

versus

M. K. VENKATACHARIAR—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 151, application under—Remedy by suit or proceeding open—Court, jurisdiction of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5—Period of limitation, extension of—Revision.

There is nothing in the language of section 151 which prevents a party to a suit from applying under that section simply because he has a remedy by a separate suitor proceeding. Courts cannot act under section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code if provision is made for a particular contingency by the Orders and Rules of the Code, but in cases not covered by them parties should not be put to the trouble, delay and expense of filing suits for relief which can be properly given in the suit itself The language of section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code is wide and refers to inherent powers of a Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the sake of justice. A stranger to a litigation, however, cannot intervene after a suit or a proceeding is disposed of, and claim the protection of section 151 of the Code or appeal to the inherent powers of the Court to do justice. [p. 911, col. 2.]

Ajant Singh v. Sundar Mall (F. T. Christien), 16 Ind. Cas 587; 17 C. W. N. 862, followed

Drew v. Willes, (1891) 1 Q. B. 450; 60 L. J. Q B. 264; 64 L. T. 760; 39 W. R. 310; 55 J. P. 374, Eda Punnayya v. Jangala Kama Kotayya, 53 Ind. Cas. 184; 37 M. L. J. 398; 26 M L. T. 327; 10 L. W. 471; (1920) M W. N. 1, distinguished.

Where a Corporation or Company is made a party to a proceeding but is not represented by a person having legal authority to do so and an order is passed adversely to it, it is competent to a Court to vacate the order under section 151, Civil Procedure Code on the application of a person through whom the Company can legally act. [p. 911, col. 1]

Where a lower Appellate Court exercises the discretion conferred by section 5 of the Limitation Act and extends the prescribed period of limitation, a High Court cannot interfere under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. [p. 911, col. 1.]

PERUMAL MOOPAN v. VENKATACHARIAR.

Petition, under section 115 of Act V of 1908, praying the High Court to revise an order of the District Court, Trichinopoly, dated 16th February 1920, in Civil Miscellaneous Petition No. 466 of 1919 (in Appeal Suit No. 345 of 1916).

Mr. K. R. Rangasami Aiyangar, for the Petitioner.

Mr. K. Muthiah Mudaliar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—It is clear that when Appeal Suit No. 345 of 1916 was filed and disposed of, the Co-operative Credit Society of Kalathur had gone into liquidation and was represented by the Assistant Registrar of Co-operative Societies as liquidator. The appellant in that appeal made the Society a respondent but alleged that it was represented by its former President whose powers to represent the Society had ceased before filing of the appeal. The decision of the District Munsif in favour of the Society was reversed and the transfer of the decree made by the President acting on behalf of the Society was recognised.

The Registrar of the Co-operative Credit Societies applied to the District Judge to set the decree in Appeal Suit No. 345 of 1916 aside owing to the Society not having been properly represented and to re-hear the appeal after bringing him on record as the proper person to represent the Society. He applied under section 151, O. XXII, r. 10 and O. XLVII, r. 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

As regards the delay the District Judge in the exercise of the powers conferred by section 5 of the Limitation Act excused the delay and I do not think that under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code I can interfere with his discretion. Even assuming that O. XLVII, r. 1 does not apply the question is whether he had power to act under section 151.

I am of opinion that where a Corporation or Company is made a party to a proceeding but is not represented by a person having legal authority to do so and an order is passed adversely to it, it is competant for the proper officer to apply for vacating the order and for a decision after hearing the person through whom the Company can legally act. It cannot be said that the Company is not a party simply because a wrong person represents it. No doubt the decree or order passed under such circumstances will not bind the Company and it will be open to it to have it set aside but the question is whether it cannot do so under section 151 of the Code.

I find nothing in the language of section 151 which prevents a party to a suit from applying under that section simply because he has a remedy by a separate suit or proceeding. Courts cannot act under section 151 if provision is made for a particular contingency by the Orders and Rules but in cases not covered by them I do not see why parties should be put to the trouble, delay and expense of filing separate suits for relief which can be properly given in the suit itself. The language of section 151 is wide and refers to the inherant powers of the Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice.

No doubt a stranger to the litigation cannot intervene after the suit or proceedings are disposed of and claim the protection of section 151 or appeal to the inherent powers of the Court to do justice. Drew v. Willis (1) which was referred to by the appellant's Vakil, refers to a case where a stranger to the proceedings wanted to vacate it after orders had been properly passed. Lord Esher, M. R. observed that no Court has power to vacate an order after it has been properly made by reason of facts that occurred subsequently. In the present case the complaint is that the order in Appeal Suit No. 345 of 1916 was not properly made as the respondent was not properly represented.

Reference has also been made to Eda Punnayya v. Jangala Kama Kotayya (2) which turned on O. IX, r. 13. The learned Judges held that a minor who was said to be represented by a guardian ad litem who did not consent to act cannot be regarded as a party to the proceedings and so cannot be said to be prevented for sufficient cause from conducting them. I doubt if this is authority for holding that registered Companies or Societies cannot be said to be parties simply because they are not represented by a proper officer.

(1) (1891) 1 Q. B. 450; 60 L. J. Q. B. 264; 64 L. T. 760; 39 W. R. 310; 55 J. P. 373.

(2) 53 Ind. Cas. 184; 37 M. L. J. 399; 26 M. L. T. 237; 19 L. W. 471; (1920) M. W. N. 1.

ASMAT ULLAH v. BIHARI LAL & SONS.

I think the decision of Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ., in Ajant Singh v. Sundar Mall [F. T. Christien (3) is in point.

The order of the District Judge was, in my opinion, within his power and I see no grounds to set it aside. I dismiss the petition with costs.

M. C. P.

N. K. Petition set aside.

(3) 16 Ind. Cas. 567; 17 C. W. N. 862.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 580 OF 1917.

March 3, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Abdul Raoof and Mr. Justice Campbell.

ASMAT ULLAH—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

MESSRS. BIHARI LAL AND SONS OF FEROZEPUR CANTONMENT.—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 63, 73—Sale of goods—Extension of time—Breach—Damages, measure of.

Section 63 of the Contract Act does not entitle a promisee for his own purposes and without the consent of the promisor to extend the time for the performance of the contract to his own advantage. There must be an agreement or mutual understanding to waive [p. 914, col. 2.]

Abaji Sitaram v Trimbak Municipality, 28 B. 68; 5 Bom. L. R. 689 and Muthaya Manigaran v. Lakku Reddiar, 14 Ind. Cas. 255; 37 M 412; 11 M. L. T. 301; (1912) M. W. N. 456; 22 M. L. J. 413, relied upon.

The measure of damages in a case of non-delivery of goods contracted to be sold is the sum by which the contract price falls short of the price at which the purchaser might have obtained goods of like quality at the time when the goods should have been delivered [p. 914, col. 2.]

Ismail Sait and Sons v. Wilson & Co, 45 Ind. Cas. 942; 41 M. 709; 23 M. L. T. 320; (1918) M. W. N. 399, Mackertich v Nobo Coomar Ray, 30 C. 477; 7 C W. N. 48, Jugmohandas v. Nusserwanji, 26 B. 744; 4 Bom. L. R 604 and Jamal v. Moolla Dawood Sons & Co., 31 Ind. Cas. 949; 43 C. 493; 20 C.W.N. 105; 30 M. L. J. 73; 14 A. L. J. 89; 19 M. L. T. 80; 3 L. W. 181; 23 C. L. J. 137; (1916) 1 M. W. N. 70; 18 Bom. L. R. 315; 9 Bur. L. T. 8; 43 I. A. 6 (P. C.), relied upon.

First appeal from a decree of the Additional Judge, Lahore, dated the 22nd December 1916.

Mr. Muhammad Rafi, for the Appellant.

Mr. Manohar Lal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal is the result of a suit for damages for breach of contract brought by Mistri Asmat Ullah, Factory owner of Lahore, against Behari Lal and Sons, merchants of Ferozepore.

The contract, about the terms of which there is no dispute, is dated the 14th of June 1914 and by it the defendants agreed to supply to the plaintiff the following goods:

(a) For delivery at Sangla Hill station 750 bundles of steel hoops at Rs. 8 per cwt. each bundle containing half a cwt; 150 bundles to be delivered in each of the months of September 1914 to January 1915. Bardana or Hessian cloth, 45 inches wide, weight 9 ounces, at Rs. 15 per hundred yards; 10,000 yards to be delivered in monthly consignments of 2,000 yards from September 1914 to January 1915.

(b). Delivery at Lahore Railway Station, 1,600 bundles of steel hoops at Rs. 8 per cwt., each bundle weighing $\frac{1}{2}$ cwt. 400 bundles to be deliverd monthly from September to December 1914, 56,000 yards of bardana 40 inches wide; $7\frac{1}{2}$ ounces at Rs. 13-8-0 per hundred yards in monthly consignments of from 4,000 to 12,000 yards from September 1914 to March 1915.

In both cases the purchaser was to pay for each consignment when he received the Railway Receipt for the next consignment.

Nothing was delivered by the defendants except 3,670 yards of bardana at Lahore on account of the September consignment of 4,000 yards. After much correspondence between the parties, to which reference will be made presently, the plaintiff on the 30th August 1915 sued the defendants for delivery of the goods contracted for on payment of the agreed price, or, in the alternative, for Rs. 9,393-8 9 as damages for breach of contract.

It appears that the bardana and the hoops were required for making up bales of cotton. The lower Court held in regard to the hoops that both parties waived the time fixed in the contract for delivery, that damages were due to the plaintiff to be calculated with reference to the position in July and August 1915, that at that time the defendants had offered to let the plaintiff have hoops at Rs. 10-4 0 per cwt. and that, since the plaintiff had refused the offer, Rs. 2 per cwt., being the difference between Rs. 8, the contract price, and Rs. 10, was a fair measure of damages. In regard to the bardana the lower Court held that the plaintiff himself broke the contract, that no damages were due to him and that the defendants were entitled to credit for Rs 495 7-3 on account of 3670 yards of bardana supplied. The plaintiff accordingly was given a decree for Rs. 2,350 minus Rs. 495-7-3, total Rs. 1,854-8 9.

Both parties have appealed. The plaintiff claims damages for failure to supply the hoops at Rs. 7 per cwt., the rate claimed in the plaint, and has also contested the finding that he was not entitled to damages on account of the bardana. The defendants assert non liability to pay damages for failure to deliver the hoops. This judgment will dispose of both Appeals Nos. 580 and 982 of 1917.

On the 14th of August 1914 the defendants wrote to the plaintiff that owing to the outbreak of War their correspondents in Europe were unable to guarantee shipments.

Plaintiff replied on the 17th of August that the War had nothing to do with the matter and that he expected the defendants to carry out their contract.

On the same date the defendants informed the plaintiff by letter that the goods had been despatched on the 20th of July by a German Steamer SS. Gutenfels and that in view of the then prevailing conditions it was impossible to say when the vessel was likely to arrive at Karachi.

Plaintiff replied on the 20th of August that he had nothing to do with Europe Shipments and that what he had bought were steel hoops and tartan cloth for delivery at Sangla Hill and Lahore Railway Station.

Thereafter there was delivery of two bales of bardana at Lahore which the plaintiff claimed were of short measure. It is necessary to keep separate the question about the hoops and that of the bardana and we proceed to deal first with the hoops the history of which is bound up with that of the Ss. Gutenfels.

On the 28th of September the plaintiff wrote and telegraphed to the defendants asking for the September deliveries of hoops.

On the 5th of October the defendants replied that the performance of their contract to supply hoops had become impossible until the shipment arrived, that they had heard that it had arrived at Port Said and that endeavours were being made to bring the goods on to Karachi.

On the 22nd of October the plaintiff, through Mr. Herbert, Advocate, claimed formally from the defendants Rs. 1,461 8-9 as damages for non delivery of hoops in September, at the rate of Rs. 7 per cwt.

On the 4th of November Mr. Manohar Lal, Advocate, replied to Mr. Herbert on behalf of the defendants, pointing out that it was not their fault that the September supplies had not arrived, that the defendants had given the plaintiff ample notice, that the plaintiff knew that the contract was for German made hoops, that the Gutenfels was expected to be allowed to proceed from Port Said and that when the vessed reached India, they would be happy to make such deliveries as supplies from her permitted.

On the 29th of November the plaintiff put in a further claim for damages at the same rate on account of failure to deliver hoops in the month of October. This claim was signed by the plaintiff personally and did not refer to the defendants' letter of the 4th of November. We may say at once that there is no evidence of the defendants' letter of the 4th of November having reached the plaintiff before the 29th of November.

On the 27th of April 1915 the plaintiff telegraphed to the defendants that the Gutenfels was down on the shipping list to arrive at Karachi on the 26th of April and requested that the steel hoops should be despatched 1600 bundles to Lahore and 750 bundles to Sangla. In an undated letter apparently written on the 27th or some later date in April the plaintiff referred to Mr. Manohar Lal's letter of the 4th November 1914, confirmed his telegram and said that he would feel obliged if Mr. Manohar Lal would ask the defendants to despatch the 2350 bundles of hoops to Lahore and Sangla. He added that if they did not do so, he would be compelled to take legal steps against them. The reply to this letter is dated the 28th of July 1915. Mr. Manohar Lal on behalf the defendants said that only 1000 bun of hoops of the specification to be deli at Lahore had arrived in the Gutenfel clients were prepared to deliver these and also 750 bundles at Sangla but not at Rs. 8 per cwt. On account of special War charges which they had had to pay, the defendants would charge Rs. 10-4 per cwt. instead of Rs. 8. The plaintiff could have the 1750 bundles on two conditions: (1) that he first satisfied the defendants' claim for payment for the September bardana which had been pending since October and about which there had been correspondence; and (2) that he accepted delivery of the hoops against actual payment through a Bank to which Railway Receipts would be sent. It was added that these two conditions must be satisfied within a fortnight The letter concluded by saying that the defendants did not consider that the plaintiff was entitled to any deliveries of hoops under the contract, but that for the sake of maintaining friendly trade relations they were willing to make the special concession offered.

The plaintiff's reply was dated 6th August 1915 and so far as the hoops were concerned referred to the defendants' letter of 6th November, and said that he would accept delivery of the goods contracted for, despite the fact that time for delivery had long since passed, but declined to pay more than Rs. 8 per cwt. or to make any payment for bardana. The defendants were reminded that by the contract payment was to be made for each consignment when the Railway Receipt for the next consignment arrived and not before and they were given a week in which to make delivery or pay certain specified damages in default of which a suit was threatened. Mr. Manohar Lal wrote twice in reply that he was awaiting instructions from his clients and finally wrote on 1st September, by which time the suit had been filed, saying that unless the plaintiff took delivery of the hoops in ten days on the terms of the letter dated 28th July the hoops from the Gutenfels would be sold at his risk.

Now it is perfectly clear that the contract for the supply of the hoops was broken by the defendants and the questions for determination are when it was broken, and, with reference to the due date for delivery to what damages, if any, the plaintiff is entitled.

The lower Court has gone wrong in its method of assessing damages. It held that both sides waived the time fixed for delivery in the contract. This as we shall show presently was correct. It held further that both parties were willing as late as September 1915 that delivery should be made then. This is wrong. The defendants were only willing to make delivery on new terms, which they sought to impose and which were at variance with the original agreement, and the plaintiff steadfastly refused to accept those terms. Thirdly, it decided that as the plaintiff refused to pay Rs. 10-4 per cwt. for the hoops in July he did not consider them to be worth that price, and thus that the Court was justified in fixing the measure of damages at Rs. 10 per cwt. This shows a misapprehension of the law governing such cases, which is to be found in section 73 of the Indian Contract Act. Both parties admit the application of this section and both rely upon Illustration (a). It is laid down, too, in Ismail Sait and Sons v. Wilson and Co. (1) that the measure of damages is the sum by which the contract price fell short of the price at which the purchaser might have obtained goods of like quality at the time when they should have been delivered. Mackertich v. Nobo Coomar Ray (2), Jugmchandas v. Nusserwanji (3) and Jamal v. Moolla Dawood Sons and Co. (4) are to the same effect. In the last named case their Lordships of the Privy Council stated that the market price at the time of breach is the decisive element.

Section 63 of the Indian Contract Act contains the law regarding extension of time for delivery. It is conceded, as was ruled in Abaji Sitaram v. Trimbak Municipality (5) and Muthaya Manigran v. Lakku Reddiar (6), that this section does not entitle a promisee for his own purposes and without the consent of the promisor to extend time to his own advantage and that there must be an agreement or mutual understanding to waive.

(1) 45 Ind. Cas. 942; 41 M. 709; 23 M. L. T. 320; (1918) M. W. N. 399.
(2) 30 C. 477; 7 C. W. N. 431.
(3) 26 B. 744; 4 Bom. L. R. 504.
(4) 31 Ind. Cas. 949; 43 C. 493; 20 C. W. N. 205; 30 M. L. J. 73; 14 A. L. J. 89; 19 M. L. T. 80; 3 L. W. 181; 23 C. L J. 137; (1916) 1 M. W. N. 70; 18 Bom. L. R. 315; 9 Bur. L. T. 8; 43 I. A. 6 (P. C.).
(5) 28 B. 66; 5 Bom. L. R 689.
(6) 14 Ind. Cas. 255; 37 M. 4 2; 11 M. L. T. 301; (1912) M. W. N. 436; 22 M. L. J. 413.

It has been argued by Mr. Manohar Lal for the defendants that there was no agreement here to waive time; that, although the defendants made an offer to agree to an extension in their letter of the 4th November, the terms of the plaintiff's letter of the 29th November make it plain that the offer was declined; and that the subsequent telegram and letter of April 1915 cannot be taken to consitute acceptance of the offer.

There is, however, no evidence that the defendants' letter of the 4th November to Mr. Herbert was placed in the plaintiff's hands before the 29th November. The plaintiff's letter of the 29th November contained a claim for damages for non delivery in October which the previous letter of 22nd October had stated would be made in the event of non-delivery, and it was written not by Mr. Herbert but by the plaintiff himself. It contained a threat to sue and a statement that a similar claim would be made for more damages if the November consignments were not delivered. There is no proof that Mr. Herbert continued to act for the plaintiff after he had written the letter of 22nd October. If he had done so, he might have been expected to write the letter of 29th November also. The plaintiff filed no suit. He made no further claim for damages for non-delivery in November or in December. He did not refer in his letter of 29th November to the defendants' letter of 4th November and there is no apparent reason why he should not have done so had he seen it. In our opinion a reasonable interpretation of the correspondence is that the plaintiff, when the defendants' letter of the 4th November came to him, decided to accept the offer and to await the arrival of the SS. Gutenfels and that the letter of 4th November, the plaintiff's letter and telegram of April 1915, and the defendants' letter of 28th July 1915 prove that there was an agreement to extend time for performance of the contract, so far as it related to the hoops, until the lapse of a reasonable interval after the Gutenfels had reached Karachi.

The defendants' letter of 28th July 1915 contains the first mention by them of an intention to charge more for the hoops than the price agreed to in the contract, and this claim and the imposition of conditions for payment at variance with the terms of the contract, fix, in our opinion, the date of breach of the contract by the defendants after extension of time as the 28th July 1915.

Now as regards damages. The plaintiff claims Rs. 7 per cwt. the difference between Rs. 15 per cwt. and the contract rate Rs. 8. He has produced evidence that the market-rate for steel hoops at Karachi was Rs. 14-12 on 30th June 1915. Rs. 15 on 23rd April, Rs. 15 on 3rd May, Rs. 17 on 22nd May, that it was at Multan Rs. 18 on 24th April. Rs. 20 on 9th June, Rs. 15 (old hoops) on 17th May, Rs. 17-8 on 1st July, and that it was Rs. 15-4 on 29th April at Bombay. There is also evidence that the defendants sold hoops at Karachi at Rs 16 on 30th August 1915 and at Rs. 17-12 on 4th September 1915. There is good reason for supposing that these were off the Gutenfels. The defendant Behari Lal admitted as a witness in the lower Court that he had sold the hoops which came on the Gutenfels to other parties, and declined to give the price.

There is no evidence of any rates prevailing lower than those above quoted and, in our opinion, Rs. 15 per cwt. delivered at Lahore and Saugla Hill was a rate below the market rate in July and August 1915. The deposition of Mr. F. Read, agent of Volkart Bros., Lahore, shows that the plaintiff lost contracts for bailing cotton between October 1914 and June 1915 owing to shortage of hoops.

A further argument by Mr. Manohar Lal remains to be disposed of. He contends with reference to section 73 and Illustration (a) that the plaintiff could have obtained hoops of the specification entered in the contract on 28th July 1915 at Rs. 10-4 by accepting the defendants' offer of them at this price, and that his means for remedying the inconvenience caused by non-performance of the contract lay in such acceptance under protest and reservation of the right to claim damages subsequently. The short answer to this (leaving aside the fact that the offer was not for the whole quantity to be supplied under the contract) is that the defendants' offer of 28th July 1915 was not unconditional and that the conditions imposed were not consistent with the terms of the contract. This was particularly the case in regard to the demand for payment for the bardana supplied. The defendants sent one consignment. There was some dispute about short measure and the defendants omitted to send any more. The contract provided that payment should be made for the consignment received only when the plaintiff got the Railway Receipt for the next consignment.

We find that the plaintiff has succeeded in establishing his claim for damages for non-delivery of 1175 cwt. steel hoops at Rs. 7 per cwt.

The claim for damages for non-delivery of bardana beyond the first consignment was argued by Mr. Muhammad Rafi for the plaintiff but eventually was given up. It is not necessary, therefore, to deal with the evidence concerning it. Mr. Rafi is probably right in contending that the contract was broken by the defendants and not by the plaintiff, as held by the lower Court, but there was clearly no extension of time for delivery of the bardana and there is no proof that the plaintiff suffered any loss. On the contrary there are indications that the market-price at the times of the several breaches from September 1914 to March 1915 was not more and was probably less than the contract rates.

The result is that we accept the plaintiff's appeal and enhance the decree in his favour to one for Rs. 1,729-8-9 with proportionate costs in both Courts, that sum being calculated as follows :

Damages for non-delivery of

	Rs.	as.	p.
1175 cwt. steel hoops at Rs. 7	8,225	0	0
less price of 3670 yards bardana supplied ...	495	7	3
	7,729	8	9

The appeal of the defendants fails and is dismissed with costs.

Z. K. Plaintiff's appeal accepted ; Defendants Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL No. 49 OF 1920.

May 9, 1921.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Krishnan.

T. V. TULJARAM ROW—PLAINTIFF —APPELLANT

versus

T. A. RAMACHANDRA ROW—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, rr. 66, 89, 90—Execution sale—Proclamation—Place of sale, omission of—Place well-known—Sale, setting aside of—Substantial injury—Partnership suit—Sale for realising assets—Sale, setting aside of, on deposit—R. 89, object of.

The omission of the place of sale in the sale proclamation, although a clear irregularity, would not justify the setting aside of the sale, if the place of sale being well-known, no body is misled by the proclamation and no prejudice is caused to the applicant. [p. 918, col. 2.]

Arunachellam v. Arunachellam, 12 M. 19 (P. C.); 15 I. A. 171; 5 Sar P. C. J. 265; 12 Ind. Jur. 371; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 363, distinguished.

O XXI, r. 89 of the Civil Procedure Code provides modes of relieving judgment-debtors from the hardships to which they are exposed by Court sales in execution of decrees against them at great undervalues, and is inapplicable to the case of sale in a partnership suit on behalf of all parties to the suit for the purpose of realisation of the assets of the partnership. [p 9 8, col 2.]

Sundaram v. Mamsa Mavuthar, 63 Ind. Cas. 937; 40 M. L J. 497; 3 L W. 498; 29 M L. T. 269; (1921) M. W. N. 272; 44 M. 554 (F. B.), referred to.

Appeal from the judgment and order of Justice Kumaresam Sastri, dated the 30th March 1920, passed in the exercise of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court, in Civil Suit No, 378 of 1919.

Messrs. G. Devasagayam and K. Ramachandra, for the Appellant.

Mr. O. P. Ramaswami Aiyer, Advocate General, and Mr. T. R. Venkatarama Sastri, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

WALLIS, C. J.—This is an appeal from an order of the learned Judge on the Original Side refusing to set aside a sale by the Official Referee under the orders of the Court made in a partnership suit for the purpose of realising the partnership assets and the main ground of objection taken is that there was no place of sale mentioned in the proclamation of sale.

In O. XXIVA of the Original Side Rules which provides for proceedings before the Official Referee, under the head of sales by the Official Referee, it is provided that, unless otherwise ordered, all sales by the Official Referee shall be by public auction, and in cases of immoveable property, shall be held at the premises. Under that rule, even though the property to be sold includes moveables as well as immoveables the sale must be held at the premises when the properties are sold as one lot. Even in such cases the duty of bringing in the sale proclamation falls upon the party who has the conduct of the sale. Unfortunately in this case, a printed form of sale proclamation for a sale in execution of a decree was used which for some reason or other does not strictly follow the form given in form No. 23 in the Original Side Rules but on its the place of sale. Possibly this printed form comes from the office of the Official Referee by whom a great number of sales are conducted, and having regard to the rule I have just referred to, the name of the place of sale is not mentioned because everybody is assumed to know it. If that is so, it is a distinct defect and the sooner this form of sale proclamation is altered so as to state the place at which the sale is to be held the better. But the question in this case is whether it is open to the defendant at this stage to object to the sale on this ground and whether a material irregularity has been shown by which he was prejudiced so as to justify the Court in setting aside the sale under O. XXI, r. 90 or at any rate in accordance with the principles prescribed by that rule

Under r. 203 of the Original Side Rules the order for sale is to direct the applicant to bring into Court a proclamation of sale for the approval of the Registrar and he is to adjourn the case to come on before the Judge in Chambers on a fixed day. Then under r. 205, the applicant is to bring in two copies of the proclamation of sale in form No. 27 or No. 28. Both these forms contain the name of the place of sale. Then the Registrar under r. 205, is to determine the manner of advertising and to fix the date and place of the sale. Under r. 203 copies of the proclamation approved by the Registrar are to be signed by him and the case is to be posted on the adjourned date before the Judge in Chambers who may then order the sale to proceed or make any such order as he thinks fit. That is the time when it is open to the parties to take any objection whatever to the proclamation of sale. Under r. 206, it is only then that they can take any objection to the lots, the market value or the reserved price mentioned in the affidavit of the applicant; but they can also before the Judge in Chambers equally take objection to such a manifest slip as the omission of the place of sale. No such objection was taken in this case although numerous other objections were urged including objections as to the manner in which the sale has been advertised. The reason stated as to why no such objections were raised is because every one understood that, following the practice prescribed by the rules for the Original Side the sale being by the Official Referee, it would be at the premises which were described for sale in the sale-proclamation. It is not necessary for the purpose of the present case to consider whether the appellant should be held absolutely barred from taking this objection to the absence of the mention of the place of sale in the proclamation because he did not take it before the Judge in Chambers as he ought.

The decision of the Privy Council in Arunachellam v. Arunachellam (1) relates to an alleged insufficiency in the description of the property to be sold as distinguished from the present objection to the absence of any place of sale in the proclamation. In that case, the Privy Council held that the failure to take the objection at the proper time prevented its being taken later as a ground for setting aside the sale. "It would be very difficult indeed," their Lordships say, "to conduct proceedings in execution of decrees by attachment and sale of property if the judgment-debtor could lie by and afterwards take advantage of any misdescription of the property attached and about to be sold, which he knew well, but of which the execution creditor or decree-holder might be perfectly ignorant—that they should take no notice of that, allow the sale to proceed, and then come forward and say the whole proceedings were vitiated. That, in their Lordships' opinion, cannot be allowed, and on that ground the High Court ought not to have given effect to this objection." In the present case we think all that happened merely amounted to an irregularity by which the appellant was not prejudiced. It appears from the affidavit, and is found by the learned Judge that this formal defect misled nobody.

(1) 12 M. 19 (P. C.); 15 I. A. 171; 5 Sar P. C. 265; 12 Ind. Jur. 371; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 363.

I may further say here that the handbills which have been exhibited do not contain the place of sale and the only inference which anyone with ordinary common sense would come to is that the sale was to be at the premises because no other premises was stated where the sale was to be. As the learned Judge has pointed out, the sale was well-attended and there is no reason to suppose that any possible bidder was kept away. It was not a sale likely to draw a very large number of bidders, because although, no doubt, the properties to be sold included desirable premises near the Popham's Broadway, yet the sale proclamation showed that they were subject to incumbrances of an unusual kind, and of such a nature as would possibly require litigation in order to ascertain their amount. Further, the plaintiff's counter-affidavit states that, when objection was taken during the sale by Mr. Ramachandrier to the fact that the place of sale was not mentioned in the proclamation, the Vakil on the other side ran over to the Official Referee's room which is the only other place where the sale could possibly take place and also to the Press close by the High Court premises and found no body to bid. Therefore, there is no reason to differ from the learned Judge when he says that what happened was an irregularity which did not prejudice the parties. It is quite different from some of those cases which have been cited and where the sale was ordered to be held at one place and was actually held at another place, or where the sale was ordered to be held at one hour and was actually held at another hour. These errors were calculated to seriously mislead possible bidders. In the present case the actual place, no doubt, was not mentioned, as it ought to have been, by a slip, but that non-mention, in our opinion, is not calculated to mislead anybody. There was the well-known practice in regard to sales by the Official Referee and in the absence of any mention as to the place of sale, the natural inference would be that the sale was to take place at the premises and if anyone had felt any doubt about it and enquired, he would at once have been told so. There is also evidence that people came to the Official Referee's room and enquired whether there were any copies of the Proclamation of Sale to be obtained at 'Popham's house,' Anna Pillai Street, the main premises for sale, which goes to show that they knew perfectly well that the sale was going to take place there.

We hold, therefore, agreeing with the lower Court, that in this case there was no material irregularity which would justify us in setting aside the sale under r. 90 or the principles embodied in that rule.

Another objection has been taken that the Official Referee refused to adjourn the sale at about 5-30 P. M., when called upon to do so on the ground that it was getting dark. In the first place, we do not think that it was getting dark at about 5-30 P. M. on the 28th February. When I pointed out that, according to our ordinary experience, it does not get dark at 5-30 P. M., on the 28th February it was alleged that that was a very dark place but that is an objection which would apply equally to earlier portions of the day. This objection appears to us to be of a frivolous character and to have been rightly rejected by the learned Judge.

Another objection was taken that the appellant was entitled, under the express terms of O. XXI, r. 89 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to come in to set aside the sale on a deposit of the purchase-money plus 5 per cent. This rule appears to have no application to the circumstances of the present sale which is for the realisation of partnership assets in a partnership suit. R. 89, which is old section 310A, provides, as has been recently held by the Full Bench, [Sundaram v. Mamsa Mavuthar (2)] modes of relieving judgment-debtors from the hardships to which they are exposed by Court sales in execution of decrees against them at great under-values. The rule says: "Where immoveable property has been sold in execution of a decree any person owning such property or holding an interest therein by virtue of a title acquired before such sale may apply to have the sale set aside on his depositing in Court a sum equal to 5 per cent. of the purchase-money and for payment to the decree-holder the amount specified in the proclamation of sale as that for the recovery of which the sale was ordered." The rule is obviously inapplicable to a case of sale on behalf of all parties to the suit for the purpose of realisation.

(2) 68 Ind. Cas. 937; 40 M. L. J. 497; 13 L. W. 498; 29 M. L. T. 279; (1921) M. W. N. 272; 44 M. 551 (F. B.).

Then we are referred to r. 214 of the Original Side Rules which provides that an application under section 310A which corresponds to the present O. XXI, r. 89 shall be made on Judge's summons supported by affidavit which shall set forth the objections to the sale or the confirmation thereof. That rule applies, of course, only to cases to which r. 89 of O. XXI is applicable and we are clearly of opinion that r. 89 is not applicable to the circumstances of the present case.

The result is that the appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

KRISHNAN, J.—I agree.

M. C. P.

N. H. Appeal dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE NO. 486. OF 1920.

July 7, 1921.

Present :—Sir Henry Drake-Brockman Kt., J. C.

NANHELAL AND OTHERS—DECREE HOLDERS—APPELLANTS

versus

GULSHANRAI—JUDGMENT DEBTOR—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 181, 182—Preliminary decree—Amendment after expiry of limitation for applying for final decree—Final decree, application for—Extension of time.

The holder of a preliminary decree applied for amendment of the same on the ground that the sum as entered in the decree was less than that granted by the judgment. The application was made after the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed for applying for a final decree. The Court made the amendment as desired. The decree-holder preferred an application for a final decree counting the limitation from the date of the amendment:

Held, that the application was not maintainable as the decree-holder by postponing his amendment till after the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed for making the preliminary decree final, could not revive his right to obtain a final decree by reason of such a variation in the preliminary decree. [p. 921, col. 1.]

Dinaji v. Laxman, 29 Ind. Cas. 589; 11 N. L. R. 92, Ashfaq Husain v. Gauri Sahai, 9 Ind. Cas. 975; 33 A. 284; 15 C. W. N. 370; 8 A. L. J. 332; 13 C. L. J. 351; 9 M. L. T. 380; 13 Bom. L. R. 367; 4 Bur. L. T. 121; 20 M. L. J. 1140; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 177; 38 I. A. 37 (P. C.), Tarsi Ram v. Man Singh, 8 A. 492; A. W. N. (1883) 156; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 224, Daya Kishan v. Nanhi Begam, 20 A. 304; A. W. N. (1898) 43; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 555, Ahsan-ul-lah v. Dakkhini Din, 27 A. 575; 2 A. L. J. 287; A. W. N. (1905) 108, distinguished.

Appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Hoshangabad, dated the 27th August 1920, confirming the decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Hoshangabad, dated the 10th May 1920.

Dr. H. S. Gour, for the Appellant.

Mr. G. L. Subhedar, for Respondent No. 2.

JUDGMENT.—The facts of this case may be briefly stated as follows. On the 21st September 1912 a preliminary decree for sale on foot of a mortgage was obtained by the mortgagees which allowed the mortgagors time till the 21st March following to pay a sum of Rs. 3,725 for principal, interest and costs calculated up to the latter date and directed that this amount should carry interest at the rate of Rs. 4 per cent. per annum. On the 10th May 1916, that is, when the period allowed by Art. 181 of the Limitation Schedule had already expired, the decree holders applied for a final decree, but this was struck off the file at their request on the 22nd July following in the absence of the judgment-debtors. No further action was taken till the 23rd January 1919 when the decree-holders put in a second application for a final decree. On the 1st March 1919 one of the judgment-debtors pleaded that the application should be dismissed as time-barred and the decree-holders on the 22nd idem applied for amendment of the preliminary decree on the ground that the figures contained in it did not correspond with the relief granted by the judgment. The alleged discrepancies were admitted by the only judgment debtor who appeared, their nature being as follows:—

(1) the correct amount payable for principal, interest and costs is Rs. 3,778 9.9;

(2) the interest awarded by the judgment is at the rate of Rs. 4 per cent. per annum.

The aforesaid judgment-debtor contended that amendment should not be allowed, inasmuch as the decree-holders had throughout calculated the interest due at the proper rate and had accepted Rs. 3,725 as the correct amount due for principal, interest and costs calculated up to the 21st March 1913. The Trying Judge overruled this contention and on the 12th July 1919 ordered the desired amendment to be carried out.

Meanwhile, on the 21st June 1919, the decree-holders had withdrawn their second application for a final decree. On the 15th July following they preferred a third application for such a decree, but this was dismissed on the 10th May 1920 on the ground that the amendment of the preliminary decree did not alter the date from which the period of limitation allowed by Art. 181 of the Limitation Schedule began to run. With reference to the decision in Dinai v. Laxman (1) it was held that the errors in the preliminary decree were merely arithmetical and as such made no appreciable addition to the rights of the decree-holders. A similar view was taken by the District Judge in appeal and the decree-holders have now come up to this Court.

For the appellants reliance is placed on the entry in the third column of Art. 181 of the Limitation Schedule. That entry shows that the time from which the prescribed period of three years begins to run is "when the right to apply accrues." On the authority of Dinai v. Laxman (1), this right is said to have accrued from the date on which the preliminary decree was amended, inasmuch as the decree to be made final is obviously the amended, not the original, decree. This view is said to be supported by the decision of the Privy Council in Ashfaq Husain v. Gauri Sahai (2). In that case a decree for sale was passed on foot of a mortgage against several defendants jointly on the 25th August 1900 and made absolute on the 21st December 1901. As against one defendant the conditional decree was ex parte and it was set aside on her appeal on the 11th March 1902. On the 15th August following a decree was passed against her on the merits and her appeal was dismissed by the High Court on the 16th November 1904, the conditional decree being made absolute against her on the 27th November 1905. Their Lordships held that the latter decree supplemented and completed the prior one and for the first time justified the decree holder in applying for joint execution against the defendants as he did on the 21st December. The objection of the defendants who attended the proceedings which preceded the conditional decrees of the 25th August 1900 and the 21st December 1901 but were no parties to the decrees of August 1902 and November 1905 and contended that limitation ran as against them from the 21st December 1901 was thus overruled.

For the second respondent, on the other hand, it is contended that the decision in Dinaji v. Laxman (1) is concerned only with the right of appeal from an amended decree and includes no pronouncement on the rights of the decree-holders to execute the amended decree. It is also urged that the amendments actually obtained were of a kind the necessity for which should have been detected as soon as the preliminary decree was passed. Reliance is also placed on the fact that Art. 181 of the Limitation Schedule contains no clause similar to the fourth clause in Art. 182. Further, the following cases are cited as indicating that amendment of a decree cannot operate to revive a right of execution which was already time-barred when the amendment was made: Tursi Ram v. Man Singh (3), Daya Kishan v. Nanhi Begam (4), Ahsan-ul-lah v. Dakkhini Din (5).

With regard to the three cases last mentioned I need only say that they have no real bearing on the question now under consideration. All were decided when the Limitation Act of 1877 was in force and that Act contained no provision corresponding to the fourth clause of Art. 182 in the Act of 1908. With regard to the proper interpretation of the entry in the third column against Art. 181 I am of opinion that in view of the great extent of the class to which this Article applies no rigid construction of the expression "the right to apply" can safely be adopted. To

(1) 29 Ind. Cas. 589; 11 N. L. R. 92.

(2) 9 Ind. Cas. 975; 33 A. 264; 15 C. W. N. 370; 8 A. L. J. 332; 18 C. L. J. 851; 9 M. L. T. 880; 18 Bom. L. R. 367; 4 Bur. L. T. 121; 21 M. L. J. 1140; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 177; 38 I. A. 87 (P. C.).

(3) 8 A. 492; A. W. N. (1886) 156; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 224.

(4) 20 A. 304; A. W. N. (1898) 47; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 555.

(5) 27 A. 575; 2 A. L. J. 267; A. W. N. (1905) 108.

hold that the decree holders became on the amendment of their preliminary decree entitled to a final decree on the basis of the amended decree seems to me to involve a logical absurdity. The original preliminary decree gave its holders a right to sell the mortgaged property for default in payment of a sum less by about Rs. 53 than that to which the judgment pronounced them entitled. On what principle of natural justice or common sense can it be maintained that because a somewhat larger sum was actually due than the preliminary decree mentioned, the decree holders should be able to revive a right which by their own negligence they long ago forfeited? The position reached in consequence of the amendment should not improve the decree-holders' right as against the judgment-debtors, for, if the latter failed to pay the sum of Rs 3,725, they failed a fortiori to pay Rs. 3,778 9 9. The reason why no limitation has been prescribed for amending a decree is probably that the Court which passed the decree has power to amend suo motu and it would be most anomalous if a decree-holder by postponing his application for amendment till long after the expiry of the prescribed period of the limitation could revive his right to obtain a final decree on the basis of his preliminary decree.

My own decision in Dinaji v. Laxman (1) is not really in point. In the first place both the judgment and decree were in that case amended. In the case now before me the judgment makes interest after the institution of the suit payable at the rate fixed by the mortgage, while the calculations made for the purposes of drawing up the decree were evidently based on the mistaken assumption that the said interest was only 4 per cent. per annum. Secondly, as pointed out for the second respondent, I was not called upon in that case to decide any question as to the effect of the decree when amended upon the rights of the parties as they stood before the amendment.

In the present case the amendment which the decree holders sought was one which the Court was bound by law to make, inasmuch as section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code requires a decree to follow the judgment, while r. 6 (1), O. XX, First Schedule to the Code, lays down that the decree shall agree with the judgment. In these circumstances I see no force in an argument used for the appellants to the effect that the judgment-debtors should have appealed against the amended decrees if they did not wish it to have the effect for which the decree-holders now contend.

The result is that the appeal fails and is dismissed with costs. I allow Rs. 30 as Counsel's fee for the hearing in this Court. Costs in the Courts below will be paid as already ordered.

N. H. Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEALS NOS. 102 TO 106 OF 192 .

April 27, 1922.

Present:—Sir Walter Schwabe, KT., Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Coutts-Trotter.

KANALAL BROYA PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

BALARAM PARAMASUKDOSS—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT

Letters Patent (Mad), cl. 15—Decision on preliminary issue, whether judgment—Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 188), s. 13 (2)—Shah jog hundis whether negotiable instruments—Madras High Court Original Side Rules, r. 63 (a), scope of.

The decision of a Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court on an issue set for trial before the rest of the suit is a judgment within cl. 5 of the Letters Patent. [p 924, col. 1.]

Chinery, Ex parte, Chinery, In re, (1884) 12 Q. B. D. 342; 53 L. J. Ch 662; 50 L. T. 344; 32 W. R 469; 1 Morrell 81, Onslow v Inland Revenue Commissioners, (1890) 25 Q. B D 465; 59 L J. Q. B. 556; 63 L. T. 513; 38 W. R. 728, Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar, 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. 1; (1910) M W N. 697; 8 M L. T 453; 21 M. L. J. 1, Kulasekara Naicker v. Jagadambal Ammal, 50 Ind. Cas 49; 42 M. 352; 9 L. W. 822; 36 M. L. J. 351; 25 M. L. T. 292, referred to.

Shah jog hundis are negotiable instruments. [p. 924, col. 1.]

Per Schwabe, C. J.—Rule 63 (a) of the Original Side Rules includes all documents in the nature of negotiable instruments specifically described in it and the questions of how far a particular Bill of Exchange might be negotiable or what the restrictions might be on its negotiability are alien to the rule. [p 923, col. 2.]

Appeals against the orders in Civil Suits Nos. 355 to 359 respectively of 1921, dated the 6th September 1921, passed by Mr. Justice Phillips in the exercise of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of this Court.

KANALAL BHOYA v. BALARAM PARAMASUKDOSS.

Mr. G. Krishnaswamy Iyer, for the Appellant.

Mr. S. G. Sadagopa Mudaliar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

SCHWABE, C. J.—In this case the matter comes before us on appeal from an order of Phillips, J. It arose in this way. An issue or issues were framed and he directed that a particular issue should be tried before the trial of the rest of the suit. He tried that issue and he gave a decision upon the hearing of that trial and he gave it in what is called a judgment. Speaking for myself I do not see how it could be called anything else. There was an issue directly to be tried, we have got a decision of a Judge upon matters in issue in the action between the parties; and I have tried to find some other mode of expressing what he did and I could find none—he gave his judgment. The English cases are quite clear as far as the distinction between a "judgment" and an "order" is concerned, and the guiding principle is that a decision is a judgment which is given in an action. See Chinery Ex parte, Chinery, In re(1) and Onslow v. Inland Revenue Commissioners (2). The matter here is to be decided under clause 15 of the Letters Patent where the right of appeal is from a judgment of the Original Side. There have been a considerable number of cases on that point here and attempts have been made to give an exhaustive definition of the meaning of the word "judgment" in that section, particularly in Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar (3) and Kulasekara Naicker v. Jagadambal Ammal(4), the attempted definitions not having been identical. But I think they are all of them wide enough to cover the facts of this case, and I do not propose to attempt to add a further definition to these which have already been given in those cases. The preliminary objection fails.

COUTTS-TROTTER, J.—I am of the same opinion, I have never been very clear either in English Courts or in these as to the precise differentia between a "judgment" and an "order". I well remember that Scrutton, L J. and the present Chief Justice of Allahabad carefully considered Austin Friars Steamship Company v. Strack (5) and were held by the Court of Appeal to have come to the wrong conclusion.

On the whole, the balance of my mind is to regard them as resulting in something which is properly called a judgment, because otherwise it might result in shutting out the defendant from the Court altogether.

(This appeal coming on for final hearing this day the Court delivered the following judgment.)

SCHWABE, C. J.—In these five suits orders were made under O. VI (a) of the Original Side Rules that the defendants should find security for the amount claimed. There is no appeal from that order. Four of the suits were on documents known as shah jog hundi, and the fifth Original Suit No. 356 of 1921, was on another different document, which, on the face of it, purports to be an acknowledgment of indebtedness and a promise to pay interest. Security was furnished and the case was proceeded with. Then, on the application of the defendant, certain issues were set down for trial, one of the issues being whether or not these documents were negotiable instruments. It has been held by the learned Judge who heard the matter, without hearing any evidence and without giving any opportunity which was asked for adducing evidence that they were not negotiable instruments and he accordingly ordered all the security to be re-paid to the defendant with costs up to date to be paid by the plaintiff and that the action should proceed, as though they had never been lodged under the terms of that order as ordinary suits.

As regards four of these documents, in my judgment, the documents in question were negotiable instruments. I think they come directly within the definition in section 13 (2) of Negotiable Instruments Act of 831, as amended by the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1914 as being payable in the alternative to one of several payees. But, whether this is right or not, they are, in my judgment, still covered by r. 63 (a)

(1) (1884) 12 Q. B. D. 342; 53 L. J. Ch. 662; 50 L. T. 342; 32 W. R. 469; 1 Morrell 31.

(2) (1890) 25 Q B. D. 465; 59 L. J. Q. B. 556; 63 L. T. 513; 38 W. R. 728.

(3) 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. 1; (1910) M. W. N 697; 8 M. L. T. 453; 21 M. L. J. 1.

(4) 50 Ind. Cas. 14; 42 M. 352; 9 L. W. 322; 36 M. L. J. 251; 25 M. L. T. 292 (F. B.).

(5) (1906) 2 K. B 499; 75 L. J. K. B. 658; 94 L. T. 875; 70 J. P. 528; 22 T. L. R. 70 of the Original Side Rules, for although those rules are entitled "Procedure on Negotiable Instruments" and section 62 refers to suits on negotiable instruments, it is clear from the wording of r. 63 (a) that it was intended that all documents in the nature of negotiable instruments specifically described in r. 63 (a) as "Bills of Exchange, hundis or promissory-notes" should be included and that the framers of that rule were not considering the question of how far a particular Bill of Exchange might be negotiable, or what the restrictions might be on its negotiability provided it came under the description of promissory-note, Bill of Exchange or hundi, which were all intended to be included within the very useful powers given by that order. To take the extreme instance of a cheque or other Bill of Exchange payable "to A. B. only" and marked "not negotiable," in my view this procedure would apply as the document is a Bill of Exchange, though the particular Bill of Exchange is not negotiable. On these grounds I think that the decision of of the learned Judge in respect of the four actions is wrong.

As regards the fifth action the position is rather curious. The learned Judge did not consider it separately, but it is included in the decision that the documents are not negotiable instruments; but this has been decided in the absence of evidence which may well be available at a proper trial of the matter to the effect that the form of document is recognised among these people as being a negotiable instrument passing by delivery from hand to hand. If a man write to another a definite statement in this formal way that he owes a certain amount and that he agrees to pay interest on it, it is quite conceivable, though I am expressing no opinion upon it that it is intended that it should be a document, that he can transfer by delivery. How that may be it is impossible to say without evidence on the point. That being so, I think that the judgment in respect of that document too is wrong, and the learned Judge was wrong to find as he did find without evidence, that this was not a negotiable instrument.

I think the right view is that the position must be the same as it was before the orders under appeal. Security was ordered for the whole amount of the five actions. The defendant, who knows perfectly well what document No. 2 is, did not choose to appeal from that order. He cannot have that order reversed or varied by a judgment on a preliminary point, which judgment, I think, should be reversed. It, therefore, follows that the proper order to make is to allow all these appeals with costs and to direct that the money or security taken out of Court by the respondent be forthwith replaced.

I think that the best course in respect of these cases is that all the five cases should be tried together as though they were ordinary suits. We have expressed our decision that four of the documents are negotiable instruments. As regards the fifth it should be open to discussion whether it is a negotiable instrument. It may be by custom negotiable. Further, the plaintiff may have a cause of action on it even if not negotiable. It is better that all the five should be tried together as ordinary suits and disposed of.

The costs of the preliminary hearing before Phillips, J., must be re-paid, and they must be costs in the cause. The defendant must put back into Court within fourteen days the Government Promissory Notes of the face value of Rs. 24,000 or pay into Court that amount in rupees even if the time falls within the vacation, and in default of such payment, the appellant would be entitled to a decree for the full amount and he will be at liberty to apply to the vacation Judge to give him such a decree. The defendant also will have liberty to apply to him.

COURTS-TROTTER, J.—I am of the same opinion. I do not up to this moment understand how it was that Phillips, J., persuaded himself that, by framing a preliminary issue of this nature, he could overrule an unappealed order of Kumaraswami Sastri, J., That is my first view.

In the next place I am unable to follow the order and judgment which appear to hold that a shah jog hundi of this form is not a negotiable instrument. It seems to me that there are many reasons for supposing that it is. I am perfectly content to take it that the words payable to any 'shah' (which was translated into a respectable person) are so vague and indefinite as to be incapable of enforcement in a Court of Law and, therefore, the instrument stands as payable to Khanya Lalji, the drawee. With regard to the instrument in Suit No. 355 I wish to guard myself against saying that I am convinced that, even if there were evidence produced to show that it was treated as a negotiable instrument, that would be conclusive. I only desire to say that an opportunity should be given to call for such evidence, if it is available, and the Court should consider, having heard the evidence if it is produced, whether in law it would be sufficient to confer negotiability upon such instruments. I take it that, even if you have evidence, that a certain instrument is treated as a promissory note, if its language is such that by no conceivable acceptance of the words in their ordinary significance, it could not be construed, the Court might have to say that, in spite of the proof of the existence of the custom the custom was so entirely at variance with the tenor of the instrument as to be unreasonable. For the rest I agree with my Lord.

P. R. P. L. CHETTY v. G. LON POW.

M. C. P.

Appeal allowed;
Case remanded.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS CIVIL APPEAL No. 100 OF 1921.

April 7, 1922.

Present :—Sir Sydney Robinson, Kt., Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice Macgregor.

P. R. P. L. CHETTY FIRM BY THEIR AGENT NACHIAPPA CHETTY—APPELLANTS

versus

G. LON POW AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 2 (3)—Execution of decree—Payment, satisfaction or adjustment pleaded—Payment not certified—Duty of Court—Fraud, allegation of—Treatment of plea of payment as application for certifying payment—Fraud—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s 18, application of.

The provisions of clause (3) of r 2 of O. XXI of the Civil Procedure Code are not to be rendered nugatory by the application of the general provisions of section 47 of the same Code. The clause is equally applicable where adjustment is set up by the judgment-debtor in answer to an application for execution. [p 926, cols. 1 & 2.]

Trimback Ramkrishna Ranade v. Hari Laxman Ranade, 7 Ind. Cas. 940; 34 B. 575; 12 Bom. L. R. 686, Hansa Godhaji Marwadi v. Bhawa Jogaj Marwadi, 31 Ind Cas. 232; 40 B. 333; 18 Bom. L. R. 22, Biroo Gorain v Jaimurat Koer, 13 Ind Cas. 63; 16 C. W. N. 924; 16 C. L. J. 174, Alathoor Badrudeen v. Gulam Mohideen, 12 Ind. Cas. 56; 36 M. 357; 10 M. L. T. 396; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 473; 24 M. L. J. 541, Parma Ram v Lehna Singh, 53 Ind. Cas. 413; 135 P.R. 1919; 57 P L. R 921, referred to.

The decree-holder is bound to certify an adjustment, and the judgment-debtor is also given a right to apply to the Court to certify an adjustment. If the adjustment be not certified, it is entirely the fault of the judgment-debtor, and he does not deserve the consideration of the Court if he fails to take the very ordinary precaution of seeing that payment or adjustment made by him is certified to the Court. [p. 926, col. 2.]

An adjustment not certified according to law cannot be enquired into by a Court even though fraud on the part of the decree-holder is alleged. [p. 925, col 2.]

It is not for a Court of Justice to refuse to observe a provision of the law because hardship may result in consequence. The Court has merely to interpret and apply the law as laid down by the Legislature, and it would not be doing its duty if it acted otherwise [p 926, col. 2.]

It is, however, open to a Court to oppose a fraud so far as it can do so within the law, and where an application for execution is opposed on the ground of payment or satisfaction or adjustment, the Court may rightly treat the objection so taken as an application to the Court to certify the alleged payment or adjustment provided that the objection betaken within the period of limitation allowed by law. [p. 927, col. 1.]

In such a case, where the Court decides to treat an objection to execution on the ground of payment, as an application for certifying the payment, the judgment-debtor pleading fraud cannot extend the period of limitation under section 18 of the Limitation Act, for that section applies only where the knowledge of a right is fraudulently kept away, and not to a case where a person is prevented by fraud from exercising a right of which he is fully aware. [p. 927, cols. 1 & 2.]

Miscellaneous appeal against an order passed by Rutledge J., on the Original Side.

Mr. Judge, for the Appellants.

Mr. Dantra, for Respondents Nos. 1 and 2.

JUDGMENT.—The appellant Chetty obtained two decrees against the present respondents in Civil Regular No. 91 of 1916 and Civil Regular No. 50 of 1918. On the 27th February 1920 a compromise was effected between the parties, and a petition was filed in Civil Regular No. 50, praying that full satisfaction of the decree might be recorded and certain other orders passed. It is not denied that both parties were present and both were represented by Counsel. The Deputy Registrar did not understand the prayer, and Counsel asked for time to amend it, agreeing that prayer was defective. After an adjournment, Counsel appeared and amended the prayer, presumably after consultation with their clients. Ninety days from the 27th February expired on the 27th May 1920, and on the 1st June the decree-holder applied to execute the decree in Civil Regular No. 91. Notice of this application was admittedly received by the respondents some time prior to the 30th August of that year but it was not until the 23rd November 1920 that they filed an objection to the execution petition. It is said that the intervention of the long vacation accounted for this. The objection was that the decree had already been satisfied together with the decree passed in Civil Regular No. 50, and that the petitioner's application was fraudulent. They were called upon to file particulars of the alleged fraud, and on the 7th January 1921 they filed a long affidavit in which they set out that the compromise effected related to both the decrees; that the Chetty had brought them the petition written out and assured them that it contained the terms of their agreement in full and believing him they had signed the petition and gone to Court and saw it filed, and thus believed that satisfaction of both the decrees had been entered up. They only learnt that this was not so when the application for execution in Civil Regular No. 91 was served on them. The Deputy Registrar on this ordered an enquiry under section 47 into the alleged fraud. An appeal was filed from that order, and the learned Judge on the Original Side upheld the Registrar's order. This appeal is against that decision.

The questions that we have to decide, therefore, are as to whether the satisfaction of the decree in Civil Regular No. 91 never having been certified, the Executing Court is bound not to recognize it, if this be so, whether the objection to the petition for execution may be treated as an application to the Court under O. XXI, r 2 (2), and if so, whether it is not barred by limitation.

As to the first point, respondents rely on the case of Trimbak Ramkrishna Ranade v. Hari Laxman Ranade (1) which was followed in Hansa Godhaji Marwadi v. Bhawa Jogji Marwadi (2). In the latter case it was held that the Court should not in the exercise of its duty under section 244, Civil Procedure Code, allow a clear case of fraud to be covered and condoned by the provisions of O. XXI, r 2. Three further cases were referred to. There was in this case a very clear indication of fraud on the part of the decree-holder. The contrary opinion has, however, been taken by the Calcutta and Madras High Court in earlier cases which were not referred to.

In Biroo Gorain v. Jaimurat Koer (3) it was held that it is not open to the Court of Execution to enquire into the fact of a payment or adjustment of a decree which has not been certified or recorded as provided in clause (1) of r. 2 of O. XXI even when the conduct of the decree-holder is alleged to have been fraudulent. The point for consideration is thus stated in the judgment, whether "although the adjustment has not been certified in the manner contemplated by r. 2 of O. XXI of the Code of 1908, as the conduct of the decree-holder is fraudulent, it is open to the Court to investigate the allegations of fraud under section 47 of the Code of 1908." Reference is made to all the cases cited in the later Bombay case referred to above. It is pointed out that the Madras case was dissented from in a later decision of that Court, and that the Calcutta case when analysed did not support the proposition contended for. The learned Judges say: "The contention of the learned Vakil for the appellant in substance is that in cases where the conduct of the decree holder is fraudulent, it is open to the Court, in fact it is incumbent on the Court, to investigate the allegation of fraud under section 47 of the Code of 1908, notwithstanding the clear and specific provisions of clause (e) of r 2 of O. XXI. This argument is obviously fallacious. A proceeding under r. 2, O. XXI, is a proceeding under section 47 of the Code, inasmuch as it decides a question between the parties to the suit and relating to the execution, satisfaction or discharge of the decree made in the suit. If the contention advanced on behalf of the appellants were to prevail, in all cases where fraud is imputed to the decree-holder, the provision of clause (3) of r. 2, O. XXI would become nugatory; in other words, the provisions of r. 2 would be superseded by the wider provisions of section 47." The Court further decided the question of limitation that has been raised in the case before us, and they said: "We may further point out that even if it is established that the conduct of the decree-holders is fraudulent the judgment-debtor is not entitled to obtain an extension of the time within which an application is to be made to the Court under clause (2) of r. 2 of O. XXI. Section 18 of the Limitation Act which deals with the effect of fraud is clearly of no avail to the appellants" and after quoting that section, the judgment goes on: "It is not suggested on behalf of the appellants that they were kept by means of fraud from the knowledge of their right to make the application mentioned in clause (2) of r. 2 O. XXI. Their grievance is that they have been kept by means of fraud from the exercise of their right to make this application; consequently, if we were to accede to the contention of the appellants, we should have to substitute for the phrase 'from the knowledge of such right,' the phrase 'from the exercise of such right.' But clearly the knowledge of a right and the exercise thereof are fundamentally distinct things..... But if the judgment-debtor, notwithstanding the express provisions of clause (2), r. 2. O. XXI, still enters into an adjustment with the decree-holder out of Court and omits to take the necessary precaution of making an application within the time allowed by law, he has no just ground of complaint when the decree holder takes advantage of his omission to seek the protection of the law."

(1) 7 Ind. Cas. 940; 34 B. 575; 12 Bom. L. R. 686.
(2) 33 Ind. Cas. 232; [1916] B. 333; 18 Bom. L. R. 22.
(3) 13 Ind. Cas. 63; 16 C. W. N. 923; 16 C. L. J 171.

Again, in the case of Atathoor Badrudeen v. Gulam Mohideen (4) it was laid down that a payment or adjustment of a decree cannot be recognised by any Court executing the decree unless the same has been certified in the manner allowed by law. The clause is applicable where in answer to an application for execution an adjustment is set up by the judgment-debtor. Further, though a judgment-debtor's counter-petition may be treated as an application to certify, the same cannot be allowed in the absence of any fraud, if it is made beyond 90 days of the adjustment. It is pointed out that the judgments relied on by the Bombay High Court quoted above had been dissented from and how some were to be distinguished.

Finally, in the case of Parma Ram v. Lehna Singh (5) the two Bombay cases cited above were differed from, and the same view as is now taken in the Calcutta and Madras High Courts was adopted.

The balance of authority clearly, therefore, appears to be in favour of the view that the provisions of clause (3) of r. 2 of O. XXI are not to be rendered nugatory by the application of the general provisions of section 47 of the Code. With that view we entirely agree. The provision was enacted to prevent the Courts being flooded with false defences to applications for execution setting up a payment or adjustment in part or in whole which would be made merely to gain time. The decree-holder is bound to certify an adjustment, and the judgment-debtor is also given a right to apply to the Court to certify an adjustment. If the adjustment be not certified, it is entirely the fault of the judgment-debtor, and he does not deserve the consideration of the Court if he fails to take the very ordinary precaution of seeing that payment or adjustment made by him is certified to the Court. We can see no reason why this should not apply also in the case of an alleged fraud. It is perfectly true no doubt that the Courts should not readily lend themselves to assist fraud in any shape or form, but the judgment-debtor upon whom such fraud may have been practised is not without remedy. He may sue for damages for the fraud committed and recover any payment made twice over or he may take action in the Criminal Courts. The Legislature must have considered the various arguments on either side and deliberately included this provision. It is not for a Court of Justice to refuse to observe the provision because hardship may result in consequence. The Court has merely to interpret and apply the law as laid down by the Legislature, and we should not be doing our duty if we acted otherwise. Even if an enquiry were held and the fraud was established, the provision of clause (3) of r. 2 of O. XXI would not be affected. But it is open to the Court to oppose a fraud so far as if can do so within the law, and where an application for execution is opposed on the ground of payment or satisfaction or adjustment, the Court may rightly treat the objection so taken as an application to the Court to certify the alleged payment or adjustment, provided that the objection be taken within the period of limitation allowed by law.

(4) 12 Ind. Cas. 562; 36 M. 857; 10 M. L. T. 396; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 473; 24 M. L. J. 541.

(5) 53 Ind. Cas. 443; 135 P. R. 1919; 57 P. L. R. 1920.

The fraud, if any, was committed in the present case on 27th February 1920, the appellant waited until 90 days from that date had expired, and a few days later the application to execute was filed. The objection which we are asked to treat as an application under O. XXI, r. 2 (2) was not filed within 90 days, it was not in fact filed until the 23rd November 1920 but it was filed 83 days after the respondents became aware of the alleged fraud. It is, however, claimed that they are entitled to the benefit of section 18 of the Limitation Act, and it is admitted that if they can rely on the provisions of that section, their application would be within time. Regarding the matter from that point of view, it is necessary to consider what allowance section 18 grants. It lays down that where any person having a right to make an application has by means of fraud been kept from the knowledge of such rights, the time limited for making the application shall be computed from the time when the fraud first became known to him. The respondents in the present case had the right of making an application to have the adjustment certified It cannot be said, and it is not urged, that they were not aware of the right that they had, but it is argued that they were under the belief that the adjustment had been certified, and that the appellant by the fraudulent assurance to them that the petition contained all the terms of the agreement arrived at had concealed from them, or had caused them to be in ignorance of the right to move the Court to correct the prayer of that petition. That appears to us to be an entirely different matter altogether. If we treat the objection to the petition for execution as an application it is to be regarded as an application under clause (2) r. 2 of O. XXI, and section 18 only deals with the knowledge of their right to make such an application. Their argument really is that they were prevented from exercising the right of which they were fully aware by the fraud of the appellant. Section 18 does not deal with the exercise of the right but with the knowledge of the right, and we agree with the learned Judges of the Calcutta High Court in Biroo Gorain's case (3) which we have quoted above.

Respondents chose to rely, if their allegations were true, on what the appellant told them. They never adopted the ordinary precaution of having the petition interpreted to them before signing it. They had Counsel who appeared at the presentation of that petition on their behalf; they never attempted to find out from him what the petition contained. When the prayer of that petition was amended, they again never attempted to find out what the petition set forth though they were undoubtedly consulted as to the amendment of the prayer. They had ample opportunity of stultifying the fraud, if fraud there was, and they declined to avail themselves of it. But, however that may be, we are compelled to the conclusion that the alleged fraud cannot now be enquired into under section 47 because of the special provisions of O. XXI, r. 2 (3). We are further of opinion that they are not entitled to the benefit of section 18 of the Limitation Act, and that, therefore, even if their objection to the petition for execution were treated as an application under O. XXI, r. 2 (2), it is barred by time.

We must, therefore, accept the appeal and reverse the order of the Court below with costs throughout.

N. H. & W. C. A. Appeal accepted.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 147 OF 1921.

February 3, 1922.

Present:—Justice Sir William Ayling, KT.

MUTHAYYA CHETTY—DEFENDANT No. 1—PETITIONER

versus

P. R. S. SOMASUNDARAM CHETTY BY AGENT S. NARAYANASAMI AIYENGAR—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Partnership—Suit by one of surviving partners respecting partnership transaction, whether maintainable,

ARUNACHALLAM CHETTY v. SOMASUNDARAM CHETTY.

A suit by one of two surviving members of a partnership, after dissolution of the partnership, in respect of a transaction with the partnership, is not maintainable.

Alagappa Chetti v. Vellian Chetti, 13 M. 33; 4 M L. J. 283; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 373, followed.

Vaidyanatha Ayyar v. Chinnasami Naik, 17 M. 108; 6 Ind Dec. (N. S.) 74, distinguished.

Petition, under section 25 of Act IX of 1882, praying the High Court to revise a decree of the Court of the District Munsif, Ariyalur, in Small Cause Suit No. 2034 of 1919.

Mr. S. Sankara Iyer, for the Petitioner.

Mr. R. Kesava Aiyengar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a suit brought to recover a debt due to a partnership which consisted of three partners Somasundaram Chetty, Arunachalam Chetty and Muthiah Chetty; of these three Muthiah Chetty is dead and as a consequence the partnership dissolved. This suit is instituted by one of the surviving partners of the late firm Somasundaram Chetty. The question is whether it is maintainable by him.

As far as I can gather the District Munsif appears to have decided this point under the misapprehension that the plaintiff, Somasundaram Chetty, was the only survivor of the partnership of two; under that impression relies on the ruling in Vaidyanatha Ayyar v. Chinnasami Naik (1). That ruling is of course inapplicable to the present case where one of the two surviving partners brings a suit. This case is governed by the ruling in Alagappa Chetti v. Vellian Chetti (2), which, so far as I can understand, has never been dissented from or questioned and wherein it is clearly laid down that, as a general rule, all the members of a partnership firm ought to be joined as plaintiffs in a suit in respect of a transaction with the partnership. The learned Vakil for the respondent has referred to section 263 of the Contract Act which says that, after dissolution of partnership the rights and obligations of the partners continue in all things necessary for winding up the business of the partnership. But if a single one of the partners could not sue during the continuance of the partnership, still less can one of two surviving partners sue after the dissolution of the partnership.

(1) 17 M. 108; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 74.
(2) 18 M. 33; 4 M. L. J. 283; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 373.

Attention was also drawn to the provision of O. XXX of the Civil Procedure Code but they only apply to cases in which two or more persons claiming to be partners sue.

I am forced to the conclusion that the suit brought by the plaintiff in this case is not maintainable. The suit must, therefore, be dismissed with costs in both Courts.

V. N. V. Petition dismissed.

W. C. A.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 174 OF 1920.

May 15, 1922.

Present:—Sir Sydney Robinson, KT., Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice Macgregor.

R. M. A. R. R M. ARUNACHALLAM CHETTY—APPELLANT

versus

V. E. R, M. N. SOMASUNDARAM CHETTY—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Test of mutuality—Shifting balance.

Where one party only makes payments to, or for, or on account of, the other and that other only from time to time makes payment in re-payment, the accounts cannot be said to be mutual within the meaning of Art 85 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act. [p. 930, col. 1.]

The test of mutuality is the presence in the accounts of a shifting balance sometimes in favour of one side and sometimes in favour of the other, but its absence is not conclusive proof against mutuality. The fact that the balance no longer shifted is not in itself sufficient to justify the conclusion that the account had ceased to be a mutual, open and current account. [p. 930, col. 1]

Ebrahim Ahmed Mehter v. Abdul Huq, 27 Ind. Cas 879; 8 L. B. R 149; 8 Bur. L. T. 116, Ram Pershad v. Harbans Singh, 6 C. L. J. 58, Hirada Basappa v. Gadigi Muddappa, 6 M. H. C. R. 142, Ganesh v. Gyanu, 22 B. 6 6; 1 Ind Dec. (N. S.) 986, Chittar Mal v Behari Lal, 4 Ind. Cas. 261; 32 A. 11; 6 A. L. J. 21, referred to and considered.

First appeal against the judgment passed by Mr. Justice Rigg, on the Original Side.

Mr. Lentaigne, for the Appellant.

Mr. Das, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The sole question for decision in this appeal is whether the case falls within the purview of Art. 85 of the Limitation Act or not.

ARUNACHALLAM CHETTY v. SOMASONDARAM CHETTY.

The 1st defendant formed a partnership with three members of the K P. K. Firm who are defendants Nos. 2, 3 and 4. Defendant No. 3 was sent to Rangoon as agent for this firm. He is a relative of the plaintiff who had also a firm in Rangoon. Plaintiff sought defendant's permission to defendant No. 3 acting as his agent in Rangoon as well as agent for the defendant. Defendant agreed to this and defendant No. 3 carried on the business of both firms. He submitted copies of his accounts to the defendant from time to time, but in 1913 he ceased doing so. This naturally aroused the suspicions of defendant No 1, who thereupon withdrew the power-of-attorney he had granted him and dissolved the partnership. Plaintiff came to Rangoon to inspect his business. He found that the accounts showed that the defendant firm owed him a large sum of money and he induced defendant No 3 to execute three promissory notes in his favour covering this amount. Plaintiff brought three suits on these three promissory-notes Defendants not having received any accounts did not know what their position was and denied owing plaintiff anything. They further pleaded that defendant No. 3's power-of-attorney having been cancelled, and the partnership dissolved to the knowledge of the plaintiff, the suits should be dismissed.

I heard the cases on the Original Side myself and decided them in defendant's favour. An appeal against that decision was dismissed. During the pendency of the appeal plaintiff filed the present suit, claiming to recover the balance due on a mutual, open and current account where there had been reciprocal demands between the parties. The learned Judge on the Original Side held that the account was one to which Art. 85 of the Limitation Act applied, and this appeal is against that decision

It is necessary to consider what was the course of dealings between the parties. It is not denied that for several years at any rate plaintiff from time to time advanced moneys to the defendants and defendants from time to time advanced moneys to the plaintiff. Defendant No. 3 kept an account of these mutual loans. When plaintiff made a loan to defendant he credited plaintiff with that sum and debited defendant with a like amount in their respective books. On numerous occasions, generally at the end of each month, he would total up the position and show the amount at debit or credit in each firm's books. On at least three occasions he calculated interest on the loans made, calculating interest on the amounts lent by plaintiff and on the amounts lent by defendant, deducting one from the other, and adding the credit for interest to whichever party was entitled to it. In the earlier days of these dealings the credit rested sometimes with plaintiff and sometimes with defendant. The last occasion on which the credit rested with the defendant was in March 1913. Subsequent to that date the balancing of the mutual accounts always showed an ever increasing credit in favour of the plaintiff.

On these facts Mr. Lentaigne for the appellant argues that there was no mutual, open and current account, because there were no payments made by plaintiff on defendant's account to third parties. He argues that there was no equitable right of set off which is the foundation on which the theory of mutual, open and current accounts is based, and that there were no reciprocal demands between the parties. He further argues that even if the account could properly be considered to be a mutual, open and current account, it ceased to be so after March 1913, because from that time onwards the balance in favour of the plaintiff was always very large and any payments made by defendant would be merely payments in reduction of this balance and would give rise to no demand on the part of the defendant.

The Tamil year, it is agreed, ends in April. The present suit was filed in March 1917 and the period of limitation under Art. 85 would run from the close of the year in which the last item, admitted or proved, is entered in the account. The learned Judge in the Court below has calculated the three years from April 1914, and, therefore, holds the suit to be within time. It is urged that on the second branch of his argument limitation should have been calculated from April 1913 and that, therefore, the suit would be barred, even though Art. 85 applied.

Great reliance has been placed on the rulings of this Court in the case of Ebrahim

Ahmed Mehter v. Abdul Huq (1). The question there was whether the account was a mutual account. It was held that a mutual account means "not merely where one of two parties has received money and paid it on account of the other, but where each of two parties has received and paid on the other's account." It was found that the plaintiff was acting merely as agent of the defendant, and that the defendant throughout the dealings had done nothing for and on behalf of, or on account of, the plaintiff, and that, therefore, there was no mutual account. That authority has, it appears to us, no real bearing on the present case. He further relied on the case of Ram Pershad v. Harbans Singh (2). So far as the ground of mutuality is concerned, we agree entirely with both these decisions. In the latter case it was held that "mutual accounts are such as consist of reciprocity of dealings between the parties, and do not embrace those having items on one side only, though made up of debits and credits." Where one party only makes payments to, or for, or on account of, the other and that other only from to time makes payments in re-payment, it is perfectly clear that the accounts cannot be said to be mutual within the meaning of Art. 85. Reference is made to the case of Hirada Basappa v. Gadigi Muddappa (3) where the learned Judge observed that "in order that accounts might be mutual, there must be transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other, and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations." In this case also, as in many others, it is pointed out that "a shifting balance sometimes in favour of one side, and sometimes in favour of the other, is a test of mutuality, but its absence is not conclusive proof against mutuality." With that expression of opinion we also agree.

The same view was taken in the case of Ganesh v. Gyanu (4) and in the case of Chittar Mal v. Behari Lal (5). In the Calcutta case to which we have referred, it was lastly held that "the mere circumstance that on one solitary occasion...there was a sum...to the credit of the defendants in the books of the plaintiffs, does not make the account between the parties a mutual account in which there has been reciprocal demand between the parties."

The present case is one of mutual loans, and as an authority for such a case, we have the decision in Ganesh v. Gyanu (4) cited above. It is there pointed out: "The dealings between the parties in the present case were admittedly in the nature of mutual borrowings, and where the transactions are of that character, the test of a shifting balance, sometimes in favour of one party, and sometimes in favour of the other, though valuable as an index of the nature of the dealings, is not always decisive." It was held that in a case of mutual borrowings interest being charged on such loans, the account was a mutual, open and current account creating independent obligations.

In the present suit, defendant No. 3, as the agent for both parties, lent money on behalf of one firm to himself as agent for the other firm. Each of these loans gave rise to a right of set off or claim against the borrower, and as both plaintiff and defendant were on occasions the lenders, these transactions gave rise to reciprocal demands from time to time. The accounts were never settled. The fact that defendant No. 3 for his own convenience totalled up the position and made entries of the result in each firm's books did not close the account. It was continuous and was, therefore, an open and current account, and having regard to the mutual loans, it was also a mutual account.

If we consider the case as it stood at the end of March 1913 there can be no question that at that time either party could have said to the other: "I have a claim against you" and could have demanded that the accounts be gone into and these mutual claims set off one against the other; that interest should be calculated not merely on the final balance found due after the set off was made, but on each loan as it was made.

It remains, therefore, to consider whether the position was altered after March 1913, because, after that date, defendant was always in debit. The accounts were continued in exactly the same form. There is nothing

(1) 27 Ind. Cas. 879; 8 L. B. R. 149; 8 Bur. L. T, 116.
(2) 6 C. L. J. 159.
(3) 6 M. H. C. R. 142.
(4) 22 B. 606; 11 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 986.
(5) 4 Ind. Cas. 261; 32 A. 11; 6 A. L. J. 921.

to show that any loans made by the defendant to the plaintiff subsequent to that date were made merely as payments in partial discharge of the debit balance against him. They continued to be made as loans, and defendant No. 3 in his evidence clearly so states. This being so we are unable to see that there is any ground for saying that they were merely discharges and not loans as heretofore. This being so, the mutual dealings between the parties were continued in exactly the same way as they had been previously carried on. The fact that the balance no longer shifted is not in itself sufficient to justify us in holding that the account had ceased to be a mutual, open and current account.

We are, therefore, of opinion that the decision of the learned Judge on the Original Side was correct and that the appeal must be dismissed with costs throughout, the decision of the Court below being confirmed. We remand the case to the lower Court in order that the Commissioner may now take the accounts in order to ascertain what sum is due by either party.

Appeal dismissed.

W. C. A.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

REFERRED CASE No. 6 OF 1921.

August 23, 1922.

Present :—Sir Walter Schwabe, Kt., Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Coutts-Trotter and Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri.

PENDURTI JOSEPH—PETITIONER

versus

PENDURTI RAMAMMA AND ANOTHER—RESPONDENT.

Divorce Act (IV of 1869)—Divorce, suit for—Husband or wife, uncorroborated evidence of, if sufficient—Adultery, charge of, against known person—Necessary co-respondent.

In an action for divorce under the Divorce Act, the evidence of the husband or wife alone ought never to be accepted without corroboration either by witnesses, or at least by strong surrounding circumstances. [p. 932, col. 1.]

Where charges of adultery are made against a known person, that person must be made a co-respondent unless the Judge otherwise directs. [p. 932, col. 1]

Case referred by the District Judge, Godavari at Rajahmundry, in his Letter No. 1930, dated the 8th April 1921 for confirmation by the High Court under section 17 of the Divorce Act (Act IV of 1869) of the decree nisi passed in Original Suit No. 35 of 1920 on the file of the District Court, Godavari at Rajahmundry.

JUDGMENT.

SCHWABE, C. J.—This is an application to confirm a decree for divorce given by the District Court of Godavari. It involves questions of considerable importance and questions our views upon which it is most desirable should become public property. The suit was a simple one. The petitioner claimed divorce from his wife on the ground, as shown in his petition, of adultery with two persons, the first a man called T. Jeevaratnam who is not cited as a co-respondent in the suit, and the second Boyi Guruvalu, who is cited as a co-respondent in the suit. The co-respondent did not appear and the evidence except the formal proof of the marriage consisted entirely of the evidence of the petitioner, and that evidence was a statement that two weeks after the marriage the respondent was found by him to be in adultery with one Jeevaratnam, and that she admitted her guilt before the elders of his Church.

As regards the second case against the respondent, his evidence was that the co-respondent contracted intimacy while she was at Pittapore and that she is now living at Bezwada with this co respondent. Further he produced a letter in which she said that he could marry any girl whom he liked according to his pleasure and added "this is the deed of relinquishment caused to be written and given with my free will."

By section 7 of the Indian Divorce Act of 1869, "the High Courts and District Courts shall, in all suits and proceedings hereunder, act and give relief on principles and rules which, in the opinion of the said Courts, are as nearly as may be conformable to the principles and rules on which the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England for the time being acts and gives relief." In this case the learned Judge expressed the view that, as she was ex parte and he saw no reason to disbelieve the petitioner's evidence, a decree should be granted. That is absolutely contrary to the principles and rules on which the Court of Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England acts. There is a definite established practice there that the evidence of the husband or the wife alone is never to be accepted without corroboration either by witnesses or at least by strong surrounding circumstances, and the reason for that rule is that, but for it, there would be nothing easier than a collusive divorce, there would be no necessity for the respondent to appear and the petitioner need only go into the witness-box and say that the respondent committed adultery. In this case there was no corroboration of any kind—I doubt if there was any evidence of adultery, because what the petitioner said was that he discovered that she was committing adultery. He says that she is living in the house with the named co-respondent. He does not say how he knows or whether it is hearsay, or give any facts. It must be understood that it is absolutely essential that there should be corroboration.

Secondly, there is a rule in England that where charges of adultery are made against a known person, that man must be made a co respondent unless the Judge shall otherwise direct. It has been put in the shape of a rule in England—Divorce Rules No. 4. "A husband filing a petition for dissolution of marriage on the ground of (alleged) adultery, the alleged adulterers shall be made co-respondents in the cause, unless the Judge ordinarily shall otherwise direct." Under that provision if the name is unknown the Judge can dispense with that co-respondent. In this case the first alleged act of adultery is with a known man. He is not added as a co respondent nor is there any application to the Court for dispensing with his being made a co-respondent. The result is that we cannot confirm this decree.

As regards the evidence in respect of Jeevaratnam, he not having been a party to the suit, that evidence ought not have been admitted. As regards the evidence against the co-respondent there is no corroboration as I have pointed out. That corroboration in a case of this kind can in all probability easily be obtained. It is only necessary for some one who knows the respondent by sight to give evidence that he has been to the place where it is alleged that she is living in adultery with the co-respondent and that he has seen them living together under conditions that lead to presumption that they are guilty. If there is no person available such as a relative of the petitioner who knows her by sight, the petitioner himself must go with somebody else e. g., the local Police and identify the person living with the co-respondent as being his wife.

The proper course in this case is to set aside this decree and remand the case to the District Court so as to enable the petitioner to adduce corroborative evidence in respect of the charge against the co-respondent, or if so advised, and he finds that course necessary, to join the other alleged adulteror as a co-respondent and adduce evidence in respect of that act of adultery.

COUTTS TROTTER, J.—I am of the same opinion. This difficulty arises because people do not take the trouble in this country to get up divorce cases properly, and do not appreciate that the Courts of this country are bound of themselves to guard against the possibility of collusive litigants. I agree that this case should be re-tried in the way suggested by my Lord.

KUMARASWAMI SASTRI, J.—I agree with my Lord the Chief Justice.

Decree set aside and case remanded.

V. N. V.

W. C. A.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 1713 OF 1918.

April 11, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Scott-Smith and Mr. Justice Abdul Raoof.

BICHHIA LAL AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

MUNSHI RAM AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 284—Partnership, dissolution of—Notice, absence of, effect of—ersons dealing with firm," meaning of—Retirement partner—Liability.

BICHHIA LAL v. MUNSHI RAM.

Section 264 of the Contract Act is an illustration of a particular form of estoppel by conduct, and a person is not entitled to take advantage of it unless the facts raise a presumption that the absence of notice excited in him a belief which caused him to do something that he would not otherwise have done. The section must not be construed as an absolute proposition of law but must be read with section 115 of the Evidence Act [p. 936, col 2]

Rahimtulla Ishak v. Jhamatmal Chainrai, 3 Ind. Cas. 445; 3 S. L. R. 140, relied upon.

The expression "persons dealing with a firm" in section 264 of the Contract Act, indicates only such persons who have been in the habit of dealing with the firm previously. The section does not contemplate such persons who deal with a firm for the first time after the retirement of some of the partners. [p 936, col. 1.]

Chand Mal v. Ganga Ram, 78 P. R. 1903, Giovani Gorio v Vallabhdas Kalianji, 30 Ind. Cas. 864; 17 Bom. L. R 782, relied upon.

Where a partner retires from the partnership and the remaining partners carry on the business of the firm under the old name and style, the fact that the business is so carried on does not make the partner who has retired liable for the transactions entered into subsequent to his retirement [p. 935, col 2]

Rahimtulla Ishak v Jhamatmal Chainrai, 3 Ind. Cas. 445; 3 S. L. R. 140, Chand Mal v. Ganga Ram, 78 P. R. 1903, relied upon.

First appeal from a decree of the Subordinate Judge, First Class, Multan, dated 22nd March 1918.

Mr. Raj Krishen for Mr. Manohar Lal and Mr. Shamair Chand, for the Appellants.

Bakhshi Tek Chand and Lala Jagan Nath, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This was a suit for the recovery of Rs. 6,000 on book account against two sets of defendants. The claim was thus stated in the plaint :—

That the plaintiff No. 1 along with his brother, plaintiff No. 2, with his father, Seth Gopal Sahai, formed a joint Hindu family and that Seth Gopal Sahai having died the plaintiffs were his surviving heirs; that Shib Dyal, father of defendant No. 1, defendant No. 1 and Hira Lal, the defendant No. 2, (son of defendant No. 1), were members of a joint Hindu family and carried on their business jointly; that the said Shib Dayal having died the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 were his surviving heirs, that the defendants Nos 3 to 9 were members of a joint Hindu family and carried on their business jointly; that the family of the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 and the family of the defendants Nos. 3 to 9 had a joint firm named 'Shib Dayal-Jai Dayal' at Multan, that the firm belonging to the defendants borrowed money from the firm of the plaintiffs between the 18th April 1910 and the 27th June 1911; that the defendants made payments between the 17th April 1910 and the 21st September 1910; and that, according to the account detailed in paragragh 5 of the plaint, the amount due to the plaintiffs from the defendants was Rs. 6,000. The deceased Shib Dayal was stated to have been the manager of the firm 'Shib Dayal-Jai Dayal' and Jai Dayal was stated to have represented the members of the joint family to which he belonged. It was stated that Jai Dayal died sonless more than twenty years before the institution of the suit. The pedigree table given in the plaint makes it clear that all the members of Jodha Mal's family were impleaded as defendants, and were sought to be made liable for the debt. The suit was resisted by both sets of defendants. The defendant No. 1 for himself and for his minor son, the defendant No. 2, among other things, said that he had separated from his father in his lifetime and had a separate business of his own and that he was, therefore, not liable for the debt which was due from him. The other defendants said that they had no concern with the debt; that Jai Dayal did not carry on the business for the other members of Jodha Mal's children. They also alleged that the firm of 'Shib Dayal-Jai Dayal' had been dissolved and had ceased to exist long before the debt in question had been incurred. Two dates were mentioned as the dates of dissolution of the partnership. In the first place it was stated that the partnership dissolved on the death of Jai Dayal and in the second place it was urged that the partnership was dissolved in the year 1903 when a deed of relinquishment was executed by Shib Dayal in favour of all the surviving members of the family of Jodha Mal. This deed is dated the 17th of Sawan Sambat 1965, and is printed at pages 27—28 of the printed paper book. It may be mentioned that previous to this suit a suit was instituted by the present plaintiffs for the recovery of the amount then due on the same account. In that suit only two defendants were impleaded, namely, BICHSIA LAL v. MUNSHI RAM.

Munshi Ram, son of Shib Dayal, the defendant No. 1 in this case, and Ram Saran Das, the defendant No. 5 in the present case, who was described as the son of Jai Dayal, though admittedly he was a son of Wazir Chand, the defendant No. 4 in the present case. He was stated to have been adopted by Jai Dayal, and was sued in his representative character as Jai Dayal's son. That suit was, however, withdrawn and the present suit was instituted against all the members of the two joint families who were said to be jointly interested in the firm of Shib Dayal-Jai Dayal. The real object by the institution of the present suit was to make each and every surviving member of the family of Jodha Mal liable for the debt.

A good deal of evidence was called on behalf of the plaintiffs to prove that all the defendants Nos. 3 to 9, along with the deceased Jai Dayal, formed a joint Hindu family and that they were all interested in the joint firm of 'Shib Dayal-Jai Dayal' and that even after the death of Jai Dayal the business of the firm was carried on in partnership with the surviving members of the family of Shib Dayal, deceased.

The Trial Court recorded the following findings:—

(1) that the defendants Nos. 3 to 9 formed a joint Hindu family;

(2) that there was no reliable evidence to show that Jai Dayal had joined the partnership with Shib Dayal on behalf of his family or that after his death the surviving members of the family had carried on the business as partners of Shiv Dayal or the surviving members of his family;

(3) that the partnership was dissolved in law on the death of Jai Dayal, and that in any case it had been dissolved by the agreement dated the 17th Sawan Sambat 1965 (1908), which is described as a deed of relinquishment. This deed was challenged by the plaintiffs as a forgery but the Court found that the execution and genuineness were established by the evidence of Mela Mal, its scribe, and Labbu Ram and Chhajju Mal, its marginal witnesses; and

(4) that the defendant No. 1 was joint with his father, Shib Dayal, and along with his son, Hira Lal, the defendant No. 2, was liable for the claim.

On the above findings the suit was decreed against the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 and dismissed against the defendants Nos. 3 to 9.

The plaintiffs have, therefore, came up in appeal to this Court. The decision of the appeal has been made easy by the course adopted at the argument by the Counsel of the parties. The deed of relinquishment has not been challenged before us as a forgery by the Counsel for the appellants. In fact he has relied upon the document as a strong piece of evidence establishing the liability of all the defendants Nos. 3 to 9 as it purports to be a relinquishment in favour of all the surviving members of the joint family to which Jai Dayal belonged. It is executed by Shib Dayal, son of Narain Das, and as a good deal depends upon the terms of this deed we think it necessary to quote it in extenso.

It runs thus:—

"I, Shib Dayal, son of Narain Das, caste Khatri resident of Basti Sheikh Tahsil, Jullundur, do hereby declare as follows:—

"Lala Ram Saran Das, son of Wazira Mal, and Lala Wazira Mal, son of Jodha Mal, caste Sud, residents of Phagwara, and I had two joint shops situate in Lahore and Multan, which were known as 'Hamir Chand-Shib Dayal' and 'Jai Dayal-Shib Dayal' respectively. The shop situate in Lahore was closed some seven or eight years ago. The entire account relating to the profits and losses of the said two shops was adjusted, and a sum of Rs. 3,462-4-0 was found due from me and a separate entry was made in the bahi. Out of the shops the shop situated in Lahore has already been closed. The shop situate in Multan still exists. In future Lala Ram Saran Das, son of Lala Wazira Mal, shall have no concern with the profits or losses of the said shop From this date I shall be considered proprietor of the said shop. I, as proprietor, shall be responsible for all the profits or losses of the said shop. I shall be responsible for the previous dealings of all sorts. Similarly, in future too I shall be responsible for the dealings. In future the shop shall not, bear the name of Lala Jai Dayal Mal. I shall style the shop as I think proper.

" have, therefore, drawn up these few words by way of a deed of relinquishment in the form of an agreement relating to the shops in Lahore and Multan, so that it may serve as an authority.

"Dated the 17th Sawan Sambat 1965 (1908)."

Mr. Tek Chand, for the respondent, has contended that, assuming that all the members of Jodha Mal's family formed a joint family and were partners with Shib Dayal, the partnership must be taken to have been dissolved in 1908 under the deed of relinquishment and the claim must fail against them as the debt was incurred after the firm had ceased to exist. It is admitted that the dealings on which the claim was based began in April 1910 when Shib Dayal was the sole proprietor. It is admitted by Mr. Raj Krishen, who has argued the case before us for the appellants, that the plaintiffs had had no dealings before that date with either the old or the new firm. Mr. Tek Chand has called our attention to the following evidence on the record to show that the old firm 'Shib Dayal Jai Dayal' had ceased to exist and that its old name had been changed and a new name under the style of "Narain Das-Shib Dayal" had been given to it.

At page 39 is to be found the translation of a hundi dated Sawan Badi 14th Sambat 1967, executed by Bhag Mal Sri Ram of Jalalabad in favour of Bhai Bir Singh-Bata Mal for Rs. 200. This hundi was negotiated in due course, and it was endorsed in the name of B. Narain Das-Shib Dayal. The endorsement is to be found at the top of page 40 of the paper book in these words "hundi sold by Jagan Nath-Chandar Sein to Bhai Narain Das-Shib Dayal If the "hundi is not honoured (by the drawer) it should be presented for payment to Bhai Matwala Mal-Thakur Das."

At page 41 is to be found a hundi for Rs. 171-8-0, executed by Sawai Ram-Shiv-Ji Ram of Ferozepore in favour of Tansukh Das-Basheshar Das, and it was sold in due course by Jagan Nath-Chandar Sein, to Bhai Narain Das Shib Dayal Mal. The account of these two hundis is to be found at page 11 of the paper-book. The account is thus stated at lea[st] No. 52 of roknr bahi: —

"Dated Sawan Sudi 3, Sambat 1967, Debited to Shib Dayal Mal-Jai Dayal Mal on account of three hundis for Rs 571-8-0 payable at Delhi."

Among these three hundis are to be found the two hundis referred to above. At pages 31—37 of the paper book are printed certain letters which go to show that after the alleged dissolution correspondence was carried on in the name of the new firm "Narain Das-Shib Dayal."

Ram Saran Das, the defendant No. 5 in this case, was examined as plaintiff's witness before the local Commissioner appointed in the previous case and he made the following statement on this point:—

"The style of the shop was changed after the dissolution of the partnership. It was newly styled as 'Narain Das Shib Dayal,' and we have been receiving letters from Shib Dayal addressed to the said name. Panna Lal, the general agent of the plaintiffs, carried on joint business with Shib Dayal."

Taking this evidence along with the evidence relating to the purchase of the hundis above mentioned there can be no reasonable doubt on the point that the old firm of Shiv Dayal-Jai Dayal had ceased to exist, and that the shop had assumed a new name of 'Narain Das-Shib Dayal,' and that it was carried on solely by Shib Dayal himself. The defendants Nos. 3 to 9 have no concern with it. Even if it be admitted for a moment that the business of the new firm was carried on by Shib Dayal under its old name the retiring partners cannot be made liable for any transaction entered into after the dissolution In the case of Rahimtulla Ishak v. Jhamatmal Chainrai (1) it was held that "where A and B carried on business as partners under the name and style of A B, and B subsequently retired from the partnership, but the business was continued by A under the old name the fact that "the business was carried on in the old name did not make B liable for the transactions subsequent to his retirement." A similar rule was laid down in the case of Chand Mal v. Ganga Ram (2) where it was held that "the mere fact that the continuing partner was allowed to carry on business in the old firm's name,... would not render the retired partner liable...for debts contracted by the firm long after his retirement therefrom."

(1) 3 Ind. Jas 145; 3 B. L. R. 140,
(2) 78 P. R. 1903.

In fact Mr. Raj Krishen has not seriously contested the correctness of the argument of Mr. Tek Chand on this point. He has, however, argued that as no notice was given to the plaintiffs of this dissolution they continued to deal with Shib Dayal under the impression that the old firm continued and that, therefore, the defendants, Nos. 3 to 9 are liable for the debt in accordance with the provisions of section 264 of the Indian Contract Act. We have, therefore, to decide whether the rule contained in the above section helps the plaintiffs under the circumstances of the present case. The wording of section 264, however, does not support this contention. The section provides that "persons dealing with a firm will not be affected by a dissolution of which no public notice has been given, unless they themselves had notice of such dissolution." The expression "persons dealing with a firm" indicates only such persons who have been in the habit of dealing with the firm previously. The section does not contemplate such persons who deal with a firm for the first time after the retirement of some of the partners. This view of the section is supported by the view expressed by a Division Bench of the Punjab Chief Court in Chand Mal v. Ganga Ram (2), where the learned Judges held that "section 264 of the Contract Act does not cover the case of a person dealing with a firm for the first time after a change from its original constitution, so as to make a partner who had already retired liable." The same rule was laid down by Mr. Justice Beaman of the Bombay High Court in the case of Giovani Gorio v. Vallabhaas Kalianji (3). The rule is summed up in the head-note thus:—

"The expression 'persons dealing with a firm' in section 264 of the Indian Contract Act, means persons who have been in the habit of dealing with, and at the time of the dissolution were contemplating further dealing with, the firm on the faith of the firm remaining the same as that with which their dealings commenced."

On the authorities, therefore, the defendants Nos. 3 to 9 cannot be made liable for the debt in suit for want of notice as contemplated by section 264 of the Indian Contract Act. In this case, moreover, there is evidence that the plaintiffs had notice of the dissolution of the partnership. Admittedly Panna Lal was the sole manager of the firm, and he had full knowledge that the dissolution of the partnership had taken place. Their own witness, Rala Ram, stated in his deposition before B. Mula Ram, local Commissioner, on the 5th October 1916, that "in the month of Sawan 1908 or 1909 I along with Shib Dayal went to Chint Puri to attend the fair of goddess. From the fair I came back to the shop of Shib Dayal Jai Dayal at Multan Cantonment. But Shib Dayal reached Multan Cantonment via Phagwara two or three days after my arrival. When I enquired of Shib Dayal about the reason for the delay (in his arrival) he said that he had stayed at Phagwara owing to the work connected with the partition of the shop at Multan Cantonment. On an enquiry by me from Shib Dayal about the partition he said that he had effected a partition. At that time Panna Lal, agent of the plaintiffs, was also present at the shop 'Shib Dayal Jai Dayal'. Two or three other men whose names I do not remember were there as well. In my presence Panna Lal enquired of Shib Dayal as to how he had made a settlement about partition. Shib Dayal then replied that that was a private matter, and that a partition was effected as was considered proper." This is to be found printed at page 91 of the paper-book. In this case it is, therefore, idle to contend that no notice was given. Moreover, as laid down in the case of Rahimtulla Ishak v. Jhamatmal Chainrai (1) "section 264 of the Contract Act is an illustration of a particular form of estoppel by conduct, and...a person is not entitled to take advantage of it unless the facts raise a presumption that the absence of notice excited in him a belief which caused him to do something that he would not otherwise have done. The section must not be construed as an absolute proposition of law, but must be read with section 115 of the Evidence Act." Nothing has been established in this case to show that the defendants Nos. 3 to 9 are estopped form asserting that they are not liable for the debt which was admittedly incurred by Shib Dayal after the dissolution.

After a careful consideration of all the facts of the case and the law applicable to it we have come to the conclusion that the firm of Shib Dayal-Jai Dayal was dissolved in 1908, and from that time onward, Shib Dayal had become the sole owner of the new firm and that Panna Lal, the general agent of the plaintiffs, had full knowledge of the dissolution, and that in all probability the plaintiffs had notice of the fact through him. We further have come to the conclusion that the plaintiffs never had had any previous dealings with the firm of 'Shib Dayal Jai Dayal.' In this view we must uphold the decree of the Court below. We accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.

(3) 30 Ind. Cas. 864; 17 Bom. L. R. 762.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE No 947 OF 1920.

June 1, 1922.

Present :—Justice Sir Thomas Richardson, Kt., and Mr. Justice Suhrawardy.

Raja BHUPENDRA NARAIN SINHA BAHADUR—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

MIDNAPORE ZEMINDARY COMPANY, LIMITED—PRINCIPAL DEFENDANT AND OTHERS—Pro forma DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Cess Act (IX B. C. of 1880), s. 41, power of parties to contract themselves out of—Kabuliyat, construction of—Ambiguity—Conduct of parties—"Rajaswa," meaning of—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 3, 158—Rent, whether includes cess—Dispute as to amount of cess annually payable—Appeal, second.

The plaintiff was the proprietor of a Zemindari in the entirety of which the defendant held a Putni lease evidenced by a kabuliyat executed by his predecessor in 1858 the terms of which were confirmed and ratified by the defendant in 1904. The kabuliyat contained a clause to the following effect:—"If there be any demand on the Zemindari for any amount on account of 'Rajaswa' or if any order is passed, then I shall without any objection abide by it and pay my rent along with it." Under section 41 of the Cess Act of 1880 the total amount of cess payable by the Zemindar to the Government was Rs 95 and odd while the amount annually payable by the putnidar to the Zemindar was under the same section Rs. 80 and odd. The defendant had regularly paid the latter amount to the Zemindar In a suit to recover the difference between the larger and the smaller sum :

Held, (1) that as the provisions of section 41 of the Cess Act were subject to any special provisions contained in a contract between the parties the defendant as putnidar was liable to pay to the Zemindar the whole amount payable by the latter to the Government: [p 938, col]

2 that the word "Rajaswa" as used in the kabuliyat was wide enough to include any imposition or levy payable to the State and was, therefore, wide enough, in its natural meaning in the context in which it was found, to include cess payable under the Cess Acts of 1880 and 1881. [p 939, col 2]

3 that the dispute between the parties was one as to the amount of rent annually payable within the meaning of section 158 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and consequently a second appeal was not barred under that section. [p. 939, col .]

Where there is any real ambiguity in a clause contained in a document, it is open to the Courts to have regard to the conduct of parties and to the construction of the clause upon which they have acted during a long course of years. [p 939, col 1.]

Apart from any question of ambiguity, the mere fact that the parties have acted on an erroneous construction of an instrument furnishes in itself no reason why the Courts should not follow the general rule, that an instrument should be construed according to its natural meaning in the light of the circumstances in which it was executed. [p. 939, col. 1.]

A "demand from the Zemindar" is not necessarily the same thing as "a demand on the Zemindari" But a demand from the Zemindar of an impost payable by him as the superior landlord in respect of the lands comprised in his estate is a demand on the Zemindari. [p. 939, col. 2.]

Rent as defined in section 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act includes cess Therefore, where a dispute between the parties relates to the amount of cess annually payable, second appeal is competent under section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. [p. 939, col 2.]

Appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Murshidabad, dated the 28th of January 192 , affirming a decree of the Munsif, Second Court at Berhampore, dated the 23rd of June 1919.

FACTS appear from the judgment.

Mr. U N Sen Gupta (with him Babu Kshitish Chandra Chakrabarty, for Babu Probodh Kumar Das), for the Respondents, took a preliminary objection that no second appeal lay under the provisions of section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act as the claim was only for rupees sixty-five and odd.

Babu Nalendra Nath Roy (with him Babu Pramatha Nath Bandopadhya, for Babu Priya Sankar Mazumdar), for the Appellant —There is no substance in the preliminary objection, for my claim is for cesses on the basis of a kabuliyat. Under the Bengal Tenancy Act rent includes cesses. The present suit is thus one in which the amount of rent annually payable is in dispute. It, therefore, comes within the terms of the proviso to section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and the present appeal is perfectly competent.

As regards the merits, the decision of the point in dispute depends on the correct interpretation of the terms of the putni kabuliyat. Under the terms of the contract the respondent undertook to pay anything which might be payable in future by the Zemindar on account of Rajaswa. Reads section 41 of the Cess Act. The provisions of this section are subject to any special provisions contained in the contract between the parties. The putnidar can contract himself out of his rights under the section. See Gobinda Chandra v. Lalit Mohan Roy (1). The word 'Rajaswa' as used in the kabuliyat is wide enough to include cess payable by the Zemindar under the Cess Acts of 1871 and 1880.

Mr. U. N. Sen Gupta, for the Respondent.—The question is, was it possible for the executant of the kabuliyat in 1858 to contract anything about the Cess Act before the Act came into existence? Obviously at the time of the execution of the kabuliyat nothing about cesses was in contemplation of the parties and consequently no question of contracting out of the rights under section 41 of the Cess Act can arise. The next question is whether Rajaswa can mean anything other than revenue. I submit not. Even if it be assumed that there is some ambiguity as to the meaning of the word as used in the kabuliyat, the conduct of the parties is the most important element to help us to arrive at a correct interpretation of the document. Refers to Umesh Chandra Roy v. Surendra Chandra Dutta (2). Lastly, "a demand from the Zemindari" is not necessarily the same thing as "a demand on the Zemindari" within the meaning of the clause in the kabuliyat in dispute.

Babu Mohendra Nath Roy was not called upon to reply.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff in the second appeal is the proprietor of a Zemindari, in the entirety of which the defendant Company holds a putni lease. The lease is evidenced by a kabuliyat executed by the predecessor of the Company in the year 1858. The terms of the lease were confirmed and ratified by the Company by an ekrarnamah executed on its behalf on the 2nd Falgoon, 1314, (February 1908), by which the Company agreed to abide by and conform to the terms and conditions embodied in the pattah and kabuliyat of the original putni settlement. The suit was brought for the recovery of an amount alleged to be due as the balance of Road and Public Works cesses payable for the four years 1322 to 1325. Under section 41 of the Cess Act of 1880 the total amount of the cess payable by the Zemindar to the Government is Rs. 95-9-6 while the amount annually payable by the putnidar to the Zemindar is under the same section Rs. 80-6-3. The Company has regularly paid the latter amount to the Zemindar and the suit is for the balance still due if the Company ought to have paid the larger sum.

It is conceded that it is open to the parties to a putni lease to contract themselves out of the provisions of section 41 of the Cess Act: in other words, the provisions of that section are subject to any special provision contained in the contract between the parties. The point at issue and the arguments advanced on either side are clearly and concisely stated by the learned Judge in the judgment from which this appeal is brought. "The main question in appeal," he says, "is that of the correct interpretation of the terms of the putni kabuliyat. The kabuliyat was executed by a predecessor in-interest of the Company in favour of the then Zemindar in the year 1858, that is, about 13 years before the passing of the Cess Act." The learned Judge was referring to the first Cess Act which was passed in 1871. He continues: "The clause relied on by the plaintiff has been translated thus: 'If there be any demand on the Zemindari for any amount on account of Rajaswa or if any order is passed, then I shall without any objection abide by it and pay my rent along with it (the new amount that is)'". It is conceded before us that this is a substantially correct translation of the clause in the kabuliyat, which is in Bengali. The learned Judge goes on,—"The plaintiffs' contention is that the annual demand of Rs. 59-9-6 imposed under the Cess Act on the Zemindar was the demand for a new amount on account of Rajaswa within the meaning of the above clause, and as such payable in its entirety by the putnidar. On behalf of the defendant Company it is contended that a demand from the Zemindar is not the same thing as "a demand on the Zemindari," that the latter term includes all demands on the various subordinate interests comprised in the Zemindari and that in its application to the parties in the present suit it must be confined to the demand that may lawfully be made by the Zemindar from the putnidar. It is also contended that the term Rajaswa does not cover a demand under the Cess Act."

(1) 33 Ind. Cas. 352; 22 C. L. J. 571.
(2) 49 Ind. Cas. 8; 29 C. L. J. 6 at p. 10.

The learned Judge does not himself express any opinion as to the meaning of the term 'Rajaswa.' He agrees, however, with the Trial Court in the view that the clause as a whole is ambiguous. Approaching the case in that way the learned Judge like the learned Munsif has attached great importance to the fact that for over 40 years the plaintiff and his predecessor were content to accept from the Company and their predecessor the smaller amount due under the provisions of section 41 of the Act. I quite agree that if there is any real ambiguity in the clause as it stands in the kabuliyat, it is open to the Courts to have regard to the conduct of the parties and to the construction of the clause upon which they acted during this long course of years. Such construction hardly amounts to "contemporanea expositio" because it does not go back to the creation of the putni but relates to a state of things which came into existence some years later at a time when the terms of the original agreement might have been forgotten or overlooked. Nevertheless if the meaning had been doubtful, assistance might have been sought from the conduct of the parties. But apart from any question of ambiguity, the mere fact that the parties have acted on an erroneous construction of an instrument furnished in itself no reason why the Courts should not follow the general rule, that an instrument should be construed according to its natural meaning in the light of the circumstances in which it was executed. It is not suggested that the Company has acquired a right by limitation, or by anything in the nature of binding agreement to pay cess at the lower figure.

The question then is whether there is any real ambiguity in this clause and it turns in the main on the import of the word Rajaswa'. The Munsif says: "Taking it literally it has the wide sense of anything payable to the King, although it is commonly used in the sense of rent or revenue payable." In my opinion—and I understand my learned brother is of the same opinion—the word Rajaswa as used in the document is wide enough to include any imposition or levy payable to the State and is, therefore, wide enough in its natural meaning in the context in which it is found to include cess payable under the Cess Acts of 1871 and 1880. It must be borne in mind that the putni tenure held by the Company extends to the whole of the estate in respect of which revenue and cesses are payable by the Zemindar to the Collector on behalf of the Government. It may well have been the intention of the parties that the putnidar should relieve the Zemindar of all additional burden in the nature of a tax imposed on the estate as such.

As to the contention that "a demand from the Zemindar" is not necessarily the same thing as "a demand on the Zemindari" within the meaning of the clause in dispute, that is no doubt true, but not in a relevant sense. Income tax, for instance, might be a demand from the Zemindar, but not a demand on the Zemindari. On the other hand, a demand from the Zemindar of an impost payable by him as the superior landlord in respect of the lands comprised in his estate is, as it seems to me, a demand on the Zemindari.

It follows that, in my opinion, the Company, as putnidar, is liable to pay to the Zemindar the whole amount payable by the latter to the Collector. That seems to me to be the meaning of the clause and I can see no reason why we should not give effect to that meaning.

I should add that the preliminary objection suggested rather than argued that no second appeal lay in this case under the provisions of section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is concluded by the terms of the section and by authority. Rent as defined in the Bengal Tenancy Act includes cess and the dispute between the parties to this suit is, therefore, a dispute as to amount of rent annually payable.

The result is that, in my opinion, this appeal succeeds. The judgment and decree of the Court below should be set aside and the suit should be decreed with costs throughout.

B. N.

Decree set aside.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS CIVIL APPEAL No. 37 OF 1921.

August 29, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Koval, A. J. C.

RAM SINGH RAJPUT—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

MURTIBAI—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), ss. 67, 77—Probate, grant of—Additional District Judge acting as District Judge, powers of—Probate application—Verification, whether essential—Will, executor not appointed under—Probate grant of—Letters of Administration.

Under the Probate and Administration Act there can be no District Delegate except by appointment by a High Court an Additional District Judge, in the absence of such appointment, cannot act as a District Delegate and grant Probates in a contentious case. But when he is exercising powers as a District Judge he can grant Probate or Letters of Administration in all cases whether there is contention or not [p. 940, col 2: p. 941, col. 1]

The provision about the verification of an application for Probate by an attesting witness is directory and not mandatory and an omission of the verification is not fatal to the Probate proceedings. [p. 944, col 1.]

If no executor is appointed under a Will, Probate should not be granted but only Letters of Administration with the Will annexed as provided in section 77. [p. 941, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decision of the Additional District Judge, Chhindwara, dated 9th September 1921, in Miscellaneous Judicial Case No. 38 of 1919.

Mr A. V. Wazalwar, for the Appellant.

Mr. M Gupta, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The lower court has granted Probate to Murtibai, the respondent, in respect of Will of his immoveable property executed by one Tekchand, a petition writer of Chhindwara. It has also held an oral Will by Tekchand in respect of his moveable property in favour of Murtibai proved and decided that she has a right to obtain the moveables left her under that Will. The appellant Ramsingh had opposed the application. He objected that the application was not in proper form, not being subscribed by the appellant's Pleader or verified by the attesting witness. He denied that the written Will was executed by the deceased while in his proper senses and sound state of health and mind. The oral Will was understood by the parties to have been denied, though there is no express denial on the record. The appellant alleged that he was the illegitimate son of Tekchand who, though a Vaishya, had become degraded to a Sudra and that he was entitled to succeed to Tekchand's property. Later on he pleaded that Tekchand's mother was a Sudra and, therefore, Tekchand was of that caste. He himself applied for Letters of Administration in respect of the immoveable property of Tekchand. Murtibai denied that the appellant was the illegitimate son of Tekchand or that Tekchand was a Sudra. The lower Court has held the oral and written Wills proved. It has found that the appellant is not the illegitimate son of Tekchand and that Tekchand was not a Sudra.

The first objection urged in appeal is that there was no special prayer for Probate of the written Will. The application is artistically worded but it is clear that Murtibai sought Probate of the Will with respect to the immoveable property. The second of the first set of issues refers to the written Will.

It is next argued that the additional District Judge had no jurisdiction, as being a District Delegate he had no power to grant Probate or Letters of Administration in contentious cases. This contention is based upon the premise that as a District Judge or a District Delegate alone can grant Probate, the Additional District Judge who is not a District Judge must have been exercising powers as a District Delegate. There can be no District Delegate except by appointment by the High Court, and it is not shown that the Additional District Judge was appointed such. He was exercising powers as a District Judge and could grant Probate or Letters of Administration in all cases whether there was contention or not.

It is next contended that the petition was not verified by an attesting witness as required by section 67 of the Probate and Administration Act. No authority is cited to show that the proceedings of the lower Court are invalidated by this omission. The section requires such verification if the witness is procurable. This shows that the provision is directory and not mandatory and the omission can be cured. If the matter had been pressed the omission could have been supplied by taking the witness's attestation on the Will. I do not consider the omission a fatal one.

It is next said that the application does not mention that the petitioner is appointed the executor and that Murtibai is not appointed executor by the Will. This is true. The lower Court should not have granted Probate but only Letters of Administration with the Will annexed as provided in section 77.

It is urged that the execution of the oral Will has not been proved. The evidence to prove this Will is not of the very best kind but as far as it goes it proves that Tekchand wished to give his moveables after his death to Murtibai. I see no reason to distrust Ramji (A. W. No. 1) and Sheikh Miya (A. W No. 2) who depose to this fact. Sheikh Miya states that Tekchand repeated his wishes more than once, the last time being a month or a month and a half before his death. A. W. No. 1 has said that the disposition was made six months before Tekchand's death and that Sheikh Miya was then present. It is possible that Sheikh Miya has got mixed up about the dates and that there is no real discrepancy between the two witnesses as regards the date. The Judge of the lower Court before whom the witnesses were cross-examined has believed them and I see no reason to differ from him.

As regards the written Will it is not now disputed that Tekchand executed it, but it is contended that it is not proved that he was of sound disposing mind at the time. It is true Murtibai's witness No. 3, Chunnilal, in cross-examination says that the brain of Tekchand was deranged, that he could not identify persons on the date of the Will and that he was scarcely able to hold the pen. But it seems to me that the witness had entered the box determined to go against Murtibai, and it appears to have been settled beforehand that statements adverse to her should have the appearance of having been extracted from him against his Will in his cross-examination. The witness has himself in his signature on the Will stated in English that the executant had signed before him in good health. The man is a bit of a medical practitioner and if his evidence in Court is true he deliberately added a false statement to his signature on the Will. Narayanrao (A. W. No. 4) in Ramsingh's case is another attesting witness. He, too, like Chunnilal, though in a lesser degree, attempts to damage Murtibai's case in his cross-examination. This witness also has said in his signature that Tekchand signed the Will before him in possession of his senses. Witness Waman Kondu Phatak, a medical practitioner who was examined by Ramsingh, attended Tekchand in the illness which ended in his death. He states that he was suffering from influenza and pneumonia from the 3rd to the 9th October 1918 when he died and was under his treatment all along. According to him Tekchand was alright up to the 5th October and was talking with him On the night of the 5th October brain symptoms set in. From the 2nd to the 5th he was quite in his senses and his mind and brain were good. The witness produced his prescription to show that it contained no medicine for the brain till the 6th. I prefer this witness's evidence and the statements of Chunnilal and Narayanrao in their signatures on the Will to the statements of the two persons last mentioned as witnesses. There is also no reason to disbelieve Mohanlal, the scribe who states that the testator dictated the contents of the Will and was conscious and in a state of mind and health to understand what he was doing. I hold that it has been proved that Tekchand was of sound disposing mind when he executed the Will.

The last point urged is that it should have been held that Tekchand was a Sudra. It is said that the evidence of A. W. No 4 Thamiabai, A. W. No. 3 Gadiram and N. A. W. No. 1 Noshekhan proves that Tekchand's mother was a Sudra. Thamiabai very casually states that Tekchand's mother was an Ahiran. She is not corroborated on the point. Witness Gadiram states that Tekchand's father was a Bania and his mother was of a different caste. Nosherkhan states that he does not know what caste Tekchand's mother belonged to but that she was of a different caste Neither of the two witnesses last mentioned state that Tekchand's mother was a Sudra. This evidence is wholly insufficient to prove that Tekchand himself was a Sudra. Ramsingh is, therefore, not the heir of Tekchand.

The Probate is cancelled. The case is remanded to the District Judge to grant Letters of Administration with the Will annexed as provided by section 77 of the Probate and Administration Act. As the appeal has for all practical purposes failed the appellant will pay the respondent's costs and bear his own. Pleader's fee Rs. 50.

G. R. D.

Appeal dismissed.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION No. 134 OF 1922.

June 6, 1922.

Present :—Mr Justice Coutts and Mr Justice Adami.

BASDEO NARAIN SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—PETITIONERS

versus

HARAKH NARAIN SINGH AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. IX, r. 8—Plaintiff appearing when case first called for hearing—Adjournment for short while—Plaintiff not appearing when case again taken up—Dismissal of suit—Law, applicable.

Where on a date of hearing the plaintiff and his Pleader both appear and ask for a little time which is granted but fail to put in appearance when the case is again taken up on the same date, and the suit is dismissed, the dismissal is one under O. IX, r. 8 of the Code of Civil Procedure, there being no appearance on behalf of the plaintiff, Lalji Sahu v. Lachmi Narain Singh, 47 Ind. Cas. 27; 3 P. L. J. 355 and Ramdhan Tewari v. Bishun Pragash Narain Singh, 54 Ind. Cas. 715; 5 P. L. J. 17; 1 P. L. T, 156, followed.

Civil Revision.

Mr. Mahabir Prasad, for the Petitioners.

Mr. Shiveshwar Dayal, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.

COUTTS, J.—The facts of this case shortly are that on the date fixed for hearing the plaintiff and his Pleader were present in Court and an application was filed for time. This was rejected whereupon the Pleader who was the junior Pleader saying that he had no instructions asked for time to go and consult his senior. The Court granted half an hour's time and again took up the case. No one appears to have been present and the suit was dismissed. Subsequently an application for restoration under O. IX, r. 9 was made and rejected. An appeal was preferred to the Subordinate Judge and the application allowed and the suit restored.

This application in revision has been made by the defendant and the contention is that the dismissal was not under O. IX, r. 8. The question for decision is whether in the circumstances there was an appearance of the plaintiff or not. Similar cases to the present case decided in this Court are the cases of Lalji Sahu v. Lachmi Narain Singh (1) and Ramdhan Tewari v. Bishun Pragash Narain Singh (2) in which it was held that the plaintiff had not appeared. The present case is on all fours with the above decisions and the application is dismissed with costs.

Hearing fee two gold mohurs.

ADAMI, J.—I agree.

R. N. Application dismissed.

(1) 47 Ind. Cas. 27; 3 P. L. J. 355.

(2) 54 Ind, Cas. 715; 5 P. L. J. 17; 1 P. L. T, 156.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST ORDER No. 24 OF 1921.

December 6, 1921.

Present :—Justice Sir William Ayling, KT., and Mr. Justice Venkatasubba Rao.

DAKOJU SUBBARAYUDU—APPELLANT

versus

MUSTI RAMA DASU—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXII, r.

DAKOJU SUBBARAYUDU v. MUSTI RAMA DASU.

3, 10—Preliminary decree in mortgage-suit—Death of decree-holder—Application to bring representative on record—Limitation—"Right to sue," meaning of.

Where after obtaining a preliminary decree in a mortgage-suit, the plaintiff dies, an application to bring his legal representatives on to the record must be made within the period prescribed by sub-r. 1 of r. 3 of O. XXII of the Civil Procedure Code, otherwise the suit will abate under sub-r. (2) of that rule. Such a case does not fall within the purview of r. 10 of that Order.

Bhugwan Das Khettry v. Nilkanta Ganguli, 9 C. W. N. 171, explained and distinguished.

The right to sue mentioned in sub-r. (1) includes the right to proceed with the suit until the latter terminates, and, in a mortgage-suit the right to sue includes the right to obtain a final decree after the passing of a preliminary decree.

Appeal against an order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Cocanada, dated 23rd February 1920, in Appeal Suit No. 37 of 1919, preferred against an order of the Principal District Munsif, Cocanada, in Execution Appeal No. 1528 of 1919.

FACTS appear from the judgment.

Mr. C. Rama Rao, for the Appellant.—The suit abated when no application was made by petitioner to bring himself on record within the time allowed. O. XXII, r. 3 applies. The petitioner took no action for nearly three years after the passing of the preliminary decree. The right to sue means the right to continue the suit. In this case petitioner must have applied for a final decree within time.

Mr. G. Lakshmanna, for the Respondent, relied on Bhugwan Das Khettry v. Nilkanta Ganguli (1) for the position that the application was not barred.

JUDGMENT.—In this suit one Venkamma sued on a mortgage and obtained a preliminary decree. Subsequent to this she died on 28th April 1916 leaving a Will by which the present petitioner claims to be entitled to succeed to her interests in the mortgage. The preliminary decree was passed on 30th March 1916 and the period for redemption expired on 30th July 1916. No action was taken by the petitioner till 26th March 1919 when he filed the present petition asking to be brought on record as the legal representative of Venkamma and to be given a final decree. The question is, whether the application can be dismissed as time-barred.

(1) 9 C. W. N. 171.

The District Munsif held that it should be on the ground that the suit has abated under O. XXII, r. 3. The Subordinate Judge, on appeal, held that r. 10 of the same Order applied and that the application was not time barred. In our opinion, the District Munsif is right and the subordinate Judge is wrong. R. 10 of O. XXII admittedly only applies to cases which do not fall under the preceding rules of the same Order and the matter, therefore, turns on whether the case falls under r. 3. This rule runs as follows (omitting superfluous words): "Where a sole plaintiff dies and the right to sue survives, the Court, on an application made in that behalf, shall cause the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff to be made a party and shall proceed with the suit. Where within the time limited by law no application is made under sub-r. (1) the suit shall abate ..." It seems to us that every one of these words applies to the present case. The plaintiff died after obtaining a preliminary decree and the respondent must contend that the right to sue survived to him; otherwise he has no locus standi in the matter at all. The right to sue, obviously from the terms of the rule, includes the right to proceed with the suit until the latter terminates, and, in the case of a mortgage suit, where a preliminary decree and a final decree are both necessary the right to sue must include the right to obtain a final decree after the passing of a preliminary decree. The case, therefore, clearly falls within the purview of the section, and as the plaintiff admittedly did not apply to be made a party as provided in sub-r. (1) within the time allowed, the suit must be held to have abated under sub-r. (2).

We have been referred on respondent's behalf to the judgment in Bhugwan Das Khettry v. Nilkanta Ganguli (1). The facts of the case are distinguishable in that there a final decree had been passed and we need only say that, if any of the remarks in the judgment were intended to conflict with the view of the applicability of the rules which we have just enunciated, we must respectfully dissent from them.

We must, therefore, set aside the order of the Subordinate Judge and direct the dismissal of the application with costs throughout.

W. C. A.

Order set aside.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS CIVIL APPEAL No. 146 OF 1921.

May 2, 1922.

Present:—Justice Sir Jwala Prasad, KT., and Justice Sir John Bucknill, KT.

LACHMAN LAL PATHAK—DECREE-HOLDER—APPELLANT

versus

BALDEO LALL THATHWARI—JUDGMENT DEBTOR—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 60 (f)—Jatri Bahis of Gayawal—Attachment and sale.

The Jatri Bahis of a Gayawal merely contain entries as to the names and addresses of the pilgrims who deal with him and can be used only by him in order to perform personal service to them. As such, they come well within the provisions of section 60 (f) of the Civil Procedure Code as property not capable of attachment or sale in execution of a decree.

The Jatri Bahis are the stock-in-trade and appertain to the Gaddi of a Gayawal and may be heritable but are not attachable or saleable for that reason. The mere fact that they possess a market-value does not necessarily mean that they are saleable.

Lachman Lal Pathak v. Baldeo Lal Thathwari, 42 Ind. Cas. 478 2 P. L. J. 705; 3 P. L. W. 186; (1918) Pat. 50, followed.

Appeal against an order of the District Judge, Gaya.

Mr. Kailaspati for the Appellant.

Mr. Haribhuan Mukherjee, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

JWALA PRASAD, J.—There does not seem to be any substance in this appeal. The Jatri Bahis of the judgment debtor are evidently not saleable. They contain merely entries as to the names and addresses of the pilgrims who deal with the judgment-debtor and as such they can be used only by him in order to perform personal service to the pilgrims. The entries in the books also enable the judgment debtor to claim that the pilgrims mentioned therein or their family members and relations should utilise the service of the judgment-debtor while visiting Gaya on religious pilgrimage. Therefore, these books embody the right or claim of the judgment-debtor of personal service. Beyond that the book is of no use, and as a record of the claims of personal service they seem to come well within clause (f) of section 60 as property not capable of attachment or sale in execution of a decree. These books are, no doubt, as held in the case between the parties in Lachman Lal Pathak v. Baldeo Lal Thathwari (1), stock-in trade and appertain to the gaddi of the Gayawal judgment-debtor who carries on the office or business of a Gayawal, namely, priest to the pilgrims who visit Gaya on pilgrimage. The contention of the learned Vakil on behalf of the appellant that, as these books have been held in the aforesaid case between the parties as valuable assets and as such heritable, they must be deemed to be attachable also. I do not think there is any force in this contention. The priestly office may be and is generally heritable, but is not saleable or attachable for that reason.

Then it is contended that these particular books have got marketable price and it is strongly urged that the fact that the decree-holder-appellant is willing to pay fancy price for them, they must be held to be saleable in the present case. That obviously is no criterion to determine whether a particular article is saleable or not. In the present case it is certainly not, for behind this anxiety to purchase the Bahis there is the previous litigation between the same parties in which these books along with the Gayawali Gaddi in question were claimed by the decree-holder as well as by the judgment-debtor. The decree-holder was not given the Bahis and now he wants to seize the Bahis in execution of his decree in order to deprive the judgment debtor of his right of enjoying the benefit of the office by means of these books.

Agreeing with the views of the Court below I dismiss the appeal with costs.

BUCKNILL, J.—I agree.

N. K.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 42 Ind. Cas. 478; 2 P. L. J. 705; 3 P. L. W. 183; (1918) Pat 50.

EMPEROR v. ABDUL HAMID.

PATNA HIGH COURT.
SPECIAL BENCH.

GOVERNMENT APPEAL No 4 OF 1922.

August 3, 1922.

Present:—Justice Sir S. M. Mullick, KT., Mr. Justice Coutts and Mr. Justice Das.

EMPEROR—APPELLANT

versus

DR. ABDUL HAMID—ACCUSED—RESPONDENT.

Police Act (V of 1861), ss. 30, 30A, 32, scope of—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s 145, conviction under—Essentials—General notification prohibiting procession without license—Notification by Executive Authority, whether law—"Resistance", meaning of—Power to prohibit procession whether incident to power to regulate—Power of Police to prohibit procession—Rule and enactment, difference between—"Law," meaning of—"Execution of law," meaning of Offence created by Statute—Indictment under general law.

Section 30A of the Police Act only applies where there is a violation of the conditions of a license granted under section 30 3 of the Act, not where a procession is formed without a license. [p. 948, col. 2.]

Per Mullick and Coutts, J.—In order to secure the conviction of an accused under section 145 of the Indian Penal Code, some formal evidence should be given to prove a common object to resist the execution of an order promulgated by a lawful authority, and the accused should be given an opportunity of meeting the case in the Trial Court [p 947, col 2.]

The words of section 30 of the Police Act are sufficiently general to enable a Superintendent of Police to issue a general notification containing a prohibition, without any limit of time, against convening or collecting assemblies or directing or promoting processions without a license and any person contravening the terms of such notice is punishable under section 32 of the Act A person is free to join an assembly or a procession, which has already been collected, if he has no notice that the convener or promoter has omitted to take out a license but if, after becoming aware of this fact, he persists in remaining with the assembly or procession he will be said to share the common object of such person to resist the execution of the notification [p. 946, col. 2; p. 947, col. 1.]

When a notification is issued by an Executive Authority in exercise of a power conferred by Statute, that notification is as much a part of the law as if it had been incorporated within the body of the Statute at the time of its enactment. A notification, issued in compliance with section 30 of the Police Act, is a law and certainly a legal process. It is immaterial if the wording of the notification is not in the exact language of the section so long as there is, on the whole, a substantial compliance and the public are in no error or doubt as to its purport. [p. 947, cols. 1 & 2.]

Resistance connotes some overt act: mere words without any intention of carrying them into effect, are not sufficient to prove an intention to resist. [p. 947, col. 1.]

Per Das, J.—Section 30 of the Police Act does not prohibit the common rights of a subject to form a procession on a public road or in a public street or a thoroughfare. [p. 949, col 2.]

A power to prohibit a procession is not incident to a power to regulate The power of licensing is a power to regulate not a power to prohibit. [p. 951, col 2.]

Rossi v. Edinburgh Corporation, (1905) A. C. 21; 91 L. T. 668 and Toronto (Municipal Corporation of the City of) v. Virgo, (1896) A. C. 88; 65 L. J. P. C. 4; 73 L. T. 449, referred to.

Under sections 30 and 30A of the Police Act, the Police have no power to prohibit a procession where the persons directing and promoting such procession decline to apply for a license, although there is such power where such persons take out a license and violate its conditions But the Police have no power to issue an order to have operation for a certain period, each case must be dealt with as it arises and discretion must be exercised by a District Magistrate on each occasion. [p. 952, col 2]

There is no difference between a rule and an enactment where there is a provision in the enactment that the rules shall be of the same effect as if they were contained in the Act; there is a wide difference between the two when there is no such provision. An order issued by a Superintendent of Police, under section 30 of the Police Act, cannot be regarded as law as there is no provision in the Act giving to such order the same effect as if it were contained in the Act. [p 951, col. 1.]

"Law" means something which is enforceable and not capable of being rejected by a Court as unreasonable or repugnant to the law of the land. Rules, regulations and bye-laws, which cannot be canvassed in a Court of Law on any ground, have the character of law and are in fact law. [p. 950, col. 1.]

"Execution of the law" means enforcing it, and to be lawful it must follow the procedure laid down in an Act. [p 955, col. 1.]

Resistance on the part of a person forming a procession must not be to the law but to the execution of the law. It means something more than non-submission and consists of an overt act showing an intention to make opposition to the execution of the law. [p. 955, col 2.]

Queen-Empress v. Alibhai, Rat. Un Cr. Cas. 412 and Queen-Empress v. Husain, 15 B. 564; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 380, referred to.

A person cannot be convicted under the Penal Code for an offence under the Police Act. Where a Statute creates a new offence which is not an offence at Common Law and imposes a penalty in respect of such offence, a person committing such offence can only be proceeded against under the Statute which creates the offence and cannot be indicted under the general law. [p. 956, col. 2; p. 957, col. 2.]

Reg. v. Hall, (1891) 1 Q. B. 747; 60 L. J. M. C. 124; 64 L. T. 394; 17 Cox C. C. 278, Saunders v. Holborn District Board of Works, (1895) 1 Q. B. 64; 64 L. J. Q. B. 01; 15 R. 25; 71 L. T. 519; 43 W R.26 59 J. P. 453 and Clegg, Parkinson & Co. v. Early Gas Co., (1896) 1 Q. B. 592; 65 L. J. Q. B. 339; 44 W. R. 606, referred to.

Appeal by the Local Government under section 417 of the Criminal Procedure Code against an order of acquittal passed on appeal by Mr. Foster, Judicial Commissioner, Chota Nagpur, setting aside the conviction under section 145, Indian Penal Code, and substituting therefor conviction under section 32 of the Police Act.

Mr. H. L. Nandkeolyar, Assistant Government Advocate, for the Appellant.

Messrs. Athar Husain and Devaki Prasad Sinha, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

MULLICK, J.—This is an appeal preferred by the Local Government against the acquittal of Sheikh Abdul Hamid who was sentenced by the Deputy Magistrate of Palamau to 6 months' rigorous imprisonment for an offense under section 145, Indian Penal Code, but was acquitted on appeal by the Judicial Commissioner of Chota Nagpur. The learned Judge set aside the conviction under section 145, Indian Penal Code, but sentenced the accused to a fine of Re. 1 for an offence under section 32 read with section 30A of the Indian Police Act. It is admitted that the learned Judicial Commissioner has misconceived the facts and that section 30A has no application to this case. There is no question here of the disobedience of the conditions of any license issued by the Superintendent of Police.

What appears to have happened is this. On the 3rd January 1922 the Officiating Superintendent of Police issued a notice in the following terms:—

"Notice under section 30 of Act V of 1861.

"In pursuance of the powers vested under section 30 of Act V of 1861, I do hereby prohibit any processions, associations or assemblies started or formed by any person or any class of persons within the Municipal and Union area of this District (Palamau) other than under license granted by me, for a period of three months, as I consider such prohibition to be necessary for the preservation of the public safety".

That notice was duly served by proclamation and beat of drum, but on the 21st of January some 250 persons formed a procession through one of the streets of Daltonganj, which is the head quarters of the Palamau District, carrying flags and singing songs in disregard of the order of the Superintendent. A Sub-Inspector of Police directed the crowd to disperse and upon refusal to do so he arrested 24 persons of whom the accused was one.

The Deputy Magistrate, who tried the case, framed a charge under section 145, Indian Penal Code, but did not set out the common object of the unlawful assembly of which the accused was alleged to be a member.

The learned Assistant Government Advocate who appears on behalf of the Crown contends that, notwithstanding this omission, the accused had full notice at the trial of the common object upon which the charge was based and that the facts proved established a clear case under section 145, Indian Penal Code. He contends that the common object was to resist the execution of a law or legal process which is one of the common objects enumerated in section 141, Indian Penal Code. Now, section 30 of the Police Act, though not very happily worded, appears to mean this. The Superintendent of Police has to be satisfied that an assembly or a procession is, in the judgment of the District Magistrate, likely to cause a breach of the peace. He may then issue a notice upon the person convening or collecting the assembly or directing or promoting the procession to apply for a license.

It is contended that the Superintendent is not authorised to issue a general order but must call upon the convenor or promoter of the assembly or procession to take out a license for each occasion. In my opinion, the words are sufficiently general to enable the Superintendent to issue a general notification containing a prohibition against convening or collecting assemblies or directing or promoting processions without a license. The terms of the section are also wide enough to cover a prohibition without any limit of time. If the person or persons against whom the notice is directed convenes or collects an assembly or promotes or directs a procession without license, he or they will be punishable under section 32 of the Act. There is nothing in the Act which renders a person liable to punishment for joining an assembly or procession which has already been convened or collected if he has no notice that the convenor or promoter has omitted to take out a license; but if, after becoming aware that the person whose duty it was to take out a license has failed to do so, he persists in remaining with the assembly or procession then it may, I think, be said that he shares the common object of such person to resist the execution of the Superintendent's order.

In the present case the evidence shows that the accused Abdul Hamid joined the procession after it had been directed to disperse; there is no evidence that he was aware that any breach of the notification had been committed; but if it could have been shown that he and four others of the assembly or procession were acting together with the common object that the person who had convened or collected the assembly, or directed or promoted the procession, should resist the execution of the Superintendent's order, then, I think, he would have come under the operation of section 141, Indian Penal Code. In my opinion this aspect of the case was not presented to the Deputy Magistrate at the trial and we cannot, under the circumstances, convict upon the evidence on the record.

But apart from this defect in the evidence three objections have been taken to the application of section 141, Indian Penal Code, which call for notice.

The first objection is that resistance implies something more than disobedience and that a mere intention to disobey will not suffice. I agree that resistance connotes some overt act and that mere words, when there is no intention of carrying them into effect, will not be sufficient to prove an intention to resist; but in the present case the conduct of the mob and their refusal to disperse at the command of the Police clearly constitute overt acts and establish a common object to resist the orders within the meaning of clause (2) of section 141, Indian Penal Code.

The next objection is, that the order of the Superintendent of Police cannot be called a law or legal process. The reply is that when a notification is issued by an executive authority in exercise of a power conferred by Statute, that notification is as much a part of the law as if it had been incorporated within the body of the Statute at the time of its enactment. The command is in every respect a command by the appropriate legislative authority. In the present case if the notification was in compliance with section 30 of the Police Act, then, in my opinion, it was a law and certainly a legal process.

This leads me to the third objection which is that the notification did not comply with section 30 of the Police Act. In my judgment, although the wording of the notification did not follow the exact language of clause (1) of section 30, there was on the whole a substantial compliance and the public of Daltonganj were in no error or doubt as to its purport.

In these circumstances I do not doubt that the accused might have been convicted under section 145, Indian Penal Code, if sufficient evidence had been given to prove a common object to resist the execution of the order; but there was no evidence on this point and the charge framed against him by the Trial Court did not even set out the common object of the unlawful assembly; and it is impossible to say that the accused had notice of the precise case which the prosecution were making against him.

Our attention has finally been drawn to section 127, Criminal Prosedure Code, and we have been asked to infer that the procession was likely to create a disturbance and to find that on refusal to disperse it became an unlawful assembly. Here again some formal evidence should have been given and the accused should have had an opportunity of meeting his case in the Trial Court.

We asked the learned Counsel for the Crown whether there was any evidence upon which it could be held that the common object of the unlawful assembly was to disobey such a lawful order as is contemplated by section 188 of the Indian Penal Code, but the learned Counsel's reply was in the negative.

The result is that owing to the irregular and defective manner in which the prosecution was conducted in the Trial Court, I must decline to restore the conviction under section 145, Indian Penal Code, nor do I think that having regard to the circumstances I ought to order a re-trial. The appeal will, therefore, be dismissed.

COURTS, J.—I agree with the judgment which has just been delivered by my learned brother.

DAS, J.—The material facts are these. On the 3rd January last, the Officiating Superintendent of Police of Palamau issued the following notice under section 30 of the Police Act (Act V of 1861):—

"In pursuance of the powers vested under section 30 of Act V of 1861, I do hereby prohibit any processions, associations or assemblies started or formed by any person or any class of persons within the Municipal and Union area of this District (Palamau) other than under license granted by me, for a period of three months, as I consider such prohibition to be necessary for the preservation of the public peace and public safety."

On the 21st January a large number of persons, of whom the respondent was one, formed a procession without having taken out a license for the same, and refused to disperse though the Police repeatedly ordered them to disperse. The Police thereupon arrested a large number of persons including the respondent, and the learned Magistrate in due course convicted them under section 145, Indian Penal Code, and sentenced them to various terms of imprisonment. He sentenced the respondent to undergo rigorous imprisonment for six months and to pay a fine of Rs. 50 and further required him to execute a bond for Rs. 100 with two sureties, and in default to undergo simple imprisonment for six months. The respondent appealed to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Chota Nagpur, and that learned Judge set aside the conviction under section 145, Indian Penal Code, and the order under section 106, Criminal Procedure Code, but convicted the respondent under section 32 of the Police Act and sentenced him to pay a fine of Re. 1. The Local Government, being dissatisfied with the order of the learned Judicial Commissioner, has appealed to this Court.

The learned Judicial Commissioner, before whom the Crown was not represented, was obviously in difficulty in understanding how the respondent could be convicted under the Code for an offence committed under the Police Act. He assumed that the position of the Crown was that the procession having neglected or refused to obey the order to disperse given by the Police, became an unlawful assembly under section 30A (2) of the Act and could be proceeded against under the Code for being, or continuing to be members of an unlawful assembly. Assuming that to be the position of the Crown, the learned Judge came to the conclusion that though the procession might be "deemed" to be an unlawful assembly, the persons forming the procession could not be punished under the Code as members of an unlawful assembly. The learned Judicial Commissioner had probably in his mind that class of cases which has decided that where a person or a thing in a Statute is "deemed" to be something else he or the thing can only be regarded as that something else by a statutory fiction, but that in truth and in reality he is not that something else and consequently you can have recourse to the fiction for the purpose of the Statute which creates the fiction and for no other Statute. I confess that there is much to be said for the view of the learned Judicial Commissioner, but, in truth the question does not arise. Section 30A (1) of the Police Act only applies where there is a violation of the conditions of a license granted under section 30 (3), not where the procession was formed without a license. The learned Assistant Government-Advocate accepts the position that section 30A (2) of the Police Act has no application whatever, and it is, therefore, unnecessary to discuss whether the view of the learned Judicial Commissioner is right.

But it was insisted by the learned Assistant Government Advocate that the conviction under section 145 of the Indian Penal Code was nevertheless right, and that the respondent was a member of an unlawful assembly of five or more persons whose common object was, first, to resist the execution of a law, and secondly, to commit an offence. The form of the argument addressed to us by the learned Assistant Government Advocate raises a question of grave public importance; for no less a claim than this is put forward on behalf of the Crown, that a District Superintendent of Police or an Assistant District Superintendent may, by purporting to act under section 30 of the Police Act, prohibit an assembly or a procession, if the assembly declines to take out a license for such collection or procession and that the members of the procession by refusing to disperse, if ordered to disperse by the Police, make themselves liable not only under the Police Act for which the maximum sentence is a fine of Rs. 200, but also under section 145 of the Indian Penal Code for which the maximum sentence is rigorous imprisonment for two years with a fine. So far as I know, the claim has never yet been put forward in any case that a person can be convicted under the Code for an offence under the Police Act; and before I accede to the argument which involves the personal liberty of the subject, I must be satisfied that the argument is well founded and that it rests on principle or is covered by authorities.

It was argued, in the first place, that the common object of the assembly was to resist the execution of the law. In order to succeed, the prosecution must establish, first, that there was a law which could be executed, secondly, that there was execution of that law, and thirdly, that there was resistance to the execution of that law. Now what was the law that was being executed? By "law" I understand

"a rule of civil conduct prescribed by the supreme power in a State commanding what is right, prohibiting what is wrong, and regulating matters in themselves indifferent" (Blackstone).

Now, is there any law, that is to say, a rule of civil conduct prescribed by the supreme power in the State, prohibiting a procession on the public roads, or in the public streets or thoroughfares? According to the learned Assistant Government Advocate there is, and he contends that it is to be found in section 30 of the Police Act. Section 30 of the Police Act, is in these terms:—

"(1). The District Superintendent or Assistant District Superintendent of Police may, as occasion requires, direct the conduct of all assemblies and processions on the public roads, or in the public streets or thoroughfares, and prescribe the routes by which, and the times at which, such processions may pass".

"(2). He may also, on being satisfied that it is intended by any persons or class of persons to convene or collect an assembly in any such road, street, or thoroughfare, or to form a procession which would, in the judgment of the Magistrate of the District, or of the sub-division of a District, if uncontrolled, be likely to cause a breach of the peace, require by general or special notice that the persons convening or collecting such assembly or directing or promoting such procession shall apply for a license."

Now, I fail to see how section 30 of the Police Act can be read as constituting a prohibition of the common rights of the subjects to form a procession on the public roads or in the public streets or thoroughfare. No doubt it vests a discretion in the District Superintendent or the Assistant Superintendent to require the persons convening or collecting an assembly or directing or promoting a procession to apply for a license, though, at the same time, it imposes as a condition precedent for the use of the discretion the exercise of the judgment of the Magistrate of the District or of the sub-division of the District that the procession, if uncontrolled, is likely to cause a breach of the peace. But it is one thing to say that the Act itself constitutes a prohibition, it is another thing to say that the Act gives a limited and a conditional discretion to the Superintendent of Police, not to prohibit an assembly or a procession without a license—for that there is no authority in the Act, as I shall presently show—but to require the persons convening or collecting such assembly or directing or promoting such procession to apply for a license. In my opinion, "law" is one thing and an act done or an order issued under the law is another thing. One is the result of the discretion exercised by the Legislature; the other is the result of the discretion exercised by the Superintendent of Police; and in construing the term "law" in the second clause of section 141 of the Indian Penal Code, I cannot substitute the discretion exercisable by the Superintendent of Police for the discretion exercisable by the Legislature.

It was then argued that there is nothing to prevent the Legislature from reposing confidence in a particular person or a body of persons, and any order issued by such a person or body of persons if authorised by the Legislature, has the character of law and, is, in fact, law. We were indeed invited to treat the order of the Superintendent of Police as a bye-law or a regulation sanctioned and authorised by the Police Act. The argument is a weighty one, and it is necessary to deal with the subject with some care.

Now whether "law" means the expression of the exercise of the discretion by the Legislature or whether it includes the expression of the exercise of the discretion by a person or body of persons under the sanction and the authority of the Legislature, this, at any rate, is clear that when we speak of law, we mean something which is enforceable and which is not capable of being rejected by the Courts as uncertain, as unreasonable, or as repugnant to the law of the land The Courts may construe any particular provision of law; but the Courts cannot quash any provision of law nor treat it as unenforceable.

Now there are rules, regulations, and bye-laws, enacted not by the Legislature, but by some authority by delegation, which, to appropriate an expression used by Lord Herschell, cannot be canvassed in the Courts of law on any of the grounds which I have mentioned. In my opinion, these rules, regulations, and bye-laws have the character of law and are, in fact, law. But there are other rules, regulations and bye laws which may be rejected by the Courts of law as unenforceable on various grounds. They cannot, in my opinion, be called law, for the essence of the law is that it is enforceable, provided circumstances exist which would make it enforceable. But, where the Court is not bound to enforce it, though circumstances may exist which would make it enforceable, it has not the character of law, and cannot be called law.

Now "delegated." legislation falls under two main heads; first, rules, regulations, and bye-laws under the Statute which provides that they shall have the same effect as if enacted therein: and secondly, rules, regulations and bye-laws made under the Statute which does not in terms provide that they shall have the same effect as if enacted therein. The first usually consists of statutory rules, bye laws and regulations made by responsible authorities concerned with Local Government; the second usually consists of bye-laws and regulations made by persons, societies or corporations who are conducting commercial or other enterprises, whether of a public character or not. Now the distinction between the two is this: that where the Statute, under the authority of which the rules, regulations or bye-laws are promulgated, itself declares that they shall have the same effect as if enacted in the Statute, the validity of the rules, regulations or bye-laws cannot be questioned in any Courts of Law, nor can the Courts quash them or reject them on the ground that they are uncertain or unreasonable. But where the Statute does not so provide, their validity can be canvassed in the Courts of law, and the Courts can reject them as unenforceable on the ground that they are uncertain or unreasonable.

The distinction is pointed out in the case of Institute of Patent Agents v. Lockwood (1). The first section of the Patents Designs and Trade Marks Act of 1888 provided that a person should not be entitled to describe himself as a Patent Agent unless registered as such in pursuance of the Act, and that the Board of Trade should from time to time make such rules as were, in the opinion of the Board of Trade, required for giving effect to the section. The Act also provided that the rules to be framed by the Board of Trade were to be dealt in the same manner, and subject to the provision contained in the 101st section of the previous Act, the Act of 1883, of which the Act of 1888, in many particulars, was an amendment. Now section 101 of the previous Act provided that the rules were to be laid before Parliament and remain before Parliament for consideration for forty days, and, during these forty days, they might be annulled by a resolution of either House, and that "they shall be of the same effect as if they were contained in the Act and shall be judicially noticed."

The question arose whether many of the rules were not unreasonable and invalid. Lord Herschell, in the course of his speech, drew attention to the terms of section 101 of the previous Act, and then said as follows:—"My Lords, I have asked in vain for any explanation of the meaning of those words or any suggestion as to the effect to be given to them if, notwithstanding that provision, the rules are open to review and consideration by the Courts. The effect of an enactment is that it binds all subjects who are affected by it. They are bound to conform themselves to the provisions of the law so made. The effect of a statutory rule if validly made is precisely the same that every person must conform himself to its provisions, and, if in such case a penalty be imposed, any person who does not comply with the provisions, whether of the enactment or the rule, becomes equally subject to the penalty. But there is this difference between a rule and an enactment, that whereas, apart from some such provision as we are considering, you may canvass a rule and determine whether or not it was within the power of those who made it, you cannot canvass in that way the provisions of an Act of Parliament". This is a clear authority for the view that, though there is no difference between a rule and an enactment where there is a provision in the enactment that the rules shall be of the same effect as if they were contained in the Act, there is a wide difference between the two when there is no such provision; and the difference is this that though you may not canvass an Act of Parliament, you may canvass a rule.

(1) (1894) A. C. 347 at p. 331; 63 L. J. P. C. 74; 21 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 61; 31 Sc. L. R 942; 2 Sc. L. T. 103.

Bye-laws which are not made part of the Act by the express provision of the Act may be attacked in England on five different grounds; first, on the ground that they are not made, sanctioned and published in the manner prescribed by the Statute which authorises the making; secondly, on the ground that they are repugnant to the laws of England; thirdly, on the ground that they are repugnant to the Statute under which they are made; fourthly, on the ground that they are uncertain; and lastly, on the ground that they are unreasonable—(See Craies on Statute Law, page 290). Can it be said for a moment that a bye-law which, unlike the law, may be attacked on various grounds which the Court may refuse to enforce, stands on the same footing as the law? I think not; for the essence of the law is that it is enforceable as law, and that, though the Courts may construe the law, the Courts cannot reject it nor quash it.

If I am right in my view as to the distinction that exists between the law, and a bye-law framed under a Statute but not made part of the Statute by the express provision of the Statute, it must follow that an order issued by the Superintendent of Police under section 30 of the Police Act, cannot be claimed as the law. That order may be a valid order or an invalid order; but, as there is no provision in the Police Act giving to the orders issued by the Police under section 30 of the Police Act the same effect as if they were contained in the Act, they cannot be regarded as the law for any purpose whatsoever.

But I am quite willing to assume that the order of the Superintendent of Police is "law" within the meaning of the first clause of section 141 of the Indian Penal Code; I have still to enquire whether it is enforceable as the law; that is to say, whether it is sanctioned and authorised by the Police Act or whether it does not constitute an undue interference with the liberty of the subject in the garb of an order under the Police Act. In order to determine this question, it is necessary to examine the provisions of section 30 and 30A of the Police Act. The first clause of section 30 gives to the District Superintendent or the Assistant District Superintendent the power to direct the conduct of all assemblies and processions on the public roads or in the public streets or thoroughfares, and prescribe the routes by which, and the times at which, such processions may pass. This is a power to regulate public assemblies and processions, not a power to prohibit such assemblies and processions. The second clause gives him power to require by general or special notice that the persons convening or collecting such assembly or directing or promoting such procession shall apply for a license, provided he is satisfied that it is intended by any person or class of persons to convene or collect an assembly in any such road, street or thoroughfare or to form a procession such as in the judgment of the Magistrate, if uncontrolled, be likely to cause a breach of the peace. A power of licensing is a power to regulate, not a power to prohibit; and it is necessary to point out that there is nothing in section 30, either in the first or in the second clause, which gives the Police an express power to prohibit an assembly or procession, if the persons convening or collecting such assembly or directing or promoting such procession decline to apply for a license. I shall presently discuss the question whether a power to prohibit is incident to a power to regulate and license. It is sufficient here to point out that there is no express power to prohibit given in section 30 of the Act. Section 30 A of the the Act, however, gives a power to the Police to order an assembly or procession to disperse; but, section 30 A applies and applies only where there is a violation of the condition of a license.

EMPEROR v. ABDUL HAMID.

Sec'ion 30A, therefore, has no application to this case; for it is admitted that the persons directing or promoting the procession did not apply for a license. On an interpretation of sections 30 and 30A of the Police Act, it would appear that there is no power in the Police to prohibit a procession where the persons directing and promoting such procession decline to apply for a license, although there is such power where such persons take out a license but violate the conditions of such license.

It may be urged, however, that a power to prohibit is incident to a power to regulate, for without such power it may be difficult, if not impossible, for the Police to regulate the public assemblies and processions. The argument overlooks the provision of section 32 of the Act which imposes a penalty upon every person for opposing or not obeying the order issued under section 30, section 30A and section 31 of the Act. It is at least significant that the Act, though it expressly vests in the Magistrate or in the Police the power to stop any procession which violates the conditions of a license and to order it to disperse, gives no such power to the Police, at least expressly, where the person convening or collecting an assembly or directing or promoting a procession declines to apply for a license. The power is expressly given in section 30A of the Act and is expressly withheld in section 30 of the Act. It must follow that there is no power by implication to prohibit an assembly or a procession in the event of the persons in charge of the same declining to apply for a license.

But it may be urged that the power to regulate a public assembly or a procession would be a barren power, if the Police have not by implication a power to prohibit such assembly or procession, and that the true rule is that, if the Legislature enables something to be done, it gives power at the same time, by necessary implication, to do everything which is absolutely indispensable for the purpose of carrying out the purpose in view. I entirely accept the validity of the rule, but I wholly deny that it is indispensable for the purpose of carrying out the purpose in view to prohibit an assembly or procession. Where the Act imposes a penalty upon every person for opposing or not obeying the orders issued under the Act, it seems to me that the purpose in view is carried out by enforcing the provision of the Act against such persons. At any rate the question has been discussed in England whether a power to prohibit is incident to a power to regulate and license, and a clear and decisive answer has been given. In Rossi v. Edinburgh Corporation (2) the question was whether the conditions of a license granted by the corporation were or were not ultra vires. By section 30 of the Edinburgh Corporation Act, 1900, as amended by Edinburgh Corporation Order Confirmation Act, 1901, any person selling ice-cream (except in a duly licensed hotel) without a license from the Magistrates who were, by that section, empowered to grant the same, for the house, building or premises, where such ice-cream was kept for sale, was liable to a penalty; provided, as the Statute declared, "that such license shall run from the date of issue until the 15th day of May next ensuing and upon renewal from the date of expiry of the license so renewed to the 15th day of May succeeding such expiry, unless the same shall be sooner forfeited, revoked or suspended".

The Statute also provided that "every person licensed to sell ice-cream under the provisions of this Act who shall sell ice-cream, except during the hours between eight of the clock in the morning and eleven of the clock at night on any lawful day.....shall be liable to the penalties in the Act provided". No form of license was annexed to the Statute. In pursuance of the Statute, the Magistrates drew up a license on the following terms to be issued to the ice-cream vendors licensed by them, namely.

1. That the said licensee shall not keep open the said premises or sell or permit the sale of ice-cream therein on Sunday or on any other day set apart for public worship by lawful authority.

2. That the said licensee shall not keep open the said premises or sell or permit the sale of ice-cream therein before eight o'clock in the morning or after eleven o'clock at night.

3. That the said Magistrates, or any of them, may at any time suspend or revoke this license.

(2) (1905) A. C. 21; 91 L. T. 668.

It will be noticed that though the Act, while enabling the Magistrates to issue licenses for the purpose of regulating the sale of ice-cream and assuming that they had the power to forfeit, revoke or suspend the license, gave them no power either to forfeit, revoke or suspend the license or to prohibit the carrying on of the trade, the Magistrates, purporting to act in pursuance of the Statute, probibited the carrying on of the trade except on the terms of the license and reserved to themselves the liberty of suspending or revoking the license. The House of Lords came to the conclusion that each of the conditions of the license was bad and that the license was wholly ultra vires. The Lord Chancellor, dealing with the argument that the Magistrate had the implied power to do everything for the purpose of carrying out the purpose of the Act, made these pregnant observations. "But when it is argued that because they are given the power to restrict, within certain hours, the sale of ice-creams, therefore, they have implied power to do all that might be desirable or expedient with reference to the times and circumstances under which ice-creams shall be sold, it seems to me the argument entirely fails. What is sought to be done, whether directly by bye laws, or indirectly by the language of the license that is issued, is something that can only be done by the Legislature. It is a restraint of a common right which all His Majesty's subjects have —the right to open their shops and to sell what they please subject to legislative restriction—and, if there is no legislative restriction which is appropriate to the particular thing in dispute, it seems to me it would be a very serious inroad upon the liberty of the subject if it could be supposed that a mere single restriction which the Legislature has imposed could be enlarged and applied to things and circumstances other than that which the Legislature has contemplated."

Lord Davey, in the course of his judgment, dealing with the power reserved by the Magistrates to suspend or revoke the license, observed as follows:—"Now I confess that I have not heard from the learned Counsel and I took the liberty of pressing the learned Counsel on this point, on any power in the Magistrates either to revoke or to suspend this license. It is said that the words which I have read, 'unless the same be sooner forfeited, revoked or suspended' give the power. My Lords, that construction of the Act of Parliament seems to me to be entirely contrary to principle. The utmost that you can say is that the words seem to assume that the corporation either have already, or may at some future time acquire a power to forfeit, revoke or suspend the license. That it does not give the power seems to me plain from a consideration of the words, because the words are, as your Lordships will observe, 'forfeited revoked, or suspended'. Now 'forfeited' has a clear and definite meaning when you are speaking of licenses of this description. It means that if the licensee does or omits certain acts his license will be forfeited. That is the plain meaning of it. Well, my Lords, you will look in vain in this Statute or in this provisional order for anything that defines the conditions upon which the license is to become forfeited. It is plain, then, that this clause does not make any provision for the licensee forfeiting his license and it is equally plain to my mind that it does not contain any power either to revoke or suspend the license."

The point established in the other case to which I propose to refer—the case of Toronto (Municipal Corporation of the City of) v. Virgo (3) is this; that a statutory power conferred upon a Municipal Council to make bye-laws for regulating and governing a trade does not, in the absence of an express power of prohibition, authorize the making it unlawful to carry on a lawful trade in a lawful manner. The Statute gave power to the Council to pass bye-laws for licensing, regulating and governing hawkers or petty chapmen and other persons carrying on petty trades. Stopping here for a moment, it will be noticed that section 30 of the Police Act gives power to the Police, as the marginal note shows, to regulate public assemblies and processions and license the same. There is no prohibition on the face of the Police Act, just as there is no prohibition on the face of the Statute which I am now considering. The bye laws framed by the Council prohibited the hawkers from prosecuting their calling or trade in certain streets in the city of Toronto. The Privy Council held that the bye-law complained of was ultra vires. Lord Davey, in delivering the judgment of the Board, conceded that the regulation and governance of a trade might involve the imposition of restrictions on its exercise both as to time and to a certain extent as to place, but he pointed out that there was a marked distinction to be drawn between the prohibition of a thing and the regulation or governance of it, for, as His Lordship made clear, "a power to regulate and govern seems to imply the continued existence of that which is to be regulated or governed." And the conclusion at which His Lordship arrived may be stated in his own words: "a municipal power of regulation or of making bye-laws for good Government, without express words of prohibition, does not authorize the making it unlawful to carry on a lawful trade in a lawful manner"

(3) (1896) A. C. 88; 65 L. J. P. C. 4; 73 L. T. 449.

The point is put very clearly and forcibly in Halsbury's Laws of England: "Generally speaking, the function of a bye-law is to regulate and not prohibit"—Volume 27, page 124, foot note (k).

It will now be convenient to turn to the actual order issued by the Superintendent of Police on the 3rd of January 1922. The order on the face of it is a prohibition. It prohibits all processions, associations, or assemblies for a period of three months except under a license, and it prohibits such processions, associations or assemblies, not only in a public road, street or thoroughfare, but anywhere within the Municipal or Union area of Palaman. A more absolute prohibition it is difficult to imagine; and the reason for this extraordinary order constituting, as it does, a very serious inroad upon the liberty of the subject is that the Officiating Superintendent of Police considers such prohibition to be necessary for the preservation of the public peace and public safety. It is, in my opinion, only necessary to state the terms of the order to reject it as utterly beyond the power of the Officiating Superintendent of Police. In the first place, the order is on the face of it a prohibition; and, if Lord Davey is right in his view, a power to prohibit is not incident to a power to to regulate and license. In the second place, there is no power to issue an order to have operation for three months.

The language of the section makes it perfectly clear, to my mind, that the Police have to deal with each case as it arises, and that the District Magistrate has to exercise his judgment on each occasion. This was the view which was taken of section 30 of the Police Act in this Court in the case of Emperor v. Shami Kandu (Criminal Reference No. 32 of 1917 unreported). That view seems to me to be the right view, and the only view which can be taken of the section. In the third place, the Police have no power whatever to prohibit association or assembly anywhere within the Municipal and Union area of Palaman, assuming that they have a power to prohibit at all. Under the order as issued, a number of people could not meet together in a private house for a lawful purpose, and it has been held that you cannot reject that which on the face of it is ultra vires and support the order on the ground that any Court can construe it so as not to infringe the liberty of the subject. In the last place, the order is bad in so far as the Officiating Superintendent of Police arrogates to himself a power not conferred by the Police Act on him. The Act requires that the judgment shall be exercised by the Magistrate of the District or of the sub-division of a District. The order not only does not show that any judgment has been exercised by the Magistrate of the district, but it shows that such judgment has been exercised by the Officiating Superintendent of Police. If the order is to be regarded as a bye-law then it is well established that the Courts of law will not give effect to it, unless it is satisfied that all the conditions precedent to the validity of the bye-law have been fulfilled. If the Legislature has given a power to the Superintendent of Police to legislate in the manner, it has for the safety of the public imposed as a condition precedent that the Magistrate shall be satisfied that there is necessity for the legislation. It is a power conditional upon an event, and the exercise of the power will not be upheld unless it is established that the condition has been fulfilled. I hold that the order of the Officiating Superintendent of Police cannot be regarded as the law within the meaning of the term as used in section 141 of the Indian Penal Code. I hold further that, if that be so regarded, we are bound to deny it for the reasons which I have already given.

I now come to the next branch of the argument, namely, whether there was any execution of the law. Execution means enforcing, carrying into effect. Now it is well established that execution, to be lawful, must follow the procedure laid down in the Act. The law in this case is the order of the Officiating Superintendent of Police prohibiting all assemblies, associations and processions except under a license. I will assume that the order was a lawful one and that it could be executed. I will assume that there was a violation of that order by the persons who formed the procession. But assuming all these, how could the law, that is to say, the order of the Officiating Superintendent of Police be executed? The learned Assistant Government Advocate contends that it could be executed only by ordering the procession to disperse. In my opinion, on an interpretation of sections 30, 30A and 32, the contention is an impossible one. Section 30A which does not apply to this case does give the Police a right to stop a procession and to order it to disperse. Section 30 which does apply to this case gives no such power to the Police. Section 32 provides a penalty for opposing or not obeying the orders that may be issued either under section 30 or section 30A. In my opinion, the orders under section 30 could be executed only by proceeding against the persons opposing or not obeying such orders under section 32 of the Act, whereas, where section 30A applies the orders could be executed first by stopping the procession and ordering it to disperse, and secondly, by proceeding against the persons opposing or not obeying such orders under section 32 of the Act. It is not suggested that the assembly was in itself an unlawful assembly. In my opinion, the Police had no power either under the Criminal Procedure Code or under the Police Act to stop the procession or order it to disperse. It follows, therefore, that they were not executing the order of the Officiating Superintendent of Police in a lawful manner.

The last point in connection with this argument is whether there was resistance on the part of the persons forming the procession. Resistance, we were informed, is to withstand, or stand against, or make opposition to, and it was argued that in so far as the persons forming the procession refused to disperse when they were ordered to disperse by the Police there was clear resistance on their part. Now it must be remembered that the resistance must be not to the law, but to the execution of the law; in other words, the prosecution must establish that the persons forming the procession withstood or stood against or made opposition to the carrying into effect of the law, that is to say, the order issued by the Officiating District Superintendent of Police. Now, in the first place if there was no power in the Police to stop the procession or to order it to disperse, there was clearly a right in the accused persons to withstand or stand against or make opposition to the order of dispersal. In the next place, resistance means something more than defiance or disobedience. One does not, in my opinion, withstand or stand against or make opposition to an execution by merely not submitting to the order. Resistance is something more than non-submission. It consists of an overt act showing an intention to make opposition to the execution of the law.

This undoubtedly has been the view of the Bombay High Court. In the case of Queen-Empress v. Alibhai (4) it was held that the mere refusal by the accused person to make over to a bailiff money alleged to be in his pocket is not a resistance to the taking of that money within the meaning of section 183 of the Indian Penal Code. In that case the bailiff made a demand for the money and the accused replied that the bailiff was not legally entitled to take the money and that he would not give it to him. It was held that there was nothing more than a refusal to submit and that there was no resistance within the meaning of section 183, Indian Penal Code. The same view was taken in the case of Queen-Empress v. Husain (5). In this case the bailiff went to attach two tonga tops belonging to the judgment debtor. Thereupon the accused said that the tonga tops were his and that he would not let the bailiff take them away unless he entered them as his property. It was held that a mere verbal direction to the bailiff not to remove the property could not be regarded as a resistance. I cannot distinguish these cases from the present case. The accused persons in the present case did nothing more than refuse to obey the order of dispersal given by the Police When the Police laid their hands on the accused persons and arrested them they did not in any way make any attempt to resist the arrest. They submitted to the arrest and in so doing submitted to the execution of the law, however, illegal the execution might have been. I hold that there was no resistance on the part of the accused persons to the alleged execution of the alleged law. It follows therefore, that the case does not fall within the second clause of section 141 of the Indian Penal Code.

(4) Rat. Un. Cr. Cas. 412.
(5) 15 B. 564; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 280.

It was faintly argued by the learned Assistant Government Advocate that the common object of the procession might have been to commit an offence under section 151 of the Indian Penal Code. It is sufficient to say that there is no evidence that the accused persons were likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace. Such evidence is essential for an offence under section 151 of the Indian Penal Code. The argument was not a serious one and I do not think it necessary to deal with it at greater length.

I now turn to another aspect of the case and it is this: whether a person can be indicted under the general law for an offence commited under the Police Act? Now, in order to understand the point it is necessary to state that it is no offence under the general law for any persons or class of persons to convene or collect an assembly in any road, street or thoroughfare or to form a procession in such road, street or thoroughfare. Under the general law it is not necessary to apply for a license in order to enable persons to convene or collect an assembly in a road, street or thoroughfare or to form a procession in such road, street or thoroughfare. Nor is it an offence under the general law not to apply for a license if such persons are directed by an executive order to apply for such license. The offence is created for the first time by the Police Act which imposes a penalty upon every person opposing or not obeying the orders issued under section 30, 30A and 31 of the Police Act. It is a new offence, not an offence under the general law. It has been held in numerous cases that where a Statute creates a new offence which was not an offence at Common Law and imposes a penalty in respect of such offence, a person committing such an offence can only be proceeded against under the Statute which creates the offence and cannot be indicted under the general law. The principle is stated with clearness and precision in Hawkins' Pleas of the Crown, Book 11, Ch. 25, section 4 and is as follows:—"Also where a Statute makes a new offence which was in no way prohibited by the Common Law, and appoints a peculiar manner of proceeding against the offender as by commitment, or action of debt, or information, etc, without mentioning an indictment, it seems to be settled to this day that it would not maintain an indictment, because mentioning the other methods of proceeding seems impliedly to exclude that of indictment." This passage was regarded in the case of Reg. v. Hall (6) as a full statement of the principle which should guide the Courts in regard to the decision of the cases. That was a case where the defendant was charged in the seventeen counts of the indictment with crimes which might be classified into three divisions: first, he was charged with the wilful omission of the names of qualified persons from the electoral lists. Secondly, he was charged with the wilful insertion of the names of unqualified persons in the electoral lists. Thirdly, he was charged with an attempt to prevent the course of justice by taking steps to place false evidence before the Revising Barrister, who was in a certain sense a judicial Tribunal. He was also charged with tampering with the lists of voters and also with tampering with the register itself. These charges were made against him as an Overseer of the Poor and the offences were alleged to have been committed by him in the course of the duty which was imposed upon him by the Parliamentary Registration Act of 1843. It is necessary to point out that the Parliamentary Registration Act of 1843 provided a penalty for violation of the duties imposed upon him by that Act.

(6) (1891) 1 Q. B. 747; 60 L. J. M. C. 124; 64 L. T. 394; 17 Cox C. C. 278.

It was contended on his behalf that there was no remedy by indictment as the Act which created the offence provided a penalty for such offences. The Court gave effect to the argument advanced on behalf of the defendant and quashed the indictment This is the view which has been taken in numerous cases in England. See Institute of Patent Agents v. Lockwood (1), Saunders v. Holborn District Board of Works (7) and Olegg, Parkinson & Co. v. Early Gas Company (8). I do not propose to discuss all these cases, but the observations of the Lord Chancellor in the first mentioned case are so appropriate to the present proceedings that I think it desirable to set them out, "You have here" said His Lordship, "For the first time, a new offence created, the offence of practising as a Patent Agent without being on the register. But for the enactment creating that offence, the defender had done nothing of which anybody would have a legal right to complain either civilly or criminally. The Legislature, having created that new offence, has prescribed the punishment for it, namely, a penalty of £ 20. Can it possibly under these circumstances be open to bring the individual, not before the summary Court at small expense to determine the question of his liability to a £ 20 penalty, but to bring him before the Court of Session with its attendant expense and to ask the Court of Session to make a declaration that he has been breaking the law in a manner which, the Legislature has said, subjects him to a penalty and then, having proved that he has rendered himself liable to a penalty, to ask the Court of Session to interdict him with this result, that if he were to offend again he would not be subject to the summary procedure and the £20 penalty, but would be liable to imprisonment for breach of the interdict? My Lords, it seems to me, I confess, scarcely necessary to do more than state the contention to show that it is impossible that it can be supported. If that be the law, the number of cases must have been almost innumerable in which such a proceeding would have been competent, and yet it is absolutely unheard of. I will not dwell upon the grave inconveniences which would result from sanctioning a procedure of that description. The mode of procedure and the amount of penalty are often regarded by the Legislature as of the utmost importance when they are creating new offences, and the law would, I believe, contrary to their intention, be most seriously modified if it were held that the party committing a breach of that which for the first time is made an offence were to subject himself by so doing to proceedings of this description which might result in a committal to prison".

As I have said, the passage cited is most appropriate to the question which has been debated in this Court. Here also, for the first time, a new offence has been created. But for the enactment creating that offence, the respondent has done nothing of which any body would have a legal right to complain either civilly or criminally. The Legislature having created that new offence, has prescribed the punishment for it, namely, a penalty of Rs. 200. If, as the Lord Chancellor pointed out, the mode of procedure and the amount of penalty are often regarded by the Legislature as of the utmost importance when they are creating new offences, can it be doubted for a single moment that the proper procedure was to proceed under the Act and not by an indictment under the general law? In my opinion, the respondent could not be convicted under the Indian Penal Code for an offence committed under the Police Act.

I have thought it necessary to deal with the case at some length for the reason that the issue raised by the Crown in this appeal goes far beyond the actual facts of the case and, indeed affects the liberty of the subject in relation to what he may lawfully do in a lawful manner. I must not be understood, however, as sanctioning any breaches of law and order. Where there are breaches of law and order, it is the duty of this Court to relentlessly apply the law, and look neither to the position nor the motive of the persons committing or encouraging breaches of law and order. But while this is so, it is equally our duty to assert from time to time and as often as it may be necessary that the subject has his rights as well as his duties, and to assert further that this Court, as the guardian of the rights and the liberties of the subject, will sternly repress any attempt on the part of the Executive Government to tamper with such rights and liberties; and that an order, in the garb of an order for the maintenance of law and order, will not be allowed to stand, if its object is not to maintain law and order but to make, to quote the memorable words of Lord Halsbury, "a very serious inroad upon the liberty of the subject".

(7) (1895) 1 Q. B. 64: 64 L. J. Q. B. 101; 15 R. 25; 71 L. T. 519: 43 W. R. 26; 59 J. P. 453.

(8) (1896) 1 Q. B. 592; 65 L. J. Q. B. 339; 44 W. R. 606.

I would dismiss this appeal.

N. K. Appeal dismissed.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

FIRST CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 176 OF 1921.

December 20, 1921.

Present:—Mr. Justice Das and Justice Sir John Bucknill, Kt.

BAZARI HAJAM AND ANOTHER—APPELLANTS

versus

EMPEROR—RESPONDENT

Thumb impression—Corroborative circumstances, absence of—Conviction based on comparison of thumb impressions, legality of.

It is most unsafe, without any corroborative circumstances, to convict a person of a serious crime solely and entirely upon similarity of thumb marks or finger prints [p. 958, col 2.]

The practice of taking the finger print impression of an accused person in a Court of Law strongly condemned. [p. 958, col. 2.]

First appeal against the judgment of the Officiating Sessions Judge, Shahabad, dated the 30th of September 1921.

Mr P. P. Varma, for the Appellants.

Mr. H. Nandkeolyar, Assistant Government Advocate, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

BUCKNILL, J.—This is an appeal by two persons named Bazari Hajam and Barhmdeo Kahar who were convicted by the Officiating Sessions Judge of Shahabad on the 30th of September of this year and sentenced respectively to three years' rigorous imprisonment: the first accused for false impersonation under section 82 (c) of the Indian Registration Act and the second accused under section 82 (d) of the same Act.

The circumstances under which these convictions were recorded are somewhat unusual and both the Assessors thought that the evidence was not sufficient to justify the accused being condemned.

In the first place, it must be admitted, and is indeed admitted by the Officiating Sessions Judge, that, with one exception, there was no material against either of the accused. The story upon which the prosecution was based was that a certain deed purporting to have been executed by one Ram Prasad Pande at the Koilwar Sub-Registry Office at the end of March of this year, was not, in fact, executed by that individual but was executed by the first accused who represented this Ram Prasad Pande and incidentally placed his thumb impression upon the document. That is all. Now, when the accused was brought before the Court—both in the Magistrate's Court and in the Sessions Court, an altogether unusual practise, and one which I cannot but too strongly deprecate, was followed by (in some way or other, I do not understand how) obtaining a thumb print of the accused; and, then, after having done so, a gentleman from the Finger Print Criminal Department was called in each Court, who thereupon, by means of his codes of finger prints, declared to the Magistrate and to the Officiating Sessions Judge that the thumb marks on the deed and on the paper which had been marked by the accused in Court were identical. This is the only piece of evidence of any cogency whatever against the accused. I think that, apart from the fact that I should be rather sorry without any other corroborative circumstances, to convict a person of a serious crime solely and entirely upon similarity of thumb marks or finger prints, the very fact of the taking of a thumb impression from an accused person for the purpose of possible manufacture of the evidence by which he could be incriminated, is, in itself, sufficient to warrant one in setting aside the conviction upon the understanding and upon the assumption that such was not really a fair trial.

I know of no law by which an accused person can be either by words or by gestures or by exposing himself to certain physical treatment, made to implicate himself in the crime with which he is charged. When he is on trial such an idea is highly repugnant to all thoughts of the proper administration of justice in this or in any other British country. I think, therefore, that it is impossible that these convictions and sentences should be supported, that they must be set aside and the accused must be enlarged.

DAS, J.—I agree. I ought to add that the balance of the evidence, in my opinion, is entirely in favour of the appellants. It is not denied that Ram Prasad had, in fact, executed a sale-deed in favour of his step-mother, Musammat Anandja, and his wife, Musammat Etwaro Kuer. It is of course suggested that the document was taken from him by undue influence or by force; it does not matter which, but the important fact is that the execution of the document by Ram Prasad, is not denied.

The sole question which the learned Sessions Judge had to try was, did Ram Prasad himself present the document for registration before the Registration authority; or, the appellant Bazari impersonated Ram Prasad before the registration authority. The prosecution case is based on two important facts, first, that Ram Prasad was minor and that it is highly improbable that any Registration authority would have registered a document presented (as it must have been) by a minor; and, secondly, that Ram Prasad was so ill at that time that it is highly improbable that he could have presented the document before the Registration authority. The learned Sessions Judge discussed both these points. On the first point, he came to the conclusion that the evidence on behalf of the prosecution was unsatisfactory and that it did not establish that Ram Prasad was, in fact, a minor on the 29th of March 1921. On the second point again, the learned Sessions Judge has recorded a finding that the prosecution evidence is unconvincing. Therefore, it seems to me that it was dangerous to convict the appellants on the sole testimony of the finger print expert.

Now the learned Sessions Judge considered the point whether the evidence of the finger print expert received any corroboration. He conceded that the appellants could not be convicted without such corroboration but he has recorded a finding to the effect that the evidence of the finger print expert had received corroboration. Now the view of the learned Sessions Judge is this: He says, first of all, that the accused are residents of the village with which the executants of the document, that is to say, Ram Prasad and Ram Chandra Pande, are connected. The learned Sessions Judge thinks that this evidence corroborate the testimony of the finger print experts Secondly, the learned Sessions Judge was impressed by the fact that the complainant mentioned the name of the accused very early in the proceedings. He also took that as another corroborating circumstance.

I wholly disagree with the view of the learned Sessions Judge. This evidence, in my opinion, does not at all corroborate the evidence of the finger print expert. I agree with my learned brother that it was extremely dangerous to take the finger print impression of an accused person in a Court of Law. I agree that the convictions are unsustainable and that the convictions and sentences of the accused persons must be set aside.

W. C. A. Appeal allowed.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CRIMINAL APPLICATION No. 42 OF 1922.

July 4, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Wazir Hassan, A. J. C.

SHEOPAL AND OTHERS—ACCUSED—APPLICANTS

versus

EMPEROR—COMPLAINANT—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 110—Sureties—General repute, hearsay evidence of, inadmissible.

SHEOPAL v. EMPEROR.

A Court is not justified in refusing as "unfit" persons who are offered as sureties under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code, on mere hearsay evidence of general repute, especially where the sureties offered are men of means and have sufficient influence to exercise control over the persons required to furnish security.

Application against an order of the Sessions Judge, Fyzabad, dated the 22nd March 1922, upholding an order of the Magistrate, First Class, Sultanpur, dated the 27th February 1922.

Mr. Niamat Ullah, for the Applicants.

The Government Pleader, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.—A First Class Magistrate exercising jurisdiction in a sub-division of the District of Sultanpur issued a notice to the applicants under section 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure to show cause why they should not be ordered to execute a bond with reliable sureties for their good beheaviour for a period of one year. The applicants in pursuance to the notice above mentioned appeared before the Magistrate and after the necessary enquiry having been gone into, the Magistrate confirmed his initial order prepared under section 112 of the Code. Two persons, Pateshri and Sita Ram, appeared before the learned Magistrate to execute the necessary bond as sureties for the applicants. It appears that the Police protested against the acceptance of these persons as sureties for the applicants. Thereupon the learned Magistrate instituted an elaborate enquiry recording evidence produced by the Police in support of their protest and also evidence tendered by the sureties, vindicating their fitness to stand as sureties. By his order dated the 27th February 1922 the Magistrate accepted the objection raised by the Police and rejected the sureties as "unfit." These applicants aggrieved by the order just now mentioned went in revision to the Court of the Sessions Judge of Fyzabad. That Court recorded the following order:—"The lower Court has given very good grounds indeed for refusing the sureties. Rejected."

The application before me is directed against the last mentioned order. The Magistrate's order of the 27th February 1922 sets down the following tests for determining the fitness or otherwise of the sureties as required by section 122 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. (1) Their pecuniary means to cover the amount: (2) good character and (3) ability to supervise. He finds that the tests Nos. 1 and 3 are established. But with regard to test No. 2 he has on the evidence produced by the Police come to the conclusion that the sureties are "proved to be men of bad character." To my mind this finding of his clashes with his finding on point No. 3. If the sureties are themselves men of bad character it is difficult to conceive how they would supervise the behaviour of the applicants in checking them from indulging in the practices of a robber, a house breaker or a thief.

Apart from that the nature of the evidence produced by the Police in support of the allegation that the sureties themselves are men of bad character is admittedly hearsay and the sureties not being accused persons under section 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure hearsay evidence of general repute was clearly not admissible as against them. Besides, the evidence which the sureties produced is to my mind convincing enough to establish their fitness to stand as sureties in this case, more so, when we take into consideration the finding of the Magistrate himself that these persons are men of means and have sufficient influence to exercise control over the behaviour of the applicants.

I, therefore, set aside the order of the Magistrate dated the 27th February 1922, accept the sureties offered as fit and direct that the Court should accept the bonds executed by them as required by Schedule V, Form II, of the Code of Criminal Procedure and as soon as these bonds are properly executed the applicants, who are in jail, shall be released.

W. C. A.

Application accepted.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 3 OF 1920.

June 21, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Lindsay and Mr. Justice Kanhaiya Lal.

SRI GANGAJI COTTON MILLS Co., Ld. —PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY Co.— DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Railway Company—Delivery of goods—Consignee, inspection by—Damage to goods—Delivery Register, note in—Register, signing of, if constitutes "clear receipt"—Unconditional offer to pay damages—Liability, acknowledgment of.

A consignee of goods by Railway has no right to demand that the goods shall be opened and inspected on the Railway premises before he can be called upon to take delivery. [p 963, col. 2.]

Jwala Pershad & Co. v G. I. P Railway Co, 21 Ind. Cas. 4 8; 11 A. L. J. 772, relied on.

There is no provision of law, nor any statutory rule which obliges a Railway Company to make, or allow to be made, in its Delivery Register any note alleging that goods are in a damaged condition, and the refusal by a Railway Company to make such an entry in their books is no justification for refusing to take delivery. [p 964, col. 1]

Koka Mal v G. I. P Railway, 21 Ind. Cas. 428; 11 A. L. J. 775*n*., relied on

Where a consignee of goods by Railway signs the Delivery Register of the Company, such signature does not constitute a "clear receipt" so as to bar a suit against the Company for damages. [p 964, col. 1.]

East Indian Railway Co. v Sispal Lal, 12 Ind. Cas. 596; 39 C. 311; 14 C. L. J. 472; 16 C. W. N. 329, relied on

Where goods travel over the systems of several Railways, compensation for damages is only recoverable from that Railway on which damage is proved to have been caused [p 964, col 2; p 965, col .]

G. I. P. Railway Co v Sham Manohar, 4 Ind Cas. 803; 34 A. 422; 9 A. L. J. 412, relied on

An unconditional offer by a Railway Company to compensate a consignor of goods for damage caused, amounts to an acknowledgment of liability on the part of the Company for such damage. [p. 965, cols. 1 & 2.]

First appeal from the decision of the Subordinate Judge, Mirzapur.

JUDGMENT.

LINDSAY, J.—The suit which has given rise to this appeal was brought against the East Indian Railway Company by the Sri Gangaji Cotton Mills Company, Limited, carrying on business at Mirzapur and the claim was for Rs. 23,908 6 plus interest at Rs. 6 per cent. per annum, making a total of Rs. 25,364 6 6.

The suit has been dismissed in toto by the Subordinate Judge and the plaintiff Company appeals.

The facts of the case are that in May, 1918, a consignment of 103 bales of cotton was booked, at Jaipur, on the Bombay Baroda and Central India Railway, for delivery to the plaintiff Company at Mirzapur. A portion of this consignment consisting of 54 bales, was delivered to the plaintiff Company at Mirzapur, on the 22nd May, 1918.

On that date, it appears, the plaintiffs handed over to the East Indian Railway the Railway Receipt for the entire consignment of 10 bales, and paid the full freight due, amounting to Rs. 437-1-0.

The rest of the consignment, 54 bales, was delayed in transit and did not arrive at Mirzapur till the 2nd of July, 1918, on which date notice of arrival was given to the plaintiffs. The latter, after some inspection of the goods on the Railway premises, objected to take delivery on the ground that the bales were damaged, and on the 3rd July they sent a letter (Exhibit Q). They asked the Goods Clerk to keep the goods at the Railway goods-shed pending inspection by a Railway Officer. A telegram to the same effect was sent to the District Traffic Manager at Cawnpore on the same date and this was confirmed by letter (Exhibits 10 and 22 respectively).

In this letter they informed the District Traffic Manager that from outward appearance it seemed that the bales had been neglected and exposed to rain and that each bale had been more or less damaged. Plaintiffs said they wanted inspection before taking delivery.

The Railway Company agreed to have an inspection made and this was carried out on the 21st July, by a Traffic Inspector, Mr. Robinson. It is not denied that Robinson, after inspection, offered the plaintiffs Rs. 10 per bale by way of compensation, an offer which the plaintiffs rejected as inadequate [see their letter to the District Traffic Manager, dated 30th July, 1918 (Exhibit 11)].

The plaintiffs pressed their claim for compensation at a higher rate and the Railway Company then deputed an Assistant Traffic Manager, Mr. Dyer, who examined the goods on the 9th August 1918 and made an offer of compensation at the rate of Rs. 20 per bale. This second offer the plaintiffs also refused by their letter of the 9th August (Exhibit 4). The plaintiffs in that letter said they were willing to accept Rs. 30 per bale and would take delivery if damages were paid at that rate. The Railway Company then arranged with the Upper India Chamber of Commerce for inspection by an expert, Mr. Vernon, the Superintendent of the Elgin Mills at Cawnpore. He proceeded to Mirzapur and examined the goods on the morning of the 18th August. No representative of the plaintiffs was present at this inspection though notice had reached the plaintiffs on the evening of the 17th August.

Vernon, who has been examined as a witness in the case, reported that the damage was insignificant, that 48 out of the 54 bales were in good condition and that 6 bales were slightly damaged. He estimated the damage at 10 lbs of cotton per damaged bale and recommended compensation on this scale.

There is no evidence on the record to show that this report was actually communicated to the plaintiffs, though it was stated in paragraph 34 of the defendant's written statement that an offer in accordance with Vernon's report was made to the plaintiffs on the 7th September which was refused. The matter is not of much importance, for as the plaintiffs had already refused compensation at Rs. 20 per bale, it can hardly be imagined that they would have been willing to accept the much lower rate of damages which Vernon had assessed.

The next thing we find is that on the 9th September 1918, the plaintiffs sent in a claim to the Agent of the Railway in a letter (Exhibit 14). They demanded the cost of the 54 bales at the rate of Rs. 80 a maund, a total of Rs. 20,837. To this was added a claim for Rs. 2,925 for damages caused by the delay in delivery which has led to the closing down of the plaintiffs' Mills on account of shortage of cotton. This claim, it may be observed, was the re-iteration of a claim put forward on the 28th June 1918 and related to the delay which had taken place in the carriage of the goods prior to the 2nd of July 1918. The third item of the claim made on the 9th September 1918 was for Rs. 218-8-6, this being one-half the freight of the whole consignment. The plaintiffs had paid the whole sum due for freight on the 22nd May.

It is evident from the language of this letter of the 9th September that the plaintiffs had made up their minds to claim compensation on a scale they had not hitherto contemplated; in fact they were advancing a claim for the total loss of the goods. We find them stating that the goods had been seriously neglected, that "they had been lying in the open rain water pouring upon them freely for months and weeks together". The plaintiffs further stated that after "minute examination of the stuff" they had arrived at the conclusion that the quality of the cotton had become seriously deteriorated.

It does not appear when this "minute observation" was made and it seems rather to be the fact that no such examination was ever made by the plaintiffs.

The Agent of the Railway acknowledged receipt of this claim and promised inquiry and, thereafter, a good deal of correspondence passed between the parties without any settlement being arrived at.

On the 9th November 1918 the Railway Company served a notice on the plaintiffs to say that if the goods were not removed by a date mentioned in the notice, they would be sold at the plaintiffs' risk. The plaintiffs refused to comply with this notice, and eventually the Railway sold the goods at the rate of Rs. 117 per bale. At the hearing of the appeal we were told by the Counsel for the Railway Company that this sale took place in March 1919, and this, no doubt, is correct.

The correspondence between the parties closed with a letter from the Agent to the Railway to the plaintiffs dated the 28th April 1919. The Railway Company refused to consent to further arbitration and offered payment to the plaintiffs of the sale proceeds of the goods less any amount due to the Railway.

The plaintiffs filed their suit on the 18th June 1919; and this, as has been said, has been dismissed by the Court below.

In substance the findings of the Subordinate Judge are that the plaintiffs had no right to recover and that the Railway Company was justified in selling the goods. The Court held that the plaintiffs were in default, that they had wrongfully refused delivery and that it had exercised its statutory right to sell the goods in accordance with law.

The Subordinate Judge was also of opinion that the plaintiffs had no right to compensate for damage to the goods as the plaintiffs had failed to prove that any damage took place on the defendant Company's line and had omitted to sue the B. B. and C. I. Railway Company to which the goods had been made over by the consignor.

He also held that the item of Rs. 2,925 claimed by the plaintiffs on account of damages resulting from the closing of their mills by reason of the delay in the carriage of the second instalment of the goods, could not be awarded, as this was a false claim on the part of the plaintiffs.

It may be observed here that this portion of the claim is no longer pressed nor indeed could it be, for the Railway Company, defendant, was able to establish conclusively in the Court below that if the plaintiffs' mills were closed down, the reason was that there was a shortage of coal and not because of any delay in the transit of the bales of cotton.

To come now to the appeal, it is complained that the Court below did not rightly appreciate the nature of plaintiffs' claim which, it is said, was in reality a claim based upon the wrongful conversion of the plaintiffs' goods by the defendant Railway Company.

Speaking for myself, I do not see that the Judge of the Court below was under any misapprehension regarding the nature of the case which the plaintiffs set up, though considering the manner in which the case was set out in the plaint, he might, with some excuse, have been led into doubt.

He has, however, in my opinion, dealt with the case on the right lines as a whole and has definitely found that the Railway Company was justified in selling the plaintiffs' goods in exercise of the power conferred by section 56 of the Indian Railways Act (IX of 1890) which authorizes a Railway Administration, in certain circumstances and on certain conditions, to sell unclaimed goods.

In this connection the whole question is whether the Railway was in the circumstances entitled to treat the 54 bales of cotton as unclaimed goods.

The argument urged for the plaintiffs, in substance, is that it was not so entitled. It is contended that in the first instance the Railway Company wrongfully put obstructions in the way of the plaintiffs' taking delivery, and it is further argued that because the plaintiffs had put in a claim for damages, the Company had no right to sell pending a settlement of the claim. In my opinion neither of these arguments can be accepted. To take first the plea that the Railway Company obstructed taking of delivery.

What is the case of the plaintiff Company on this point?

It is set out in paragraphs 7 and 8 of the plaint where it is alleged that the plaintiffs sent their men to the Railway Station and discovered that the bales were wet and damaged, and that thereupon the plaintiff Company "refused to take delivery without an inspection and a note as to the condition of the goods by the defendant Company's servants at the Mirzapur Station which they refused to do." If this means that the inspection referred to was inspection by the plaintiffs themselves, then the allegation is not true, for it is clear on all hands that the plaintiffs had ample opportunity to inspect the goods and did, as a matter of fact, inspect them. On the other hand, if it means that the inspection was to be inspection by the Railway Company, then the answer to the plaintiff's case is that they had no right to insist upon an examination of the goods by the defendant Railway. There seems to have been some argument in the Court below about the right to what is called "open inspection" and the Subordinate Judge seems to have thought that the plaintiffs were insisting upon some such right though that is denied in the third paragraph of the memorandum of appeal.

It has been definitely settled in this Court that a consignee has no right to demand that the goods shall be opened and inspected on the Railway premises before he can be called upon to take delivery. Jwala Pershad & Co. v. G. I. P Railway Co. (1).

But it is argued (see the plea in the 12th paragraph of the memorandum of appeal) that the plaintiffs had a right to have a note made in the Railway Company's Delivery Register recording that the goods were in a damaged condition and that if the Company's servants refused to make such an entry or allow such an entry to be made, there was an obstruction amounting to wrongful refusal to deliver. Much stress has been laid upon the fact that the plaintiffs had handed over the Railway receipt to the defendant Company before the second lot of bales arrived and it is said that if the plaintiffs had signed the Delivery Register without recording that the goods were damaged, they would have been precluded thereafter from claiming damages on the ground that they had given a clear receipt. This argument does not appeal to me. In the first place, I have not been shown any provision of law or any statutory rule which obliges a Railway Company to make or to allow to be made in its Delivery Register any note alleging that goods are in a damaged condition. In the next place, it has been definitely decided by a Bench of this Court that the plaintiff cannot refuse to take delivery because the Railway Company refuses to make an entry in their books. There the plaintiffs' case was that there was a shortage in the weight of the goods. The Bench held that the plaintiff could not insist upon an entry. If he had any complaint, he was entitled to make his representation to the Company in any other way. Koka Mal v. G. I. P. Railway (2), and, lastly, it is not correct to say that the plaintiffs would have been barred from a suit if they had signed the Delivery Register so as to constitute what is called a "clear receipt," East Indian Railway Co. v. Sispal Lal (3).

(1) 21 Ind. Cas. 448; 11 A. L. J. 772.

I am satisfied, therefore, that the plaintiffs cannot maintain that anything done by the defendant Railway's servants on the 2nd July 1918 amounted to a wrongful refusal to deliver the goods.

As for anything which happened after that date, I can find no evidence of wrongful retention of the goods by the defendant Railway. It is true they kept the goods in their custody but that was at the plaintiffs' own request. The Railway Company in order to satisfy the plaintiffs consented to have the goods inspected by their own officers and by Mr. Vernon but the plaintiffs cannot be heard to say that this was, in any way, a wrongful act on the part of the Railway Company. After the inspections had been made and compensation had been offered to the plaintiffs, it was their duty to remove their goods and no hindrance to removal was placed in their way.

The argument put forward on behalf of the plaintiffs seems to imply that they had a right to call upon the Railway Company to ware out their goods until such time as the Company was prepared to offer them damages which they would accept. There is, in my opinion, no warrant for such a proposition, and it may be added that even if there were, the plaintiffs abandoned the position completely when they wrote to the Agent, on the 9th September 1918 claiming not damages but the full price of the goods.

I hold, therefore, that the suit for damages for wrongful conversion fails and that the decision of the Court below on this point is correct. The only question which remains to be considered is whether the plaintiffs should be awarded any compensation for damage to the goods.

That the goods were damaged, there is no reason to doubt. On the other hand, it is clear that the damage was inconsiderable and that the claim put forward by the plaintiffs is grossly exaggerated. This is apparent from the fact that they were willing to accept compensation at the rate of Rs. 30 per bale.

In dealing with this matter it has to be borne in mind that the goods were carried over the systems of several Railways. They were made over at Jaipur to the B. B. & C. I. Railway and they travelled first over the line under the Railway's control, then over the lines of the Bengal North-Western Railway and of the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway before they came upon the line of the defendant Company at Mogal Sarai which is only a short distance from Mirzapur.

The B. B. & C. I Railway Company with which the goods were booked is no party to the suit nor has any other of the above-named administrations been impleaded as the defendant. The sole defendant is the East Indian Railway Company.

In these circumstances the plaintiffs could only recover damages from the East Indian Railway Company by proving that the damage was caused on its system. This is clear from the provisions of section 80 of the Indian Railways Act (IX of 1890) and the law has been so interpreted in the case of G. I. P. Railway Co. v. Sham Manohar (4).

(2) 21 Ind. Cas. 428; 11 A. L. J. 775*n*.
(3) 12 Ind. Cas. 596; 39 C. 311; 14 C. L. J. 472; 16 C. W. N. 329.

The plaintiffs have not produced any direct evidence to show that the defendant Railway Company is responsible for the damage to their goods.

The only evidence which has any bearing on this question is the statement of Krishna Gopal Das, a witness called for the defendant. He is a clerk on the O. & R. Railway and deposes that the 54 bales were received at Benares Cantonment Station, on the 26th June 1918 from the Bengal North-Western Railway (a mater gauge line) and were transhipped the same day into a waggon on the broad-gauge system of the O & R. Railway for despatch to Mirzapur via Mogal Sarai. He deposes that the bales were in good condition at the time of transhipment and that they were placed in a sealed waggon.

If this statement be true, then all that can be said is that any damage which was caused to the goods must have been caused between the 26th June and the 2nd July, 1918, either on the O.&R. Railway system or on the system of the defendant Company. That evidence would not suffice to fasten liability upon the East Indian Railway Company. Apart from this, there remains only the fact that the defendant Company did, on three occasions subsequent to the 2nd July 1918 offer compensation to the plaintiffs. I have stated above that Rs. 20 per bale was offered by Robinson, one of the defendant Company's inspectors. Later on, another employee of the defendant Railway, Mr. Dyer, offered Rs. 20 per bale, and, lastly, there was the very much reduced offer made after the inspection by Mr. Vernon on the 18th August.

The question is whether these offers constitute an acknowledgment of liability on the part of the Railway Company which would justify an award of damages.

In paragraph 9 of the written statement the plea of the defendant Company is that these offers were made in order to lead to a settlement out of Court, but neither Robinson nor Dyer has been examined; so it is not possible to say whether the offers were made "without prejudice" nor have we been referred to any documentary evidence on the point. I have considered this point carefully and am disposed to hold that the Railway Company has acknowledged liability.

As to the amount of damages I think a fair sum is at the rate of Rs. 20 per bale offered by Dyer It is true that the expert evidence of Mr. Vernon would, if accepted, show that this offer was in excess of what was really claimable. But Vernon's inspection was not made till the 18th August, more than six weeks after the goods had arrived at Mirzapur—a fact which must be taken into account when estimating the value of his report.

I would, therefore, allow the plaintiffs damages to the extent of Rs. 1,080. The plaintiffs are not entitled to return of the freight, for the goods were carried to their destination. They are entitled to the sale-proceeds of the goods at the rate of Rs. 117 per bale.

There should, therefore, be judgment for Rs. 7,398 in all but the plaintiffs having been in the wrong throughout, must be made to pay the defendant Company's costs in both Courts.

Allowing the appeal in part, I would substitute for the decree of the Court below a decree for Rs. 7,398 and direct that the plaintiffs do pay the costs of the defendant Company in both Courts.

KANHAIYA LAL, J.—I agree in the order proposed.

BY THE COURT.—The appeal is allowed. A decree for Rs. 7,398 will be prepared in favour of the plaintiff-Company. The plaintiff Company will pay the Costs of the East Indian Railway Company in both Courts.

W. C. A.

Appeal allowed.

(4) 14 Ind. Cas. 803; 34 A. 422; 9 A. L. J. 492.

SAHEB BAKHSH SINGH v. THAKUR DIN SINGH.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 61 OF 1922.

July 14 1922.

Present:—Mr. Simpson, A. J. C.

SAHEB BAKHSH SINGH AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

THAKUR DIN SINGH AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Pre-emption—Perpetual under-proprietary lease—Rent reserved exceeding Government revenue—Nature of transaction—Lease or sale.

Where a grantor reserves no right of re-entry, whether the document is described as a lease or a sale, the test applied to determine its real nature is whether any rent was reserved to the grantor over and above the Government revenue, which he himself had to pay on the land. This applies only to deeds executed by the superior proprietor whereby an under-proprietary right is created in the grantee. [p. 968. col. 1.]

A transaction, therefore, called a pattah istimrari matahti, that is, a perpetual under-proprietary lease, which reserves an annual rent, a portion of which is payable by the lessee as Government revenue and the remainder to the lessor, is a lease not giving rise to a right of pre-emption.

Appeal from a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Sultanpur, dated the 30th November 1921, setting aside a decree of the Munsif, Musafirkhana, dated the 5th July 1921.

Mr. K. P. Misra, for the Appellants.

Mr. Haider Husain, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is a second appeal arising out of a suit for pre-emption. The sole point for decision is whether the transaction is a sale such as to give rise to a right of pre emption.

A sale is defined in section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act as "a transfer of ownership in exchange for a price paid or promised, or part paid and part promised." A lease is defined in the Transfer of Property Act (section 105), as "a transfer of a right to enjoy such property, made for a certain time, express or implied, or in perpetuity, in consideration of a price paid or, promised, or of money, a share of crops, service or any other thing of value, to be rendered periodically or on specified occasions to the transferor by the transferee, who accepts the transfer on such terms. The transferor is called the lessor, the transferee is called the lessee, the price is called the premium, and the money, share, service or other thing to be so rendered is called the rent."

Now in the present transaction the defendant No. 2 executed a deed in favour of defendant No. 1. She called it a pattah istimrari matahti, that is, a perpetual under-proprietary lease. The property leased is a fractional share of a 1 anna 4 pies in a certain mahal. There is a nazarana of Rs. 1,000. The annual rent reserved is Rs. 86-6-0, out of which the lessee was to pay Rs. 66-6-0, being the Government revenue. The remaining Rs. 20 she was to pay to her lessor. Except this rent the lessor reserved nothing. There is no right of enhancement of rent or ejectment of the lessee or of re-entry in case the rent is not paid. The position of the lessee for practical purposes will be that of an under-proprietor. On these facts the Court of Trial, the learned Munsif, decided that a right of pre-emption arises in favour of the plaintiff.

On first appeal the learned Subordinate Judge reversed this decision.

The plaintiff comes here on second appeal.

There can be no question at all that the transaction is a lease as defined in the Transfer of Property Act, but this does not, as might be supposed, amount to a decision that it is not a sale. If the definition of a lease is considered with care it will be seen that it is possible for one transaction to be both a sale and a lease.

The first distinction between a sale and a lease is that in a sale ownership passes while in a lease it does not pass; but this distinction fails us where a superior proprietor carves out of his title an under proprietary right and transfers that for a price paid. It has been held that an under-proprietor may be a sharer under section 9 of the Oudh Laws Act in such a way that a sale by him of his under-proprietary right will give rise to pre emption. It has further been held that when a holder of a superior right carves out an under-proprietary right and sells it, this also amounts to a sale and gives rise to a right of pre-emption. Yet such a transaction certainly falls under the definition of a lease, for it is a transfer of a right to enjoy the property.

Another distinction between a sale and a lease is that in a sale the transfer is an exchange for a price; but this distinction also fails us because a lease may also be in consideration of price. A perpetual lease, such as the present one, is very difficult to distinguish from the sale of an under-proprietary right. At this point I take up the decided cases:—

Ram Faqir v. Sheo Ratan (1). This is an important decision in which it was laid down by a Bench of this Court that a superior proprietor can carve out and sell an under-proprietary right and that such a transaction will give rise to pre emption. I distinguish that case from the case before me on two grounds. First, that in that case the deed was not described as a lease but as a bai birt that is a sale of under-proprietary right. No doubt the Court will look to the substance of the transaction and will not construe a document which is plainly a sale to be anything else. But at the same time in construing the document the Court will not overlook the terms which the parties themselves used in describing the deed. Secondly, that was a case in which transferor reserved to himself a rent equivalent to the Government revenue only. Stress is not laid on that point in the judgment, but stress has been laid on the same point in subsequent decisions.

Ram Autar v. Drigpal (2). This was not a case of pre-emption but the point had to be decided whether the document was a sale of under-proprietary right or a lease. In this case there was no reservation of rent and it was mentioned that the lessee was to pay the Government revenue. The document was held to be a sale-deed.

Data Ram Tewari v. Deokali Tewari (3). This is a difficult case. There were two documents which were called patta birt shankalap. There was a nazrana or premium paid and there was an annual rent reserved. The Bench which decided the case said:—

"There is nothing to show the amount of revenue payable in respect of the plots in dispute." The Court, therefore, was not aware whether the rent was exactly equivalent to the revenue or whether it exceeded the revenue. The decision appears to have proceeded on two grounds, first, that an annual rent was reserved whether it was or was not in excess of the Government revenue, and secondly, that the transaction was rather in the nature of a gift than a sale. That decision, however, has been construed as a decision that the transaction was a lease proceeding on the ground that an annual rent was reserved.

It was so construed in Ram Suchit v. Sheo Sewak Singh (4). In that case the transaction was described as shankalapnama and the rent reserved was said to be on account of the Government revenue, and the decision proceeded on a finding that no rent over and above the Government revenue was reserved. Similarly in Zulfan Khan v. Sant Bakhsh Singh (5) it was said with regard to Data Ram Tewari v. Deokali Tewari (3): "The true ground of distinction in that case is not that the deed was granted to a Brahman from religious motives—the motive of the grant has nothing to do with the nature of a transaction—but that the rent reserved was a real rent, reserved, as the learned Judges say, ostensibly to provide the holder with a means of subsistence—vide page 30[*] of the report. (The word 'not' in this sentence appears to be either a mis-print or a clerical error)." As I have said, the construction of that document is not so clear to me as it was to the Judges who have commented on it. It is quite true that the motives of the grant will not determine the nature of the transaction. But if the grant is a gift and not a sale, it will not give rise to pre-emption. I do not put the same construction on the sentence relating to the rent reserved. (I agree that the word 'not' is a mistake. I have verified this from the original record). The sentence is as follows:—

"The tenure was granted by way of birt in lieu of a premium paid and an annual rent reserved ostensibly to provide the holder with a means of subsistence." The last clause qualifies the word "birt" or the word "tenure," not the word "rent". It was the holder who was to pay the rent. The rent could not provide him with

(1) 8 O. C. 121.
(2) 8 Ind. Cas. 725; 14 O. C. 41.
(3) 25 Ind. Cas. 855; 17 O. C. 299; 1 O. L. J. 463.
(4) 56 Ind. Cas. 629; 23 O. C. 50.
(5) 65 Ind. Cas. 97; 24 O. C. 310.

[*] Page of 17 O. C.—[Ed.].

subsistence. It was the grant itself, the land, which was to be a means of subsistence for him.

But leaving this case out of account, there is sufficient authority to support the proposition laid down in Zulfan Khan v. Sant Bakhsh Singh (5) "where the grantor reserves no right of re-entry, whether the document is described as a lease or a sale, the test applied to determine its real nature has been whether any rent was reserved to the grantor over and above the Government revenue, which he himself had to pay on the land. This applies only to deeds executed by the superior proprietor whereby an under-proprietary right is created in the grantee." Applying that test the present transaction must be regarded as a lease not giving rise to a right of pre-emption. The decree of the lower Court is right.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

W. C. A.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1010 OF 1920.

February 1, 1922.

Present :—Mr. Justice Coutts Trotter and Mr. Justice Ramesam.

C. D. SARANGAPANY IYENGAR AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

SADAGOPA NAIDU AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Easement—Right to go on another's land to gather fruit—Right unknown to law.

The right to go on to a neighbour's land to collect the fruit of a tree which falls therefrom from such portion of a tree which belongs to the asserter of such right is not an easement within the meaning of the Easements Act. Such a right is unknown to the law.

Second appeal against a decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Chingleput, in Appeal Suit No. 49 of 1920, preferred against a decree of the Court of the Principal District Munsif, Chingleput, in Original Suit No. 377 of 1918.

FACTS appear from the judgment.

Mr. V. Viswanatha Sastri, for the Appellants.—The fruits belong to plaintiff though it fell on his neighbour's land. The right to enter on my neighbour's land for the purpose of gathering the fruits arises by severance. By the act of severance a right of servitude was created.

Mr. P. V. Ramachandra Rau, for the Respondents.—The right cannot be claimed as an easement as understood in the Easements Act. It can only arise by contract.

JUDGMENT.—The appellants in this case are the plaintiffs who sought in no less than three Courts to get a declaration that they are entitled to go on to their neighbour's land to gather the fruits that fall there from such portion of a tree which belongs to the plaintiffs. It is not pretended that this right can be acquired by prescription, but it is said that it arises by severance and that the necessary implication is that a servitude was created ipso facto by the act of severance. In our own opinion, the right claimed is not an easement within the meaning of the Act, and when it is claimed, as it is put here, as an easement and not as a creation of an express agreement or contract between the parties, we are of opinion that the claim is a right which is unknown to law, as pointed out in Lemmon v. Webb (1).

We, therefore, think that the appeal fails and must be dismissed with costs.

M. C. P.

W. C. A.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) (1895) A. C. 1; 64 L.J. Ch. 206; 11 R. 116; 71 L. T. 647; 59 J. P. 564.

ANNAN v. DUBAR.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 47 AND 48 OF 1922.

April 24, 1922.

Present:—Pandit Kanhaiya Lal, J. C.

ANNAN AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

Sheikh DUBAR—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

ALLABANDU—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

Sheikh DUBAR—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 78—Sale—Specific or ascertained goods—Seller and buyer, position of.

Where specific goods are sold and agreed to be delivered wholesale at a certain rate, it is for the buyer to get the goods weighed and delivered to him and the latter cannot by delay in weighing the goods prevent the transfer of the ownership to him.

The sale of an entire heap of bark stored in a godown approximately of a certain weight, is, practically, a sale of specific or ascertained goods within the meaning of section 78 of the Contract Act, and the seller is entitled to claim the price, less earnest-money, if any, already paid therefor.

Second appeal from a decree of the Subordinate, Judge, Barabanki, dated the 23rd December 1921, modifying that of the Munsif, Fatehpur, dated the 30th May 1921.

Messrs. M. Wasim and Anant Prasad, for the Appellant.

Mr. Haidar Husain, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—On the 19th August 1920 the defendants agreed to purchase 446 maunds of Babul bark from the plaintiff at 24 seers per rupee and paid Rs. 70 as earnest-money. The bark was stored in a godown at Zaidpur belonging to the plaintiff. The defendants had seen the bark and had agreed to take delivery on payment of the balance of the price on the 21st August 1920. They did not, however, take delivery as promised. The present suit was, therefore, brought by the plaintiff for the recovery of the remainder of the price which the Courts below decreed.

The main question for consideration in these appeals is whether the sale was a sale of ascertained goods within the meaning of section 78 of the Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872). The statement of the defendants was that they had agreed to purchase the bark according to the sample, but the Courts below found that that was not so, that the godown contained about 446 maunds of bark and that the defendants had agreed to purchase the whole stock. The question of weighment was only material for the purpose of ascertaining the price to be paid, if the weight of the stock was found to correspond with that mentioned by the plaintiff. Section 80 of the Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872) provides that where, by a contract for the sale of goods, the seller is to do anything to them for the purpose of putting them into a state in which the buyer is to take them, the sale is not complete until such thing has been done. There is, however, a distinction between a case where something remains to be done by the seller to the goods for the purpose of putting them into a state in which the buyer is to take them and a case in which the buyer has for his own satisfaction to get the goods weighed for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of the price. Where specific goods are sold and agreed to be delivered wholesale to a certain person at a certain rate, it is for the buyer to get the goods weighed and delivered to him or, as pointed out in Abdul Aziz Bepari v. Jogendra Krishna Roy (1), the weighment is only for the consideration of the buyer and the latter cannot by delay in weighing the goods prevent the transfer of the ownership to him. As the contract was for the sale of the entire heap of bark stored in the godown, which approximately amounted to 446 maunds, it was practically a sale of specific or ascertained goods. The sale was complete and the plaintiff was entitled to claim the remainder of the price. The defendants were responsible for their failure to get the goods weighed and delivered on the due date.

The appeals are dismissed with costs.

W. C. A.

Appeals dismissed.

(1) 36 Ind. Cas. 119; 44 C. 98 at p. 115; 20 C. W N. 1224.

ABDUL KARIM KHAN v. MUHAMMAD JAN.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1481 OF 1920.

May 10, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Lindsay and Mr. Justice Kanhaiya Lal.

ABDUL KARIM KHAN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

MUHAMMAD JAN—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. II, r. 2—Annuity, suit for arrears of—Suit dismissed in default—Appeal—Fresh suit for arrears of subsequent instalment—Appeal withdrawn during pendency of suit—Third suit claiming all arrears, whether maintainable.

Plaintiff was entitled to an annuity to be paid to him by the defendant on the 1st January and 1st July of each year. On 28th June 1917 he instituted a suit to recover instalments which had fallen due from 1st January 19 4 to st January 1917: on 8th July 1917 the suit was dismissed in default, and on 10th November 1917 the Court refused to set aside the order of dismissal: an appeal was preferred against this latter order but was withdrawn on 2nd March 1918. In the meantime, the instalment for 1st July 1917 fell due, and plaintiff obtained a decree for that particular instalment on 2nd April 1918. He then brought the present suit to recover arrears for the period 1st January 1914 to 1st July 1919:

Held, that under the provisions of O. II, r. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code the suit, so far as the arrears for 1st January to 1st July 1917, were concerned was barred, and that any protection which might have accrued to the plaintiff by reason of his appeal was taken away when the appeal was withdrawn. [p. 971, col 1.]

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Moradabad.

Mr. Peary Lal Banerji, for the Appellant,

Dr. S. M. Sulaiman and Mr. Mukhtar Ahmad, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—We are concerned in this case with a claim which was brought by the first respondent Munshi Muhammad Jan for the recovery of arrears of an annuity of Rs. 600 per annum.

The annuity was payable in equal moieties on the 1st January and the 1st July of each year and the period covered by the present suit ran from the 1st of January 1914 to the 1st of July 1919.

The Courts below have decreed the claim in full and the question raised before us is whether or not in view of certain proceedings between the parties the items from the 1st of January 1914 up to and including that of the 1st of January, 1917 are claimable in this suit.

In order to explain the matter which arises for decision, it is necessary to refer to the following facts:—

On the 28th of June 1917, the plaintiff, Munshi Muhammad Jan, brought a suit against these defendants to recover the instalments of the annuity which had fallen due from the 1st of January 1914 up to the 1st of January, 1917. This suit was Suit No. 166 of 1917, and on the 31st of July 1917 the parties were absent. The Subordinate Judge wrote a judgment dismissing the suit. In his order of that date he mentions that the parties were absent. He also went on to say that because an appeal was pending with respect to a certain sale-deed, the suit appeared to him to be premature, and he purported to dismiss the suit not on the ground of absence of the parties but on the ground that the suit had been brought before time.

The plaintiff after this order of dismissal had been passed made an application to the Subordinate Judge to have the order of dismissal set aside. Clearly that was an application made to the Court in accordance with the provisions of O. IX, r. 4.

That application for setting aside the order of dismissal was rejected on the 10th of November 1917.

Against that order of rejection the plaintiff filed an appeal in the Court of the District Judge, and on the 2nd of March 1918 that appeal was withdrawn and dismissed on the application of the present plaintiff.

Meantime the instalment of the annuity which fell due on the 1st of July 1917, had become payable and a suit to recover that particular instalment was brought in the Court of the Munsif on the 22nd of December 1917. That suit was tried out and the plaintiff got his decree on the 2nd of April 1918.

The point which has been made here on behalf of the defendants and which was raised unsuccessfully by them in the Courts below is that when the plaintiff brought this claim on the 22nd of December 1917 in respect of the half-yearly instalment of the annuity which had become payable on the 1st of July 1917 he was bound to include in his claim a claim for all other instalments which had become due up to that date and with respect to which a claim would have been within limitation.

O. II, r. 2, is consequently put up as a bar by the defendants.

The plaintiff seeks to avoid the operation of O. II, r. 2 in this way. He says that at the time he filed his suit on the 22nd of December 1917, an appeal was still pending in the Court of the District Judge, an appeal relating to the suit in which the claim was for the arrears of the earlier years, that is to say, from the 1st of January 1914 up to the 1st of January 1917. It is argued that while that appeal was pending when the second suit was filed, it was not open to the plaintiff to include the earlier claim in the second suit.

There are two answers to this contention. In the first place, it is obvious that after the plaintiff's application to have the order of dismissal in default set aside was rejected, he had no right of appeal at all. In the next place even if he assumed mistakenly that he had a right of appeal, it is clear that that appeal was withdrawn from the Court of the District Judge on the 2nd of March 1918, that is to say, a full month before the decree was passed in the second suit which was brought on the 22nd of December 1917. In other words, the appeal was withdrawn while the second suit was still pending. In these circumstances, we think, the plaintiff cannot be heard to say that he is in any way protested against the operation of O. II, r. 2 by the fact that he had an appeal pending in the Court of the District Judge at the time the second suit was filed. After the appeal was withdrawn any protection which might have accrued to the plaintiff by reason of the appeal having been filed, was taken away and his proper course then was to apply to the Court in which the suit was pending and to ask for amendment of the claim and permission to include in the claim a claim for the years 1st January 1914 to 1st January 1917. We hold that the view taken by the Court below on this point of law is erroneous and the appeal must, therefore, be allowed to this extent. The result is that, allowing the appeal, we direct that the claim of the plaintiff regarding the items accruing due prior to the 1st of January 1918 is dismissed. The rest of the claim is decreed with proportionate costs against the defendants. The defendant-appellant is entitled to proportionate costs in all three Courts.

W. C. A.

Decree modified.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGIAL SIDE APPEAL No. 116 OF 1921.

August 2, 1922.

Present:—Sir Walter Schwabe, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Wallace.

R. A. ARUNACHALA AIYAR—APPELLANT

versus

C. SUBBARAMIAH—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908, O IX, r. 13 —'Sufficient cause', meaning of—Party unable to be in Court in time.

A Court should set aside an ex parte decree if it is satisfied that the defendant did his best to attend Court in time and that he would have got there in time but for the intervention of an inevitable accident for which he was in no way responsible, mulcting, in proper cases, the delinquent in costs. No person should be deprived of a hearing unless there has been something equivalent to misconduct or gross negligence on his part or which cannot be put right, so far as the other side is concerned, by making the person to blame pay for it. [p. 972, col. 1.]

Appeal from the judgment and order of Mr. Justice Phillips, dated the 19th October 1921, and made in the exercise of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court, in Civil Suit No. 578 of 1920

Mr. K. Jagannatha Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Messrs. K. Bashyam Aigangar and V. V. Devanathan, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

SCHWABE, C. J.—I have expressed myself on this subject in fairly strong language before and I propose to do so again.

When, for some reason, a man has not attended a case in Court, and there is no sufficient explanation of his absence, the case by reason of his absence, is allowed to go ex parte. If he comes to Court afterwards and asks that his case may be restored to file, the question to be considered by Court is not whether by some human possibility, being wise after the event, he could not have got there in time or whether a man who studied his Railway Guide a little better, would not have got in another train or taken another route. but whether the man honestly intended to be in Court and did his best, though in his own stupid way, to get there in time: and once the Court is satisfied, as was the fact in this case, that the man did try to get there and that he would have got there in time but for the intervention of an irevitable accident for which he was in no way responsible, it is the duty of the Court, in my judgment, to set aside the judgment, mulcting, in proper cases, the delinquent man in costs. In all those cases, this universal panacea for healing all wounds, as it has been called in England, will properly be applied. It is not right in cases of this kind that the man should have his case disposed of without being heard These Courts are here so that people who have cases can have those cases heard and determined, and it should never be the intention of the Court that a man should be deprived of a hearing unless there has been something equivalent to misconduct or gross negligence on his part or something which cannot be put right, as far as the other side is concerned, by making the man to blame pay for it.

The proper order in this case should have been that the case should be restored to the list and the judgment set aside on payment of all costs thrown away by the defendant, and that is the order that I propose to make. The costs of this appeal will be paid by the respondent. The costs of the application to set aside the judgment before Phillips, J., will be costs in the cause.

WALLACE, J.—I agree. Whether there was negligence precedent or not does not affect the case. Under ordinary conditions, if the appellant had started from Trichinopoly by the evening train on the 12th, he would have been in time for the hearing of this case on the 13th, and the breach on the Railway line is obviously a sufficient cause for his not appearing, and that is the question which the Court had to decide. I am quite clear that there is sufficient cause for his not appearing, and I, therefore, agree with the judgment of the learned Chief Justice.

M. C. P.

Order set aside.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 42 OF 1922.

July 17, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Simpson, A. J. C.

MOHKAM—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

BANSIDHAR AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS

Musammat BHAGWANTA AND OTHERS—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENTS.

Appeal—Plea, new, involving questions of fact, admission of—Hindu Law—Widow—Surrender to reversioner, validity of—Bona fides—Question of fact.

A plea which involves questions of fact which ought to have been decided in the Trial Court and are not decided because the plea was not raised there, cannot be raised at any later stage of the case. [p. 973, cols 1 & 2.]

In the case of a surrender by a Hindu widow in favour of the next reversioner the question whether an undertaking by the reversioner to discharge the existing debts of the widow would invalidate the surrender depends upon the circumstances of each case, the test to be applied being to see whether the transaction is a bona fide surrender or a mere devise to divide the estate with the reversioner. [p 973, cols. 1 & 2]

Appeal from a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Fyzabad, dated the 24th October 1921, upholding a decree of the Munsif, Fyzabad, dated the 24th June 1921.

Messrs. Bisheshwar Nath and J. K. Banerji, for the Appellant.

Mr. Nian at Ullah, for Respondents Nos. 1 and 2.

Mr. A. P. Sen, for Respondent No. 1.

JUDGMENT.—This second appeal is confined to a single point and the appellant cannot take that point because he did not plead it in the Court of Trial.

The suit was one by two remote reversioners brought against a Hindu widow, Musammat Bhagwanta defendant No. 1, her donee Thakur Ram defendant No. 2, the next reversioner Taluqdar Misra defendant No. 3, another reversioner intermediate between the next reversioner and the plaintiff Ram Dutt defendant No. 4, and the vendee of the donee Mohkam defendant No. 5. The suit was one for a declaration that the deed of gift and the donee's sale-deed are both invalid as against the reversioners when Musammat Bhagwanta shall die.

The suit was contested by Mohkam defendant No. 5 only. He denied that the plaintiffs were reversioners at all. He further denied that Musammat Bhagwanta held the property as a Hindu widow. He also raised a plea of limitation and a plea of legal necessity for earlier mortgages which he paid off. He also asserted that there is an heir existing in the family in the person of a daughter's son. Lastly, he claimed the benefit of section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act.

MANINDRA CHANDRA NANDI v. RAM KUMAR LAL BHAGAT.

Issues were framed on these points and along with the issue of legal necessity there was added an issue as to the consent of the next reversioner. All these issues were decided against the defendant and the plaintiff's suit was decreed. The defendant appealed.

The judgment of the lower Court is mainly devoted to various points which had already been considered in the Court of Trial. At the end of the judgment the question whether this gift was valid as an acceleration in favour of a reversioner is discussed. It was raised in the second ground of appeal. I am of opinion that the lower Appellate Court ought not to have allowed the question to be raised at that stage. This appears from the judgment of the lower Appellate Court itself. The plea was repeated on two grounds. First that the transfer is not a transfer of the whole of the husband's estate inasmuch as part of a plot is not covered by the deed of gift. It is argued before me that the lower Appellate Court made a mistake here and that the widow was owner of only one fourth of that plot and she transferred the whole of that one-fourth share. It is admitted that the deed itself contains no statement that the whole of the husband's estate is gifted, but it is said that a comparison between the khewat and the deed of gift will show that nothing was left out. I do not propose to decide the point, but it is plain that the plea of acceleration raised questions of fact which ought to have been decided in the Court of Trial and were not decided because the defendant did not raise the plea there.

The other ground on which the lower Appellate Court proceeded was that the gift was subject to the condition of payment of the donor's debts. It was held by a Bench of the Madras High Court in Rajagopala Surya Rao Bahadur Garu v. Suryanarayana Jagapathi Bahadur Garu (1), that the question whether an undertaking by the reversioner to discharge the existing debts of the widow would invalidate the surrender depends upon the circumstances of each case, the test to be applied being to see whether the transaction is a bona fide surrender or a mere device to divide the estate with the reversioner. On this second point also there were questions of fact to be decided. The appellant's Counsel has abandoned all his other grounds of appeal and the one ground which he wishes to press ought to have been pleaded in the Court of Trial and cannot be taken at any later stage of the case.

For these reasons the defendant's appeal is dismissed with costs in all three Courts.

N. H. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 64 Ind. Cas. 388; 41 M. L. J. 203; 14 L. W. 29; (1921) M. W. N. 431.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE PATNA HIGH COURT

April 3, 1922.

Present:—Lord Shaw, Lord Phillimore, Sir John Edge and Mr. Ameer Ali.

Maharaja SIR MANINDRA CHANDRA NANDI—APPELLANT

versus

RAM KUMAR LAL BHAGAT AND OTHERS RESPONDENTS

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 47, O XXII, r 10—Decree for possession and mesne profits—Execution proceedings—Lessee of defendant, if can be added as party to account for profits—Lease, whether devolution, creation or assignment of interest.

O XXII of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates cases of devolution of interest from some original party to the suit, whether plaintiff or defendant, upon some one else,—the more ordinary cases being death, marriage, insolvency. [p. 976, col. .]

Where during the pendency of a suit, a party is added by devolution, he must take the suit as he finds it, and a judgment already rendered would be binding on him [p 976, col. 1.]

Although a wide construction should be placed upon the provisions of the law with regard to introducing parties by devolution, and although it is desirable that all points should be ascertained in execution proceedings without a fresh suit, yet that which should in reality form the basis of a suit against a separate party, for some act done by himself, cannot be introduced as a question to be tried in execution proceedings. [p. 976, col. 2.]

Prosunno Kumar Sanyal v. Kali Das Sanyal, 19 I. A. 166, 19 C. 685; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 209; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 89 (P. C.), referred to.

In an action to recover possession of land, the plaintiff cannot, after obtaining a decree for possession and mesne profits, add as party to the suit any lessee of the defendant so as to compel him to account for any profits received from the land, as the lease cannot be looked upon as an assignment, creation or devolution of the interest of the defendant within the meaning of O. XXII, r. 10 of the Civil Procedure Code [p 976, col 1.]

Appeal from the order of the Patna High Court (Sir Edward Chamier, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Sharfuddin), dated the 16th November 1916, reported as 38 Ind. Cas. 237, reversing that of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Hazaribagh, dated the 13th November 1914.

JUDGMENT.

LORD PHILLIMORE.—The present respondents brought, as plaintiffs on the 15th April 1907, a suit against Raja Makund Sahi to recover possession of six villages and jungle which they claimed. The Raja defended the action, which in due course came on for trial, and on the 21st September, 1908 the Court of first instance decided against the plaintiffs, and dismissed the suit. Just one year afterwards, on the 21st September 1909, the Raja gave a lease for a term of years of the right of mining for mica, and otherwise exploiting the jungle to the present appellant, whose case is that he had not notice of the pending litigation.

The unsuccessful plaintiffs appealed to the High Court, which on the 15th May 1913 reversed the decision of the first Court and made a decree in favour of the plaintiffs ordering the Raja to put them into possession of the six villages and jungle, and it was further ordered :—

"That the case be sent back to the lower Court [inter alia] to take an account of the mesne profits to which the plaintiffs-appellants are entitled for the three years prior to the institution of the suit, and also for the period thereafter till the delivery of possession or the expiration of three years from this date, whichever event happens earlier."

When the case was accordingly remitted to the Court of first instance, a Commissioner or Amin was appointed to make the necessary enquiry and on the 22nd August 1914 he made his report.

On the 2nd January 1915 the Subordinate Judge recorded that the parties did not object to the report of the Amin and that it might, therefore, be accepted, and he ordered "that the suit be decreed finally; that the Amin's report be considered to be a part of the decree; and that the plaintiffs do recover possession with mesne profits, as determined by the Amin, and the costs of this suit from the defendant with interest at 6 per cent. per annum." In this way the suit came to its natural termination.

It happened, however, that the Amin took a somewhat unusual course in conducting the enquiry which led to his report. When enquiring into the mesne profits he first of all ascertained the rents which the Raja had received from the present appellant and other tenants totalling Rs 42,075, with a further profit of Rs. 500, from the jungle. Not content with this, he proceeded further to enquire what were the profits which the various lessees might be taken to have made from the mica which they had extracted during the terms of their leases pending the somewhat protracted litigation. What exactly was his object in doing this, or who set him in motion to do it is not quite clear. The law as to mesne profits is thus expressed in section 2, sub-section (12) of the Code of Civil Procedure :—

"'Mesne profits' of property means those profits which the person in wrongful possession of such property actually received or might with ordinary diligence have received therefrom, together with interest on such profits, but shall not include profits due to improvements made by the person in wrongful possession."

It might be said that in ascertaining such profits the successful plaintiffs would not be limited to the actual rents which the trespassing defendant had received. And, apart from the question of mesne profits, a claim might have been preferred for damages for the mica actually removed. Again, it would be conceivable that in a suit properly framed the lessees from the Raja, who had, though ignorant of the plaintiffs' title, carried away what was the plaintiff's mica, could be rendered liable for damages in respect of what they had so taken away. But these lessees were not included in the suit. The Amin with some naiveté stated twice in the course of his report that he had had little assistance from the plaintiffs or their agents, who had, in fact, taken very little interest in the execution of the enquiry, and that he obtained his information largely by the help of the defendant Raja and his servants. However he reported under both heads, bringing what he described as the net profit obtained from the mines up to a sum considerably exceeding a lakh of rupees.

The report was in narrative form and finished without any definite recommendation. Whether the conclusion from it was intended to be that the defendant Raja was to pay as mesne profits the rents what he had received or whether he was to pay as mesne profits the net profits of the mines—it could not be both—does not clearly appear; though from what subsequently happened it can almost certainly be inferred that it was only the smaller figure, that is, the sum of the rents. This report having been made and filed, but before it was confirmed, the plaintiffs—the present respondents—relying upon the statements with regard to the profits obtained from the mines, made an application by a petition dated the 4th September 1914. This petition stated that the several lessees had in collusion with the Raja obtained a settlement of the disputed property in an illegal manner, and had misappropriated a large quantity of mica, worth between one and two lakhs of rupees, and prayed that they should be ordered to appear at the time of the ascertainment of the mesne profits so as to have the matter determined and decided in their presence, and that to avoid future objections they should be made defendants. It will be observed that, unless it be inferentially, no relief was claimed against the appellant and the other lessees.

The appellant was summoned, and put in a counter-petition in which he raised various objections or defences. He stated that the plaintiffs had been aware all along of what he was doing under his lease; he claimed that the application was barred by limitation; he said that the application was made in collusion with the defendant Raja; and that since he knew of the plaintiff's claim to the property he had surrendered his lease, namely, on the 1st August 1914; and he disputed the plaintiffs' title to the minerals even on the footing that they were entitled to the land, averring that the minerals belonged to the superior lord, the Zemindar. He also took objection to the form of procedure.

On these statements the matter came before the Subordinate Judge, who on the 13th September 1914 rejected the plaintiffs' application, holding that under the construction of O. XXII, r. 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure there was no such assignment of interest by the defendant Raja to the present appellant and the other lessees as to warrant their being brought into the suit.

From this order the plaintiffs appealed to the High Court. There is no date upon their memorandum of appeal and nothing to show whether it was lodged before or after the order of the 2nd January 1915. It rather looks as if it was later, but it is not material. Their appeal came on before the High Court, which, on the 16th November 1916, allowed the appeal and ordered the Subordinate Judge to make the six tenants, including the present appellant, parties to the suit, and to ascertain the mesne profits in their presence.

It is from this decree that the present appeal is brought.

From a perusal of the order in its bare form it is not easy to see what could be its object. What advantage could it be to the plaintiffs or the defendant Raja that the mesne profits which the defendant Raja was to pay should be assessed in the presence of the lessees? Moreover, they had been already assessed, and that, finally, the report of the Amin had been accepted, and the mesne profits, whatever they were found by it, had been decreed, and the decree had not been appealed from.

But light is thrown by the language of the learned Chief Justice. He says: "In my opinion the appellants are entitled to have the persons in question added as parties to the proceedings and to compel them to account for any profits which they may have received from the land."

This opinion appears to be founded on the language of O. XXII, r. 10, and it is desirable to examine the Code of Civil Procedure with a view to seeing whether it lends support to this opinion. By section 47

"(1) All questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, or their representatives, and relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree, shall be determined by the Court executing the decree and not by a separate suit.

"(2) The Court may, subject to any objection as to limitation or jurisdiction, treat a proceeding under this section as a suit or a suit as a proceeding....."

O. XXII, r. 10, states:—

"(1) In other cases of an assignment, creation or devolution of any interest during the pendency of a suit, the suit may, by leave of the Court, be continued by or against the person to or upon whom such interest has come or devolved."

The High Court appear to consider that in an action to recover possession of land where the defendant while he is in possession has granted leases, proceedings in execution may involve removal of the tenants, and that for such a purpose a lease may be considered an assignment within the meaning of r. 10.

It is unnecessary for their Lordships to express any opinion as to whether this view is right or not, because the appellant is not setting up his lease or claiming to remain in occupation as tenant—on the contrary, he states that he has surrendered his lease—and because the application was not to remove him. The Order contemplates cases of devolution of interest from some original party to the suit, whether plaintiff or defendant, upon someone else. The more ordinary cases are death, marriage, insolvency, and then come the general provisions of r. 10 for all other cases. But they are all cases of devolution. There is, it should be noted in this rule, a significant change of language from that used in the earlier Code, where it is stated in section 372 as follows:—

"In other cases of assignment, creation or devolution of any interest pending the suit, the suit may, with the leave of the Court, given either with the consent of all parties or after service of notice in writing upon them, and hearing their objections, if any, be continued by or against the person to whom such interest has come either in addition to or in substitution for the person from whom it has passed, as the case may require."

The words "in addition to" in the earlier Code have disappeared. But the matter does not rest upon this change. The liability, if any, of the appellant to pay damages for removal of the mica is not a liability which has devolved to him from the defendant Raja. They were both liable, if liable at all, as trespassers, and a case, if any, against the appellant must rest upon his action and the direct relation established thereby between him and the plaintiffs.

Serious injustice would be done if any other view was taken. A party added by devolution during the pendency must take the suit as he finds it. Judgment already rendered would be binding upon him. He would not, in the present case, be able to question the title of the plaintiffs to the mica, though he has a serious contention that the title to the minerals rests with the Zemindar. Again it is all very well to say that the mesne profits, by which is meant the value of the lost mica, are to be ascertained in his presence. There has been at least a preliminary assessment by the Amin which he would have considerable difficulty in setting altogether aside, and this assessment has been made in his absence. He would come before the Subordinate Judge with a preliminary finding against him for over a lakh of rupees. O. XXII, r. 10 does not apply. There has been no assignment, creation or devolution of any interest within the meaning of that rule.

Their Lordships have been reminded of the decision of this Board in the case of Prosunno Kumar Sanyal v. Kali Das Sanyal (1) and of the general principle therein expressed, that a wide construction should be put upon the provisions of the Act with regard to introducing parties by devolution and of the desirability of ascertaining all possible points in execution proceedings without a fresh suit.

But giving all force to these considerations they cannot see how that which should in reality form the basis of an independent suit against a separate party, for some act done by himself, can be introduced as a question to be tried in execution proceedings in another suit. Section 47 of the Act does not apply. If the added persons did commit trespasses, these were distinct ones, and not committed by them as representatives of the original defendant. To hold otherwise would be to confuse the rights.

Considerations both of form and of substance are opposed to the order from which this appeal is brought.

Their Lordships will, therefore, humbly recommend His Majesty that this appeal should be allowed, and the decree of the High Court discharged and the decree of the Subordinate Judge restored, and that the appellant should have his costs before this Board and in the two Courts below.

N. H. & W. C. A. Appeal allowed.

Solicitors for the Appellant.—Messrs. Watkins and Hunter.

Solicitor for the Respondents.—Mr. E. Dalgado.

(1) 19 I. A. 166; 19 C. 683; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 209; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. s.) 898 (P. C.).

WALIUL HAQ v. BIGGAN.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS CIVIL APPLICATION No. 43 OF 1921.

November 17, 1921.

Present:—Mr Daniels, A. J. C.

Qazi WALIUL HAQ—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

Musammat BIGGAN—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 48—Transfer of a share of property—Subsequent transfer of remainder—Property, parts of, subject to incumbrances—Transferees, respective, position of.

On the principle of section 48 of the Transfer of Property Act where separate rights created in favour of different persons can all be exercised without encroaching upon each other they must be treated as relating to different portions of the property. [p. 978, col. 1.]

Mahabir Prasad v. Chhote Singh, 49 Ind. Cas. 39; 21 O. C. 317, referred to.

A. mortgaged a half share in an estate to B. who foreclosed the mortgage and became complete owner. Subsequently to this, A sold the remaining half share to T., but in neither the mortgage-deed nor the sale-deed was there mention of any incumbrance It turned out later that, prior to the mortgage to B., A had mortgaged certain plots to M. and the question was whether those plots should be included in the share foreclosed by A. or in the share sold to T.:

Held, that as the mortgage to B. was not made subject to any prior incumbrances, under the ordinary law A. must be taken to have covenanted to transfer the property free of all incumbrances, and that as the share sold to T was merely what remained after B had obtained his half share, the latter, in partition, was entitled to have the incumbered plots assigned to the share sold to T [p. 978, col. 2.]

Appeal against an order of the Third Additional District Judge, Lucknow, dated the 23rd May 1921, setting aside decree of the Subordinate Judge, Barabanki, dated the 21st June 1920

Messrs. Basudeo Lal and Ram Bharose Lal, for the Appellant.

Mr. Haider Husain, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a second appeal in a suit brought by the plaintiff, Musammat Biggan, for a declaration that she is the exclusive owner of certain of the plots in suit and possesses mortgagee rights in others. The suit arises out of a suit for partition in the Revenue Court in which an order was passed by the Assistant Collector under section 111 (1) (b) of the U. P. Land Revenue Act, 1901, directing the plaintiff to file a suit within three months to establish her title. The original owner of the land was Mahtab Ali alias Saiyid Malhu. Saiyid Malhu owner a one-anna three-pies share. He mortgaged half of this share to Musammat Amiran by a deed dated 27th June 1871. Musammat Amiran foreclosed the mortgage and became complete owner of the half share on 15th May 1878. The defendant-appellant Qazi Waliul Haq is her sucessor-in interest.

On 11th July 1878 Saiyid Malhu sold his remaining half share to one Talib Ali, the predecessor-in interest of the plaintiff. In neither of these documents was there any mention of any incumbrance. It now turns out that certain plots out of the one-anna three pies share had been sold and mortgaged by Saiyid Malhu prior to 27th June 1871 and the question in this appeal is really whether those plots should be included in the share mortgaged to and ultimately foreclosed by Musammat Amiran or in the share sold to Talib Ali and now possessed by the plaintiff.

The Courts below have taken diametrically opposite views of the rights of the parties It is an admitted fact that the plots transferred by Saiyid Malhu prior to 1871 are less than a half share in the property. The learned Subordinate Judge held that as the mortgage to Musammat Amiran was not made subject to any prior incumbrances, under the ordinary law the mortgagor must be taken to have covenanted to transfer the property to her free of all incumbrances. If Musammat Amiran had applied for partition of her mortgaged share she would have been entitled to have it assigned to her free of any incumbrances and to have the incumbered plots assigned to the other half share. Talib Ali was a subsequent transferee from Saiyid Malhu and neither he nor his successor, the plaintiff, can claim to be in a better position than Saiyid Malhu himself would have been. The view taken by the District Judge in appeal was that ordinarily where an undivided share in property is mortgaged or sold the transferee obtains an undivided share in each of the plots comprised in the property of his transferor and, therefore, he held that the burden of the incumbrances must be borne in equal shares by the two parties. As between these opposite views it appears to me that the view taken by the learned Subordinate Judge is correct. The point was raised in a reported case, Mahabir Prasad v. Chhote Singh (1) decided in 1918,

(1) 49 Ind. Cas. 39; 21 O. C. 317.

There it was laid down that on the principle of section 48 of the Transfer of Property Act where separate rights created in favour of different persons can all be exercised without encroaching upon each other they must be treated as relating to different portions of the property. There appears to me no doubt that Musammat Amiran could have insisted on having the mortgaged property assigned to her free of incumbrance and I agree with the learned Subordinate Judge that the plaintiff cannot claim to throw any part of the burden on her. In this Court the learned Counsel for the respondent said he would have accepted this position if the land had remained in possession of Saiyid Malhu, but as his own sale-deed also made no mention of the incumbrances he was equally entitled to have an unincumbered half share of the property transferred to him. This argument, however, loses sight of the fact that the share foreclosed by Musammat Amiran was expressly mentioned and excluded in the sale-deed to Talib Ali. What was sold to him was merely the share which remained after Musammat Amiran had obtained her half share. There are some indications on the record that this is what was understood by the parties at the time. It is significant that while the half share was mortgaged to Musammat Amiran for Rs. 200 the price paid by Talib Ali for the other half was only Rs. 25. Similarly when the plaintiff sued to redeem a mortgage on one of the numbers in suit she did not make the defendant a party. This might, of course, be due to oversight but it might also be due to the fact that she did not regard this number as in any way belonging to the defendant's half share. Similarly Musammat Amiran was not made a party to a redemption suit brought in respect of another of these plots in the year 1872 within a short time after the mortgage to her. These, however, are minor details. Agreeing with the view of the law taken by the learned Subordinate Judge I allow the appeal and setting aside the decree of the lower Appellate Court restore the decree of the Court of first instance with costs in all Courts. The cross-objections filed by the respondents have not been urged and are dismissed but under the circumstances without costs.

W. C. A. & N. H. Appeal allowed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No 1612 OF 1920.

June 29, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Kanhaiya Lal and Mr. Justice Sulaiman.

FAKHRULLAH KHAN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

RAM SARUP—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 13—Foreign territory—Basra, whether under administration of Government of India—Period of absence in Basra, exclusion of.

The fact that the territory of Basra was occupied by troops sent by the Government of India for the campaign in Mesopotamia and that the despatches relating to the operations of those troops were published in the Gazette of India, is insufficient to show that Basra was under the administration of the Government of India; for the purposes, therefore, of section 13 of the Limitation Act, absence in Basra is absence in a foreign territory, and a plaintiff is entitled to deduct the period of such absence from the period of limitation prescribed for a suit to recover on a pro-note executed by the absentee in British India. [p. 979, col. 2.]

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Meerut.

Mr. Lalit Mohan Banerji, for the Appellant.

Mr. Surendro Nath Gupta, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit brought by the plaintiff-respondent for the recovery of money due on a promissory-note executed by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff, on the 12th of April 1913. The promissory note purports to have been executed for Rs. 1,000. The whole of this sum was payable on demand. The allegations of the defendant were that he executed the said promissory-note for Rs. 100, that the plaintiff was not competent to enter into the transaction which resulted in the taking of the promissory-note from the defendant because he was a Government servant and that the claim was barred by limitation.

The Court of first instance found that the promissory-note in question had been executed for Rs. 1,000 by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff on an old account, and that the plaintiff was entitled to sue for the recovery of the money due to him on that document. It further held that the suit had been brought on the 14th of August 1918, after the time allowed by law had expired and that section 13 of the Indian Limitation Act did not save limitation. It, therefore, dismissed the claim. The lower Appellate Court, however, came to the conclusion that section 13 was applicable and that the suit was within time. It decreed the claim accordingly. In the lower Appellate Court the defendant does not appear to have challenged the findings arrived at by the Court of first instance in regard to the question of the genuineness of the promissory note for the amount for which it purported to have been executed or in regard to the right of the plaintiff to file the suit. The only point which appears to have been raised in the lower Appellate Court was whether the suit was barred by time. The promissory note was executed on the 12th of April 1913 at Meerut, where the defendant was employed as a store keeper in the Supply and Transport Department. It is admitted that he left Karachi for France on the 15th of September 1914 and reached France on 13th of October 1914. He remained there till the 15th of December 1915. He then left for Basra where he stayed from the 8th of January 1916 to the 15th of March, 1917, returning to India, on the 21st of March 1917. The present suit was filed on the 14th of August 1918. If the period spent by the defendant in Basra and France be taken into consideration and excluded from the operation of limitation under section 13 of Act IX of 1908, then the present suit would be within time. That section provides that in computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the time during which the defendant had been absent from British India and from the territories beyond British India under the administration of the Government of India, shall be excluded. The term "British India" has been defined in section 3, clause (7) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, as meaning "all territories and places within His Majesty's dominions which are for the time being governed by His Majesty through the Governor General of India or through any Governor or other official subordinate to the Governor General of India." Basra is clearly not within British India. The only question for consideration is whether Basra was a territory outside British India under the administration of the Government of India within the meaning of section 13 of the said Act at the time when the defendant was staying there in military employ.

The Court of first instance refers to the Indian Year Book for 1917, edited by Sir Stanley Reed. There it is stated that "the Indian Expeditionary Force entered the city of Basra on the 23rd of November 1914; and the notables were assembled and a proclamation stating the reasons for the occupation and the friendliness of the British Government, was read and salutes were fired." It is further stated that "the subsequent operations in Mesopotamia remained under the charge of the Government of India; and the War Office did not assume direct responsibility until February 1917." It is true that the troops which took part in the campaign in Mesopotamia were known by the name of the Indian Expeditionary Force, and the despatches relating to its operations were published in the Gazette of India; but that fact is not sufficient to show that Basra was under the administration of the Government of India. Basra was occupied by the British troops or for the matter of that by the troops sent by the Government of India; but the occupation was military occupation for the purpose of proceeding with the expedition and protecting the army on its way onward and securing its safety and support. The territory was, except for those purposes, not under the administration of the Government of India. It was foreign territory under military occupation, the object of which was much more restricted than that of an administration carried on for other purposes, and, in our opinion, section 13 is wide enough to apply to cases of absence in such territory, though it may be under temporary military occupation of the kind above mentioned. We do not see any reason why the plaintiff should not be allowed the benefit of section 13 and we agree with the lower Appellate Court in finding that the period during which the defendant was absent from British India in France and Basra, should be excluded. Taking that view of the matter, the suit of the plaintiff is clearly within time. In First Appeal from Order No. 95 of 1921 (Gaya v. Kunj Behari Singh), decided on the 4th of August 1921, a similar view was maintained. The learned Counsel for the defendant-appellant asks us that the case may be remanded to the lower Appellate Court in order that the other points determined by the Court of first instance may be decided by it; but as there is no affidavit indicating that those points had been taken there, we are unable to accede to that request. The appeal is dismissed with costs.

W. C. A. Appeal dismissed.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

May 25, 1922.

Present:—Lord Buckmaster, Lord Atkinson, Lord Sumner, Lord Carson and Sir John Edge.

THE FORT PRESS COMPANY, LIMITED —DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

THE MUNICIPAL CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BOMBAY AND ANOTHER— PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894)—Acquisition proceedings, commencement of—Owner of land, right of, to effect private sale, if determined.

The commencement of proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act for the acquisition of a piece of land does not estop the owner from entering into a binding agreement for a private sale of the same. Such an agreement can be enforced like any other contract.

Appeal from a decree of the Bombay High Court, (Mr. Justice Heaton and Mr. Justice Marten), dated the 31st July 1919, in Original Civil Jurisdiction Appeal No. 60 of 1919, reported as 48 Ind. Cas. 621 affirming a decree of the same Court (Mr. Justice Macleod) in Original Suit No. 358 of 1918, dated the 24th February 1919.

Messrs. G. I. Talbot, K. C., and A. F. Wootten, K. C., for the Appellants.

Sir George Lowndes, K.C., Mr. W. H. Upjohn, K. C., and Mr. E. B. Raikes, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

LORD BUCKMASTER.—In this case the Corporation of Bombay entered into negotiations during the years 1916 and 1917 with the appellants (The Fort Press Company, Limited) for the purpose of acquiring from them by agreement certain lands that were needed for local purposes. Those negotiations were not successful and on the 26th July 1917, while they were still pending, the Government issued, under the Land Acquisition Act, at the request of the Corporation, a notification that the lands were required to be taken by the Government for a public purpose. That notification was followed in due course by a notice on the 22nd August, 1917, signed by the Deputy Collector of Bombay. The Collector proceeded in accordance with the powers conferred upon him by the Act to hear the dispute, but on the 12th September 1917, the negotiations between the appellants and respondents were re opened and a proposal was made by the Fort Press Company stating that they were willing to accept without prejudice Rs. 1,45,517, inclusive of 15 per cent. for compulsory acquisition and the cost of the chimney as the price of the property, subject to certain specified deductions. This proposal was accepted and approved on behalf of the Corporation of Bombay. This alteration in the position of the parties was brought before the Collector in due course, but at an adjourned hearing on the 27th January 1918 it was denied on behalf of the appellants that any agreement had been reached, and the Collector accordingly further adjourned the proceedings in order that, as their Lordships understand the report of what took place, the parties might take the necessary steps to settle whether or not a bargain had been made. Those steps were taken with promptitude by the respondents, who instituted proceedings in the High Court of Judicature at Bombay on the 12th March 1918, asking for a declaration that there was a contract and for a very large number of points of ancillary relief. They succeeded before both Courts, namely, that exercising Original and that exercising Appellate Jurisdiction and from the latter this appeal has been brought. The foundation of the appellants' case rests on the assertion that when once proceedings for compulsory acquisition have been set on foot, the interested parties cannot come to any binding agreement regulating the amount of the purchase price. There is nothing whatever in the Land Acquisition Act itself to negative any such right. If the parties before the institution of the proceedings contemplated by that Act, chose to agree, they were perfectly competent to do so and there is nothing whatever in the words of the Act to suggest that this power is thereby taken away. The Act certainly does not directly affect such a result, nor can their Lordships ascertain any reason why the fact that compulsory powers have been invoked in order to secure property from unwilling vendors, should be regarded as denuding all parties of rights they possessed before the proceedings began.

In the present case, the Corporation of Bombay enjoys by virtue of its Municipal Act of 1888, express power to acquire immoveable property at certain terms and rates and prices as may be thought right by the Commissioner when approved by the Corporation, and consequently the Board is not faced with the consideration of the question as to whether there was any initial informality in the power of the respondents to do what they have done

Their Lordships think that the agreement made, which is now established beyond dispute, is an agreement which bound the parties and that the High Court exercising their appellate jurisdiction, were right in the view they took.

Their Lordships' opinion is not intended to interfere with the jurisdiction of the Collector. It may be a very unusual thing that he should proceed to determine what in his view the prize should be, after he had evidence of a complete contract on the point, but if he thought right to do so their Lordships' judgment will not affect his taking such a course. All they decide is that the parties who were competent before the proceedings to agree what they thought was the right price for the property remain competent after the proceedings and an agreement so made is capable of being enforced in the Courts in the ordinary way.

For these reasons, in their Lordships' opinion, this appeal fails and must be dismissed with costs, and their Lordships will humbly advise His Majesty accordingly.

N. H. Appeal dismissed.

Solicitors for the Appellants:—Messrs. E. F. Turner & Sons.

Solicitors for the Respondents.—Messrs. Sanderson, Lee, Eddis & Tennant.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 841 OF 1921.

July 4, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Stuart and Mr. Justice Sulaiman.

JUGAL KISHORE—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 30, 31—"Against a carrier for losing or injuring goods," meaning of—Loss, time of, proof of—Onus—Non-delivery of goods—No refusal to deliver—Limitation, operation of—Reasonable time for delievery.

Art. 30 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act refers to losing or injuring goods by the Carrier, and not by the consignee, that is to say, time begins to run from the time when the Carrier lost or injured the goods, and not from the time when the consignee may be said to have suffered loss. The words "against a Carrier for losing or injuring goods", obviously suggest not a mere loss of goods to the owner, which might be caused by non-delivery, but an actual losing of goods by the Carrier himself, and the burden of proving that the goods were lost more than one year before the institution of a suit for damages, is on the Carrier [p. 982, col 2.]

Fakir Chand v. Secretary of State for India in Council, 19 Ind. Cas. 477; 170 P. L. R. 1913; 122 P. W. R. 1913, followed.

There is no inflexible rule that, in an action to recover damages for non-delivery of goods against a carrier, time, under Art. 31 of Sch I to the Limitation Act, must begin to run from the expiry of the ordinary period of transit. [p. 983, col 2.]

In an action for damages for non-delivery of goods consigned to a Railway Company, where no time is fixed for delivery, if the correspondence between the parties shows that the matter was being inquired into and that there was no refusal to deliver well within a year of the suit, Art. 31 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act cannot be pleaded as a bar, for, in such a case, it cannot be said that the suit was brought more than a year from the expiry of a reasonable time within which the goods should have been delivered [p. 983, col. 1.]

Madras and Southern Marhatta Railway Co. v. Bhimappa, 17 Ind. Cas. 409; 2 M. L. J. 511, relied on.

Mutsaddi Lal v. Bombay Baroda and Central India Railway Co., 58 Ind Cas 547; 18 A. L. J. 377; 2 U. P. L. R. (A.) 84 42 A. 360, Great Indian Peninsular Railway v Ganpat Rai, 10 Ind. Cas. 122: 33 A. 544; 8 A. L. J. 543, distinguished.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Allahabad

Dr. Kailas Nath Katju, for the Appellant.

Mr. Ladli Prasad Zutshi, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is a plaintiff's appeal arising out of a suit for recovery of damages for non-delivery of goods.

On the 28th August, 1918, the plaintiff purchased certain bales of cloth at Bombay, which his commission agents made over to the G. I. P. Railway for transmission to Chunar, which is on the E I. Railway line, and duly obtained a Railway receipt for it. The goods, however, never reached Chunar. Hence the claim.

Both the Railway Companies pleaded the bar of limitation, and both tried to throw the responsibility on the other. The G. I. P. Railway Company asserted that the goods were handed over to the E. I. Railway, at Manikpur junction, while the E. I. Railway Company denied having received the goods at all. At the trial no dispute was raised as to the amount of damages claimed, nor was any issue struck on the point

Both the Courts below have found that the plaintiff has not yet received the goods and has suffered loss; and further that the plea raised by the E. I. Railway Company that they never received the goods, was incorrect, and that in fact the goods did arrive at Allahabad but owing to a mistake made by the Goods Clerk, they were despatched to Chupra instead of Chunar: they have however, reluctantly dismissed the claim as being time-barred and have directed the parties to bear their own costs.

The treatment accorded to the plaintiff is unfortunately not the first which a consignee has had to suffer. When there was a delay in the arrival of the goods, the plaintiff started writing to both the Companies, who delayed action by the plaintiff by informing him that the matter was under enquiry. A perusal of the lengthy correspondence that ensued shows that the plaintiff was all along made to believe that enquiry was being made. A letter on the 25th February 1919 stated that the matter had been referred to the General Traffic Manager. One of the 3rd April 1919 showed that the matter was still under enquiry. That of the 19th April 1919 asked the plaintiff to be at the station to receive the goods.

On the 22nd April 1919 the plaintiff was required to send a copy of the bejuk and the letter of the 19th June 1919 told him that the matter was receiving "special attention" and that of the 12th July 1919 that "the subject was receiving best attention."

In December 1919 the plaintiff was asked to call personally. In January and February 1920, the E. I. Railway Company was still asking for particulars of the contents of the bales. On the 31st March 1920 the suit was actually instituted.

The recital of these few dates alone is sufficient to show that the plaintiff was never informed what had happened to the goods whether they were lost, injured or misdelivered nor was he told when and where they were lost or injured. On the other hand, he was all along assured that inquiry was being made, which naturally made him wait. This assurance was continued even after the expiry of the period of one year which is now pleaded as a bar. When the E. I. Railway Company, by its own conduct, made the plaintiff await the result of the enquiry, it is rather startling to find the plea of limitation raised in defence on its behalf. However, as the Companies' agents have thought fit to raise the plea, we are bound to consider it. The defendant Componies plead the bar of Arts. 30 and 31 of the Limitation Act.

Art. 30 applies to suits for compensation for losing or injuring goods, and the period is one year from the date when the loss or injury occurs. It is obvious that the Article refers to losing or injuring goods by the carrier and not by the plaintiff, that is to say, time begins to run from the time when the carrier lost or injured the goods, and not from the time when the consignee may be said to have suffered loss. This was the view expressed by Rattigan, J., in Fakir Chand v. Secretary of State for India in Council (1), following an earlier case of the Punjab Chief Court. We agree with his view that the words "against a carrier for losing or injuring goods obviously suggest not a mere loss of the goods to the owner, which might be caused by misdelivery, but an actual losing of goods by the carrier himself." Now, as we have already remarked, the Companies do not suggest when and where the loss took place The burden of proving when the goods were lost was decidedly on the Companies, and it not being proved that the goods were lost by them more than one year before the institution of the suit, the claim is not barred by Art. 30.

Art. 31 fixes one year from the date when the goods ought to have been delivered and applies to suits to recover compensation for non-delivery. It is to be noted that in the present case no time was fixed for the delivery of goods, and the correspondence between the parties shows that the matter was being inquired into and that there was no refusal to deliver, up to well within a year of the suit. In the circumstances of the case we are unable to hold that the suit was instituted more than a year from the expiry of a reasonable time within which the goods should have been delivered. This view is fully supported by the case of Madras and Southern Marhatta Railway Co. v. Bhimappa (2).

(1) 19 Ind. Cas. 477; 170 P. L. R. 1913; 122 P. W. R. 1913.

The Courts below have relied on the case of Mutsaddi Lal v. Bombay Baroda and Central India Railway Co. (3). That was a peculiar case. The plaintiff had consigned the goods on the 16th January 1913, and in February 1914 the plaintiff was distinctly informed that the goods were not lost but were lying in their Lost Property Office as delivery had not been claimed by any one, and that he should take delivery there. And yet the suit was not instituted till the 7th January 1919, the plaintiff claiming extension of time because of a letter of the 17th of March 1916, under which the Company had offered to pay him something as compensation. Banerji, J., held that that letter did not amount to an acknowledgment of liability so as to give a fresh start. On that finding the claim was clearly barred by time. It is true that in the body of the judgment there is a remark which may suggest that limitation begins to run from the expiry of the ordinay period of transit, but that ramark is an obiter dictum as the point was not a point which had to be decided in that appeal. It, however, finds support from an earlier case, Great Indian Peninsular Railway v. Ganpat Rai (4), but this also is distinguishable from the present case. The judgment in that case does not show that the Company had been assuring the plaintiff that enquiry was being made or that he waited in pursuance of such an assurance.

In the present case, when the plaintiff had all along been assured that enquiry was being made, and he had even hopes of recovering the goods til September 1919, it cannot be said that his claim was filed more than a year after the date when the goods ought to have been delivered. We do not recognise any inflexible rule that time must begin to run from the expiry of the ordinary period of transit.

We are, therefore, of opinion that the claim is not barred by time. The result is that we allow the appeal, set aside the decrees of the Courts below and decree the plaintiffs' suit with costs in all Courts.

W. C. A. & M. H. Appeal allowed.

(2) 17 Ind. Cas. 419; 23 M. L. J. 511.
(3) 58 Ind. Cas. 547; 18 A. L. J. 377; 2 U. P. L. R. (A.) 84; 42 A. 390.
(4) 10 Ind. Cas. 122; 33 A 541; 8 A. L. J. 543.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CITY CIVIL COURT APPEAL No. 49 OF 1921.

March 10, 1922.

Present :—Mr. Justice Coutts-Trotter and Mr. Justice Ramesam.

M. DORAISAMY AIYANGAR—DEFENDANT No. 1—APPELLANT

versus

K. NARAYANA AIYANGAR AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

City Civil Court Act (Mad. VII of 1892), s. 3—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), ss. 19, 41—Landlord and tenant—Suit in ejectment—Jurisdiction of Madras City Civil Court.

The jurisdiction of the Madras City Civil Court to entertain a suit in ejectment against a tenant is not barred by reason of section 4 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act read with section 3 of the Madras City Civil Court Act.

Section 41 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act relates only to applications and not to suits.

Abdul Rahim Sahib v. Gangathara Aiyar, 37 Ind. Cas. 436; 4 L. W. 402, Kalyanchand Lalchand v. Sitabai Dhanasa, 23 Ind. Cas. 325; 38 B. 309; 16 Bom. L. R. 5 and Venkata Chandrappa Nayanivaru v. Venkatrama Reddi, 22 M. 256; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 182, distinguished.

Appeal against a decree of the City Civil Court, Madras, in Original Suit No. 71 of 1921.

FACTS appear from the judgment.

Messrs. K. S. Jayarama Aiyar and A. N. Krishna Aiyangar, for the Appellant.—There is a special procedure prescribed for ejectment under section 41 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act. The plaintiff should have gone to the Small Cause Court. The City Civil Court's jurisdiction is barred under section 3 of the City Civil Court Act.

Reference was made to Abdul Rahim Sahib v. Gangathara Aiyar (1), Kalyanchand Lalchand v. Sitabai Dhanasa (2) and Venkata Chandrappa Nayanivaru v. Venkatrama Reddi (3).

Mr. W. V. Rangaswami Aiyangar, for the Respondents.—What is provided for in section 41 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act is an application. Under section 19 this suit is not cognizable as a suit by the Small Cause Court.

JUDGMENT.—The first point in this appeal is whether the cognizance of the suit by the City Civil Court is barred by section 3 of the City Civil Court Act (VII of 1892). The appellant relies on section 41 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882) and contends that, because an application to eject a tenant could be filed in the Small Cause Court, the present suit before the City Civil Court is barred. We do not think this contention is tenable, the present suit before the City Civil Court is obviously not cognizable by the Small Cause Court (vide section 19 of Act XV of 1882). What is cognizable is merely an application. O. VI, r. 3 of the Rules for the Presidency Small Cause Courts, no doubt, says that an application under section 41 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act shall be in the form of a plaint, but on this ground the application does not become a suit. We, therefore, feel that the present suit was not cognizable by the Small Cause Court as a suit and, therefore, section 3 of the City Civil Court Act does not prohibit its being filed before the City Civil Court. The case of Abdul Rahim Sahib v. Gangathara Aiyar (1) has no bearing on the point before us. It decides that suits under sections 47 and 49 of the Small Cause Courts Act should be filed before the High Court. Kalyanchand Lalchand v. Sitabai Dhanasa (2) and Venkata Chandrappa Nayanivaru v. Venkatrama Reddi (3) deal with the construction of section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code and, therefore, cannot help us in construing section 3 of the City Civil Court Act.

Coming to the merits, it has been contended that the evidence does not support the finding that the plaintiff is a tenant under the Official Assignee and that the first defendant is a sub tenant under the plaintiff. It is also contended that the title of the plaintiff is really a title to the whole lease-hold interest of the insolvent Srinivasa Aiyangar by assignment from the Official Assignee and, as he has not got a registered instrument, the plaintiff is not in a position to prove his title. It seems to us that the evidence of the plaintiff supported as it is by Exhibit E which the lower Court has found to be genuine, conclusively shows that the original arrangement entered into by the second defendant Venkatapathy Aiyangar with the Official Assignee was really on behalf of the plaintiff, that the second defendant was benamidar for the plaintiff, that the second defendant (representing the plaintiff) was a tenant under the Official Assignee and that the first defendant was a sub tenant under the plaintiff. Whether the transaction between the Official Assignee and the plaintiff actually amounts to an assignment or only a lease of the lease hold right need not be decided. It is enough that the 1st defendant holds as a tenant under the plaintiff and the amount of Rs. 980 which he has been paying to plaintiff is clearly a balance of rent of Rs. 30 for which he has been holding the premises under the plaintiff, he having paid Rs. 208-0 directly to the Official Assignee. The findings of the City Civil Judge are correct and the decree of the lower Court will be modified by giving credit to all the amounts paid by the first defendant to the Official Assignee. Otherwise the appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

M. C. P.

Decree modified.

(1) 37 Ind. Cas. 486; 4 L. W. 402.
(2) 28 Ind. Cas. 325; 38 B. 309; 16 Bom. L. R. 5.
(3) 22 M. 256 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 182.

INDERPAL SINGH v. BAFATI.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISIONS NOS. 4 AND 5 OF 1922.

June 27, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ryves.

INDERPAL SINGH—APPLICANT

versus

BAFATI AND OTHERS—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s 102—Suit for rent or damages for not raising crop—Civil Court, jurisdiction of.

A suit by a landlord against his tenant for rent or damages for not raising a crop is a suit under section 102 of the Agra Tenancy Act, and is excluded from the jurisdiction of a Civil Court [p. 986, col 1.]

Lalji Panday v. Berhamdeo Panday, 13 Ind. Cas. 29; 16 C. W. N. 89, referred to.

Civil revision against an order of the Judge, Court of Small Causes, Basti.

Mr. Hornandun Prasad, for the Applicant.

Mr. Agha Haider, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—The facts giving rise to this application in civil revision are as follows :—

The plaintiff, the Raja of Mahson, is the Zemindar of the holding in dispute. The defendant is its occupancy tenant and holds it on batai rent, that is to say, the rent payable by him is half the crop raised each year payable in kind. It is alleged that in the year 1327 Fasli, the defendant purposely did not sow the land, so that there was no crop.

The plaintiff sued the defendant for arrears of his rent in that year, in the Revenue Court. The pleadings are not before me.

From the judgment of the Assistant Collector, it appears that that Court dismissed the suit, on the ground that the patwari proved that no crop had been raised on the land. On appeal, the Collector contented himself with dismissing the appeal in a judgment of a few lines, without any discussion. That litigation ended there. I presume it could have been taken further, but as the pleadings are not before me, I cannot say. But anyhow I think it unnecessary to pursue that question further. The Revenue Court did not refuse to hear and decide the suit ; but decided it rightly or wrongly (it is immaterial which) apparently on its merits on the evidence before it.

In 1328 Fasli the defendant again did not sow the land ; hence this suit, which was brought to recover Rs. 30 as damages in the Court of Small Causes at Basti.

The learned Judge says : "Rents in cash or kind are recoverable only through the Revenue Court. It is true, liability for rent in case of intentional non production is not specially provided for in the Tenancy Act; but there does not seem to be any difference in principle in the case of non-production of crops in any particular year, and the case of removal of crops after production but before appraisement, for the purpose of estimating rent provided for in section 104, clause 4 of the Act." He, accordingly, held, that the suit was exclusively triable by the Revenue Court, and ordered the plaint to be returned for presentation to the proper Court.

The plaintiff comes here in revision. It is strenuously argued, on his behalf, that section 102 (1) of the Act, read with section 104, (having especial regard to the wording of clause 4) enables a Revenue Court to give relief where the rent is payable in kind, only when a crop has in fact been grown. If a tenant deliberately refuses to sow the land, he commits a breach of his implied covenant to sow and cultivate the land with due diligence, and that, therefore, as to rent can be ever ascertained there being no crop, much less can it be recovered on the basis of half of the harvested crop, his only remedy is to sue for damages for breach of contract.

In order, prima facie, to decide a question of jurisdiction, it is necessary to examine the plaint. Before proceeding further, therefore, I will give a summary of the plaint.

Paragraph 1 describes the plaintiff as the landlord, and the defendant as his occupancy tenant of the land in dispute. Paragraph 2 states, that the land was let to the defendant on the agreement (and according to a prevalent custom) that the tenant should cultivate the land and sow crops, and that the Zemindar should receive half of the produce by way of rent. Paragraph 3.—"The defendant is obstinate and headstrong, and in order to cause loss to the plaintiff did not sow the land during 1327 Fasli, but left it fallow, with the result that the plaintiff suffered a loss of Rs. 30, which he is entitled to recover from the defendant." Paragraph 4.—As the lands are occupancy holdings of the defendant, the plaintiff cannot get them cultivated by other tenants. Paragraph 5.—

HAMID MIRZA BEG v. AHMAD MIRZA BEG.

The plaintiff often demanded "damages or rent," (harja wa nuksan ya lagan) from the defendant, but he refused. Paragraph 6.—The plaintiff has suffered loss from the unlawful action of the defendant, and as long as the defendant does not sow any crops in the suit lands, so long it is impossible for the plaintiff to realize the batai rent (rent in kind) through the Revenue Courts. The suit for arrears of rent was dismissed by the Rent Court; and the plaintiff has no remedy except to bring a suit for damages in this Court.

It seems to me that, from a perusal of the plaint itself, the suit was within the cognizance of the Revenue Courts. Admittedly the relationship of landlord and, tenant subsists, and the rent has not been paid, and the plaintiff prays to recover Rs. 30, "damages or rent". I think, for reasons recorded below, this suit falls within a suit contemplated by section 102 of the Tenancy Act, having regard to the explanatory words of the Fourth Schedule, Serial No. 2.

Section 167 of the Tenancy Act, I think, puts the matter beyond doubt. It provides that "all suits.....of the nature specified in the Fourth Schedule shall be heard and determined by the Revenue Courts; and, except in the way of appeal, as hereinafter provided, no Court other than a Revenue Court shall take cognizance of any dispute or matter in respect of which any such suit.....might be brought." Turning to the Fourth Schedule, I find included in it Serial No. 2, i. e., a suit under section 102 of the Act "for arrears of rent, or where rent is paid in kind, for money equivalent of such rent." It seems to me, that this suit comes within section 102, as explained in the schedule. These words "or where rent is paid in kind, for money equivalent of such rent," was first introduced into the Tenancy Legislation of these Provinces, by section 93 (a) of Act XII of 1881, apparently to give effect to the ruling of the Full Bench of this Court, in Tajuddin v. Ram Parshad (1). Apart, however, from the broad question whether such a suit lies in a Civil Court, I think, the present suit is excluded from the cognizance of the Small Cause Court, in which it was filed by Art. 8 of the Second Schedule to Act XI of 1887. The case of Lalji Panday v. Berhamdeo Panday (2) is exactly in point. There Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ., discuss the law at length. I reject the application with costs.

W. C. A.

Application rejected.

(1) 1 A. 217; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 127.

(2) 13 Ind. Cas. 29; 16 C. W. N. 83.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 69 OF 1921.

July 10, 1922.

Present :—Mr. Simpson, A. J. C., and Syed Wazir Hasan, A. J. C.

HAMID MIRZA BEG AND ANOTHER —PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

AHMAD MIRZA BEG—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Pleadings—Amendment—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VI, r. 17—New case, when can be allowed to be introduced—Suit, events happening subsequent to institution of—Declaration of title, suit originally brought for—Possession, relief as to, becoming necessary—Trial Court, power of—Plaint, amendment of.

An amendment in the pleadings should be made if thereby the real substantial question can be raised between the parties and multiplicity of legal proceedings avoided. [p 988, col 1.]

Kurtz v. Spence, (1887) 36 Ch D. 770 at p. 774; 58 L. T. 320; 36 W. R. 488, followed.

Order VI, r. 17, Civil Procedure Code, will not exclude an amendment which has the effect of introducing a new case simply because it does so: but such an amendment would be refused if the new case sought to be introduced could more conveniently be the subject of a fresh action [p. 989, col. 1.]

Budding v. Murdoch, (1878) 1 Ch. D 42; 45 L. J. Ch. 212; 24 W. R. 23 and Raleigh v. Goschen, (1898) 1 Ch. 73 at p. 78; 67 L. J. Ch. 59; 77 L. T. 423; 46 W. R. 90; 14 T. L. R. 36, relied on.

Northampton Coal Co v. Midland Waggon Co., (1878) 7 Ch. D. 500; 38 L T. 82; 26 W. R. 485 and Crosfield & Sons Limited v. Manchester Ship Canal Co. (1904) 2 Ch. D. 123; 73 L J. Ch. 345; 52 W. R. 635; 90 L. T. 557; 20 T. L. R. 371, referred to.

If events which have happened subsequent to the institution of a suit render the relief prayed for useless, if granted, and introduce matters which become the real questions in controversy between the parties, a Court of Original Jurisdiction at any rate has power to order such an amendment as may be necessary for the purpose of determining questions so arising. [p. 988, col. 1.]

Where a suit as originally brought is for a mere declaration of title, but subsequent events render it necessary to claim possession of the property to which the title related, the Trial Court is quite competent to order amendment of the plaint so as to include the relief as to possession as well. [p. 988, cols. 1 & 2.]

Govinda v. Perumdevi, 12 M. 186; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 444, distinguished.

Appeal from a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Sitapur, dated 20th July 1921 and 20th August 1921.

Dr. J N. Mirza assisted by Mr. Muhammad Arabi, for the Appellants.

Mr. Haider Husain, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal from the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Sitapur, dated the 20th August 1921, dismissing the plaintiffs' suit with costs. The plaintiffs prayed in their plaint for the following reliefs :—

(a) That the defendant has ceased to fill the position of the taluqdar of the estate.

(b) That the plaintiff No. 1 is entitled to the position of the taluqdar and shall be entitled to the possession of the estate on the termination of Receivership

(c) That if for any reason the plaintiff No. 1 be not held entitled to the position of the taluqdar a declaration be made to the effect that the plaintiff No. 2 is entitled to the position of a taluqdar and to the possession of the estate on the termination of the Receivership.

The ground of action was founded upon the terms of an agreement between the parties dated the 12th July 1919 and it is urged that the defendant has forfeited his right to continue in possession of the estate and that the plaintiffs or one of them are or is, as the case may be, entitled to enter into possession. In paragraph 12 of the plaint it was stated that "as the Receiver is now in possession a declaration in favour of the plaintiffs will be sufficient." The claim was valued at five lacs of rupees and a Court-fee of Rs. 10 was paid on the ground that the reliefs prayed for were merely declaratory.

It appears that one Rani Abadi Begam, the daughter of the last holder of the estate had obtained a decree for dower due to her mother in a suit which she had brought against all the parties to this litigation. With a view to facilitate the satisfaction of that decree a Receiver was appointed by the Court on the 7th March 1917, who duly entered into possession of the estate, and it is common ground that on the date of the present suit, that is, the 15th April 192 , the Receiver was in possession of the estate. The Receiver was, however, discharged by the Court on the 19th May 1921, whereupon the Court directed the plaintiffs to amend their plaint by adding a relief for possession of the property and to pay the proper Court-fee with reference to that relief. It granted one month's time for the necessary amendment and the payment of the requisite Court fee and further directed that in case of default the suit would stand dismissed with costs. The plaintiffs failed to make the amendment and to pay the necessary Court-fee within the time limited by the Court. The result was that their suit was dismissed as already indicated.

It is argued in appeal before us that the claim as made in the plaint for mere declaratory reliefs was a competent claim having regard to the circumstances at the date of the institution of the suit and that the subsequent discharge of the Receiver did not and should not affect the plaintiffs' suit. In view of the opinion which we have formed in respect of this appeal and which we shall shortly express, we deem it wholly unnecessary to decide the question whether the plaintiffs were able to seek further relief upon a mere declaration of title on the date of the suit or not.

It is admitted in the plaint that the only bar to a relief for recovery of possession of the estate was the fact that the Receiver was in such possession on the date of the suit. It is quite clear, therefore, that whatever the nature of the possession of the Receiver was it ceased on the 19th May 1921 when the Court removed the Receiver and it is not disputed that since that point of time the defendant is in complete possession of the Aurangabad estate, which is the estate in dispute. It would, therefore, follow that no further ground remained for the plaintiffs to continue to restrict their suit to mere declaratory reliefs and not to seek the only proper relief in the circumstances of ejectment of the defendant. We think that the lower Court was perfectly justified in ordering the amendment of the plaint in the manner in which it did. Rule 17 of O. VI of the Code of Civil Procedure lays down that "all such amendments shall be made as may be necessary for the purpose of determining the real questions in controversy between the parties." On the happening of the event of the discharge of the Receiver the only controversy between the parties lay on the question of the plaintiffs' right to eject the defendant. It is obvious that this controversy cannot be determined without trying the issue which would raise the question of the right of the plaintiffs to enter into the possession of the property as against the defendant. It has always been held that an amendment in the pleadings should be made if thereby the real substantial question can be raised between the parties and multiplicity of legal proceedings avoided Kurtz v. Spence (1). It need hardly be pointed out that in the altered condition of things a declaration of the nature sought for by the plaintiffs would, if granted, have proved only useless. A second suit for recovery of possession will be necessary. There is no authority for the proposition that if events which have happened subsequent to the institution of a suit render the relief prayed for useless, if granted, and introduce matters which become the real questions in controversy between the parties a Court of Original Jurisdiction at any rate has no power to order such an amendment as may be necessary for the purpose of determining questions so arising.

Reliance was placed by the Counsel for the appellants on the decision of the Madras High Court in the case of Govinda v. Perumdevi (2). In that case a suit was brought for a declaration that certain alienations of land made by a Hindu widow were not binding on the plaintiff. The suit was dismissed by the Court of first instance on the ground that the plaintiff's right was a contingent one and not a vested interest. Pending the appeal by the plaintiff in the High Court the widow died and the plaintiff then sought leave to amend the plaint so as to claim possession as a consequential relief. The respondents, however, seem to have drawn the attention of the learned Judges to the proviso of section 42 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), with regard to which they made the following observations:—"But this direction obviously refers to the position of the plaintiff when he commenced the suit and can not be treated as taking away a right of suit which had already accrued. We do not consider that the proviso is applicable to this case, for when the Court once acquires jurisdiction it cannot be divested of it except under some provision of law. The Appellate Court has only to see as a Court of error that the decree under appeal was correct or otherwise when it was passed." We are led to presume on the basis of these observations and the circumstances in which they were made that the object of the respondents was to obtain an order for the dismissal of the appeal on the ground that the proviso to section 42 of the Specific Relief Act applied to the case. It is quite clear that the learned Judges refused to do so. On the question of amendment the learned Judges expressed the following opinion.—"The next question for consideration is whether, in the event that has arisen, the original plaint may be amended. The right disclosed by the plaint was a right to sue for a mere declaration of title, and it has now ceased and is replaced by a right to sue for possession by reason of the reversion having become an estate vested in possession. The amendment would substantially alter the original cause of action and rest on an event which did not occur until after the suit had been instituted and been dealt with by the Court of first instance We are of opinion that the amendment asked for cannot be made at this stage of the suit." We need express no opinion on the question as to whether a relief for a declaration of title and a further relief for possession on the basis of the same title discloses two different causes of action or not, but we incline to the view that they do not, though the event which made the relief for the recovery of possession available happened subsequent to the institution of the suit. It is clear to our mind that the learned Judges were greatly influenced by the fact that the amendment was sought for in the Court of Appeal and they expressed no opinion as to whether if such an amendment is sought for at an early stage of the suit in the Court of first instance the prayer should be disallowed. In the case before us the amendment in question was ordered to be made even before the defendant had filed his written statement. We may observe in passing that the law relating to amendments as contained in r. 17 of O. VI will not exclude an amendment which has the effect of introducing a new case simply because it does so [Budding v. Murdoch (3)]. But such an amendment would be refused if the new case sought to be introduced could more conveniently be the subject of a fresh action. [Raleigh v. Goschen (4)]. In the case of [Northampton Coal Co v. Midland Waggon Co. (5)]. A Company in liquidation desired to amend by raising a new case which would greatly increase costs, it was ordered to give security for costs. In Crosfield & Sons Limited v. Manchester Ship Canal Co. (6) the defendant Company was allowed at the trial to plead ouster of jurisdiction, although the point was not raised on the pleading.

(1) (1837) 36 Ch. D. 770 at p. 774; 58 L. T. 320; 36 W. R. 438.

(2) 12 M. 136; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 444.

We are, therefore, satisfied that the learned Subordinate Judge properly exercised his powers in ordering the amendment which he did and that the plaintiffs not having complied with that order must bear the consequences. The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

W. C. A. Appeal dismissed.

(3) (1876) 1 Ch. D. 42; 45 L. J. Ch. 213; 24 W. R. 23.
(4) (1898) 1 Ch. 73 at p. 78; 67 L. J. Ch. 59; 77 L. T. 429; 46 W. R 90; 14 T. L. R. 36.
(5) (1878 7 Ch. D. 500; 38 L. T. 82; 26 W. R. 485.
(6) (1904) 2 Ch. D 123 73 L. J. Ch. 345; 52 W. R. 635; 90 L. T. 557; 20 T. L. R. 371.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.
FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No 236 OF 1920.
June 29, 1922.
Present:—Mr. Justice Lindsay and Mr. Justice Kanhaiya Lal.
BAHADUR SINGH AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS
versus
Musammat MOHNI KOER—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), s. 107—Partition—"Co-sharer," meaning of—Childless Hindu widow, right of.

The word "co-sharer," in section 107 of the U. P. Land Revenue Act, means a recorded co-sharer of some kind of proprietary interest in the mahal and not a person entitled merely to collect rents or realise a share of the profits on behalf of the proprietor, such as a mortgagee, lessee, or thekadar or an assignee of the rents [p. 990, cols. 1 & 2.]

A childless Hindu widow who succeeds to her deceased husband's share in a mahal, such share having been his separated property, is as much entitled as any other recorded co-sharer to claim a perfect partition of her share, if her name was recorded, though she might not be competent to alienate the same for certain limited purposes. [p. 990, col. 2.]

Bhoop Singh v. Phool Kower, 2 Agra H C. R. 368 and Jhunna Kuar v. Chain Sukh, 3 A. 400; A. W. N. (1881) 8; 2 Ind. Dec (N. s.) 221, followed.

Habibullah v. Kushimba, 3 A. L. J. 481; A. W. N. (1906) 199, Mahadeo Singh v. Deo Koer, 9 O C. 53, Sundar v. Parbati, 12 A. 51; 16 I. A. 186; 5 Sar, P. C. J. 448; 6 Ind Dec (N s.) 782 (P. C.) Hari Narayan v Vatai, 3 B 560; 9 Bom. L R. 1049, Durga Dutt v. Gita, 9 Ind Cas 498; 33 A 443; 8 A. L. J. 220, Raghubir Singh v Janki Kuar, 52 Ind. Cas 11; 22 O C. 117 at p 120; 6 O L. J. 282, referred to.

Neman v Jas Kunwar, 21 Ind Cas 449 35 A. 527; 11 A L J. 833 and Kailashi Kunwar v. Badri Prashad, 21 Ind Cas. 49; 35 A. 548; 11 A. L. J. 849, distinguished.

First appeal from a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Aligarh.

Mr. Uma Shankar Bajpai, for the Appellants.

Mr. Durga Prasad, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The dispute in this appeal relates to a one-third share of the village Sewai Raghunathpur. An application was made by the defendant-respondent for a partition of that share in the Revenue Court. It was opposed by the plaintiffs, who own another one-third share in the same village. Their contention was that the defendant held only a life-interest therein and was entitled to get the profits of that share for her life but was not entitled to claim a partition.

The Revenue Court directed the objectors to get the question of proprietary title determined by the Civil Court; and the present suit was consequently filed by them for a declaration that the defendant had only a life interest in the disputed property and was not entitled to claim a partition. The Court below found against them and dismissed the suit.

The entire two-thirds share belonged originally to Bisheshar Nath, the father of the defendant respondent. On the 19th March 1888 he executed a Will, by virtue of which he devised his entire property in favour of his nephew, Parmanand, with the exception of certain interests, which he had reserved in favour of his wife, Musammat Champa Kuer, and his daughter, Musammat Mohini Kuer, and another person named Bhaggu Lal. Musammat Champa Kuer, and Musammat Mohini Kuer were allowed the said two-thirds share in the village Sawai Raghunathpur in equal parts with full power to realize and enjoy the profits of their respective shares in any way they liked; but they were not given any authority to make a transfer of the property bequeathed to them. On the death of Musammat Champa Kuer, her share was to devolve on Parmanand or his sons and heirs; and on the death of Musammat Mohini Kuer, the share given to her was to devolve on her own sons or grand-sons, if any, or if she had no male issue or grand-sons, on Parmanand or his sons and heirs. On the death of Bisheshar Nath, the names of Musammat Champa Kuer and Musammat Mohini Kuer were entered in the revenue papers. On the death of Musammat Champa Kuer, her share devolved on Hanuman Prasad, the son of Parmanand, and is now in the possession of the plaintiffs.

The Court below found that short of being given a power of transfer, Musammat Mohini Kuer was entitled to enjoy all the rights of a Zemindar, and her right to enjoy her share in any way she liked included a right to claim a partition of that share.

Under section 107 of the U. P. Land Revenue Act (II of 1901) a recorded co-sharer is entitled to apply for partition. But where that share is in the possession of a mortgagee, no application for partition either by the mortgagor or the mortgagee can be entertained unless both join in applying for partition. The expression "co-sharer" has not been defined anywhere by the Act, but reading section 107 with section 32 and section 111, there can be no doubt that the co-sharer, who is entitled to apply for partition, must be a recorded co-sharer of some kind of proprietary interest in the mahal and not a person entitled merely to collect rents or realise a share of the profits on behalf of the proprietor, such as a mortgagee, lessee, or thekadar, or an assignee of the rents. A Hindu widow in possession of an estate, which has devolved on her by inheritance from her husband, represents the estate and combines in herself for certain purposes the interests of herself and the reversionary body, whom she represents. A Muhammadan widow, who is in possession in lieu of dower, similarly combines her interest as an heir, if any, with that of the other heirs, whose share she holds in her possession in lieu of her dower debt for her life. In either case her interest is such as to entitle her to claim a partition against her recorded co-sharers, which would bind her as much, in the absence of fraud or collusion, as those who succeed to the property on her death. The interest, which a daughter receives under a devise from her father, though limited in character, is similarly such as will entitle her to claim a partition, because she represents herself as much as those who are likely to succeed to her on her death. She is not a mere assignee of the profits. She is a proprietor for the time being, though only of a limited interest. She can manage the property in any way she likes, and let it out to any person to whom she chooses and short of making a transfer, she possesses all proprietary rights, including a right to hold the property in severalty or to enjoy it jointly with her co-sharers, as may suit her interests. In Bhoop Singh v. Phool Kower (1) and Jhunna Kuar v. Ohain Sukh (2), it was accordingly held that a childless Hindu widow, who succeeds to her deceased husband's share in a mahal, such share having been his separated property, was as much entitled as any other recorded co-sharer to claim a perfect partition of her share, if her name was recorded, though she might not be competent to alienate the same except for certain limited purposes. In Habibullah v. Kushimba (3), it was held that a Muhammadan widow in possession of the estate of her husband in lieu of her dower, was similarly entitled to claim a partition of her share, if she was a recorded co-sharer in respect of that share. A similar view has been taken in Mahadeo Singh v. Deo Koer (4).

(1) 2 Agra H. C. R. 366.
(2) 3 A. 400; A. W. N. (1881) 8; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 221.
(3) 3 A. L. J. 481; A. W. N. (1906) 199.

In a separated family the right of each co-widow of a deceased person to enjoy the property of her deceased husband separately by partition among themselves has been recognized Sundar v. Parbati (5) and Hari Narayan v. Vitai (6). In Durga Dutt v. Gita (7), it has been laid down that whatever limitations there might be upon the power of alienation of one of two co widows succeeding as such to a life interest in the husband's estate, there is nothing to prevent them from effecting a partition of such estate to secure a proper enjoyment of their interests. The right of a Collector to disallow a partition under section 109 remains unaffected.

The interest, which devolved on Musammat Mohini Kunwar, from her father, under the devise, is such an interest as would entitle her to claim a partition thereof for the purpose of securing a better enjoyment of the same, for, as pointed out in Raghubir Singh v. Janki Kuar (8) her position might otherwise be rendered precarious, as it would be within the power of her co-sharers to prevent her from realising her share of the profits and to compel her to starve, until she is in a position to sue for her share of the profits and recover the same, if she gets a decree. The decision in Neman v. Jas Kunwar (9) and Kailashi Kunwar v. Badri Prashad (10), do not apply, for in both these cases, the name of the widow who had applied for partition, had merely been entered for her consolation or as a provision for her maintenance with the consent or acquiescence of the persons belonging to the joint family, from whom she could not have claimed anything but maintenance, and her position was at best that of a mere assignee of the profits in lieu of maintenance for her life.

There is nothing in the Will executed by Bisheshar Nath to indicate that Musammat Mohini Kuer was granted a share in lieu of her maintenance. In fact a daughter is not entitled to claim maintenance from her father after she is married and attains majority. She is a widow and has no male issue, but she is to all intents and purposes a recorded co-sharer, though she has no right to transfer her share, and there is no reason why she should not be allowed to claim a partition thereof.

The appeal, therefore, fails and is dismissed with costs.

W. C. A. Appeal dismissed.

(4) 9 O. C. 88.
(5) 12 A. 51; 16 I. A. 186; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 448; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 782 (P. C.).
(6) 31 B. 560; 9 Bom. L. R. 1049.
(7) 9 Ind. Cas. 498; 33 A. 443; 8 A. L. J. 220.
(8) 52 Ind. Cas. 11; 22 O. C. 117 at p. 120; 6 O. L. J. 282.
(9) 21 Ind. Cas. 449; 35 A. 527; 11 A. L. J. 833.
(10) 21 Ind. Cas. 49; 35 A. 548; 11 A. L. J. 849.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE NO. 631 OF 1919.

July 22, 1920.

Present :—Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., Acting Chief Justice, and Justice Sir Ernest Fletcher, KT.

DHARAM CHAND GAIN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

KANAK SARKAR—RESPONDENT.

Summons, mode of service of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O V, r. 15—Requirements of Statute to be strictly carried out.

Before making an ex parte decree against a defendant the requirements of the Statute as regards the service of summons should be strictly complied with. The inquiry contemplated by r. 15 of O V of the Civil Procedure Code should not be confined to the son of the defendant, or to a person related to him. An attempt should be made to find the defendant by an inquiry from his neighbours or other persons. [p 992, col. 2.]

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge of 24 Parganas, dated 14th January 1919, affirming that of the Munsif, Basirhat, dated the 12th October 1917.

Babus Piraj Mohan Majumdar and Anilendra Nath Roy Chowdhury, for the Appellant.

Babus Dwarka Nath Chuckerbutty and Arun Kumar Ghose, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

MOOKERJEE, ACT. C. J.—This is an appeal by the tenant defendant in a suit instituted under section 46 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Sub section (1) of that section provides that "A suit for ejectment on the ground of refusal to agree to an enhancement of rent shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy raiyat unless the landlord has tendered to the raiyat an agreement to pay the enhanced rent, and the raiyat has within three months before the institution of the suit refused to execute the agreement." Sub-section (2) then provides as follows: "A landlord desiring to tender an agreement to a raiyat under this section may file it in the office of such Court or Officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf for service on the raiyat. The Court or Officer shall forthwith cause it to be served on the raiyat in the prescribed manner, and when it has been so served, it shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to have been tendered,"... Rule 30 of the statutory rules made by the Government of Bengal provides as follows: "The agreement under sub-section (2) of section 46 shall be filed in the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for arrears of rent of the holding, and shall be served on the raiyat in the manner prescribed for the service of summons on defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure on payment of the fee prescribed by the High Court."

DHARAM CHAND GAIN v. KANAK SARKAR.

In the case before us the plaintiff alleges that the agreement was duly served in accordance with O. V, r. 15 of the Code of Civil Procedure which provides as follows: "Where in any suit the defendant cannot be found and has no agent empowered to accept service of the summons on his behalf, service may be made on any adult male member of the family of the defendant who is residing with him." The First Court found in favour of the plaintiff that the summons had been duly served. The District Judge has affirmed that conclusion. But the facts found by him are not sufficient to show that the requirements of O. V, r 15 have been fulfilled. The District Judge has held that what is required is that the agreement should be properly brought to the notice of the defendant, and that as the agreement was served upon the son, one can have little doubt but that it was duly brought to the notice of the defendant by his son who lives in the same house with him. This clearly is a consideration which cannot be permitted to weigh with the Court when the question is whether or not the requirements of the Statute have been carried out. It is not definitely found whether the first condition mentioned in r. 15 existed, namely, whether the defendant could not be found. The District Judge says "that it is very unlikely that the defendant's son or any one connected with the defendant would give any real information as to the defendant's whereabouts": and, further that "the evidence would go to show that enquiries were made from the defendant's son as to the whereabouts of the defendant to which apparently only vague replies were given." The Statute does not require that the enquiry should be confined to the son of the defendant or to a person related to him. An attempt could easily have been made to find out the defendant by an enquiry from his neighbours or other persons. The District Judge has not also found whether the son was an adult male member of the family residing with him. The findings are thus insufficient to justify the decree, for it is essential that the requirements of the Statute in these matters should be strictly carried out.

The result is that this appeal is allowed, the decree of the District Judge set aside and the case remitted to him for re-consideration.

It is stated that there are other points involved in the appeal. We do not deal with them, because if the point mentioned be decided against the plaintiff, no other question will arise. But if the point is decided in favour of the plaintiff and against the defendant, the other questions which arise in the case will be re-considered by the lower Appellate Court.

Costs will abide the result.

FLETCHER, J.—I agree.

W. C. A.

Appeal allowed.

S. N. Das
Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar

JOGENDRA KRISHNA ROY v. KURPAL HARSHI & CO.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE No. 140 OF 1920.

May 2, 1921.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt., and Mr. Justice Buckland.

JOGENDRA KRISHNA ROY AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

KURPAL HARSHI & CO.—RESPONDENTS.

Landlord and tenant—Lease for a term of years—Lessee put into possession—Legal documents not executed and registered—Lease, if can be surrendered before expiry of term—Lessor's remedy—Damages or rent—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s.120—Testimony of party to suit, value of—Omission to call important witness—Presumption.

When in pursuance of an agreement to transfer property, the intended transferee has taken possession, though the requisite legal documents have not been executed and registered the position is the same as if the documents had been executed, provided that specific performance can be obtained between the parties to the agreement in the same Court and at the same time as the subsequent legal question falls to be determined. [p. 995, col. 1]

A lessee of a tenancy for a term of years is not entitled to terminate it by notice of surrender before the expiry of the term of the lease. [p. 995, col. 1.]

Where a contract of tenancy, under which rent is payable periodically is unlawfully brought to a premature termination by the tenant, the landlord is entitled only to damages and not to rent for the unexpired term of the lease. Acceptance of surrender does not preclude the lessor from suing for damages for the breach of contract by the lessee, as it does not destroy the existing cause of action. [p. 995, col 2.]

There is no rule that if a party, plaintiff or defendant, gives his testimony, he must be disbelieved, because he is a party to the suit When a plaintiff has deposed in support of his case, his testimony must be scrutinised in the same manner as that of any other witness. [p. 994, col. 1.]

Per Buckland, J.—If a party wishes not to have a presumption raised against him by the fact that an important witness has not been called, he should exhaust to the utmost of his power every means to bring that witness before the Court. [p. 996, col. 1.]

Appeal against a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Chittagong, dated the 29th April 1920.

Dr. Dwarka Nath Mitter, Babus Manindra Nath Banerjee and Pramutha Nath Banerjee, for the Appellants.

Babus Jogendra Nath Mukherjee, Paresh Nath Mukherjee and Kanai Dhone Dutt, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

MOOKERJEE, J.—This is an appeal by the plaintiffs in a suit for realization of rent of a godown taken on lease by the defendant-firm. The case for the plaintiffs was, that the defendant, firm came into occupation in January 1917, under the arrangement that the tenancy would last for a term of three years ending in December 1919, and that the rent payable would be Rs. 250 a month. The defendants remained in occupation till the 31st March 1918, but on the 27th February 1918 the plaintiffs were served with a notice of relinquishment. They forthwith protested that the tenancy could not be surrendered in this manner; but, notwithstanding their objection, the defendants vacated the premises, with the result that the plaintiffs re-entered with effect from the 1st April 1918. The plaintiffs accordingly claimed rent for the unexpired period of the lease. The case for the defendants was that there was neither in fact nor in law a tenancy for three years, that the status of the defendants was that of a tenant from month to month and that the tenancy was terminated by the notice which was duly served. The defendants further contended that the plaintiffs were not entitled to succeed in the suit as framed, and that, in any event, they could not recover the whole sum claimed. The Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that the plaintiffs had failed to establish that there was a tenancy for a term of three years and accordingly dismissed the suit. On the present appeal, three questions have been argued on behalf of the plaintiffs, namely, first, whether there was in fact an agreement to lease for a term of three years or whether there was a contract of tenancy from month to month; secondly, assuming that there was in fact an agreement to lease for three years, whether the relation of landlord and tenant for a term of three years was in law constituted, and, thirdly, if there was in fact and in law a tenancy for a term of three years, what are the reliefs which the plaintiffs can claim.

As regards the first point it may be stated at the outset that there is no written lease nor is there correspondence between the parties to show that there was a contract of tenancy for a term of three years. One of the plaintiffs has pledged his oath that there was an agreement that the tenancy would continue for three years from January 1917 to December 1919 and that this agreement was made with one Arjun Babu who was the temporary manager of the defendant firm when the tenancy was created. The Subordinate Judge has not believed this statement, and has stated his reasons in the following passage of his judgment. "Nilkrishna Babu" the second plaintiff, "is certainly a very big man, but he is still a party and unless his evidence is undoubtedly satisfactory and conclusive on the point, the Court cannot pass a decree for a fairly large amount on his testimony." The reasons thus assigned by the Subordinate Judge for disbelieving the plaintiff are neither adequate nor convincing. There is no inflexible rule that if a party, plaintiff or defendant, gives his testimony, he must be disbelieved, because he is a party to the suit. Such a rule, if adopted would nullify the provisions of section 120 of the Indian Evidence Act, which provides that in all civil proceedings, the parties to the suit shall be competent witnesses. When a plaintiff has deposed in support of his case, his testimony must be scrutinised in the same manner as that of any other witness: and the Court is free to attach to the evidence that amount of credence which it appears to deserve, from his demeanour, deportment under cross-examination, motives to speak or hide the truth, means of knowledge, power of memory, and other tests, by which the value of a statement of a witness can be ascertained if not with absolute certainty yet with such a reasonable amount of conviction as ought to justify a man of ordinary prudence in acting upon those statements. Now, if we consider the evidence of the plaintiff from this point of view we have to examine the conduct of the parties as also the surrounding circumstances. The defendant company came into occupation in the middle of January 1917. The plaintiffs assert that on the 27th July 1917 they wrote to the defendant company asking them to take a written lease for three years. As no reply was received from the defendants, on the 24th August 1917 the draft of the lease was forwarded with a covering letter. To this also no reply was received. The plaintiffs have produced their peon books and proved the entries made in due course of business to indicate that the letters were sent out to the office of the defendants. The entries are initialled apparently by the persons to whom the letters were delivered but the initials have not been identified. The defendants urged in the Court below that these letters did not reach them. If this be true, it can be explained only on the theory that the plaintiffs never intended to send genuine letters to the defendants but were in July and August 1917 fabricating evidence for use on a suitable occasion. There is no evidence on the record to lend support to such an hypothesis. On the other hand, we find that as soon as the plaintiffs received the notice of relinquishment dated the 27th February 1918, they forthwith protested and asserted that the tenancy which had been taken for three years could not be surrendered earlier. In the course of the correspondence which then ensued, it was stated by the defendant company that they ignored the undertaking given by Arjun Babu. The plaintiffs, however, adhered to the position they had taken up and yet the defendant company vacated the premises on the 31st March 1918. It is worthy of note that Arjun Babu has not been called as a witness nor has any satisfactory reason been assigned for his absence. The present manager, Lalji Babu, also has not been called. The conduct of the parties thus points to the conclusion that the story told by the plaintiffs is trustworthy. We have then the surrounding circumstances to consider. It cannot be disputed on the evidence that the godown, if not re-constructed, was thoroughly repaired at a considerable cost by the plaintiffs at the time when the tenancy was created in favour of the defendants. It is improbable that so much money would have been spent by the plaintiffs if there had not been an agreement for a lease for a substantial term of years. On the other hand, we must also bear in mind that the defendant company were engaged in a flourishing business and it is improbable that they would take a godown on a precarious tenancy, liable to be terminated on fifteen days' notice. The evidence further indicates that the business did not continue to flourish; this may be the true reason why the defendant company resiled from the original agreement and set up a tenancy from month to month. On the direct oral evidence, and the evidence of the conduct of the parties and the surrounding circumstances, I feel no doubt that the agreement was in fact for a tenancy for a term of three years commencing from January 1917 and terminating in December 1919.

As regards the second point, we have to determine whether the relation of landlord and tenant for a term of three years was in law constituted. The answer must be in the affirmative. It is now well-established by a long series of decisions in this Court from Bibi Jawahir Kumari v. Chatterput Singh (1) to Syam Kishore De v. Umesh Chandra Bhattacharjee (2) and Haripada Ghose v. Nirod Krishna Ghose (3) that when, in pursuance of an agreement to transfer property, the intended transferee has taken possession, though the requisite legal documents have not been executed and registered the position is the same as if the documents had been executed provided that specific performance can be obtained between the parties to the agreement in the same Court and at the same time as the subsequent legal question falls to be determined. We must then take it that there was in law as in fact a tenancy for a term of three years and that the defendant company were not entitled to terminate it by the notice of surrender dated the 27th February 1918.

As regards the third point we have to consider what are the reliefs which the plaintiffs may be granted. The suit was described in the plaint as one for arrears of rent and has been throughout treated as a suit of that character but plainly, the claim cannot be deemed as in the nature of a demand for arrears of rent. The tenancy was surrendered with effect from 1st April 1918 and the landlords re-entered on the premises; thereupon the tenancy must be regarded as extinguished. There was in essence a breach of contract and the plaintiffs are entitled only to damages. If this view were not adopted the anomaly would arise that in a suit instituted on the 12th September 1913 the plaintiffs would recover rent from April 1918 to December 1919, that is, for a period subsequent to the date when the plaint was lodged in Court. What happened in substance was that there was an "anticipatory breach" of the contract, an expression which is felicitous but not perhaps logical, as was pointed out by Lord Wrenbury in Bradley v. Newsum Sons & Co. (4) whose luminous observations were quoted with approval in Manindra Chandra Nandy v. Aswini Kumar Acharyya (5). See also the decision of the Judicial Committee in Jamal v. Moolla Dawood Sons & Co. (6). The true nature of such a suit, where a contract of tenancy, under which rent is payable periodically, is unlawfully brought to a premature termination was also explained in the case of Gray v. Owen (7). There the tenancy was illegally brought to an end by the defendant before the termination of the lease. The question arose, whether the plaintiff was entitled to rent for the unexpired term of the lease, or to damages. The answer was given by the Kings Bench that the plaintiff was entitled only to damages. Acceptance of the surrender did not preclude the plaintiff from suing for damages for the breach by the defendant of the contract. It did not destroy the existing cause of action. If the plaintiff succeeded in letting the house at the same or higher rent, he would have been entitled only to nominal damages, but as he did not succeed in letting out, he was entitled to recover the amount of rent which he had lost. In the case before us, it thus becomes necessary to determine what sum, if any, the plaintiffs have realised from the godown since the date when the defendants vacated it. We have heard the parties on this point and we do not find it necessary to

(1) 2 C. L. J. 343.
(2) 55 Ind. Cas. 154; 31 C. L. J. 75; 24 C. W. N 463.
(3) 61 Ind. Cas. 687; 33 C. L. J. 437.

(4) (1919) A. C. 16 at p. 53: 88 L. J. K. B. 35; 119 L. T. 238; 24 Com. Cas. 1; 14 Asp. M. C. 340; 34 T. L. R. 613.
(5) 60 Ind. Cas. 337; 32 C. L. J. 163 at p. 197; 25 C. W. N. 297; 48 C. 427.
(6) 31 Ind. Cas. 949; 43 I. A. 6; 43 C. 493; 23 C. L. J. 137: 20 C. W. N. 105; 30 M. L. T. 73; 14 A. L. J. 89; 19 M. L. T. 80; 3 L. W. 181; (1916) 1 M. W. N. 70; 18 Bom. L. R. 315; 9 Bur. L. T. 8 (P. C.).
(7) (1910) 1 K. B. 622; 79 L. J. K. B. 389; 102 L. T. 187; 26 T. L. R. 297

remand the case for further enquiry on this point. We have come to the conclusion that the plaintiffs should have a decree for Rs. 2,500, (two thousand and five hundred); that we assess as the measure of damages which they have suffered by reason of the breach of contract by the defendants.

The result is that this appeal is allowed, the decree of dismissal made by the Subordinate Judge is set aside and the suit is decreed for Rs. 2,500 with interest from date of suit till realisation. There will be no order for costs either here or in the Court below.

BUCKLAND, J.—This is practically an undefended case. The initial error committed by the learned Sudordinate Judge is to be found in the extract quoted from his judgment that "Nil Krishna Babu is certainly a very big man, but he is still a party." There is a presumption in favour of truth and a party who gives evidence is not necessarily a suspect. The same tests have to be applied to him as to every other witness. This error resulted in the learned Subordinate Judge holding in effect that the defendants had no case to meet. In such a view he may possibly have been right in saying that the defendants' failure to examine Arjun and Lalji is immaterial. But in the view which we take the omission to examine these witnesses is most significant. The learned Subordinate Judge says that since Arjun is not now in the defendants' service and since there is not sufficient evidence on plaintiff's side to prove the alleged contract by him defendants' failure to examine him is not very material. So far the learned Subordinate Judge relies upon the fact that Arjun is not in the defendants' service, that is no excuse at all. The only evidence as to the omission is that enquiries were made at the Bombay office. If a party wishes not to have a presumption raised against him by the fact that an important witness has not been called, he should exhaust to the utmost of his power every means to bring that witness before the Court. It appears from the evidence in the case that Lalji was the manager of the defendant firm and that he was succeeded by Arjun. Consequently, both these persons would have been in a position to give material evidence had there been any substance in the defence. The Subordinate Judge has overlooked the additional weight given to the plaintiffs' evidence by the omission to call these witnesses, for though he seems to think there was no case for the defendants to meet, that clearly was not the view taken by their legal advisers at the trial, and had he taken that circumstance into consideration he might possibly have come to a different conclusion with regard to the evidence given on behalf of the appellant. I agree that this appeal should be allowed as ordered.

B. N. Appeal allowed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 357 OF 1919.

April 27, 1922.

Present:—Sir Shadi Lal, KT., Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Abdul Qadir.

MOTI SINGH—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

THE PRESIDENT OF THE NOTIFIED AREA COMMITTEE OF ANANDPUR—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT

Punjab Municipal Act (III of 1911), s. 61 (B) (b)—Profession tax—Offerings made by disciples whether income derived from profession or calling.

The income derived by a spiritual leader from offerings made by his disciples is income derived from a profession or calling within the meaning of section 61 (B) (b) of the Punjab Municipal Act. [p. 997, col. 1.]

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Hoshiarpur, dated the 28th October 1918, affirming that of the Munsif, First Class, Hoshiarpur, dated the 13th August 1918.

Lala Fakir Chand, for the Appellant.

JUDGMENT.—This second appeal arises out of a suit brought by Sodhi Moti Singh of Anandpur, Tahsil Una, District Hoshiarpur, against the Notified Area Committee of his town, for a declaration that a tax of Rs. 110 levied by the Committee on him as a professional tax, has not been rightly imposed. The Munsif of Hoshiarpur dismissed the plaintiff's suit, being of opinion that the plaintiff is looked upon as a spiritual guide of the Sikh public of the place and that his work falls within the meaning of a profession. The plaintiff appealed and the decree of the Trial Court was confirmed by the District Judge. The plaintiff has now come up in second appeal, through Lala Fakir Chand, whom we have heard, and no one appears before us on behalf of the Anandpur Notified Area.

The learned District Judge has held that as the plaintiff receives offerings from pilgrims, a part of his income is, at any rate, due to his carrying on the calling of a religious teacher. We think the view taken by the learned District Judge is correct. A reference to the Gazetteer of Hoshiarpur District for 1904, (page 214), shows that the Sodhi family of Anandpur receives offerings from its disciples at the grand fair of Holi. Thousands of Sikhs assemble around their Guru, who sits in state on a raised platform, while they stand in front on a paved floor. Lala Fakir Chand contends that the offerings made to the Sodhi on that occasion are not made to him because he is regarded as a religious teacher, but because of his being, by virtue of his descent, a representative of the Guru, and as such the income so earned by him should not be regarded as income from any calling or profession. According to section 61 (B), (b) of the Municipal Act, a tax on persons practising any profession or any art, or carrying on any trade or calling in the Municipal limits may be levied by the Municipality with the previous sanction of the Government. The Anandpur Committee have got the necessary sanction, and it is in the exercise of this power that this tax was levied. We think the Committee was within its rights in levying that tax. The professions of a theologian or religious teacher is considered to be one of the learned professions in the dictionary meaning of the word, and, judging by the position of the plaintiff, we think he exercises the profession of a religious teacher. Even if there be any doubt as to his work being characterised as a profession, we agree with the District Judge in regarding it at least a calling, and, therefore, the income derived by the plaintiff from offerings from his disciples appears to have been rightly made the subject of a tax by the Notified Area Committee. This appeal fails and is dismissed, but we make no order as to costs in this Court as there was no appearance on behalf of the respondent.

Appeal dismissed.

Z. K.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE No. 859 OF 1911.

May 20, 1913.

Present:—Mr. Justice Stephen and Mr. Justice Mullick.

ABDUR RASHID—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

Sheikh KHANDKAR AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), s. 29—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXII, r. 7—Lease by guardian in terms of compromise entered into with leave of Court—Consent of Collector, if necessary.

Where, in accordance with a compromise entered into on behalf of a minor with the sanction of the Court under O. XXXII, r. 7 of the Civil Procedure Code, the guardian of the minor grants a lease, the consent of the Collector under section 29 of the Guardians and Wards Act is not necessary.

Biku Halwai v. Mohesh Halwai, 8 C. L. J. 266, referred to.

Appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Sylhet, dated the 21st December 1910, modifying that of the Munsif, First Court, Sylhet, dated the 21st July 1910.

Moulvi Nur ud din, Ahmed, for the Appellant.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal relates to a rent suit which was partially decreed in the Court below. At the hearing of the appeal the lower Appellate Court agreed in most of its findings with the First Court, but dismissed the suit on the ground that the lease was granted by one Kissori on behalf of an infant without any authority in that behalf, because he did not obtain the consent of the Collector in accordance with the provisions of section 29 of the Guardians and Wards Act. Such consent is not in fact necessary, because the lease was made in accordance with a compromise which had been entered into with the sanction of the Court whose duty it was particularly to see that the compromise including the execution of the lease, was for the benefit of the infant. This is according to the proper construction of the section in question and O. XXXII, r. 7, Civil Procedure Code; it is in accordance with the law laid down in the case of Biku Halwai v. Mohesh Halwai (1). As the lower Appellate Court has acted on this mistaken view of the law, but has otherwise agreed in the finding of the first Court, we allow the appeal, set aside the judgment and decree of the lower Appellate Court and restore those of the Court of first instance. The present appellant is entitled to his costs in the lower Appellate Court and to the costs of this Court less the hearing fee.

(1) 8 C. L. J, 266.

B. N. Appeal allowed.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 34 OF 1920.

April 6, 1921.

Present:—Mr. Daniels, A. J. C.

Saiyid ZULFIQAR ALI AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

SURAJ PRASAD AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Mortgage—Redemption—Long term—Clog—Usufructuary mortgage for long term—Term, particular, void and unenforceable, effect of—Mortgage, whether invalid as a whole.

A long term in a mortgage does not necessarily amount to a clog on the equity of redemption. It only does so where it is such as to render redemption practically impossible or where the bargain is unconscionable and the long term is unaccompanied by any corresponding advantage to the mortgagor. A long term in a usufructuary mortgage is less likely to operate as a clog on redemption than in any other class of mortgage, because redemption is effected on payment of a fixed sum and there is no danger of arrears of interest mounting up to an extent which may far exceed the value of the property. [p. 999, col 2.]

Where in consideration of a reduction of interest a long term is agreed upon between the parties to a usufructuary mortgage and the other terms are also such as are naturally incident to a possessory mortgage for a long term, there is no clog on equity of redemption. [p. 999, col. 2.]

Durga Singh v. Nawab Mirza Muhammad Raza Husain Khan, 25 Ind. Cas 912; 17 O. C. 313 and Sayad Abdul Hak Sardar Diler Jung Bahadur, C. I. E. v. Gulam Jilani, 20 B. 677; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. s.) 1021, distinguished.

The fact that a particular covenant in a mortgage, (e. g., that the mortgage is not to be redeemed with borrowed money), is void and unenforceable does not invalidate the mortgage as a whole. [p. 999, col. 2.]

Appeal from a decree of the first Additional District Judge, Lucknow, dated the 22nd November 1919, confirming a decree of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Lucknow, dated the 7th April 1919.

Mr. Ishri Prasad, for the Appellants.

Messrs. Bisheshwar Nath and Ram Bharose Lal, for Respondents Nos. 1, 3, 4, 5 and 6.

JUDGMENT.—This was a suit for redemption of a usufructuary mortgage executed on 26th May 1890 for a period of 98 years. The mortgage was of a one anna share in Mouza Rasulpur Sadar for a sum of Rs. 3,150. It was executed by Safdar Ali, the father of the plaintiffs-appellants, in favour of Musammat Surja, wife of Ganeshi Halwai and predecessor-in-interest of the defendants-respondents. The suit has been brought long before the expiry of the period of the mortgage and the sole substantial question at issue is whether the term of 98 years constituted, either alone or in conjunction with the other terms of the mortgage, a clog on the equity of redemption so as to entitle the mortgagors to equitable relief. There is a subsidiary issue as to whether the lower Appellate Court ought to have admitted a certified copy of a partition chitthi which was not tendered in the Trial Court. The document, if admitted, would only be of subsidiary value as it is merely a piece of evidence as to the profits of the mortgaged property in a particular year. The exact time when the chitthi was prepared is not known but the partition case was decided in the year 1880. The particular reason given by the lower Appellate Court for not accepting it, namely, that it is an ex parte statement by an interested party, is admittedly erroneous, but there does not appear to be any strong ground why the document should have been admitted in appeal and I see no sufficient reason to admit it now.

The case set up in the plaint was that the mortgagor was an illiterate man who was incapable of understanding the transaction and that the first three defendants were clever persons who got the mortgage executed in the name of their mother and by their cleverness overreached the mortgagor. Both the Courts below have found that there is nothing whatever to show that the mortgagor was incapable of understanding his own interests or that he was in any way overreached. They hold, on the contrary, that the mortgagor received compensating advantages for the long term to which he had agreed and that the bargain was a free and fair bargain between the parties in which the advantage was by no means entirely on the side of the mortgagee. It is common ground between the parties that in the year 1881 a 2-annas $2\frac{3}{4}$-pies share in this village including the share in suit was mortgaged to Ganeshi, the husband of Musammat Surja, with possession for a sum of Rs. 2,200. In 1890 Ganeshi having died, Musammat Surja advanced a further sum of Rs. 950 making up a total of Rs. 3,150, released 1 anna $2\frac{3}{4}$ pies of the mortgaged share, and in lieu of 2 annas $2\frac{3}{4}$ pies accepted as security a usufructuary mortgage of a 1-anna share only in lieu of the larger amount. The rate of interest she was receiving was thus reduced in two ways. On the one hand, the amount of the loan advanced by the creditor was increased by more than 75 per cent., and, on the other hand, the share of profits which she was receiving was reduced to less than half its former amount. The mortgage itself recites, and this amounts to an admission by the appellants' predecessor-in-interest, that in consideration of this reduction of interest a long term had been agreed upon between the parties. This, however, is not all. A third party filed a pre-emption suit in respect of the transaction alleging that it was a sale in disguise. Both the mortgagor and the mortgagee filed written statements denying this allegation. In his written statement (Exhibit A-6) Safdar Ali admitted the mortgage, admitted the term of 93 years, asserted that the deed was neither more nor less than what it appeared on its face, and further alleged that other mortgages for long terms had been executed in this village. The pre-emption suit was subsequently dismissed (Exhibit A-7). The lower Appellate Court suggests that the long term may have been inserted by both parties to the transaction with a view to avoid pre emption, but as this is not the case set up by either party it is not necessary to consider it.

These facts are not disputed by the appellants but they suggest that the profits of the mortgaged share must have risen largely between 1881 and 1890 and that this accounts for the mortgagee accepting a smaller security in the latter year. They have been unable to establish this assertion by evidence and the finding of both the Courts below is against them on this point. It may be noted that Safdar Ali lived for eleven years after the mortgage but made no application to redeem in his lifetime, and it was not till seventeen years after his death that the present suit was brought. The facts referred to above are sufficient to distinguish the case from Durga Singh v. Nawab Mirza Muhammad Raza Husain Khan (1) and Sayad Abdul Hak Sardar Dilar Jung Bahadur C. I. E. v. Gulam Jilani (2), relied on by the appellants. In the latter case there was a one-sided stipulation by which the mortgagee was entitled to foreclose within the period of the mortgage, while the mortgagor was not entitled to redeem. A long term in a mortgage does not necessarily amount to a clog on the equity of redemption. It only does so where it is such as to render redemption practically impossible, or where the bargain is unconscionable and the long term is unaccompanied by any corresponding advantage to the mortgagor. It is obvious that a long term in a usufructuary mortgage is less likely to operate as a clog on redemption than in any other class of mortgage, because redemption is effected on payment on a fixed sum and there is no danger of arrears of interest amounting up to an extent which may far exceed the value of the property.

The appellants rely on some of the other terms of the mortgage for the purpose of showing that the bargain was unconscionable. Most of these terms are naturally incident to a possessory mortgage for a long term in which the mortgagee takes the place of the zemindar for the time being. Thus the mortgagee was given the right to cut and sell trees. She was to have authority to resume rent-free holdings and jagirs and to re-settle land with others. She was to be recouped for money spent on constructing pakka wells and was to be entitled at the time of redemption to realise any outstanding arrears of tenants' rent, takavi, etc. There is indeed one term in the mortgage which the respondents have admitted, both in the Courts below and in this Court, to be void and unenforceable, namely, a stipulation that the mortgage is not to be redeemed with borrowed money. The fact that this particular covenant is unenforceable does not, however, invalidate the mortgage as a whole.

In the result I agree with the Courts below that the term of the mortgage, though long, does not, in the circumstances of this case, amount to a clog on the equity of redemption. I accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.

(1) 25 Ind. Cas. 912; 17 O. C. 313.
(2) 20 B. 677; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1021.

W. C. A. Appeal dismissed.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

May 12, 1922.

Present :—Viscount Cave, Lord Shaw, Lord Phillimore, Sir John Edge and Mr. Ameer Ali.

BADRI NARAIN SINGH—APPELLANT

versus

Thakurain HARNAM KUAR AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Oudh Estates Act (I of 1869), ss. 22 (1), 23—Succession—"Ordinary law," meaning of—Sanad—Primogeniture, rule of—Custom—Instances prior to sanad—Evidence.

The expression 'ordinary law,' referred to in section 23 of the Oudh Estates Act, is the law which would govern the parties apart from the Statute, and includes any Sanad giving title to the property in dispute. [p 100', col. 2.]

Bhai Narindar Bahadur Singh v. Achal Ram, 20 C. 649 at p. 654: 20 I. A 77: 6 Sar. P. C. J. 310; 17 Ind. Jur. 319; Rafique & Jackson's P. C No. 128; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 438 (P. C.), Debi Bakhsh Singh v Chandrabhan Singh, 7 Ind. Cas. 724; 37 I. A. 168; 14 C. W. N. 1010; 12 C. L. J. 303; 8 M. L. T. 273; (1910) M. W. N. 643; 7 A. L. J. 1122; 12 Bom. L. R. 1015; 20 M. L. J. 917; 32 A. 599: 13 O. C. 316 (P. C.) and Sitla Bakhsh Singh v. Sital Singh, 60 Ind. Cas, 548; 48 I. A. 228; 43 A. 245; 19 A. L. J. 337; 40 M. L. J. 449; 8 O. L. J. 214; 25 C. W. N. 721; 24 O. C. 107; 33 C. L. J. 520; 29 M. L. T. 390 (P. C.), referred to.

Where a Sanad, under which an estate in Oudh is held, lays down the succession according to the rule of primogeniture, evidence of a single unexplained instance of the widow of one of the grantees having succeeded to the exclusion of male heirs, is insufficient to establish a custom binding on another branch of the family. Similarly, evidence of widows having succeeded prior to the grant of the Sanad cannot be used to set up a rule of succession directly contrary to the terms of the Sanad under which the estate is held. [p. 1003, col. 1.]

Brij Indar Bahadur Singh v. Ranee Janki Koer, 5 I. A. 1 at p. 14; 1 C. L. R. 318 (P. C.); 3 Sar. P. C. J. 763; Bald. 148; Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 48; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 474 (P. C.) and Thakur Sheo Singh v. Rani Raghubans Kunwar, 32 I. A. 203 at p. 214; 27 A. 634; 15 M. L. J. 352; 8 O. C. 317; 9 C. W. N. 1009; 2 C. L. J. 194 (P. C.), referred to.

Appeal from a judgment and decree of the Court of the Oudh Judicial Commissioner, (Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. C. and Kendall, A. J. C.) in First Civil Appeal No. 30 of 1915, dated 2nd January 1917, reported as 40 Ind. Cas. 555, affirming that of the Subordinate Judge, Partabgarh, dated 25th February 1915.

Mr. Dunne, K. C., and Mr. Kenworthy Brown, for the Appellants.

Mr. De Gruyther, K. C. and Mr. Dube, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

VISCOUNT CAVE.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff in the suit from a decree of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh affirming a decree of the Subordinate Judge of Partabgarh by which the plaintiff's suit was dismissed. The question raised is as to the title to an estate in Oudh of considerable value known as the Mahal Tajpur.

Lal Ajodia Bakhsh, the ancestor of the plaintiff, belonged to a family of Bisen Thakurs long settled in the District of Partabgarh, and was the owner of an estate called Kundrajit or Shamepur. At the time of the Mutiny, this family had four branches representing the descendants of the four sons of Lal Ajodhia Bakhsh; the first branch being represented by Thakurain Baijnath (a widow), the second by Lal Chhatarpal, the third by Lal Surajpal and the fourth by Lal Chandrapal. On the annexation of Oudh in 1856, this estate, with the remainder of the soil of the Province, was confiscated by the British Government, which assumed the right (as stated in Lord Canning's Proclamation of the 15th March 1858), to dispose of it in such manner as it thought fitting. Lal Chhatarpal had taken action against the British Government, but Thakurain Baijnath had been loyal; and ultimately by a Sanad, which is undated but which appears from other documents to have been executed in the year 1863, the Chief Commissioner of Oudh under the authority of the Governor General granted the estate of Kundrajit to the above-named four persons, Thakurain Baijnath, Lal Chhatarpal, Lal Surajpal and Lal Chandrapal, and their heirs, subject to the usual conditions as to the surrender of arms and loyalty to the British Government. The Sanad was in the form then commonly adopted and contained the following clause:—

"It is another condition of this grant that, in the event of your dying intestate or of any of your successors dying intestate, the estate shall descend to the nearest male heir according to the rule of primogeniture, but you and all your successors shall have full power to alienate the estate, either in whole or in part by sale, mortgage, gift, bequest, or adoption to whomsoever you please."

Chhatarpal appears to have objected to the Sanad on the ground that he was alone entitled to the whole estate, but it was ultimately accepted by him and by the other grantees.

On the passing of the Oudh Estates Act (Act I of 1869), the four grantees above-named (bracketed together), were entered as owners of Kundrajit in List No. 1 and List No. 4, as prepared under section 8 of the Act. There appears to have been no reason why they should not have been entered in List No. 3 as owners of an estate regulated by the rule of primogeniture; but they may have preferred not to be subject to the special rules of succession which, under section 22 (clauses 1 to 10) of the Act, apply to estates entered in that List. In any case, this is now immaterial, as the estate must be dealt with according to the rules regulating estates entered in List No. 4.

In or about the year 1872, Kundrajit was divided into four Mahals, which were allotted to the four branches of the family, Mahal Tajpur being allotted to Chhatarpal. The effect of this partition was that this Mahal was held by Chhatarpal alone as an impartible taluq on the terms of the Sanad and of the Act of 1869.

Chhatarpal died on the 19th October, 1899, and was succeeded by his son, Lal Ram Kinkar. On the death of the latter without issue on the 6th October 1907, his widow, the first respondent, Thakurain Harnam Kaur, took possession of Tajpur and the lands then held with it. Thereupon, the appellant, Babu Badri Narain Singh, who was the son of Chhatarpal's eldest brother and was the nearest male heir in line and degree, claimed to be entitled to the succession; and on his right being disputed he commenced, in 1913, the present suit against Thakurain Harnam Kuar and other members of the family for possession of Tajpur and other lands. By his plaint, he claimed possession (a) under the terms of the Sanad, (b) by an alleged family custom of succession by male lineal primogeniture, and (c) under a Will executed by Chhatarpal on the 6th September 1899. This Will, having been executed less than 3 months before the death of Chhatarpal, is now admitted to have been inoperative (under section 13 of the Act of 1869), to pass the estate, and it need not be further referred to.

The suit was heard by the Subordinate Judge of Partabgarh, who held that the alleged custom was not proved, and that having regard to section 23 of the Act of 1869, under which the succession on intestacy to a taluqdari estate entered in List No. 4 is to be "regulated by the ordinary law to which the members of the intestate's tribe and religion are subject," the succession in this case was to be regulated not by the Sanad but by the Law of the Mitakshara. He accordingly held that the widow of Lal Ram Kinkar was entitled to succeed, and dismissed the suit.

On appeal the Judicial Commissioners differed on the question whether the Sanad applied; but they agreed in holding that there was an established custom in the family that the widow should succeed, and that this custom continued notwithstanding the forfeiture and re-grant of the estate, and they accordingly affirmed the decision of the Subordinate Judge. Against this decision the present appeal was brought.

It is not and cannot be disputed that, if the rule of succession laid down in the Sanad of 1863 is to have effect, the appellant as the nearest male heir is entitled to the succession; and in the argument for the respondents, the principal stress was laid upon the contention which prevailed with the Subordinate Judge, namely, that the effect of section 23 of Act I of 1869 was wholly to displace the rule of succession prescribed by the Sanad and to substitute for it the ordinary rules of succession prevailing among Hindus who are subject to the law of the Mitakshara. This contention was disposed of by the First Judicial Commissioner in manner appearing by the following extract from his judgment:—

"The meaning of the words 'ordinary law' has been the subject of much discussion in this case. I could not merely imply the personal law of the intestate's tribe and religion, because the personal law applicable to Hindus and Mahammadans has, in many instances, been modified and is controlled by the Indian Statutes. In the case of Hindus, for instance, the personal law of Hindus is controlled and governed in some respects by the Caste Disabilities Removal Act (XXI of 1850), the Hindu Widows' Re-marriage Act (XV of 1856), the Hindus Wills Act (XXI of 1870) and the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) and the Crown Grants Act (XV of 1895), wherever they are applicable. In the case of Muhammadans, the provisions of the Muhammadan Law are similarly controlled and governed in some respects by the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), wherever they are applicable. It cannot, therefore, be said that a reference to the 'ordinary law' in section 23 is merely meant to imply the personal law, uncontrolled by custom or acts of the Indian Legislature. As pointed out by Lord Hobhouse in a case of List No. II, the effect of the 11th sub-section of section 22 is simply to refer the parties to the law which would govern the descent of the property when the special provisions of the Act are exhausted, and such ordinary law would include custom : [Bhai Narindar Bahadur Singh v. Achal Ram (1)]. In Parbati Kunwar v. Chandarpal Kunwar (2), Lord Collins applied the same rule to a case of List No. IV, governed by section 23. In other words when the special rules of succession laid down in section 22 are exhausted and section 22, clause (11) is reached, or when section 23 is applicable, the situation governing the succession has to be found apart from the Statute, that is, in the ordinary law applicable as if Act I of 1869 had not been passed. That ordinary law would include not only custom but also a Sanad, where the Sanad contains a rule of succession which is enforceable by Statute."

Their Lordships agree with the reasoning and conclusion of the First Judicial Commissioner; and indeed no other conclusion is consistent with the decisions of this Board in Bhai Narindar Bahadur Singh v. Achal Ram (1), Debi Bakhsh Singh v. Chandrabhan Singh (3) and Sitla Bakhsh Singh v. Sital Singh (4). These decisions clearly establish that the "ordinary law" referred to in the Act is the law which would govern the parties apart from the Statute and includes any Sanad giving title to the property in dispute. It is true that these decisions were rendered with reference to clause 11 of section 22, and not with reference to section 23 of the Act; but the terms of the latter section are precisely similar to those of section 22 (11), and their Lordships see no sufficient reason for giving to them a different construction. It may be added that the Oudh Estates (Amendment) Act, 1910, has no application to this case, which arose before that Act was passed.

An argument was founded, as in the cases cited, upon the dictum of Sir Barnes Peacock in Brij Indar Bahadur Singh v. Ranee Janki Koer (5), that in that case "the limitation in the Sanad was wholly superseded by Act I of 1869, and that the rights of the parties claiming by descent must be governed by the provisions of section 22 of that Act." But it must be remembered that in that case (which arose under List No. 2) the contest was between the female heir of the grantee (a widow) and the heir of her late husband, neither of whom could claim under the Sanad; and this being so, the case is no authority for the view that the effect of section 22 (11) or of section 23 of the Act, was wholly to destroy the rules of succession laid down under Sanads which had been so recently granted. Probably the dictum means on more than this, that the Act supersedes the Sanad where the two are in conflict. Reliance was also placed on the case of Paratti Kunwar v. Chandarpal Kunwar (2) which arose under List No. 4; but that case was argued (doubtless for good reasons)

(1) 20 C. 649 at p. 654; 20 I. A. 77; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 310; 17 Ind. Jur. 319; Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 128; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 438 (P. C.).

(2) 4 Ind. Cas. 25; 31 A. 457 at p. 474; 10 C. L. J. 216; 13 C. W. N. 1073; 6 A. L. J. 767; 11 Bom. L. R. 890; 12 O. C. 304; 19 M. L. J. 605; 36 I. A. 125 (P. C.).

(3) 7 Ind. Cas. 724; 37 I. A. 168; 14 C. W. N. 1010; 12 C. L. J. 303; 8 M. L. T. 273; (1910) M. W. N. 643; 7 A. L. J. 1122; 12 Bom. L. R. 1015; 20 M. L. J. 917; 32 A. 599; 13 O. C. 316 (P. C.).

(4) 60 Ind. Cas. 548; 48 I. A 228; 43 A. 245; 19 A. L. J. 337; 40 M. L. J. 449; 8 O L. J. 214; 25 C. W. N. 721; 24 O. C. 107; 33 C. L. J. 520; 29 M. L. T. 390 (P. C.).

(5) 5 I. A. 1 at p. 14; 1 C. L. R. 318 (P. C.); 3 Sar. P. C. J. 763; Bald. 148; Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 48; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 474.

without any reference whatever to the Sanad, and cannot, therefore, be taken as an authority on the question now under discussion.

In their Lordships' opinion, this argument fails.

With regard to the question of custom, the decision of the Judicial Commissioners appears to have been founded on certain instances in which the members of the family of Lal Ajodhia Bakhsh were succeeded by their widows; but all these instances, with one exception, occurred before the forfeiture of the estate in 1856 and the grant of a new title upon the conditions laid down in the Sanad; and they cannot be used to set up a rule of succession directly contrary to the terms of the Sanad under which the estate is now held. The Crown Grants Act of 1895, section 3, enacts that all provisions, &c., contained in a grant "shall be valid and take effect according to their tenor, any rule of law, Statute or enactment of the Legislature to the contrary notwithstanding," and full effect was given to this enactment in Thakur Sheo Singh v. Rani Raghubans Kunwar (6). The exception was in the case of the widow of Surajpal, one of the grantees under the Sanad of 1863, who appears to have been allowed to take possession of his estate to the exclusion of his male heirs; but this single instance, which is unexplained, is wholly insufficient to establish a custom binding on another branch of the family. This argument, therefore, also fails, and the appellant's title prevails.

For the above reasons their Lordships will humbly advise His Majesty that this appeal should be allowed; that the decree of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner and the decree of the Subordinate Judge should be set aside, and that the appellant should be held entitled to possession of Mahal Tajpur with any accretion thereto and to an account and payment of mesne profits. The respondents will pay the costs of the appellant in both Courts and his costs of this appeal.

W. C. A. Appeal allowed.

Solicitor for the Appellant:—Mr. Douglas Grant.

Solicitor for the Respondents:—Messrs. T. L. Wilson & Co.

(6) 32 I. A. 203 at p. 214; 27 A. 634; 15 M. L. J. 352; 8 O. C. 317; 9 C. W. N. 1009; 2 C. L. J. 194 (P. C.).

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE No. 2292 OF 1918.

July 15, 1920.

Present:—Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt., Acting Chief Justice, and Justice Sir Ernest Fletcher, Kt.

UJIR ALI SIRDAR—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

SHADHAI BEHARA AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Adverse possession—Limited interest, acquisition of—Appeal, second—Misconstruction of document containing admission—Question of fact or law—Evidence—Evidence, improper, admitted—Exclusion by High Court—High Court, appraisement of remaining evidence by.

A limited interest in property can be acquired by adverse possession. [p. 1004, col. 2]

Ishan Chandra Mitter v. Raja Ramranjan, 2 C. L. J. 125, Raktoo Singh v. Sudhram Ahir, 8 C. L. J. 557, Icharan Singh v. Nilmoney Balidar, 35 C. 470; 7 C. L. J. 499; 12 C. W. N. 636, Probhabati Dasi v. Taibaturnessa, 20 Ind. Cas. 664; 19 C. L. J. 62; 17 C. W. N. 1088, Panchkari Chattapadhya v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh, 28 Ind Cas. 708; 19 C. W. N. 136, Birendra Kisore v. Laksmi, 30 Ind Cas 896; 22 C L. J. 129, Muthuraju Thevan v. Robert Gordon Orr, 10 Ind. Cas 575; 35 M. 618; 10 M. L. T. 12; 21 M, L. J. 615, followed.

The misconstruction of a document which is the foundation of a suit is a question of law, but the misconstruction of a document which is alleged to contain an admission, that is to say, a misappreciation of the meaning and effect of an admission is not a question of law which can be raised in second appeal. [p. 1005, col 1.]

Nowbut Singh v. Chutter Dharee Singh, 19 W. R. 227, Ananda Chandra Sen v. Parbati Nath Sen, 4 C. L. J. 198, Braja Mohan Mandal v Thakur Das Nath, 4 Ind. Cas. 732; 10 C. L. J. 593, Buzlul Karim v. Satiesh Chandra Giri Mohant, 10 Ind. Cas. 325; 13 C. L. J. 418; 15 C. W. N. 752, Rajah Makund Deb v. Gopi Nath Saha, 25 Ind. Cas. 286; 21 C. L. J. 45, relied on.

It is not possible for the High Court in second appeal to say whether, after the exclusion of evidence improperly admitted, there is sufficient evidence left to justify the decree of the lower Appellate Court. This is a matter which must be considered by that Court. [p. 1005, col. 1.]

Appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Jessore, dated the 24th September 1918, affirming that of the Subordinate Judge Jessore, dated the 29th July 1918.

Babus Dawarka Nath Chuckerbutty, Romesh Chandra Sen and Bhupendra Kumar Ghose, for the Appellant.

Mr. B. Chakravarti and Babus Chibaprasanna Bhattacharyya and Jotindra Mohan Sen Gupta, for the Respondents.

UJIR ALI SIRDAR v. SHADHAI BEHARA.

JUDGMENT.

MOOKERJEE, ACTG, C. J.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff in a suit for ejectment of the defendants from what, according to him, originally constituted a service-tenure.

The suit was instituted in the first instance against five defendants, the representatives-in-interest of the alleged service-holder, and was decreed in the Court of first instance. Upon appeal to the District Judge, that decree was set aside on the ground that one Macleod, a transferee from the other defendants, should have been joined as a party defendant to the suit. The validity of the order of remand so made by the District Judge was considered by this Court, but the order was affirmed. Thereupon the order made was carried out and Macleod was added as a defendant on the 6th September 1916. The Subordinate Judge has, after re-trial, held that the claim is unfounded, and that view has been accepted by the District Judge.

On appeal to this Court, the decree of the District Judge has been assailed on three grounds; namely, first, that in respect of the parcels of land claimed by Macleod, the District Judge has erroneously held that the suit was barred by limitation; secondly, that in respect of the other parcels of land, the District Judge has misconstrued an admission alleged to have been made by the plaintiff in his deposition; and, thirdly, that in respect of these parcels of land, the District Judge has erroneously relied upon statements in two deeds of gift, which were inadmissible under section 18A of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

As regards the first contention, we are clearly of opinion that the case for the appellant cannot be sustained. It has been found that Macleod purchased the holding now in his occupation by two deeds in 1903. The conveyances purported to be in respect of permanent tenures held at rents fixed in perpetuity. The documents were registered and the landlord's fees were paid into the Registration Office. The District Judge, in concurrence with the Subordinate Judge has found that the landlord became aware of the transfer and also knew that Macleod openly held the lands, asserting his right as tenant by virtue of his purchase. The present suit was instituted on the 13th May 1910, but as Macleod was not added as a defendant till the 6th September 1916, in so far as he is concerned, we must take it for the purposes of limitation that the suit as against him was filed on the 6th September 1916. Consequently, at the date of the institution of this suit, Macleod had already been in possession for more than 12 years, to the knowledge of the landlord, in assertion of his title as transferee of the holding conveyed to him. It has been argued, however, on behalf of the appellant that time did not begin to run as against the plaintiff till he had terminated the alleged service-tenure by a notice upon the service holder. We are of opinion that there is no foundation for this contention: In the first place, the Subordinate Judge found that the plaintiff had failed to adduce evidence to prove his allegation as to the existence of the service-tenure. In the second place, there is no finding and, indeed, in view of the evidence to which we have just referred, there could not be any finding that after the transfer by the original defendants to Macleod in 1903, they could have rendered any service to the plaintiff. It is, consequently, plain that Macleod has by prescription acquired the status of a tenant under the plaintiff, on the well-recognised principle that a limited interest in property can be acquired by adverse possession. Ishan Chandra Mitter v. Raja Ramranjan (1), Raktoo Singh v. Sudhram Ahir (2), Icharan Singh v. Nilmoney Balidar (3), Probhabati Dasi v. Taibaturnessa (4), Panchkari Chattapadhya v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh (5), Birendra Kisore v. Laksmi (6), Muthuraku Thevan v. Robert Gordon Orr (7). We must consequently hold that the suit has been rightly dismissed as against Macleod.

As regards the remainder of the lands, the case for the defence was that they formed an occupancy holding bearing an annual rental of Rs. 10. The District Judge has held this allegation proved by the evidence which includes, first, an admission alleged to have been made by the plaintiff

(1) 2 C. L. J. 125.
(2) 8 C. L. J. 557.
(3) 35 C. 470; 7 C. L. J. 499; 12 C. W. N. 636.
(4) 20 Ind. Cas. 664; 19 C. L. J. 62; 17 C. W. N. 1088.
(5) 28 Ind. Cas. 708; 19 C. W. N. 136.
(6) 30 Ind. Cas. 896; 22 C. L. J. 129.
(7) 10 Ind. Cas. 575; 35 M. 618; 10 M. L. T. 12; 21 M. L. J. 615.

in his deposition and, secondly, recitals in two deeds of gift executed on the 10th April 1894 and 22nd August 1894 by the holders of the tenancy at that time. The second and third grounds urged by the appellant raise the question of what has been called the construction of the admission and the admissibility of the recitals.

As regards the admission, we are of opinion that the appellant cannot raise the question in second appeal. It was pointed out by Sir Richard Couch, C. J. in the case of Nowbut Singh v. Ohutter Dharee Singh (8) that the misconstruction of a document which is the foundation of a suit is no doubt a question of law, but the misconstruction of a document which is alleged to contain an admission, that is to say, a misappreciation of the meaning and effect of an admission is not a question of law which can be raised in second appeal. The same view has been taken in the cases of Ananda Chandra Sen v Parbati Nath Sen (9), Braja Mohan Mandal v. Thakur Das Nath (10), Bulul Karim v. Satish Chandra Giri Mahant (11), Rajah Mukund Deb v. Gopi Nath Sahu (12).

As regards the recitals in the deeds of gift we are of opinion that they are not admissible under section 18A of the Bengal Tenancy Act which provides that: "Nothing contained in any instrument of transfer to which the landlord is not a party shall be evidence against the landlord of the permanence, amount or fixity of rent, area, transferability or any incident of any tenure or holding referred to in such instrument." The respondent has contended that even if the recitals are excluded, there is abundant evidence to support the conclusion of the District Judge But it is not possible for us in second appeal to say whether, if the recitals in the deeds of gift are excluded, as they must be, there is sufficient evidence left to justify the decree, That is a matter which must be considered by the lower Appellate Court. Womes Chunder Chatterjee v. Chundee Churn Roy Chowdhry (13).

(8) 19 W. R. 222.
(9) 4 C. L. J. 198.
(10) 4 Ind Cas. 732; 10 C. L. J. 593.
(11) 10 Ind. Cas. 325; 13 C. L. J. 418; 15 C. W. N. 752.
(12) 25 Ind. Cas. 286; 21 C. L. J. 45.
(13) 7 C. 293; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. s.) 737.

The result is, that although we affirm the decree of dismissal as against Macleod we set aside the decree of the Court below in respect of all the lands not purchased by him, and remand the case to the District Judge in order that he may re-consider the question of the lands which are alleged to form an occupancy holding bearing an annual rental of Rs. 10. The matter will be re-considered irrespective of the recitals in the two deeds of gift. In so far as Macleod is concerned, the appeal stands dismissed with costs; in so far as the other respondents are concerned, costs will abide the result.

FLETCHER, J.—I agree.

B. N. Appeal partially decreed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 502 OF 1921.

February 16, 1922.

Present:—Sir Norman Macleod, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Coyajee.

CHUNILAL SOMESHVAR BHATT—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

VITHALDAS KARSANDAS—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17 - Deposit of tittle-deeds—Document amounting to charge also executed—Document containing reference to execution of formal mortgage-deed later on—Document, registration of, if necessary—Registration not effected—Mortgage, enforcement of—Formal mortgage, right to demand execution of.

Although it is a well-established rule of equity that a deposit of a document of title without more, without writing, or without word of mouth, will create in equity a charge upon the property referred to, the general rule will not apply where there is a deposit accompanied by an actual written charge. In that case one must refer to the terms of the written document, and any implication that might be raised, supposing there were no document, is put out of the case and reduced to silence by the document by which alone the parties must be governed Such a document must be registered [p. 096, col 2; p. 100 , col. 1.]

Shaw v. Foster, (1872) 5 H. L. 321; 42 L. J. Ch. 49; 27 L. T 281; 20 W. R. 907, followed.

Pranjivandas Jagjivandas Mehta v. Chan Mah Phee 35 Ind. Cas. 190; 43 C. 895; (1916) 1 M. W. N. 443; 31 M. L. J 155; 4 L. W. 69; 14 A. L. J. 638; 20 C. W. N. 925; 18 Bom. L. R 664; 30 M.L.T. 242; 9 Bur. L. T. 125; 24 C. L.J. 314; 8 L B. R. 458; 43 I. A. 122 (P. C.) and Behram Rashid v. Sorabji Rustamji Elavia, 23 Ind. Cas. 149; 38 B. 372; 16 Bom. L. R. 35, referred to.

CHUNILAL SOMESHVAR BHATT v. VITHALDAS KARSANDAS.

Where there is a document amounting to a complete contract containing a reference to a more formal document to be executed later on if desirable, it takes effect unless there is a condition that it is not to take effect unless the second document is executed. [p. 1007, col. 2.]

The defendant deposited the title-deeds of a house with the plaintiff, and on the same day passed a chithi in respect thereof which after reciting the taking of a certain sum of money stated: "I have given my house in mortgage for the above amount and.....shall execute a pucca document in respect of the same whenever you may ask me. The interest is settled at the rate of eight annas.... ...This is agreeable and binding on me." This chithi was not registered. The plaintiff sue to recover his money by sale of the mortgaged house, or in the alternative for a registered mortgage-deed thereof:

Held, (1) that the chithi required registration; [p. 1007, col. 2.]

(2) that in the absence of such registration, the plaintiff was not entitled to a declaration that he had a charge on the property mentioned in the title-deeds deposited with him, or to an order for sale of that property to satisfy his claim; [p. 1007, col. 2.]

(3) that the plaintiff was not entitled to obtain a mortgage-deed from the defendant as he had already got a mortgage and the only effect of his getting another document would be to have the terms of the mortgage settled in a more formal manner and that if the first document was not registered, he could not by getting another document cure the defect. [p. 1007, col. 2.]

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge, Ahmedabad, in Appeal No. 263 of 1919, confirming the decree passed by the Second Class Subordinate Judge at Godhra, in Civil Suit No. 2 of 1919.

Mr. G. N. Thakor, for the Appellant.

Mr. M. H. Mehta, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

MACLEOD, C. J.—The plaintiff sued to recover Rs. 1,000 principal, and Rs. 69-5-0 interest thereon, by sale of the mortgaged house mentioned in the plaint situated at Godhra, or in the alternative, for a registered mortgage-deed thereof, alleging that he had advanced that sum to the defendant to enable him to carry on trade in Bombay and in consideration thereof the defendant deposited the title-deed of his house at Godhra and created an equitable mortgage thereon for Rs. 1,000. The defendant on the same day passed in Bombay a chitti in respect thereof. The defendant admitted the payment of Rs. 1,000 on the 19th November 1917, and alleged that that amount was to be accounted for in the partnership account at the end of the year, and he further contended that the equitable mortgage and the agreement relied upon by the plaintiff did not come within the jurisdiction of the Court, as the agreement took place in Bombay, the amount was paid in Bombay and the defendant was doing business in Bombay and residing in Bombay.

The Trial Court had jurisdiction to try the suit, but as the chitti, Exhibit 12, on which the plaintiff relied, required registration, the suit failed. This decision was confirmed in appeal, and before us it has been argued in the first place, that the defendant admitted that there was an equitable mortgage of his property, and, therefore, the plaintiff on that admission was entitled to the decree he asked for. But I do not think it can be said that the defendant's pleading admits that there was an equitable mortgage which could be the basis of a decree. He merely refers in the written statement to the plaintiff's allegations and mentions what the plaintiff relies upon for establishing the creation of an equitable mortgage in Bombay.

Then it has been very strenuously urged that the document, Exhibit 12, does not require registration: and in order to determine whether it requires registration, we have to consider, upon the proper construction of that document, whether it creates a charge or an interest in the property mentioned therein, and with reference to documents connected with the deposit of title-deeds, what the Court has to consider is laid down in Shaw v. Foster (1) referred to in the judgment of the Privy Council in Pranjivandas Jagjivandas Mehta v. Ohan Mah Phee (2): "Although it is a well-established rule of equity that a deposit of a document of title without more, without writing, or without word of mouth, will create in equity a charge upon the property referred to, I apprehend that the general rule will not apply where you have a deposit accompanied by an actual written charge. In that case you must refer to the terms of the written document, and any implication that might be raised, supposing there were no document, is put out of the case and reduced to silence by the document by which alone you must be governed."

(1) (1872) 5 H. L. 321; 42 L. J. Ch. 49; 27 L. T. 231 20 W. R. 907.

(2) 35 Ind. Cas. 190; 43 C. 895; (1916) 1 M. W. N. 443; 31 M. L. J. 155; 4 L. W. 03; 14 A. L. J. 638; 20 C. W. N. 925; 18 Bom. L. R. 664; 20 M. L. T. 242 9 Bur. L. T. 125; 24 C. L. J. 314; 8 L. B. R. 458; 43 I. A. 122 (P. C.).

In the case before the Privy Council the question was what was the scope and extent of the security, as the title-deeds of several properties had been handed over and the document accompanying them only referred to one property. The question whether the document required registration was not before their Lordships.

It is difficult to see how Exhibit 12 can be considered as anything less than a mortgage, considering that it states after reciting the taking of Rs. 1,000:

"In security of that we have given our one house in Godhra bearing Municipal No. 292 and with superstructure being Sanad No. 7, measuring 85 square yards, in mortgage for the above amount. And we have also given to you the copy of the Sanad. We shall execute a Pasea document in respect of the same whenever you may ask us. Its interest is settled at the rate of eight annas. It is agreed that you should return to us the copy of the Sanad on paying the above amount. This is agreeable and binding on us."

If that document had been registered, and the mortgagor had thereafter sought to deal with the property, there can be little doubt that the plaintiff would have set up this document as conferring upon him a prior title. If there had been no document accompanying the title-deed, then it would have been open to the plaintiff to prove orally what was the intention with which the document was deposited, and whether it was meant to be considered as a security. But as the defendant executed this document, we must refer to it in order to ascertain what was the contract. The fact that the defendant agreed to execute another document in formal terms, if he was asked for one, does not affect the value of the document signed, provided it is evidence of a complete transaction which can be spelt out of its wording. There is a certain class of cases in which the parties only purport to record the terms of the agreement in an informal manner, intending that the formal expression of the oral agreement should be executed thereafter. But if the first document contains everything that is necessary for the purpose of proving an agreement then the first document takes effect, unless it is stated to be a condition of the first document that it should not take effect unless the second document is executed. But in this case there is a complete contract to be found in Exhibit 12, although the plaintiff had a right to obtain a mortgage-deed drawn up in more formal language. It seems to me, therefore, that the Courts below were right in deciding that Exhibit 12 required registration.

Reference was made to the case of Behram Rashid v. Sorabji Rustamji Elavia (3) which was decided by Mr. Justice Beaman and myself and there Mr. Justice Beaman very clearly points out the way in which contemporaneous writings of this kind should be dealt with.

The whole point is whether the document created a charge upon the property referred to therein, and once there is a writing with reference to the deposit of title-deeds, then it is quite clear that the Court must refer to that writing, and can refer only to it, in order to determine what were the conditions on which the title-deeds were deposited. The plaintiff, therefore, was not entitled to a declaration that he had a charge on the property mentioned in the title-deeds deposited with him, or to an order for sale of that property to satisfy his claim, nor do I think he was entitled to obtain a mortgage deed from the defendant, as, if my construction of the deed is correct, he had already got a mortgage and the only effect of his getting another document would be to have the terms of the mortgage settled in a more formal manner. Therefore, if the first transaction is not registered he could not by getting another document cure the defect. But as the defendant admits the advance, it is certainly open to the Court to consider whether a decree should not be passed against the defendant personally. It is true that the learned Trial Judge says that the plaintiff does not want a decree against the defendant personally, but wishes to proceed against the mortgaged property only. But it is not clear that the plaintiff was given an opportunity of endeavouring to prove that he was entitled to a personal decree against the defendant if he failed to get a decree against the property. I think he ought to have an opportunity of doing so, and, therefore, the suit should go back to the Trial Court for decision on the issue whether the Court has jurisdiction to pass a personal decree against the defendant, and if so, whether such a decree should be passed. We set aside the order dismissing the suit to that extent. The appellant must pay the costs of the appeal.

(3) 23 Ind. Cas. 140; 38 B. 372; 16 Bom. L. R. 35.

COYAJEE, J.—I agree.

N. H. Order varied.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1061 OF 1921.

February 14, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Scott Smith.

ALLAH RAKHIYA KHAN AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

AHMAD—DEFENDANT-(VENDEE) AND SEWA RAM alias KALU RAM—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENTS.

*Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), s. 4—Sale—*Adhlapi tenure, whether sale.

A., the owner of certain land, stipulated with B. that if the latter built a well on the land and brought it into working order within a certain period he would become the owner of a one-third share n the land:

Held, that the transaction did not amount to a sale and was not, therefore, liable to pre-emption.

The creation of an adhlapi tenure in which no money consideration passes at all does not amount to a sale.

Mul Chand v. Mansa Ram, 157 P. R. 1883, distinguished.

Ghulam Muhammad v. Tek Chand, 62 Ind. Cas. 932; 2 L. 199, followed.

Second appeal from a decree of the Senior District Judge, Multan, dated the 4th December 1920, reversing that of the Munsif, First Class, Leiah, District Muzaffargarh, dated the 29th June 1920.

Lala Rama Nand, for the Appellants.

Lala Nawal Kishore, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—Sewa Ram, defendant No. 2, having created an adhlapi tenure with regard to the land in suit in favour of Ahmad defendant No. 1, the plaintiffs-appellants sued for pre emption on the ground that the creation of an adhlapi tenure amounted to a sale. The Courts below have concurrently held, following Mul Chand v. Mansa Ram (1), that the creation of an adhlapi tenure amounted to a sale. The First Court decreed the claim, but the lower Appellate Court, holding that there was no custom of pre-emption with regard to such a sale, dismissed the plaintiffs' suit. The plaintiffs have, therefore, filed a second appeal to this Court and it is contended on their behalf that there was no plea raised and no issue framed as to whether such a sale could be pre empted. Counsel for the respondents asks that the decree of the lower Appellate Court dismissing the plaintiffs' suit be maintained on the ground that Mul Chand v. Mansa Ram (1) is distinguishable and that in the present case it cannot be said that the creation of adhlapi rights amounted to a sale.

According to the agreement by which the tenure was created, Ahmad was to construct a well and bring it into working order within five years, and if he did this he was to become owner of one-third share of Dal Kalachiwali. No cash payment was stipulated for and the case is, therefore, distinguishable from that reported as Mul Chand v. Mansa Ram (1), for there the transferee agreed not only to restore the ruined well but to pay a certain sum in cash and it was held that in such circumstances the transaction amounted to a sale. That case is, therefore, distinguishable from the present one. In Ghulam Muhammad v. Tek Chand (2) it was held that the creation of an adhlapi tenure in which no money consideration passed at all did not amount to a sale and Mul Chand v. Mansa Ram (1) was distinguished The facts of the present case are on all fours with those in that reported as Ghulam Muhammad v. Tek Chand (2) and I accordingly hold that there has been no sale in the present case such as would give rise to a right of pre-emption.

The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

S. K. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 157 P. R. 1883.

(2) 62 Ind. Cas. 932; 2 L. 199.

END OF VOLUME LXVIII.

GENERAL INDEX.

VOLUME LXVIII—1922.

—— :·o:·O·:o·: ——

Abatement of appeal—Decree for joint possession of land—Appeal by defendant—Death of one respondent—No substitution in time, effect of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXII, rr. 4 (1), 11.

Where during the pendency of an appeal preferred by the defendant against a decree for joint possession of land, one of the plaintiffs-respondents dies and his heirs are not substituted within the time allowed by law, the appeal abates not only against the deceased respondent but also against the other respondents as being no longer competent and should be dismissed against all the respondents. The fact that in the plaint the plaintiffs specified their respective shares would make no difference as the mere specification by the plaintiffs that each individual plaintiff's share is so much does not alter the nature of the decree C ARJAN MIRDHA v. KALI KUMAR CHAKERBUTTY 194

Abwab—Stipulation for delivery of ghee and goat contained in mourasi mokurrari kabuliyat, if enforceable—"Goat and ghee" forming no part of the rent payable—Bengal Putni Taluks Regulation (VIII of 1819), s. 3—"Engagements," meaning of.

A registered mourasi mokurrari kabuliyat executed in 1877 recited that "within the aforesaid Mouza you have granted me a potta of 12 bighas of land at an annual jama of Rs 6 and Rs. 24 as premium," and after reciting how the money should be paid and in what instalments, the kabuliyat stated that the landlord should have right to the minerals, etc., and lastly there was the following clause:—"Also it should appear that I would deliver 1 seer of Shyama ghee and one kid every year." No amount was mentioned as payable in lieu of the ghee and goat in case of default In a suit for rent on the basis of the kabuliyat:

Held, (on the assumption that Regulation VIII of 1819 controlled all the incidents of the tenure in question that the stipulation regarding the ghee and goat was, in its term and effect, the imposition of an abwab and as such not enforceable.

That the 'goat and ghee" did not form part of the rent and the stipulation regarding delivery thereof was not legalised by Regulation VIII of 1819, but was subject to the law relating to 'abwabs' in force at the time of the creation of the lease.

The word "engagements" mentioned in section 3 of the Bengal Putni Taluks Regulation connotes engagements as to rent and other terms connected therewith C RAM TARAN TEWARY v KUMEDA DASI, 26 C. W. N. 634; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 80 161

Acts—General.

Act 1839—XXXII. See INTEREST ACT.
—— 1860—XLV. See PENAL CODE.
—— 1861—V. See POLICE ACT.
—— 1863—XX. See RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS ACT.
—— 1867—III. See PUBLIC GAMBLING ACT.
—— 1869—IV. See DIVORCE ACT.
—— 1870—VII. See COURT FEES ACT.
—— 1871—I. See CATTLE TRESPASS ACT.
—— 1871—XXIII. See PENSIONS ACT.
—— 1872—I. See EVIDENCE ACT.
—— 1872—IX. See CONTRACT ACT.
—— 1875—IX. See MAJORITY ACT.
—— 1877—I. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT.
—— 1877—III. See REGISTRATION ACT.
—— 1878—I. See OPIUM ACT.
—— 1878—XI. See ARMS ACT.
—— 1880—IX. See CESS ACT.
—— 1881—V. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT.
—— 1881—XXVI. See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT.
—— 1882—IV. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT.
—— 1882—V. See EASEMENTS ACT.
—— 1882—VI. See COMPANIES ACT.
—— 1882—XV. See PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT.
—— 1889—VII. See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT.
—— 1890—VIII. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT.
—— 1890—IX. See RAILWAYS ACT.
—— 1894—I. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT.
—— 1897—V. See ESTATES PARTITION ACT.
—— 1898—V. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1899—IX. See ARBITRATION ACT.
—— 1907—III. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.
—— 1908—V. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1908—IX. See LIMITATION ACT.
—— 1908—XVI. See REGISTRATION ACT.
—— 1909—III. See PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT
—— 1912—IV. See COURT OF WARDS ACT.
—— 1913—VII. See COMPANIES ACT.
—— 1918—VII. See INCOME TAX ACT.
—— 1918—IX See INDIAN SOLDIERS (LITIGATION) ACT
—— 1920—V. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.

Acts—Bengal.

—— 1858—XXXI. See DIARA ACT.
—— 1859—XI. See BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT.
—— 1868—VII. See BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT.
—— 1885—VIII. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT.

Acts—Bengal—concld.

ACT 1918—II. See BENGAL TENANCY (AMENDMENT) ACT.
—— 1920—III. See CALCUTTA RENT ACT.

Acts—Bombay.

—— 1874—III. See BOMBAY HEREDITARY OFFICES ACT.
—— 1880—I. See KHOTI SETTLEMENT ACT.
—— 1888—VI. See GUJARAT TALUKDARS' ACT.
—— 1903—II. See MAMLATDARS COURTS ACT.
—— 1918—II. See BOMBAY RENT (WAR RESTRICTIONS) ACT.

Acts—C. P.

—— 1898—XI. See C. P. TENANCY ACT.
—— 1920—I. See C. P. TENANCY ACT.

Acts—Madras.

—— 1892—VII. See CITY CIVIL COURT ACT.
—— 1908—I. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT.

Acts—Punjab.

—— 1887—XVI. See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT.
—— 1898—I. See PUNJAB GENERAL CLAUSES ACT.
—— 1905—II. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
—— 1911—III. See PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ACT.
—— 1913—I. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
—— 1913—II. See REDEMPTION OF MORTGAGES (PUNJAB) ACT.
—— 1918—VI. See PUNJAB COURTS ACT.

Acts—U. P.

—— 1869—I. See OUDH ESTATES ACT.
—— 1901—II. See AGRA TENANCY ACT.
—— 1901—III. See U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT.

Ordinances.

Ord. 1921—II. See MARTIAL LAW ORDINANCE.

Regulations.

Reg. 1806—XVII. See REGULATION.
—— 1819—VIII. See BENGAL PUTNI TALUKS REGULATION.

Statute.

1915—(5 & 6 GEO. V, C. 61). See GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT.

Adhlapi tenure, whether sale.

The creation of an adhlapi tenure in which no money consideration passes at all does not amount to a sale. L ALLAH RAKHIYA KHAN v. AHMAD 1008

Adverse possession a mixed question of law and fact—Appeal, second.

The question of adverse possession is a mixed question of fact and law. The facts found by the lower Appellate Court must be accepted in second appeal, but the conclusion drawn from them, namely, whether the possession was adverse or not, is a question of law and can be considered by the High Court in second appeal. C JOGENDRA NATH MUKHERJEE v. RAJENDRA NATH BHATTACHARJEE, 26 C. W. N. 890; (1922) A. I. R. C. 54 200 against widow—Reversioner, whether affected.

Although possession may be adverse against a widow, it is not adverse against a reversioner during her lifetime. L NAND SINGH v. DHANKAUR, 2 L. L. J. 573 299

Adverse possession—concld.

——— Limited interest, acquisition of.

A limited interest in property can be acquired by adverse possession. C UJIR ALI SIRDAR v SHADHAI BEHARA, 35 C. L. J. 187; 1922) A. I. R. C. 85 1003

——— Mortgage, simple—Possession, adverse, against mortgagor, when adverse against mortgagee.

When after a simple mortgage has been granted, a third person commences to acquire title by adverse possession against the mortgagor, the period of adverse possession against the mortgagor cannot operate against the mortgagee while he is not entitled to possession. Adverse possession operates against the mortgagee only when the mortgagee is entitled to possession and time runs against him from the date when he is entitled to enter upon the land

But in the case of grant of a mortgage by a person previously dispossessed the adverse possession which had commenced to operate against the mortgagor would not by the grant of the mortgage be arrested but would operate equally against the mortgagee. Pat KUNJ LAL v KANHAI MAHTO 641

——— Symbolical possession of rightful owner—Adverse possession, when interrupted Partition suit—Third person in wrongful possession joined as defendant—Decree giving no relief against him—Such person, whether party to suit—Symbolical possession, whether can be given as against him—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 6, application of.

Symbolical possession of the rightful owner can interrupt adverse possession in those cases only in which the Civil Procedure Code recognises symbolical possession.

Where in a partition suit, a third person in wrongful possession of the land is also joined as a defendant but the decree of the Court gives no relief against him, the latter is not in substance a party to the suit, nor can symbolical possession be given as against him under O. XXI, r. 36 of the Civil Procedure Code. B RAGHUNATH WAMAN v. KONDIBA BABAJI, 24 BOM. L. R. 499; (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 2 91

——— Vacant site in village—Temporary user, if assertion of ownership.

In the case of a vacant site situated in a village, possession goes with title, and where a person sets up a plea of adverse possession he must prove that this possession has been adverse for a period of at least 12 years.

The mere storage of bricks and wood and the tethering of cattle on such a site would not amount to an assertion of ownership on the part of the person so using the site. L CHANDAN v. BAHADUR, 4 L. L. J. 168; 62 P. L. R. 1922; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 82 263

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 102 —Suit for rent or damages for not raising crop—Civil Court, jurisdiction of.

A suit by a landlord against his tenant for rent or damages for not raising a crop is a suit under section 102 of the Agra Tenancy Act, and is excluded from the jurisdiction of a Civil Court. INDERPAL SINGH v BAPATI, 20 A. L. J. 77; 44 U. P. L. R. (A.) 20. 985

Ancestral land—Evidence as to its ancestral character not adduced—Assumption that self-acquired.

Ancestral land—concld.

In the absence of proof that a certain land is ancestral, it must be assumed that it is not. L FATEH MUHAMMAD v. IMAM-UD-DIN, 2 L. L. J 188 106

Appeal, Civil, dismissal of, in default—Compromise filed subsequently—Court, duty of.

Where after an appeal has been dismissed in default, both appellant and respondent being absent, the parties present a petition of compromise and ask that the case be decided in terms thereof, the Court is bound to give effect to the compromise. C ASWINI KUMAR DUTT v SUKHODA SUNDARI 448

——— Execution, order refusing stay of—Appeal, if competent.

No appeal lies from an order refusing to stay execution. L KANHAYA LAL v. RAM GOPAL-RAM SARUP 49

——— New case.

Where a plaintiff sets up a claim to property attached in execution of a decree on the ground that the property belongs to him, having fallen to him on partition, and he fails to prove that any partition has taken place, he cannot be permitted in appeal to take an entirely new point that the property, even though joint family property, is not liable under the decree as necessary parties were not impleaded in the suit. L RAM CHAND v. RAMA NAND, 3 L. L. J. 392 227

——— Objection to form of suit, whether can be raised in appeal for first time.

An objection as to the form of the suit which is not raised in the Courts below, cannot be raised in appeal. L NARINJAN SINGH v. CHARN DASS, 3 L. 239; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 363 557

——— Plea, new, involving questions of fact, admission of.

A plea which involves questions of fact which ought to have been decided in the Trial Court and are not decided because the plea was not raised there, cannot be raised at any later stage of the case. O MOHKAM v. BANSIDHAR, 9 O. L. J. 359; 4 U. P. L. R. J. C.) 93 972

——— Preliminary decree, appeal against—Final decree, passing of—Court, jurisdiction of, to decide appeal, if affected.

There is a difference between cases where the final decree is passed before an appeal against the preliminary decree is preferred and when it is passed after the appeal is preferred. In the latter case the Court is not deprived of its jurisdiction to decide the appeal which is already before it. C MEA HOSSAIN KHAN v. SHEIKH SAMIR 475

———, second—Finding of fact, if can be attacked on ground of insufficiency of evidence.

In second appeal a finding of fact of the lower Appellate Court cannot be attacked on the ground of insufficiency of evidence. C PROSANNA KUMAR BEDANTA TIRTHA BHATTACHARJYA v. MADHU BADYA 500

——— Finding of fact unassailable.

A finding of an Appellate Court which is based on a consideration of the evidence in the case is unassailable in second appeal C SHIB CHANDRA SINGHA v. GOUR CHANDRA PAL, 35 C. L. J. 473; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 160; 27 C. W. N. 1 4 86

——— Misconstruction of document containing admission—Question of fact or law.

Appeal, second—concld.

The misconstruction of a document which is the foundation of a suit is a question of law, but the misconstruction of a document which is alleged to contain an admission, that is to say, a misappreciation of the meaning and effect of an admission is not a question of law which can be raised in second appeal. C UJIR ALI SIRDAR v. SHADHAI BEHARA, 35 C. L J. 182; (1922) A I. R. (C.) 185 1003

——— New and inconsistent plea. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 18, SCH. J, ART. 62 94

Application for possession by purchaser, not step-in-aid of execution—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 181, 182.

An application for possession made by a decree-holder auction-purchaser after the confirmation of sale, is not a step-in-aid of execution, inasmuch as as soon as a sale is confirmed, the property vests in the purchaser and any further step which it may be necessary for him to take in order to secure possession is not a step taken by a decree-holder, even if he happens to be the auction-purchaser but is an application by the auction-purchaser as such and has, consequently, nothing to do with the execution of the decree. Pat KAMAL NAIN SINGH v. KESHO PRASAD SINGH, 1 PAT 701; (1922) A 1. R. (PAT.) 310 638

Approver—Corroboration.

Evidence that is itself tainted cannot be useful for purposes of corroboration of tainted evidence.

A wife who knows all about a proposal to murder her husband, and is a consenting party to the commission of the crime, is in the position of an accomplice and her evidence should not ordinarily be accepted either as corroborative of the evidence of an approver or as sufficient, apart from independent corroboration, to justify the conviction of the accused. L AHMAD NUR v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 597 821

——— Criminal proceedings before conclusion of principal trial—Illegality.

It is illegal to start criminal proceedings against an approver for not having complied with the condition on which a pardon was tendered to him, before the conclusion of the principal trial. S EMPEROR v. HAJI JIAND, 23 CR L. J 611 835

Arbitration Act (IX of 1899), s. 14—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42—Award not filed in Court—Suit for declaration that award not binding, nature of.

The Arbitration Act prescribes the manner in which an award may be enforced, and section 14 of the Act details the courses open to a Court after an award has been filed in Court, but the Act has no bearing on a suit for a declaration that a certain award by arbitrators is not binding on a plaintiff. Such a suit falls under section 42 of the Specific Relief Act. L FIRM HIRA NAND-MURLI DHAR v. FIRM FLEMING SHAW & Co, 4 L. L. J. 12; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 26 187

Archaka of temple, suit by, against trustee for possession, maintainability of. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 9 183

Arms Act (XI of 1878), s. 4—Arms—Dah—Criterion for determining whether dah an arm.

In determining whether any given dah is an arm within the meaning of that term in section 4 of the Arms Act, the true criterion is the intention of the maker as regards its purpose. A dah having a blade

Arms Act—concld.

22½ inches long, not intended for domestic purposes, is an arm. L B PO ME v. EMPEROR, 11 L. B. R. 340; 23 CR. L. J. 594 818

——— ss. 19, 20—Possession of arms without license—Concealment—Conviction.

Each case of concealment of arms must be decided on its own facts, and in each case the Court must decide on the evidence whether a particular act of concealment falls under section 19 or section 20 of the Arms Act. L SHER ALI v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 609 833

Attachment, flaw in—Attachment, absence of —Auction-sale, whether nullity.

An auction-sale duly held without material irregularity or fraud in publishing or conducting it cannot be considered a nullity merely by reason of a flaw in the attachment, or the absence of an attachment. N SHANKARRAO v. MANIKRAO 643

Attested document, mode of proof of— —Rule inexorable—Document used for collateral purpose, if can be proved in the ordinary way—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 68, 69, 70, 71—Evidence admitted without objection, admissibility of, when can be challenged at later stage of the litigation.

The strict mode prescribed in section 68 of the Evidence Act of proving an attested document applies not only to cases where the document is attempted to be enforced to prove the legal right or relation it creates, but also to a case where such document is sought to be proved for a collateral purpose.

The law, as laid down in section 65 of the Evidence Act, is imperative and does not, on the face of it, admit of any relaxation except in the cases provided in sections 69, 70 and 71 of the Act.

The rigour of the English Law on which section 68 is founded has been to a certain extent lessened by the proviso as contained in section 70 of the Evidence Act.

Obiter.—Where a piece of evidence not proved in the proper manner has been admitted without objection, it is not open to the opposite party to challenge it at a later stage of the litigation. But where evidence has been received without objection in direct contravention of an imperative provision of the law, the principle on which unobjected evidence is admitted, be it acquiescence, waiver or estoppel, none of which is available against a positive legislative enactment, does not apply. C SHIB CHANDRA SINGHA v. GOUR CHANDRA PAL, 35 C. L. J. 473; (1922) A. I. R (C.) 160; 27 C. W. N. 134 86

Basra, whether under administration of Government of India. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, S. 13 978

Benami transaction—Duty of Court to give effect to.

If a benami transaction does not contravene the provisions of law, Courts are bound to give effect to it. N BALKRISHNA v. LAKHU 191

Benamidar, right of, to sue.

A benamidar can sue in his own name. N BALKRISHNA v. LAKHU 191

———, status of.

A benamidar, though he has no beneficial interest in the property, represents in fact the real owner, and so far as their relative position is concerned is a mere trustee for him. N BALKRISHNA v. LAKHU 191

Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act (XI of 1859), ss. 2, 3—Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act (VII of 1868), s. 11—Holding, when becomes saleable for arrears—Pre-mature sale invalid and ultra vires.

The effect of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act (XI of 1859) and Act VII of 1868 and of the Board's Notification of 6th October 1871, issued under section 3 of the Act of 1859, in relation to the time at which certain holdings become saleable for arrears, is that no holding can be sold till after the 28th June next after the first day of the month following the month in which the revenue or rent should have been paid.

The date on which the amount of rent or revenue is payable depends, primarily, not on general or administrative considerations, such as the course of business in the Collectorate, or the mode in which the accounts are kept, but on the contract between the parties.

A kabuliyat, dated the 16th November 1862, contained a stipulation that the tenant would pay the rent year by year. Under the provisions of Bengal Act VII of 1868 the tenancy was sold for arrears of revenue of 1914-15 in May 1915:

Held, that the rent was not in arrear till the 31st December 1914, and the Collector was without authority to sell before the 28th June 1915, that, accordingly, the sale held in May 1915, was invalid and ultra vires C BIRENDRA CHANDRA SINGH v. MAHAMMAD SOLEMAN, 26 C. W. N. 140 491

——— s. 37—Creation of patni by auction-purchaser—Annulment of under-tenures—Presumption.

The mere creation of the patni by an auction-purchaser at a revenue-sale would not, by itself, be an indication to the under-tenure-holders that the option to annul the under-tenures had in fact been exercised. C KULA MIAH v. NAZU MAIH 449

Bengal Putni Taluks Regulation (VIII of 1819), s. 3. See ABWAB 161

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 3, 153—Rent, whether includes cess—Dispute as to amount of cess annually payable—Appeal, second. See CESS ACT, 1880, s. 41 937

——— ss. 50, 106, 115—Record of Rights, final publication of—Presumption under s. 50—Tenant showing unchanged rent 20 years before suit—Presumption of fixed-rate tenancy apart from s. 50, if arises.

When there has been a final publication of the Record of Rights, the tenant is entitled to the benefit of the presumption under section 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act only in a suit under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Apart from a case where section 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act may be applicable, a tenant, by showing that his rent has not been changed during the 20 years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding in which his status as a fixed-rate tenant is questioned, is not entitled to ask the Court to presume that he has held at that rate from the time of the Permanent Settlement. Pat GOBIND LAL v RAM SARAN LAL, 2 P. L. T. 642 433

——— ss. 53, 54, cl. (3), 67. See LANDLORD AND TENANT 109

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

——— ss. 60, 72—Registered proprietor—Rent-suit—Defendant paying rent to transferee under kabuliyat for long time whether protected.

Plaintiff, the registered proprietor, sued the defendant for rent. The defendant pleaded payment to transferee from the proprietor. The Courts below found that although the plaintiff was the registered proprietor, his rights had long since been purchased by the transferee to whom the defendant had executed a kabuliyat and had been paying rent for a long time. The Courts, thereupon, dismissed the suit, being of opinion that section 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act had no application to the facts of the case:

Held, (1) that the fact that the plaintiff was a registered proprietor was enough to bring the case within section 60 of the Act and the defendant was not entitled to plead in defence that the rent was due to any third person;

(2) that section 72 of the Act which protected only a tenant to whom the transferee had given notice of the transfer had no application to the case. Pat ADAYABATI v. JANARDAN THAKUR, 3 P. L. T. 756 288

——— s. 111A—Publication of Record of Rights—Declaratory suit—Disimssal—Cause of action—Final publication of Record—Fresh cause of action—Limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 120.

The plaintiffs brought a suit on the 1st June 1917 for declaration that they had raiyati title in certain land and that they were not under-raiyats under the defendant as recorded in the Record of Rights which had been finally published in the Bengali year 1322. During the preparation of the Record of Rights a dispute between the plaintiffs and the defendant as to the status of the former had been decided on the 2nd July 1913. The defendant contended that limitation commenced to run from the decision of the dispute and, consequently, the suit was barred by the six years' rule of limitation contained in Art. 120 of the First Schedule to the Limitation Act:

Held, that the suit was within time, for under section 111A of the Bengal Tenancy Act the plaintiffs had a statutory cause of action which arose on the date of the final publication of the Record of Rights. C BADARUDDIN MUNSHI v. SARAPADDIN BEPARI 489

——— s. 148A—Essential principles underlying—Suit of by co-sharer for entire rent, form of.

The essential principles underlying section 148A of the Bengal Tenancy Act are, that the suit should in form be for the whole rent and in substance for the separate share of rent in arrears: that the whole body of landlords should be impleaded with the allegation that the plaintiff has not been able to ascertain what, if any, rents are due to the former. In such cases the plaintiff is entitled to assert that his share of the rent due is the entire rent due and ask the Court to decide on the accuracy of that belief, if and when the impleaded co-sharers appear and claim any arrears as due to themselves Pat MASUD AHMED v. JAGAN SINGH, 3 P. L. T. 39 625

——— ss. 159, 161, 167—Adverse possession—"Encumbrance", meaning of.

The word "encumbrance" in sections 159 and 161 of the Bengal Tenancy Act includes statutory title and interest acquired by a trespasser by adverse possession of a part of the lands of the defaulting tenure or holding, and such an encumbrance cannot be annulled in any manner other than what is provided in section 167. C ISHAN CHANDRA BAKSHI v. SEFATULLA SIKDAR, 35 C. L. J. 36; 26 C. W. N. 703 219

Bengal Tenancy Act—concld.

——— Sch. III, Art. 3, applicability of. See RES JUDICATA 472

Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act (II B. C. of 1918), s. 4 E, sub-s. (2), 49F—Power of an aboriginal to effect a mortgage of his holding to a non-aboriginal, how restricted—Permission of Collector, if can enlarge that power.

The power of an aboriginal to effect a mortgage of his land is restricted by the provisions of section 4 E sub-section (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act as amended by Act II B. C. of 1918 under which such a tenant is empowered only to make a complete usufructuary mortgage of his land, and the permission of the Collector under section 49F of the Act cannot enlarge the power of the aboriginal to effect a mortgage of his holding in any other way than by a complete usufructuary mortgage C GANGARAM MAJHI v. MAHAPATRA 301

Berar Land Revenue Code, 1896, s. 78 (2)—Tenant of antiquity—Origin of tenancy traceable—Tenant neither proved to be perpetual nor ante-jagir—Presumption.

The protection afforded by section 78 (2) of the Berar Land Revenue Code is not available to a tenant the origin of whose tenancy is known, or can be proved to have commenced after a certain point of time; that section applies only where by reason of antiquity, evidence of the commencement of a tenancy is lost

In the absence of any proof that a tenancy is perpetual or that the tenant is an ante-jagir tenant, it must be assumed that he is an annual tenant. N YESHWANT v. SHIVPPA 178

——— s. 205—Pre-emption—Agreement to re-sell—Enforceability against pre-emptor.

A pre-emptor's right under section 205 of the Berar Land Revenue Code cannot be defeated by the vendee's agreement to re-sell the property to the vendor, nor can the condition to re-purchase be enforced against the pre-emptor. N BAPU v. BHOMJI 498

Berar Patels and Patwaris Law, 1900, ss. 6, 9, 20—Patelship allowance, suit for share of—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

Under section 20 of the Berar Patels and Patwaris Law, 1900, a Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit to enforce a claim to a share in the emoluments appertaining to the office of Patel N CHAMPAT v. GANPATRAO 506

Bombay Hereditary Offices Act (III of 1874), s. 18—Panch, appointment of—Collector's powers of appointment—Appointment by Deputy Collector—Award validity of—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

On an application to a Deputy Collector for the appointment of a Panch according to section 18 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act, the Deputy Collector ordered the Mamlatdar to do so, and he, in turn, ordered his Head Karkun to get two Panches appointed by the parties, and appointed the Head Karkun to be Sar Panch: the villagers, however, refused to appoint the Panches whereupon the Mamlatdar directed the Head Karkun to himself appoint the necessary two persons: the Panch so constituted made an award which was approved by the Deputy Collector. In a suit on foot of the award, its validity was challenged:

Bombay Hereditary Offices Act—concld.

Held, that the award was not a valid award, as the procedure adopted in appointing the Panches was not a substantial compliance with the terms of section 18 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act; that the subsequent approval of the Deputy Collector gave no kind of validity to the award which at the time it was made had no validity, and that such approval was not in accordance with the proviso to the section.

A Civil Court has no jurisdiction to determine a matter for the determination of which section 18 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act provides the procedure. B MAHADU KASHIBA v KRISHNA TATYA, 24 BOM. L R. 917 746

Bombay Rent (War Restrictions) Act (II of 1918), s. 9—Fraction of premises leased required by landlord—Tenant, eviction of.

A bona fide requirement of a landlord of a small fraction of the premises leased does not amount to a reasonable requirement of the whole of the premises within the meaning of section 9 of the Bombay Rent War Restrictions) Act so as to entitle him to evict the tenant from them. B VITHALDAS BHAGVANDAS v. NAGUBAI M JOSHI, 23 BOM. L. R. 856 330

Bond—Alteration, effect of—Suit on altered bond if maintainable—Proof of actual loan by independent evidence.

The plaintiff brought a suit on a bond for Rs 35. The defendant denied payment of consideration and also pleaded that the bond which he admittedly had executed was a bond for Rs. 25 only and had been altered so as to show the amount advanced to be Rs. 35. The Trial Court dismissed the suit on the finding that the bond was altered, although the consideration money of Rs. 25 had been paid. The plaintiff moved the High Court under section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act:

Held, that although the plaintiff could not recover his claim on the bond sued upon, he was entitled to recover the amount of Rs. 25 which he had been found to have advanced to the defendant, inasmuch as he was entitled to succeed on proof of the loan by independent evidence. C KHOSAL MAHAMMAD v AMIRUDDIN MAHAMMAD PRAMANIK 331

——— Execution, denial of—Execution established—Court, if may infer passing of consideration.

Where a person denies execution of a bond and the Court finds that he did execute it, if the bond contains a recital that the money was paid to him, no error of law would be committed if from those facts the Court concluded that the consideration was paid. C JADU MONDAL v. JAGENDRANATH BANERJEE 303

Buddhist Law, Burmese—Inheritance—Succession—"Orasa," meaning and position of—Orasa son or daughter, rights of—Children of orasas, rights of.

Buddhist Law—contd.

Per Robinson, C. J., Maung Kin, J., Heald, J., and Duckworth, J— 1) In a Burman Buddhist family consisting of both sons and daughters, any child can acquire the full status of Orasa prior to the death of either parent;

2 in such a family where the eldest child is a daughter no son can become Orasa;

(3) in such a family the question which child is the Orasa can be decided before the death of either parent;

(4) in such a family there cannot be two Orasas;

(5 sons are not to be preferred to daughters as Orasa, unless the son is the eldest born;

6 in such a family where the eldest born child is the son he is the Orasa, and if he predeceases his parents, his children have a right to preferential treatment in the division of the estate If the eldest son dies before he becomes competent to take his father's place, a younger son, being fully qualified, may become Orasa, and, if that son predeceases his parents, his children have a right to the same preferential treatment If the eldest born child is a daughter and she predeceases her parents, after becoming competent to take her mother's place, her children have a right to the same preferential treatment. But it is doubtful whether another daughter, younger than a son, can ever take the place of the eldest born daughter, who is not competent, or dies before becoming able to take her mother's place;

7) the eldest child, being a daughter, can claim on the death of her mother a quarter share as Orasa, and if she then dies before her father without having got the share her children have a right to preferential treatment.

Per Maung Kin, J.—It is the eldest born legitimate son who is entitled to claim a quarter of the parental estate from his mother on the death of the father, provided he has helped the parents in the acquisition of property and takes the deceased father's place and continues the family. And this eldest born son, who is entitled to a quarter share, is called an Orasa.

The eldest born legitimate daughter has the right to claim a quarter share on the death of her mother whether she co exists with sons or not, and the eldest born child is the Orasa, although, as regards the claim to a quarter share on the death of one of the parents, it would depend upon the circumstances of each particular case whether the claim can be made or not, that is to say, if the child is a son he can only make the claim from the mother, on the ground that he steps into his deceased father's place similarly, if a daughter, she can only claim as one who takes the place of her mother It is clear also that there cannot be two Orasas, a male and a female, in the same family, because an Orasa is either the eldest born or the one who supersedes the eldest born.

The eldest born child—male or female—is the child through whom his or her children may claim a preferential right in the estate of their grandparents.

Per Heald, J.—The word auratha is commonly used to mean the eldest child, whether son or daughter, and if the eldest child, being a son, is competent on the father's death to take the father's place in the family, or, being a daughter is competent on the mother's death to take the mother's place then he or she is auratha, and on the father's or mother's death is entitled to the father's or mother's personal property and to one-fourth of the rest of the estate, and if the eldest child, whether son or daughter, dies without having become entitled to that interest in the estate, his or her children are entitled to share equally in the estate with the younger brothers and sisters of the deceased.

(1) The eldest-born child who is competent to take the place of the father or mother acquires the status of auratha on becoming so competent and can acquire that status before the death of either parent.

(2) If the eldest-born child is a daughter and reaches an age at which she is competent to take her mother's place, no son can become auratha either before or after his father's death.

(3) The status of auratha in no way depends on the death of either parent. The eldest-born competent child is auratha in any case.

(4) There can never be two aurathas in a family. If a son or daughter dies after acquiring the status of auratha, there is no auratha in the family.

(5) Sons are not as such preferred to daughters as auratha. If the eldest-born child is a son and is competent he is auratha. If the eldest-born child is a daughter and is competent she is auratha.

(6) In a family where the eldest born child is a daughter and is competent, there can be no auratha son and there can be no son whose children have a right to preferential treatment in the division of the parents' estate.

(7) If the eldest-born child is a daughter and is competent she is auratha and as auratha can on her mother's death claim from her father a quarter share of the estate. If she dies before becoming entitled to that share, her children have a right to preferential treatment in the division of the estate.

Per Duckworth, J—"Auratha" (a very loosely used term), means nothing more than "eldest legitimate issue, male or female." The term has been much misused, since it does not necessarily follow that the child who is auratha whilst both parents are alive, will be the child, who can obtain a one-fourth share on the death of one parent. This depends on the sex of the parent who dies first. The auratha then is the eldest child, irrespective of sex, legally begotten, who is of age and competent.

If a son is not the first born child, he can never be auratha unless the eldest child dies before reaching majority or competency, and then only when the eldest child is a male. It is very doubtful whether another can become auratha in place of the deceased eldest daughter. There is some authority for a brother succeeding a brother, but not for the converse case,—and then only in relation to the one-fourth share.

Per Pratt, J—(1) In a family consisting of both sons and daughters a child can attain the full status of Orasa prior to the death of its parents, in so far that, if he or she predeceases his parents, his or her childre may be entitled to the preferential treatment prescribed in section 15, Book X of the Manugye.

(2) In such a family where the eldest child is a daughter no son can become Orasa until his father dies, subject to the proviso that the eldest daughter attained her majority before her death.

(3) The question as to which is the Orasa can be decided, so far only as the right of representation is concerned.

(4) In such a family there cannot be two Orasa children in the sense of children whose offspring would, in the event of their parents' death, be entitled to claim an equal share with their younger uncles and aunts.

But it is conceivable that where the Orasa eldest child was a daughter and the eldest son attained his majority before his father's death, he would on his father's death be entitled to rank as Orasa for the purpose of claiming one-fourth of the estate from his mother. It is to be noted that Orasa is here used in two distinct senses.

(5) Sons are not always preferred to daughters as 'orasa'.

(6) In such a family when the eldest child is a daughter there cannot be an Orasa son, who, predeceasing his parents, can transmit to his children a right to preferential treatment in the division of the estate, assuming that the eldest child attained majority and did not forfeit her status as Orasa.

(7) The eldest child, being a daughter, can transmit to her children a right to preferential treatment in the division of the estate, and there is authority for holding that on her mother predeceasing her father she can claim a quarter share as Orasa L B MAUNG SIN v. MRS KIRKWOOD, 11 L. B R. 220 49

Burden of proof—Execution of document, proof of—Admission of signature by other party—Onus, whether shifted.

An admission by a defendant regarding the putting of a signature or a thumb-mark on a document while he maintains that the paper when he signed it was blank is not such an admission of the execution of the document as to thrust the burden of proving his case upon him. It is for the plaintiff to prove due execution of the document. A PIRBHU DAYAL v. TULA RAM, 20 A. L. J. 672; (1922) A. I. R. (A. 40. 809

———, question of, when immaterial. See EVIDENCE 86

——— Question when immaterial.

The burden of proof shifts as the evidence is developed; and when both the parties produce their evidence, the question on whom the initial onus lay ceases to be of much importance. O RAM NATH v. RAGHIA SAH, 25 O. C. 125; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C. 211 892

Calcutta Rent Act (III B. C. of 1920), s. 2 (e)—"Premises" if includes workshop—Workshop having retiring room and office room, if "premises"

A workshop is not included in the word "premises" as defined in section 2 (e) of the Calcutta Rent Act, and the mere fact that an Engineer of the workshop has a retiring room, or that a room is used for the purpose of an office connected with the workshop does not bring the case within the word "premises"

Calcutta Rent Act—contd.

as used in the Act. C INDIAN ENGINEERING MOTOR Co. v. GLANDSTONE WYLLIE & Co., 26 C. W. N. 102 907

——— s. 11, scope of—Lease for term of years—Tenant informing landlord of his intention to quit after expiry of lease—Landlord entering into agreement to lease to another—Act, coming into operation of, before expiry of lease—Tenant, right of, to take advantage of Act.

The Legislature in enumerating, in the proviso to section 11 of the Calcutta Rent Act, the grounds upon which a landlord can successfully claim an order for possession did not intend to limit the claim to these grounds but merely enumerated these grounds for the purpose of indicating the grounds upon which a landlord would be entitled to possession as of right, leaving it open to the Court to exercise a discretion in his favour upon any other grounds which might appear to the Court to be satisfactory.

Certain premises in Calcutta were demised to defendant No. 1 for a term of twenty years beginning from the 1st April 1901; on the 7th January 1920, defendant No 1 intimated to the plaintiff landlord that he would not remain in occupation of the premises after the expiration of the lease Thereupon on the 16th January 1920 the plaintiff entered into an agreement with E. for letting out the premises to him for a term of 10 years from the 1st of April 1921 or as soon as the defendant No. 1 vacated the premises. The defendant, however, refused to vacate the premises on the strength of his supposed rights under the Calcutta Rent Act which came into operation in March 1920. Whereupon the plaintiff instituted the present suit to eject the defendant from the premises:

Held, that the arrangement between the plaintiff and E. being not conditional if possession was not given to E. the plaintiff would be exposed to the consequences of a breach of his agreement with E. Consequently, it was just and proper that protection should be afforded to the plaintiff and that the latter had shown cause which ought to be deemed satisfactory by the Court for the purpose of coming to the conclusion that he was entitled to the order he sought vide proviso to sub-clause 1, sub-section 1, section 11 of the Calcutta Rent Act. C MANMOTHA NATH v. WALTER LOCKE & Co., 25 C. W. N. 1012 417

——— s. 11—'Tenant,' meaning of—Monthly tenant—Tenancy determined before, but ejectment suit pending at, passing of Act—Tenant, whether within the meaning of "tenant" in section.

The word "tenant" in section 11 of the Calcutta Rent Act as shown by the language of section 12 includes the case of a monthly tenant whose tenancy is determined by regular notice before, but against whom an ejectment suit is pending at, the date of the coming into operation of the said Act. C BITHALDAS CHANDAK v. LALBEHARI DUTT & SONS, 25 C. W. N. 967; 49 C. 369 361

——— ss. 15, 18—Standard rent, application for fixing—Order of Rent Cantroller dismissing application without fixing rent, whether open to revision by President, Improvement Trust Tribunal—Rent Controller, whether Court of Civil Jurisdiction—High Court's power of revision—Government of India Act,

Calcutta Rent Act—concld.

1915, (5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61), s. 107—Application for fixing standard rent, if can be made before expiry of lease.

A Rent Controller is bound to fix the standard rent on an application for that purpose being made to him and to certify it under the provisions of section 15 of the Calcutta Rent Act. If he refuses to do so the High Court has jurisdiction to set aside his order and direct him to fix the standard rent according to law.

The President of the Improvement Trust Tribunal has no jurisdiction under section 18 of the Calcutta Rent Act to revise an order of the Rent Controller refusing to fix standard rent.

The Rent Controller is a Court of Civil Jurisdiction

The High Court has the power of revision under its general powers of superintendence over the Rent Controller's Court under section 107 of the Government of India Act.

There is nothing to prevent the Rent Controller from fixing the standard rent during the currency of a lease. C H. D. CHATTERJEE v. L. B. TRIBEDI, 25 C. W. N. 78; 49 C 518 274

Cattle Trespass Act (I of 1871)—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 23, 379—Seizure and detention of cattle doing damage, whether offence—"Wrongful loss," meaning of.

Where an animal is found doing damage to a person's field, it is no offence for that person to seize and detain it for less than twenty-four hours, instead of taking it to a cattle-pound and to restore it to the owner on receipt of compensation which does not exceed the amount the owner would have to pay if the animal had been impounded, as such detention, being authorised by the Cattle Trespass Act, would not amount to causing "wrongful loss" to the owner, within the meaning of section 23 of the Penal Code. N RAMRATAN v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 511 47

Cause of action—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 144, notifications and orders under—Denial of right by persons securing the orders—Right of persons prejudiced by orders—Suit for declaration of right and injunction, maintainability of—Prayer to declare notifications and orders ultra vires, whether competent.

A suit for a declaration that certain orders and notifications passed under section 144 prejudicially affecting plaintiff's rights were ultra vires is not maintainable, except perhaps in a properly framed suit in which Government and its officers are impleaded The proper way to question such orders is by moving the High Court in revision

A suit, however, does lie against the persons who procured the orders to declare plaintiff's rights as against the defendants in so far as the orders constitute an infringement of plaintiff's rights. M BABA SAH v. MAHOMED HUSAIN SAHIB, (1921) M. W. N. 867; 15 L W. 68; 42 M. L. J. 179; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 123 180

C. P. Tenancy Act (XI of 1898), s. 41. See C. P. TENANCY ACT (I OF 1920), ss. 5, 110 427

C. P. Tenancy Act, 1898—concld.

——— s. 70 (5), transfer in contravention of —Consideration not recoverable by vendee on dispossession—Compensation, right of vendee to claim —Sale-deed, admissibility of, in evidence.

Where a person acquires possession of a holding under a sale, which is in contravention of the provisions of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, he cannot, on being dispossessed, recover the money paid by him as consideration for the sale. But before he is dispossessed he is entitled to claim compensation, and the deed evidencing the sale is admissible in evidence to prove the passing of consideration. N DHONDIBA v. PANDURANG 252

C. P. Tenancy Act (I of 1920)—Lessee of proprietary interest in village—Right to obtain and execute decree for arrears of rent.

A person other than the landlord, for instance, a holder of the proprietary interest at the moment, is entitled to obtain and execute a decree for arrears of rent but he cannot execute it by the special process of ejecting the tenant, as nobody but the landlord can eject a tenant for arrears of rent. N GANPATI TELI v. DAJI 855

——— ss. 6, 110—Retrospective effect of s. 6—C. P. Tenancy Act (XI of 1898), s. 41—Absolute occupancy holding—Transfer without consent—Landlord's right to sue for possession—Section, whether one of procedure.

In case of a transfer of an absolute occupancy holding section 41 of the C. P. Tenancy Act (XI of 1898 not only gave the landlord a right of pre-emption, but it also gave him the right to sue the transferee for ejectment.

The section did not relate to procedure merely but created rights.

Therefore in view of the express provisions of section 110 of the C. P. Tenancy Act (I of 1920) section 6 of that Act cannot have retrospective effect so as to deprive the landlord of his rights under section 41 of Act XI of 1898 in respect of transfers made while that Act was in force. N VINAYEK v. MAHEBULLA KHAN 427

Cess Act (IX B. C. of 1880), ss. 4, 41, sub-s. (3)—Cesses, whether recoverable from tenants paying rent in kind.

There is nothing in law to prevent a landlord from recovering cesses from his tenants in the case of lands held by them on rents payable in kind. C JOGESH CHANDRA ROY v. ANNODA CHARAN CHOUDHURY, 26 C. W. N. 368 662

——— s. 41, power of parties to contract themselves out of—Kabuliyat, construction of—Ambiguity —Conduct of parties—"Rajaswa," meaning of—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 3, 153—Rent, whether includes cess—Dispute as to amount of cess annually payable—Appeal, second.

The plaintiff was the proprietor of a Zemindari in the entirety of which the defendant held a Putni lease evidenced by a kabuliyat executed by his predecessor in 1858 the terms of which were confirmed and ratified by the defendant in 1908

Cess Act—concld.

The kabuliyat contained a clause to the following effect:—"If there be any demand on the Zemindari for any amount on account of 'Rajaswa' or if any order is passed, then I shall without any objection abide by it and pay my rent along with it." Under section 41 of the Cess Act of 1880 the total amount of cess payable by the Zemindar to the Government was Rs 95 and odd while the amount annually payable by the putnidar to the Zemindar was under the same section Rs. 80 and odd. The defendant had regularly paid the latter amount to the Zemindar. In a suit to recover the difference between the larger and the smaller sum :

Held, (1) that as the provisions of section 41 of the Cess Act were subject to any special provisions contained in a contract between the parties, the defendant as putnidar was liable to pay to the Zemindar the whole amount payable by the latter to the Government;

(2) that the word "Rajaswa" as used in the kabuliyat was wide enough to include any imposition or levy payable to the State and was, therefore, wide enough, in its natural meaning in the context in which it was found, to include cess payable under the Cess Acts of 1871 and 1880;

(3) that the dispute between the parties was one as to the amount of rent annually payable within the meaning of section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and consequently a second appeal was not barred under that section.

Where there is any real ambiguity in a clause contained in a document, it is open to the Courts to have regard to the conduct of parties and to the construction of the clause upon which they have acted during a long course of years,

Apart from any question of ambiguity, the mere fact that the parties have acted on an erroneous construction of an instrument furnishes in itself no reason why the Courts should not follow the general rule, that an instrument should be construed according to its natural meaning in the light of the circumstances in which it was executed.

A "demand from the Zemindar" is not necessarily the same thing as "a demand on the Zemindari." But a demand from the Zemindar of an impost payable by him as the superior landlord in respect of the lands comprised in his estate is a demand on the Zemindari.

Rent as defined in section 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act includes cess. Therefore, where a dispute between the parties relates to the amount of cess annually payable, second appeal is competent under section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C BHUPENDRA NARAIN SINHA v. MIDNAPORE ZEMINDARY CO. LTD, (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 500 937

City Civil Court Act (Mad. VII of 1892), s. 3—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), ss. 19, 41—Landlord and tenant —Suit in ejectment—Jurisdiction of Madras City Civil Court.

The jurisdiction of the Madras City Civil Court to entertain a suit in ejectment against a tenant is not barred by reason of section 41 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act read with section 3 of the Madras City Civil Court Act.

City Civil Court Act—concld.

Section 41 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act relates only to applications and not to suits. M DORAISAMY AIYANGAR v. NARAYANA AIYANGAR, 16 L. W. 137; 43 M. L. J. 288; (1922) M. W. N. 462 983

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908)—*Appeal—Dismissal in default, effect of—*Res judicata—Execution proceedings—Order determining rights of parties—Execution case struck off in default—Parties, whether have right to re-open the question.

Where an appeal is dismissed in default the effect is to relegate the parties to the position as if there had been no appeal, or as if it had been dismissed on the merits.

Though an order in execution does not operate as res judicata strictly within the meaning of section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1908, such a decision becomes final between the parties upon general principles of law as an interlocutory order in the suit.

If an order has been made which directly or by implication determines the rights of the parties to an execution proceeding, the fact that the decree-holder does not choose to proceed with the execution and the case is struck off does not entitle a party to re-open the question upon which there has been a previous adjudication, N PURA v. BEHARILAL 239

——— Suit in name of shop by one partner only, whether maintainable.

One of the partners in a shop is competent to sue in the name of the shop, and, in such a case, it is not necessary that all the partners should be named in the plaint as plaintiffs or that the plaint should be signed by all of them. N SURIRAM SHANKERLAL v. MADHO PATIL 425

——— s. 16, proviso—Jurisdiction—Land situate outside British India—Suit for mesne profits, whether maintainable in British Court.

The proviso to section 16 of the Civil Procedure Code makes it clear that a Court in British India has jurisdiction to entertain a suit for mesne profits of land situate outside British India, where the defendant resides within the jurisdiction of the British Court. B MAHADEO GOVIND SUKTANKAR v. RAMCHANDRA GOVIND SUKTANKAR, 23 BOM. L. R. 903; 46 B. 108; (1922) A. I. R. B.) 168 510

——— s. 35, O. XXXII, rr. 8, 9—Minor pauper—Suit by next friend—Costs, whether may be recovered from next friend—Powers of Court.

A Court has power under the Civil Procedure Code of 1908 to order the costs of a pauper suit by a minor to be recovered from the next friend who has filed it on behalf of the minor. N MAROTI v. BHAGI 465

——— ss. 38, 47—Court not competent to execute decree—Power to treat suit as execution application.

Under section 47, clause (2), of the Civil Procedure Code a suit cannot be treated as an execution application unless the Court before which the suit is pending is either the Court which passed the decree or the Court to which the decree is sent for execution, as, under section 38 of the Code, no other Court except either of these two has power to execute a decree. N BRIJ MOHANSINGH v. KASTURCHAND, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 189 693

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

——— s. 41—Decree transferred for execution—Certificate, sending of, to original Court—Certificate of failure to execute decree—Certificate of result of each application for execution—Jurisdiction of Executing Court, determination of.

Section 41 of the Civil Procedure Code requires that a Court to which a decree has been sent for execution shall certify to the Court which sent it that it has completely executed the decree or has failed to do so and is unable to do so any further. The section may also require certificates to be sent of the result of each application for execution that is made to the Executing Court. In any case such certificates have to be sent under the executive orders of this Court. But the sending of a certificate does not of itself put an end to the jurisdiction of the Court to execute the decree and the sending of a certificate of the latter kind cannot do so at all. N INDRA RAJ SINGH v. MORADKHAN, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 210 657

——— s. 47—Execution of decree—Stay of execution by Trial Court—Appeal.

All questions that determine the rights and liabilities of the parties in the matter of the execution of a decree are appealable.

An order of the Trial Court directing stay of execution is a question relating to execution and is appealable. L SARDAR KHAN v. FATEH DIN 751

——— s. 47, O. XXI, r. 2, cls. (2), (3)—Judgment-debtor's application for enquiry as to payment out of Court—Order dismissing application—Appeal—Certificate of payment—Application of cls. (2), (3).

An order dismissing a judgment-debtor's application made under r. 2 (2) of O XXI, Civil Procedure Code, for certifying payment said to have been made to the decree-holder out of Court amounts to a decree passed in a proceeding under section 47 of the Code and is appealable as such.

A judgment-debtor's application under clause (2) of r. 2, O XXI, Civil Procedure Code, inviting an enquiry as to the payment alleged to have been made by him to the decree-holder cannot be thrown out on the ground that the payment was not certified under clause (3) of that rule, inasmuch as the stage contemplated by that clause does not arise until the question raised in the enquiry is decided. Pat JADUNANDAN SINGH v. SHEONANDAN PRASAD SINGH, (1922) PAT. 200; 3 P. L. T. 487; 1 PAT. 644; (1922) A. I. R. (PAT.) 276 645

——— s. 47, O. XXI, r. 35—Execution of decree—Decree for possession of immoveable property—Execution not taken out—Possession taken out of Court—Dispossession—Suit, whether maintainable.

Plaintiff obtained a decree against defendant for possession of a piece of land conditional on payment of a certain sum of money. He paid the sum and obtained possession out of Court. Some years afterwards he was dispossessed by the defendant. He brought a suit to recover possession of the land from the defendant:

Held, (1) that although the decree had not been technically executed in the sense in which the word is used in the Code of Civil Procedure, it had been given effect to out of Court, and having been satisfied nothing further remained to be done in execution;

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

(2) that plaintiff having been in lawful possession of the land and having been dispossessed therefrom, was entitled to bring the present suit. L RUP CHAND v. ALLAH JAWAYA 744

——— s. 47, O. XXI, rr. 58, 60—S. 47, scope of—Execution proceedings—Representative of party to suit—Attachment, objection to—Objection based on personal claim to property—Court, order of—Appeal.

Where qua the execution proceedings a person happens to be the representative of the judgment-debtor, any question raised by him can only be decided under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code. The distinction between a proceeding under section 47 and a proceeding under O. XXI, r. 58 is that all objections to attachment raised by a party to the suit in which the decree was passed, or his representative, come under section 47, but objections to attachment raised by a third party come under O. XXI, r. 58, Civil Procedure Code.

Therefore, an order passed on objection raised by the representative of a party to the suit, although the claim to the property is set up by him in his own personal capacity and not as representing the judgment-debtor, must be deemed to be an order passed under section 47 and not under O. XXI, r. 60 of the Civil Procedure Code and as such is open to appeal. Pat NAURATAN LAL v. MRS. STEPHEN, 3 P. L. T. 613 369

——— s. 47, O. XXI, r. 90—Representative of judgment-debtor—Auction-purchaser—Execution sale, setting aside of—Auction-purchaser, whether can apply under O. XXI, r. 90.

An auction-purchaser is not the representative of the judgment-debtor and cannot move a Court under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code.

An auction-purchaser cannot under O XXI, r 90, Civil Procedure Code, apply to set aside an auction sale. N BALWANT v. RATANLAL 429

——— s. 47, O. XXII, r. 10—Decree for possession and mesne profits—Execution proceedings—Lessee of defendant, if can be added as party to account for profits—Lease, whether devolution, creation or assignment of interest.

O. XXII of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates cases of devolution of interest from some original party to the suit, whether plaintiff or defendant, upon some one else,—the more ordinary cases being death, marriage, insolvency.

Where during the pendency of a suit, a party is added by devolution, he must take the suit as he finds it, and a judgment already rendered would be binding on him

Although a wide construction should be placed upon the provisions of the law with regard to introducing parties by devolution, and although it is desirable that all points should be ascertained in execution proceedings without a fresh suit, yet that which should in reality form the basis of a suit against a separate party, for some act done by himself, cannot be introduced as a question to be tried in execution proceedings.

In an action to recover possession of land, the plaintiff cannot, after obtaining a decree for possession and mesne profits, add as party to the suit any lessee of the defendant so as to compel him to account for any profits received from the land, as the lease cannot be looked upon as an assignment, creation or devolution of the interest of the defendant within the meaning of O. XXII, r. 10 of the Civil Procedure Code. P. C. MANINDRA CHANDRA NANDI v. RAM KUMAR LAL BHAGAT, 31 M. L. T. 131; 4 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 88; 43 M. L. J. 589; 1 PAT. 581; 27 C. W. N. 29; 24 BOM. L. R. 125; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 304; 50 A. L. J. 958; 16 L. W. 955; 36 C. L. J. 542 973

——— s. 50, O. XXI—'May apply,' meaning of—Death of party defendant after decree and before execution sale—Legal representative not brought on record—Sale, whether nullity—Suit on mortgagee—Puisne mortgagee impleaded as defendant—Compromise decree—Puisne mortgagee, whether "judgment-debtor."

The words 'may apply' in section 50, Civil Procedure Code, are equivalent to 'shall apply', for, except in the sense that the decree-holder may, if he chooses, drop execution altogether, there is no option left to him and it is imperative on him to follow the procedure enjoined by the section if he desires further execution

Proceedings taken in execution of a decree without the legal representatives of a deceased judgment-debtor being brought on the record are void and do not amount to a mere irregularity, and, if the proceedings have culminated in a sale, the sale is altogether void and is a nullity and need not be set aside, for this purpose no distinction can be drawn between the case of a judgment-debtor's death before the order for sale is passed and the case of a death after the order.

Section 50, Civil Procedure Code, covers all applications in execution even after attachment.

In a suit by a first mortgagee impleading the puisne mortgagee as party defendant the latter filed a statement stating that he had no objection to the passing of a decree and praying that the balance remaining, after selling the property and paying the plaintiff, might be applied towards his mortgage. The plaintiff and other defendants filed a compromise petition in terms whereof a decree was passed. The puisne mortgagee, who was, however, not removed from the record died after decree. In due course the mortgage decree was executed and properties sold without the representatives of the deceased puisne mortgagee being brought on record. In the present suit by the heirs of the puisne mortgagee to enforce their mortgage:

Held, 1) that the puisne mortgagee was a judgment-debtor in the prior suit

(2 that the mortgage security was not extinguished as the sale in execution of the decree in the prior suit was a nullity M RAGHUNATHASWAMI IYENGAR v. S. GOPALU RAO, (1921) M. W. N. 732; 4 M. L. J. 547; 15 L. W. 1[illegible]; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 67 667

——— s. 5[illegible], O. XXI, rr. 64, 66—Execution sale—Attachment, whether essential—Attachment of property not ordered to be sold by decree—Sale within 30 days of proclamation—Irregularity.

The failure to attach the property before the execution sale, although an irregularity under the Civil Procedure Code, does not render the sale null and void.

Under section 51 of the Civil Procedure Code which relates to procedure in execution, the general powers of a Court executing decrees enable it to order execution by attachment and sale or by sale without attachment of any property. Therefore, the Court has power to sell property not ordered to be sold by the decree without first causing an attachment of the same.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

A sale of the property, ordered to be sold by public auction in execution of a decree, within 30 days of the proclamation, although clearly an irregularity, has not the effect of making the sale a nullity without proof of substantial injury thereby to the judgment-debtor. Pat WAZIR NARAIN SINGH v. BHIKHARI RAM, (19.2) PAT. 321: 3 P. L. T 765: 4 U. P. L. R. (PAT.) 100 363

——— s. 60 (f)—Jatri Bahis of Gayawal—Attachment and sale.

The Jatri Bahis of a Gayawal merely contain entries as to the names and addresses of the pilgrims who deal with him and can be used only by him in order to perform personal service to them. As such, they come well within the provisions of section 60 (f) of the Civil Procedure Code as property not capable of attachment or sale in execution of a decree.

The Jatri Bahis are the stock-in-trade and appertain to the Gaddi of a Gayawal and may be heritable but are not attachable or saleable for that reason. The mere fact that they possess a market-value does not necessarily mean that they are saleable. Pat LACHMAN LAL PATHAK v. BALDEO LALL THATHWARI, (1922) PAT. 228; 3 P. L. T. 603; 1 PAT. 619 944

——— s. 64—Decree passed on award pending attachment, whether void.

A decree embodying an arbitration award and passed pending an attachment is not a private transfer which can be treated as void under section 64, Civil Procedure Code. M NARAYANA AIYAR v. BIYARI BIVI, 14 L. W. 524; 41 M. L. J. 557; (1921) M. W. N. 808; 45 M. 103; (1922) A. I. R. (M. 221 673

——— s. 64, Sch. I, O. XXXVIII, r. 5, Sch. III, para. 11—Attachment before judgment—Property under control of Collector—"Attachment," meaning of—Non-compliance with r. 5, O. XXXVIII, effect of.

Paragraph 11 (1) of the Third Schedule to the Civil Procedure Code does not stand in the way of an attachment before judgment of the property of a judgment-debtor while the property is under the control of a Collector, because such an attachment is not a process in execution of a decree.

The object of the provision in the latter part of paragraph 11 of the Third Schedule to the Civil Procedure Code is to protect the debtor as far as possible from the risk of losing his property wholly or for all time and mere attachment before judgment cannot defeat that object, for by such attachment alone the property is not exposed to the risk of such loss.

The term "attachment" in section 64 of the Civil Procedure Code covers an attachment before judgment. Consequently, an attachment before judgment and an attachment in execution of a decree have the same effect for the purpose of binding the property so as to prevent private alienations.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

An order directing the attachment before judgment of the property of a judgment-debtor without complying with the requirements of r. 5 of O. XXXVIII, is ultra vires, and an attachment in consequence of such an order is void and cannot be relied upon to defeat an alienation of that property. N BANSILAL v. SITARAM 188

——— s. 66—Auction sale—Agreement with auction-purchaser to purchase property sold—Specific performance.

The provisions of section 66 of the Code of Civil Procedure must be strictly construed.

A suit by a plaintiff claiming specific performance of an agreement to sell, made by a purchaser at an auction-sale, cannot be described as a suit brought on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of the plaintiff, because, in such a case, the purchase is made on behalf of the purchaser with whom the title remains until the plaintiff obtains specific performance of the contract.

Therefore, section 66 of the Civil Procedure Code does not preclude a suit to enforce specific performance of an agreement made either prior or subsequent to the purchase by the auction-purchaser to sell the property to the plaintiff when the purchase-money has been entirely found by the defendant and where there is no allegation that without the enforcement of the agreement to sell, the property is actually the property of the plaintiff, that is, that it was bought by the defendant benami for the plaintiff. N ABDULLA KHAN v. JALAM SINGH 559

——— s. 73. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT, 1920, s. 51 (1), EXCEPTION 512

——— s. 73, O. XXXVIII, r. 11—Priority of attachment, whether confers prior right—Attachment before judgment in several suits—Moneys realised before decrees—Rateable distribution.

Priority of attachment by itself confers no prior right.

Where moneys belonging to a judgment-debtor are attached before judgment in a number of suits against him by several creditors and they are realised before decree is passed in any of them, re-attachment is not necessary and the money should be held to the credit of all the suits and distributed between all the attaching creditors who subsequently obtain decrees if they obtain decrees before any of the others apply for payment. M SUBRANANIAM CHETTY v. SANKARA IYER, 15 L. W. 531; (1922) M. W. N. 262; 31 M. L. J. 70; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 236 714

——— s. 75, O. XXVI—Commission, issue of—Court delegating functions to Commissioner.

Section 75 of the Civil Procedure Code defines clearly the circumstances under which a commission may be issued, and does not authorise a Court to delegate to a Commissioner the trial of any material issue which it is itself bound to try. L SAWAN MAL v. RAUNAQ MAL, 3 L. 209; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 47 802

——— s. 92, applicability of, to suits between rival claimants. See TRUST 786

——— s. 92, who can sue under—Prayer of scheme—Enquiry as to properties belonging to charity—Hindu Law—Descendants of founder of charity, right of, to sue or nominate trustees—Interest, question of, how determined—Trustee not fit to hold office—Interference by Court—Administration of charity—Denial of existence of public trust bona fide—Disqualification for appointment as trustee.

The mere fact that a person suing under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code is a Hindu and entitled to worship in a temple does not give him interest enough to maintain a suit under that section. But persons belonging to the family of the founder of a charity have an interest in the family charity and can, therefore, maintain a suit under the section.

The question whether a person instituting a suit under section 92 of the Code has an interest within the meaning of its provisions or not must be determined upon the facts of each case bearing on the relation of the plaintiff to the charity with reference to which the suit is brought.

Assuming that, under the Hindu Law, the surviving heir of the founder of a charity has a right to nominate a trustee in the absence of any provision to that effect in the deed of endowment, it is a right the exercise of which a Court is not bound to uphold if, in its opinion, the person nominated as trustee is not fit to hold the office. The interests of a trust are supreme and a Court must have regard to such interests in dealing with the question whether the persons appointed as trustees are persons who can be properly entrusted with the management of the institution.

When there is a gift in favour of a charity, it is within the competence of a Court, in a suit under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code, to make a suitable provision for its administration in any scheme that is to be framed, especially where there exists no such provision already.

The mere denial by a person of the existence of a public trust, if bona fide, does not by itself disqualify him from being appointed or retained as trustee of the institution.

Under section 92, Civil Procedure Code, when a Court is asked to frame a scheme, one of the essential enquiries to be made is, what are the properties belonging to the charity. M VAITHINATHA AIYAR v. THEYAGARAJA AIYAR, 41 M. L. J. 20 631

——— s. 92, O. XL, r. 1—Scheme suit—Trustee appointed by Temple Committee, supersession of—Receiver, appointment of, pending suit.

The Court has power, in a scheme suit under section 92, Civil Procedure Code, to supersede a trustee appointed by a Temple Committee, and, though there is no prayer to that effect in the plaint, to appoint a Receiver in his place during the pendency of the suit. M KUPPUSWAMI MUDALIAR v. SUBRAMANIAM CHETTIAR, 41 M. L. J. 545; 16 L. W. 927 565

——— s. 99—Witness, deposition of, not signed by Judge—Trial, whether vitiated—Irregularity—Re-trial, whether should be ordered.

The mere fact that the deposition of a witness is not signed by the Judge who recorded it, would not vitiate the trial of the suit. The omission to sign is an irregularity merely, and, so long as there is no doubt whatever that the deposition was recorded by the Judge, section 99 of the Civil Procedure Code does not afford ground for a new trial. N ALAMSINGH v. GOPALDAS 664

——— s. 102, 115—Suit for recovery of price of fish removed from tank after declaration of title to fish—Money suit - Appeal, second, competency of—Declaration of title to tank by Court—Revision.

No second appeal lies from a decree in a suit for declaration of right to and recovery of the price of fish alleged to have been removed from a tank by the defendant, when the value of the suit does not exceed Rs. 500.

Although in such a suit it is open to the Judge to decide the question of title to the tank incidentally in so far as it is necessary for the purpose of giving relief to the plaintiff, it is not within his jurisdiction to declare the plaintiff's title thereto, and it is open to the High Court, in second appeal, dealing with the question by way of revision to expunge so much of the decree of the lower Appellate Court as declares the plaintiff's title to the tank as being made without jurisdiction. C ARADHAN MONDAL v. ABHOYA CHARAN MONDAL 626

——— s. 110—Appeal to His Majesty in Council—Suit to set aside transfer as not justified by necessity—Necessity for sale of part of transferred property established—Appeal, valuation of.

Where in a suit to set aside a transfer of property made by a Hindu widow on the ground that it was not justified by legal necessity, the Court finds that the transfer was justified only to the extent of a certain sum for which there was necessity, the value of the appeal to His Majesty in Council is the value of that part of the transferred property whose sale is not found to be for legal necessity, and if the value of the same be less than Rs. 10,000 leave to appeal will not be granted. Pat BISHUN PRASAD SINGH v. NARSINGH DAS, 3 P. L. T. 550 663

——— s. 110, interpretation of—Appeal to H. M. in Council—Amount of subject-matter of suit, what is—Special leave to appeal, when to be granted.

Section 110 of the Civil Procedure Code should be so interpreted that effect may be given to all its provisions, if this can reasonably be done, and the second paragraph of the section ought not to be read alone and as not being subject to the requirements of the first paragraph. It was not intended to make the second paragraph a separate provision.

For the purposes of an appeal to H. M. in Council the amount of the subject-matter of a suit in the Court of first instance is the amount for which a decree is recovered, including at most interest up to the date of the decree and the value of the subject-matter of a suit is the value at the time of the institution of the suit.

Where a case is otherwise unappealable to H. M. in Council, special leave can only be granted if the questions involved are not only substantial, but are of great public or private importance. L B MAUNG THWE v. A. L. A. R. CHETTY FIRM, 11 L. B. R. 335 690

——— s. 115—Revision—Error of law in matter within jurisdiction—High Court, if should interfere.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd

The High Court should not interfere in revision under section 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure on the ground that a Court has committed a serious error of law in coming to a finding in a matter in which it had jurisdiction. C RAJENDRA NATH ROY v. SHEIK ABDUL 430

——— s. 115, O. XIV, r. 2, O. XV, r. 3 (1)—Selection of preliminary issues for determination—Interlocutory order—Revision—High Court, interference by—Amendment of plaint not changing character of suit, if to be allowed.

A Court has power to select issues of law for determination as preliminary issues even after the date of the first hearing, specially when nothing is done in the suit beyond the settlement of issues and there has not been an actual first hearing.

As a general rule, the High Court does not in revision interfere with interlocutory orders But no hard and fast rule can be laid down as interference may be justified when the order sought to be revised is in fact perverse or irreparable injury would be caused if the order were allowed to stand.

The mere fact that an interlocutory order may possibly result in inconvenience and expense to a party to the suit is not a sufficient ground for interference by the High Court in revision.

A Court has discretion to allow an amendment of plaint and the High Court will not interfere in revision where the amendment does not change the nature of the suit or involve any material injustice to the defendant. M RAMAKRISHNA PILLAI v KRISHNASWAMI PILLAI, 15 L. W. 667; (1922) M. W. N. 521; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 321 167

——— s. 115, O. XXIII, r. 1 (2)—Order permitting withdrawal of suit—Revision.

The High Court has jurisdiction to interfere in revision with an order under O. XXIII, r. 1 (2) of the Civil Procedure Code, permitting the withdrawal of a suit, on the ground that the order was improperly made. L GHULAM RASUL v. RAMZAN BIBI 753

——— s. 122, O. XLI, r. 1. See LIMITATION ACT, ss. 5, 12 777

——— s. 141, O. IX, O. XXI, r. 57—Execution transferred to Collector—Power of Collector to dismiss application—S. 141, whether applicable to execution proceedings—Execution of decree, application for—Dismissal in default—Power of restoration.

In execution proceedings transferred to him by a Civil Court, a Collector has power to dismiss the application under r. 57 of O. XXI of the Civil Procedure Code, and on such dismissal the attachment ceases.

Section 141 of the Civil Procedure Code does not apply to execution proceedings, and a Court is not empowered thereby to restore to the file under O. IX an application in execution which has been dismissed in default.

In a proper case, however, a Court has the inherent power mentioned in section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code to restore to the file an application for execution which has been dismissed in default, and if the attachment has not in fact been removed such a restoration will revive it. N SHANKARRAO v. MANIKRAO 643

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

——— s. 144, object of—Loss caused independently of execution of decree reversed, whether recoverable

Under section 144 of the Civil Procedure Code a decree-holder can claim compensation only for the loss caused to him by reason of the execution of the decree reversed on appeal and not for any loss caused independently of the same.

A entered into possession of certain land in execution of a decree obtained against B, but was again dispossessed by the latter. By and by B got the decree set aside but it was sometime before he entered into possession under the same formally. A eventually got the decree restored in second appeal and claimed mesne profits under section 144 beginning from the time when B got the decree of the first Court set aside:

Held, that mesne profits could be claimed under that section only from the time when B entered into possession in pursuance of his decree formally and not from the date when he got the decree of the First Court set aside, as A, even though dispossessed by B, must be deemed to have been in possession in execution of the decree passed in his favour by the Court of first instance until he was formally evicted therefrom by the process of law. L CHHABER SINGH v. RADHU RAM, 4 L. L. J. 733 807

——— s. 144—Object of section—Decretal amount, reduction of, in appeal—Restitution, application for, by judgment-debtor—Prejudice due to error in regulating order of said items, effect of.

The object of section 144 of the Code of Civil Procedure is to remove, by means of restitution, any prejudice due to the erroneous terms of the original decree.

Where the amount of a decree is slightly reduced on appeal and the judgment-debtor applies for restitution in respect of certain items of property which, he contends, need not have been sold at all, restitution should not be granted, as his position as regards the sale is in no way affected by the variation in the decree and the prejudice, if any, is solely due to the order in which the items of property were sold. M BEZWADA SUNDARARAMA v. ENUGA RAGHAVA, (1922) M. W. N. 141; 42 M. L. J. 315; 16 L. W. 355; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 96 516

——— s. 148—Decree for possession subject to payment of certain amount—Time for making payment fixed—Decree-holder joining Army before expiry of time—Extension of time for payment—Indian Soldiers (Litigation) Act (IX of 1918), ss. 5, 6, 7, 11, application of.

A Court has no power to extend the time allowed by a decree for the payment of money under section 148 of the Code of Civil Procedure If the decree provides for the payment of a certain sum of money on or before a certain date and specifies the penalty which will attach to non-payment, the enforcement of that penalty cannot be delayed or dispensed with by any order or direction issued in derogation of the decree.

A decree was passed in favour of C. and M. entitling them to get possession of certain property in terms of a compromise subject to their paying a certain sum in Court to the credit of the defendants on or before a certain date On their failure to do so the suit was to stand dismissed. Before the time for payment had expired, C. joined the Army and in order to protect himself against the expiry of the period allowed him by the decree, a certificate under section 5 of Act IX of 1918 was sent at his instance to the Court which passed the decree, stating that the time allowed to him for payment should be extended till his return from the War:

Held, (i) that there was no proceeding pending before the Court at the time C joined the Army and that section 5 did not apply;

(ii) that the period of payment having been fixed not by any law for the time being in force but by the decree itself which was passed in accordance with the compromise, section 11 of the Act was also not applicable and the Court could not interfere with the operation of the decree or alter the condition prescribed. O BADAL v. CHHATTAR SINGH, 25 O. C. 74; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 131 205

——— s. 151, application under—Remedy by suit or proceeding open—Court, jurisdiction of.

There is nothing in the language of section 151 which prevents a party to a suit from applying under that section simply because he has a remedy by a separate suit or proceeding. Courts cannot act under section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code if provision is made for a particular contingency by the Orders and Rules of the Code, but in cases not covered by them parties should not be put to the trouble, delay and expense of filing suits for relief which can be properly given in the suit itself. The language of section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code is wide and refers to inherent powers of a Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the sake of justice. A stranger to a litigation, however, cannot intervene after a suit or a proceeding is disposed of, and claim the protection of section 151 of the Code or appeal to the inherent powers of the Court to do justice.

Where a Corporation or Company is made a party to a proceeding but is not represented by a person having legal authority to do so and an order is passed adversely to it, it is competent to a Court to vacate the order under section 151, Civil Procedure Code on the application of a person through whom the Company can legally act. M PERUMAL MOOPAN v VENKATACHARIAR, 15 L. W. 586; 42 M. L. J. 563; (1922) M. W. N. 268; 2 M. L. T. 35; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 193 910

——— s. 180, application of. See JURISDICTION 160

——— O. II, r. 2—Annuity, suit for arrears of —Suit dismissed in default—Appeal—Fresh suit for arrears of subsequent instalment—Appeal withdrawn during pendency of suit—Third suit claiming all arrears, whether maintainable.

Plaintiff was entitled to an annuity to be paid to him by the defendant on the 1st January and 1st July of each year. On 28th June 1917 he instituted a suit to recover instalments which had fallen due from 1st January 1914 to 1st January 1917: on 8th July 1917 the suit was dismissed in default, and on 10th November 1917 the Court refused to set aside the order of dismissal: an appeal was preferred against this latter order but was withdrawn on 2nd March 1918. In the meantime, the instalment for 1st July 1917 fell due, and plaintiff obtained a decree for that particular instalment on 2nd April 1918. He then brought the present suit to recover arrears for the period 1st January 1914 to 1st July 1918:

Held, that under the provisions of O. II, r. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code the suit, so far as the arrears for 1st January to 1st July 1917, were concerned was barred, and that any protection which might have accrued to the plaintiff by reason of his appeal was taken away when the appeal was withdrawn. A ABDUL KARIM KHAN v MUHAMMAD JAN, 20 A. L. J. 590; 44 A. 663; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 379 970

——— O. III, r. 4 (1), O. IX, r. 4—General Rules and Circular Orders of Calcutta High Court, Chap. XI, r. 46 cls. (e), (f)—Court's power to refuse permission to Pleader to sign vakalatnama previously filed—Court, when justified to object to Pleader's appearance—Dismissal for default in presence of recognized agent, legality of.

In view of the provisions of clauses (e) and (f) r. 46, Chapter XI of the General Rules and Circular Orders of the Calcutta High Court, which is followed by the Patna High Court, a Court has no power to refuse permission to a Pleader to sign a vakalatnama which is already on the file of the Court and in the body of which appears the name of that Pleader.

A Court can only object to a Pleader appearing in a case when he does not comply with the aforesaid rule regarding the acceptance and endorsement of the vakalatnama.

It is illegal on the part of a Court to dismiss a suit for default under O. IX, r. 4 of the Civil Procedure Code in the presence in Court of an authorised agent with his witnesses. Pat KUNJ BEHARI SINGH v. SHEODAHIN PANDEY, 3 P. L. T. 447; (1922) A. I. R. (PAT.) 501 659

——— O. V, r. 15. See SUMMONS 991

——— O. VI, r. 14—Plaint signed and presented by servant of plaintiff—Authority of servant not proved—Suit dismissed—Application to High Court—Extraordinary jurisdiction.

Plaintiff sued to recover a certain sum of money from the defendant. The plaint was signed by an unauthorised servant of the plaintiff instead of by the plaintiff himself. When this fact came to the notice of the Court, it dismissed the suit. The plaintiff moved the High Court in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction:

Held, setting aside the decree of the lower Court, (1) that if the plaintiff had applied to sign the plaint and present it on the day of the dismissal of the suit, he should have been allowed to do so;

(2) that he should be given the opportunity now of having his suit considered as if it was filed on the day of its dismissal subject to the question of limitation. B UTTAMRAM VITHALDAS v. THAKORDAS PARSUOTTAMDAS, 46 B. 153; 23 BOM. L. R. 911; (1922) A. I. R. B.) 113 217

——— O. VI, r. 17—New case, when can be allowed to be introduced.

Order VI, r. 17, Civil Procedure Code, will not exclude an amendment which has the effect of introducing a new case simply because it does so: but such an amendment would be refused if the new case sought to be introduced could more conveniently be the subject of a fresh action. O HAMID MIRZA BEG v. AHMAD MIRZA BEG, 9 O. L. J. 359; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 80 986

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

——— O. VI, r. 17, O. XXII, r. 3— Amendment of plaint by deceased plaintiff's legal representative—Limits of amendment—Conflict of interests—Proper course for legal representative.

It is not open to the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff to assert any individual and hostile rights which he may have against the deceased plaintiff and those claiming through or under him and to seek to enforce those individual and paramount rights under the guise of an application to amend the plaint.

All that he can do is to take up the suit at the stage at which it was left by the deceased plaintiff and to continue the proceedings as legal representative.

The limits to amendment should be determined by the consideration whether it would have been granted if the deceased had made the application

The power to grant amendment is subject to the rule that the subject-matter of a suit cannot be changed by means of amendment nor can one distinct cause of action be substituted for another.

Therefore, the legal representative of a plaintiff who dies cannot be allowed to so amend the plaint as to convert a suit of one nature into one of another nature simply because he has in law the right to repudiate the transactions of the deceased as not binding on the estate to which he has succeeded.

In cases where there is a conflict of interests between the deceased plaintiff and his legal representative the proper course is for the latter to file a separate suit to enforce his rights. And it is not open to him in his capacity as legal representative to repudiate the transactions which have been admitted by the deceased to be valid and on the footing of the validity of which the deceased lodged his claim. M VENKATARAMA ROW v. VENKATALINGAMA NAYANIM, 15 L. W. 72; (1922) M. W. N. 42; 42 M. L. J. 43; 30 M. L. T. 204; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 49 703

——— O. VII, r. 1, O. XLIII, r. 1 (u)— Plaint, return of, for presentation to proper Court—Appeal—Remand by Appellate Court, whether competent—Remand, order of, if appealable.

An Appellate Court has inherent power to remand a case to the Trial Court on appeal from an order under O. VII, r. 1 returning a plaint for presentation to the proper Court.

No appeal lies against such an order of remand. O. XLIII, r. 1 (u) has no application to such a case as that only contemplates an appeal from an order of remand passed under O XLI, r. 23 on appeal from a decree. L FIRM BHAWANI SAHAI-KANSHI RAM v. FIRM HARBANS SINGH-GOPAL DAS, 2 L. L. J. 587 304

——— O. VII, r. 6— Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 19—Acknowledgment of liability not alleged in plaint—Subsequent reference in rebuttal admissible—Acknowledgment, nature of—Acknowledgment by manager of family, effect of—Mortgage otherwise invalid, if validated by pious obligation—Unregistered sub-mortgage, admissibility of.

Where there is a clear acknowledgment of liability effectual enough to extend the period of limitation, but no mention is made of it in the plaint, it is open to the plaintiff to show in reply to the defence set up that his claim is within time from the acknowledgment referred to and such a plea in rebuttal is not inadmissible under O. VII, r. 6 of the Civil Procedure Code.

An acknowledgment need not specify every legal consequence of the thing acknowledged. From an acknowledgment of a debt follow the legal incidents which flow from the existence of a liability. In fact, an admission by a mortgagor of his liability carries with it an admission of all the remedies to which the mortgagee might be entitled under it

An acknowledgment by a person as the head and manager of a family is binding upon other members of the family and is sufficient to save limitation as against them.

The doctrine of the pious obligation of sons to pay the father's debts does not validate a mortgage or alienation made by the latter if the same is otherwise invalid. It may, however, support a mortgage if it is made in lieu of antecedent debts recoverable from a family, and a bona fide creditor, in such a case, is not bound to see to the application of the money.

An unregistered sub-mortgage is not admissible in evidence to prove a lien. O RAM AUTAR v. BENI SINGH, 25 O. C. 89; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 135 196

——— O. IX, r. 8— Plaintiff appearing when case first called for hearing—Adjournment for short while—Plaintiff not appearing when case again taken up—Dismissal of suit—Law applicable.

Where on a date of hearing the plaintiff and his Pleader both appear and ask for a little time which is granted but fail to put in appearance when the case is again taken up on the same date, and the suit is dismissed, the dismissal is one under O. IX, r 8 of the Code of Civil Procedure, there being no appearance on behalf of the plaintiff. Pat BASDEO NARAIN SINGH v. HARAKH NARAIN SINGH 942

——— O. IX, r. 8, O. XVII, rr. 2, 3— Suit, hearing of, not commenced—Default in appearance on adjourned date—Dismissal of suit under O. IX, r. 8—Part heard case adjourned—Default in appearance at time fixed—Procedure—Equity considered.

Ordinarily, if on an adjourned date of hearing either or both of the parties make default in appearance the Court should proceed to dispose of the suit in one of the modes indicated in O. IX of the Code of Civil Procedure: there is no necessity whatever to have recourse to O. XVII, r. 3 of the Code.

Where the hearing of a suit has not commenced and it is the plaintiff who is in default and there is no evidence to support his case, the suit should be dismissed under O. IX, r. 8, of the Code.

Courts should exercise extreme caution when on an adjourned date the parties or any of them fail to appear. They should in the first place have recourse to O. XVII, r. 2, of the Code rather than r. 3 and even in cases where r. 3 can be considered to apply, that is, where a case has been part heard and an adjournment granted, it would not be in accordance with justice to refuse a party, who has failed to appear on the adjourned date at the time fixed but appears at a later hour, the chance of having the suit restored If the equity of the case demands, he should certainly have an opportunity of satisfying the Court that he had sufficient cause for not appearing. B RATANBAI SHIVLAL v. SHANKAR DEOCHAND, 24 BOM. L. R. 775 514

——— O. IX, r. 13—'Sufficient cause,' meaning of—Party unable to be in Court in time.

A Court should set aside an ex parte decree if it is satisfied that the defendant did his best to attend Court in time and that he would have got there in time but for the intervention of an inevitable accident for which he was in no way responsible, mulcting, in proper cases, the delinquent in costs. No person should be deprived of a hearing unless there has been something equivalent to misconduct or gross negligence on his part or which cannot be put right, so far as the other side is concerned, by making the person to blame pay for it. M ARUNACHALA AIYAR v. SUBBARAMIAH, (1922) M. W. N. 600; 31 M. L. T. 257; 16 L. W. 583; 43 M. L. J. 632 971

——— O. XIV, r. 1—Issue not arising on pleadings—High Court, whether will order remand for trial thereof.

The High Court will not, in second appeal, remand a case to the lower Court for the trial of an issue which does not arise on the pleadings. L FATEH MUHAMMAD v. IMAM-UD-DIN, 2 L. L. J. 188 106

——— O. XVI, r. 1 s. 99—Case not closed—Suit adjourned—Parties, right of, to summon witness—Discretion of Court—Exclusion of evidence—Merits of case not affected—Appellate Court, whether bound to interfere—Evidence believed to be based on hearsay—Court, if can refuse to record.

As long as the hearing of a suit stands adjourned in the ordinary course of trial and so long as the party who wishes to summon witnesses has not closed his case, the Court is bound to summon them. There is nothing in O. XVI, r. 1 of the Civil Procedure Code to show that the adjournment of which a party may take advantage must be granted at his own instance; he can take advantage of the adjournment granted to his adversary.

Under section 99 of the Civil Procedure Code an Appellate Court is not bound to interfere in appeal unless the exclusion of evidence has affected the merits of the case.

A particular answer, after it is given by a witness, may be ruled out as irrelevant but no Court can say beforehand that the whole of the evidence to be given by the witness is going to be irrelevant, and the Court's belief that the evidence is biassed is not a valid ground for refusing to record it. N BHAGCHAND v. MUSAJI 272

——— O. XVI, rr. 19, 21, O. XXVI, r. 4. See COMMISSION 9

——— O. XVIII, rr. 5, 6—Provisions about interpretations—Directory—Deposition interpreted by reader, Judge and Pleader not attending—Prosecution for perjury—Validity—Charge for perjury—Exact words in deposition not used—Irregularity whether curable—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 537.

The provisions of O. XVIII, rr. 5 and 6 of the Civil Procedure Code are directory and non-compliance with them does not render the deposition inadmissible at a subsequent trial of the deponent for perjury.

If the deposition has not been read over to the witness in the presence of the Presiding Judge, it does not prove itself under section 80 of the Evidence Act, but it may be proved in some other way. The Judge who recorded it can prove it or the accused can admit it, section 91 of the Evidence Act merely excluding the oral contents of a deposition but not making it inadmissible in evidence.

If a deposition has been interpreted by the Reader working in the same room as the Judge, even though the Judge and the Pleaders for the parties did not attend to the interpretation, there has been sufficient compliance for all purposes with the provisions of O. XVIII, r. 5 of the Civil Procedure Code and a deposition so interpreted proves itself under the provisions of section 80 of the Evidence Act.

The failure to enter in a charge for perjury under section 193 Indian Penal Code the actual words used in a deposition is at the most an irregularity cured by section 537 of the Code of the Criminal Procedure. N MIRABAX v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 500 36

——— O. XX, r. 12—Suit for recovery of immoveable property—Finding by Appellate Court that plaintiff entitled to possession—Remand for determination of mesne profits with direction to pass decree in favour of plaintiff.

In cases falling within O. XX, r. 12, Civil Procedure Code, the proper course for the Appellate Court to take is not to remand the suit where it finds that a person is entitled to possession but to pass a preliminary decree so far as possession is concerned and to direct an enquiry as to the mesne profits in cases where the lower Court has not dealt with the question. M SUBBE GOUNDAN v. KRISHNAMACHARI, 30 M. L. T. 217; 42 M. L. J. 372; 15 L. W. 537; (1922) M. W. N. 269; 45 M. 449; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 112 869

——— O. XXI, rr. 1, 2—Mortgage-decree—Adjustment out of Court—Adjustment notified by judgment-debtor—Court, duty of.

O. XXI, r. 2, of the Civil Procedure Code, applies to a final decree in a mortgage suit and such a decree, like any other decree, is capable of adjustment out of Court. When, therefore, a judgment-debtor informs the Court that the decree against him has been adjusted, the Court is bound, under O. XXI, r. 2 (2) of the Civil Procedure Code, to issue notice to the decree-holder to show cause why the adjustment should not be regarded as certified. N LACHMANSINGH v. MARDANSINGH 443

——— O. XXI, r. 2, (1). See EXECUTION OF DECREE 780

——— O. XXI, r. 2 (3)—Execution of decree—Payment, satisfaction or adjustment pleaded—Payment not certified—Duty of Court—Fraud, allegation of—Treatment of plea of payment as application for certifying payment—Fraud—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 18, application of.

The provisions of clause (3) of r. 2 of O. XXI of the Civil Procedure Code are not to be rendered nugatory by the application of the general provisions of section 47 of the same Code. The clause is equally applicable where adjustment is set up by the judgment-debtor in answer to an application for execution

The decree-holder is bound to certify an adjustment, and the judgment-debtor is also given a right to apply to the Court to certify an adjustment. If the adjustment be not certified, it is entirely the fault of the judgment-debtor, and he does not deserve the consideration of the Court if he fails to take the very ordinary precaution of seeing that payment or adjustment made by him is certified to the Court.

An adjustment not certified according to law cannot be enquired into by a Court even though fraud on the part of the decree-holder is alleged.

It is not for a Court of Justice to refuse to observe a provision of the law because hardship may result in consequence. The Court has merely to interpret and apply the law as laid down by the Legislature, and it would not be doing its duty if it acted otherwise.

It is, however, open to a Court to oppose a fraud so far as it can do so within the law, and where an application for execution is opposed on the ground of payment or satisfaction or adjustment, the Court may rightly treat the objection so taken as an application to the Court to certify the alleged payment or adjustment provided that the objection betaken within the period of limitation allowed by law.

In such a case, where the Court decides to treat an objection to execution on the ground of payment, as an application for certifying the payment, the judgment-debtor pleading fraud cannot extend the period of limitation under section 8 of the Limitation Act, for that section applies only where the knowledge of a right is fraudulently kept away, and not to a case where a person is prevented by fraud from exercising a right of which he is fully aware. L B P. R. P. L. CHETTY v. G LON POW, 11 L. B. R. 333 924

——— O. XXI, rr. 35 (2), 36—Execution proceedings—Persons particularly concerned aware of such proceedings—Publicity, law as to, whether complied with.

Where persons particularly concerned in execution proceedings have been made aware of those proceedings, and publicity thereof has thus been achieved, the provisions of the law contained in O XXI, rr. 35 (2) and 36 of the Civil Procedure Code should be deemed to have been substantially complied with. L JAUHRI LAL v. PEMAN, 2 L. L. J. 563 182

——— O. XXI, r. 36, application of. See ADVERSE POSSESSION 91

——— O. XXI, r. 50 (2), (4)—Deceased partner, whether covered by sub-r. (2)—Sub-r. (4), meaning of.

The wording of sub-r. (2) of r. 50 of O XXI, of the Civil Procedure Code is wide enough to cover the case of a deceased partner and under it leave can be given against his legal representative

Sub-r. (4) of r. 50, O. XXI, of the Civil Procedure Code was intended to make clear the implication of sub-r (1), and it does not affect the provisions of sub-r. 2. B JIVRAJ LALLOOBHAI PATEL v. BHAGVANDAS GORDHANDAS, 24 BOM. L R. 1037 627

——— O. XXI, r. 58, applicability of. See MORTGAGE DECREE FOR SALE 271

——— O. XXI, r. 66—Auction sale—Notification of mortgage—Auction-purchaser, whether estopped from questioning validity of mortgage.

Under O XXI, r. 66, of the Civil Procedure Code, if a mortgage-deed is notified, that notification is in no way conclusive as between the decree-holder or the purchaser on the one hand, and the holder of the encumbrance on the other, as to its validity, and where a sale is not effected subject to a mortgage but the mortgage is simply notified at the time of the sale, the auction-purchaser is not estopped from questioning the validity of the mortgage. A ROSHAN LAL v. LALLU, 20 A. L. J. 722; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 413 790

——— O. XXI, rr. 66, 89, 90—Execution sale—Proclamation—Place of sale, omission of—Place well-known—Sale, setting aside of—Substantial injury—Partnership suit—Sale for realising assets—Sale, setting aside of, on deposit—R. 89, object of.

The omission of the place of sale in the sale proclamation, although a clear irregularity, would not justify the setting aside of the sale, if the place of sale being well-known, no body is misled by the proclamation and no prejudice is caused to the applicant.

O. XXI, r. 89 of the Civil Procedure Code provides modes of relieving judgment-debtors from the hardships to which they are exposed by Court sales in execution of decrees against them at great undervalues, and is inapplicable to the case of sale in a partnership suit on behalf of all parties to the suit for the purpose of realisation of the assets of the partnership. M TULJARAM ROW v. RAMACHANDRA ROW, 41 M. L. J. 465; 14 L. W. 515; (1921) M. W. N. 736 916

——— O. XXI, r. 89, application under—Execution sale—Private sale by judgment-debtor before confirmation—Purchaser, application by, for setting aside sale on deposit, whether competent.

A purchaser from a judgment-debtor of his immoveable property after its sale in execution of a decree and before the confirmation of the sale, is not entitled to make a deposit under O. XXI, r. 89, of the Code of Civil Procedure, and to apply to have the sale set aside. C SARADA KRIPALALA v. HORENDRA KUMAR DAS, 26 C. W. N. 149; 49 C. 454; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 271 289

——— O. XXI, r. 89, application under—No specific prayer to set aside sale—Prayer to receive deposit—Prayer to withhold payment of money to decree-holder made but withdrawn on objection—Object of deposit—Deposit, whether conditional.

An application under O. XXI, r. 89, without containing a specific prayer to set aside the sale, prayed that the decretal amount may be received in deposit, but that it may not be paid to the decree-holder pending disposal of an appeal. On the latter's objection the prayer as to withholding payment was withdrawn:

Held, (1) that, though there was no specific prayer to set aside the sale yet that was clearly the purpose of the deposits;

(2) that, as the prayer regarding withholding payment to the decree-holder was withdrawn by the judgment-debtor the deposit was valid and not conditional. Pat RAMSHIVENDRA NARAYAN OJHA v. AWADH BIHARY SARAN 629

——— O. XXI, r. 90—Execution of decree—Previous application against one judgment-debtor dismissed—Subsequent application against all judgment-debtors, whether in continuation.

Where a previous application for execution has been dismissed because of a successful application made under O.. XXI, r. 90 of the Civil Procedure Code, a subsequent application for execution is an application in continuation of the previous application. But where an application has been made against one of several judgment-debtors and has been dismissed for this reason, a subsequent application made against all the judgment-debtors cannot be treated as an application in continuation of the previous application. Pat KAMAL NAIN SINGH v. KESHO PRASAD SINGH, 1 PAT. 701; (1922) A. I R. (PAT.) 310 633

——— O. XXI, r. 92—Execution sale, application to set aside—Notice of application, when to be given—Time for giving notice not limited.

It is not necessary that the notice required by r. 92, O. XXI, Civil Procedure Code, to be given of an application to set aside an execution sale, should be served on all the parties affected by the sale within thirty days of the date of the sale. The rule prescribes no limitation for giving such notice. Once notice is given to all the parties affected by a sale, the Court has authority to proceed to decide the application on its merits, O ABDUR RAHMAN v. HAR NARAYAN, 9 O. L. J. 211; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 72; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 129 238

——— O. XXI, r. 98, 99, 100, 101, 103—Dispossession by decree-holder or auction-purchaser—Application complaining of such dispossession—Dismissal of application for default—Suit to establish right to present possession—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 11A, applicability of.

In cases coming under O. XXI, rr. 98, 99 or 101 of the Code of Civil Procedure an order to be conclusive under r. 103 must be an order passed after investigation.

Where, therefore, an application under r. 100 complaining of dispossession by a decree-holder or auction-purchaser is dismissed for default without holding some sort of investigation, as expressly laid down by sub-rule (2) of r. 101 and r. 103, the special rule of limitation contained in Art. 11A of the first Schedule to the Limitation Act has no application and a suit to recover possession on establishment of title instituted more than one year after the date of the order of dismissal for default is not barred by limitation C NIRODE BORONI DASSI v. MONINDRA NARAYAN CHANDRA, 25 C. L. J. 567; 26 C. W. N. 8; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 229 524

——— O. XXI, r. 100. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. I, ARTS. 165, 18 349

——— O. XXI, r. 100, application under—Person in joint possession with judgment-debtor

A claimant who has an interest in land of which possession has been delivered in execution of a decree, either as a member of a family or otherwise, and who is affected by the delivery of possession, can claim to be in possession on his own account within the meaning of O. XXI, r. 100 of the Civil Procedure Code, and is entitled to maintain an application under the rule and claim to be in joint possession of the property with the auction-purchaser. N MISS A. K SINGH v RAMPRASAD 174

——— O. XXI, r. 103—Suit for possession by decree-holder—Limitation.

A suit for possession by the decree-holder under O. XXI, r. 103 Civil Procedure Code, is governed by Art. 11A of the Limitation Act. A BHIKHARI DASS v. ABDULLAH, 20 A. L. J. 578; 44 A. 607; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 403 241

——— O. XXII, rr. 3, 10—Preliminary decree in mortgage-suit—Death of decree-holder—Application to bring representative on record—Limitation—"Right to sue," meaning of.

Where after obtaining a preliminary decree in a mortgage-suit, the plaintiff dies, an application to bring his legal representatives on to the record must be made within the period prescribed by sub-r. (1) of r. 3 of O XXII of the Civil Procedure Code, otherwise the suit will abate under sub-r. (2) of that rule. Such a case does not fall within the purview of r. 10 of that Order.

The right to sue mentioned in sub-r. (1) includes the right to proceed with the suit until the latter terminates, and, in a mortgage-suit the right to sue includes the right to obtain a final decree after the passing of a preliminary decree. M DAKOJU SUBBARAYUDU v. MUSTI RAMADASU, 5 L. W. 309; 42 M. L. J. 301; 30 M. L. T. 202; (1922) M. W. N. 375 942

——— O. XXII, r. 4—Joint contract—Appeal—Death of respondent—Abatement

A contract entered into by one or more promisors can be enforced as against all or any of them

Therefore, where one of several promisors who are respondents in an appeal dies and his legal representatives are not brought on the record, the appeal does not abate as a whole the right to prosecute it survives as against the surviving respondents L FIRM GURDAS RAM-KOTU RAM v. BHAGWAN DAS (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 182 815

——— O. XXII, r. 4 (1)—Preliminary decree—Death of defendant—Representative not brought on record—Abatement of suit—Locus standi of heirs to apply for final decree.

A preliminary decree does not put an end to a suit which remains pending till the final decree.

Therefore where after the passing of a preliminary decree the defendant dies and no application is made under O. XXII, r. 4 (1) of the Civil Procedure Code for the substitution of his legal representatives within the period of limitation following his death, the suit abates and his heirs have no locus standi to apply for a final decree. A JAGAR NATH v. RAM KARAN SINGH, 20 A. L. J. 565; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 182; (1922) A. I. R. A. 396 251

——— O. XXII, rr. 4 (1), 11. See ABATEMENT OF APPEAL 194

——— O. XXIII, r. 3—Compromise decree—Court competent to grant relief agreed to by parties—"So far as it relates to the suit," meaning of—Decree, compromise, interpretation of.

In a decree passed on the basis of a compromise there is nothing whatsoever in the terms of O XXIII, r. 3, Civil Procedure Code, to prevent a Court from granting a relief to a defendant which can be put in execution, so long as that relief has been agreed to by the parties and is one of the lawful considerations on which the compromise is based.

The phrase "so far as it relates to the suit", as used in O. XXIII, r. 3, Civil Procedure Code, does not mean that in a compromise decree only such reliefs can be granted as the Court might have granted on the trial of a suit. All conditions which are considerations for the compromise are conditions relating to the suit and as such should be embodied in the decree.

In order to interpret a compromise which has been embodied in a decree, it should be read as a whole.

In a suit for pre-emption in respect of a 2-annas share in a village, a decree was passed in terms of a compromise according to which the plaintiff's suit in respect of 1-anna share was dismissed and the defendant was held entitled to receive possession of 1-anna share immediately after the termination of the lease under which the plaintiff was holding the village. It was contended that the suit being a simple pre-emption suit the defendant could not be given a decree for possession and that it should be construed as merely declaratory of his rights :

Held, that it was not merely a declaratory decree but one for possession and that the defendant was entitled on the expiry of the lease to apply for delivery of possession in execution of the decree under section 47, Civil Procedure Code, and that a separate suit for possession would not lie O BISHESHAR SINGH v. MOHAMMAD YASIN ALI KHAN, 25 O. C. 58; 9 O. L. J. 276; (1922 A. I. R. (J. C.) 150 232

——— O. XXIII, r. 3, Sch. II, paras. 20, 21—Arbitration without intervention of Court—Award, application to file—Compromise modifying award Court, power of, to pass decree in terms of compromise Appeal.

Where after an application under paragraph 20 of Schedule II to the Civil Procedure Code, for filing an award made without the intervention of the Court has been made, the parties enter into a compromise, the effect of which is to modify the award, it is not illegal or ultra vires for the Court to pass a decree in terms of the award as modified by the compromise.

Except in so far as such a decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the modified award, an appeal against the decree is not competent. O FAZAL AHMAD v. ANAYAT AHMAD, 9 O. L. J. 219; (1922 A. I. R. (J. C.) 189; 2 O. C. 213 209

——— O. XXV, r. 3—Suit for dissolution of partnership, for accounts and for recovery of plaintiff's stridhan property, if suit for payment of money.

A suit for dissolution of partnership, for accounts and for recovery of the plaintiff's stridhan property is not a suit for payment of money within the provisions of O. XXV, r. 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure C AMULYA SUNDARI DASSYA v. SYAMA SUNDAR SAHA 607

——— O. XXVI—Commissions for valuation of things—Procedure.

When the report of a Commissioner appointed to make a valuation of anything under O. XXVI of the Civil Procedure Code is objected to, the Court should hear the objections in open Court and decide, with the aid of such evidence as it may take, whether the valuation should be varied and, if so, in what direction.

The filing of objections to a report is no ground for appointing another Commissioner and in all cases where a second Commissioner is appointed to do the same work, the reasons for adopting such a course must be recorded in writing to enable the Appellate Court to see whether the judicial discretion has been properly exercised.

There may be cases in which the Commissioner may have so misconceived his duties as to render his report and valuation useless for a decision. In such cases a new Commissioner may be appointed. But this would mean that the old report and valuation were superseded. The Court has no power, after the issue of a second Commission, to still treat the report and valuation obtained under the first as available data on which, if it was so minded, it might base its decision. M KUTHIRAVATTATH KONGASSELI MOKSHATH THOTTAMMA v. SUBRAMANIYAN, 14 L. W. 620; (1921) M. W. N. 843; 45 M. 79; 1922 A. I. R. (M.) 219 469

——— O. XXX, r. 1, O. XXXII, r. 7—Suit against firm—Minor member—Arbitration—Sanction of Court.

Where a suit is brought against a firm the mere fact that one of the members of the firm is a minor would not bring the suit within the purview of O. XXXII of the Civil Procedure Code. The sanction of the Court, therefore, is not required when such a suit is referred to arbitration to validate the reference. L SUKHA NAND v. BEHARI RAM-ISHAR DAS 750

——— O. XXXII, r. 7. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890, s. 29 997

——— O. XL, r. 1—Receiver, application for appointment of—Procedure—Estate in possession of Muhammadan widow—Receiver, appointment of, whether justified—Refusal to appoint Receiver, whether bars subsequent application for appointment.

In dealing with an application for the appointment of a Receiver, the Court should examine the grounds given for such appointment, and take the pleadings of both parties on the application, and then dispose of it according to law, as laid down in O. XL, r. 1, of the Civil Procedure Code The application should not be dismissed summarily.

There is nothing in the law, as laid down in O. XL, r. 1, of the Civil Procedure Code, which prohibits a Court from appointing a Receiver in a case under Muhammadan Law in which a widow or her heirs claim to remain in possession of the estate of her husband until her dower has been paid and the accounts have been settled, provided there are good grounds within the scope of the section for a Receiver being appointed.

The mere fact that a Receiver had not been previously appointed is not in itself a sufficient ground for refusing to appoint one at the later stage of a case. N ZAHROS SYED ALI v. AHMAD SYED 502

——— O. XL, r. 1—Receiver, appointment of—Applicant's duty to convince Court of prima facie case.

In cases where an application is made for the appointment of a Receiver, the applicant should at least present a prima facie case and convince the Court that there is a fair chance of his succeeding in the suit. Pat BANWARI LAL v. MOTI LAL, 3 P. L. T. 4[illegible]; (1922) A. I. R. (PAT.) 493 656

——— O. XL, r. 1—Receiver, appointment of—Vesting of property, when takes place.

The mere appointment of a Receiver under O. XL, r. 1 (a) of the Civil Procedure Code, does not immediately vest the property in him. It is only when the provisions of clauses (b), (c) and (d) of the rule have been complied with, that the property vests him. N RAMKRISHNA v. GANPATI 432

——— O. XLI, r. 10 (2)—Security for respondent's costs—Failure to furnish security within time allowed, effect of—Appellant's whereabouts unknown, whether sufficient reason for extending time.

Where an appellant fails to furnish security for the costs of the respondent within the time allowed, his appeal is liable to be dismissed.

The fact that the delay in furnishing security is due to the whereabouts of the appellant being unknown, is not a sufficient reason for not following O. XLI, r. 10 (2), of the Civil Procedure Code. L PARMA NAND v. RAM PARKASH, 2 L. L. J. 391 306

——— O. XLI, r. 19—Appeal dismissed for default—Re-admission—Sufficient cause—Counsel engaged in other Court.

It is the duty of Counsel to see that their clients are properly represented when their cases are called on for hearing. If a Counsel is unable to appear himself he should arrange for another to take his brief for him when the case is called on for hearing. Courts cannot be expected to await the convenience of Counsel.

An appeal was dismissed in default, and upon an application for its re-admission on the ground that when the appeal was called on for hearing Counsel for the appellant was engaged in arguing a case before another Court at the time and had sent word to the Reader of the Court asking to be allowed ten minutes' time:

Held, that this was not a sufficient cause within the meaning of r. 19 of O. XLI of the Civil Procedure Code for re-admitting the appeal. L SAIF ALI v. CHIRAGH ALI 785

——— O. XLI, r. 23, O. XLIII, r. 1 (4)—Remand, order of—Appeal, when lies—Appeal, second, when competent—Punjab Courts Act (VI of 1918), ss. 41, 42.

An appeal from an order of an Appellate Court remanding a case under O. XLI, r. 23, Civil Procedure Code, lies in all cases except those in which absolutely no right of second appeal against an appellate decree is given in the body of the Code or by any other law.

In order to determine whether an order of remand is appealable or not, the test is, suppose, the Court instead of making an order of remand passed a decree on the strength of the adjudication constituting the order of remand, would there be a second appeal from that decree? If a second appeal would lie from the decree, then the order of remand is appealable, otherwise not.

Per Martineau, J—The competency of a second appeal is not dependent on the question whether the decision of the lower Appellate Court is based on a finding of fact or on a finding of law, for even when the decision is based on a finding of fact a second appeal will lie on one of the grounds mentioned in section 4 (1) (b) and (c) of the Punjab Courts Act. Whether or not a second appeal lies depends on the nature and value of the suit, a second appeal being barred by section 42 (2) only in a suit of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes where the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit does not exceed Rs 500. Section 42 (1) merely restricts the grounds on which a second appeal can be entertained to those mentioned in section 41. L UMRI v. SHAH MOHAMMAD, 4 L. L. J. 359; 3 L. 218; (1922) A. I. R. L. 178 849

——— O. XLI, r. 25—Remand—Reconsideration of law competent.

In the case of a remand under O. XLI, r. 25, Civil Procedure Code, it is open to an Appellate Court to re-consider the view of the law on which the remand was based. O SHYAM NARAIN v. JADUNATH SINGH, 25 O. C. 41; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 118 242

——— O. XLI, r. 27—Evidence, admission of, in appeal—Jurisdiction.

The power of a Court to admit evidence in appeal is restricted and can be exercised only under the provisions of r. 27 of O. XLI of the Civil Procedure Code.

If an Appellate Court allows fresh evidence to be taken on behalf of a party, it must also allow the other party an opportunity to produce such evidence as they think fit to rebut the additional evidence adduced. C HRIDAY KRISHNA PAL v. RAJANI KANTA PAL 292

——— O. XLI, r. 27, O. XLVII, r. 1—Admission of evidence at appellate stage—Insufficient ground—Proper remedy.

The fact that the plaintiff in a case was unaware of certain important documents during the hearing of the case is no sufficient ground for their admission in evidence at the appellate stage under O. XLI, r. 27, Civil Procedure Code. The plaintiff's proper remedy is by an application for a review under O. XLVII, r. 1. C MANMOHINI DEBI v. RAM KISHORE 334

——— O. XLI, r. 31—Judgment of Appellate Court affirming that of Trial Court—Short form of judgment, if contrary to law.

Whether or not a judgment of an Appellate Court is in accordance with the provisions of O. XLI, r. 31 of the Civil Procedure Code depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case. There is, firstly, that difference which exists between cases of affirmance of judgments and cases of reversal of judgments of the First Court. Then there is to be considered the nature of the judgment affirmed, its fullness and accuracy and so forth.

Where the First Court has fully discussed in its judgment all the matters which were placed before it, the Appellate Court's judgment affirming that of the First Court is not contrary to law, because it is given in a short form and is unaccompanied by reasons. C MOHAMMAD HOSSAIN CHAUDHARY v. RABIA KHATUN 467

——— O. XLIII, r. 1 (u). See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. VII, R 1 304

——— Sch. I. App. E, Form 29. See EXECUTION SALE 305

——— Sch. II, paras. 18, 22—Arbitration—Subsequent institution of suit about same subject-matter—Arbitration, supersession of.

The institution of a suit has not ipso facto the effect of superseding a previous reference to arbitration dealing with the same subject-matter, but if after the institution of the suit neither party applies for a stay of the hearing of the suit under paragraph 18 of Schedule II, Civil Procedure Code, either at the time of the settlement of issues or before it, the effect of such a failure is to supersede the arbitration for good and any decision which might be arrived at in that suit would be binding on the parties as if no reference to arbitration had been made prior to the suit.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—concld.

Where no application for stay of the suit is made within limitation, the effect of the institution of the suit and its decision would be to supersede the arbitration and render any award made therein after the institution of the suit unenforceable.

A private reference to arbitration of a subject of dispute does not prevent either party from filing a suit in a Court of Law in respect of the same matter, for the effect of paragraph 22, Schedule II, Civil Procedure Code, is to remove the bar which existed to the institution of such a suit O ZAINAB v. BUDHNA, 25 O. C. 63; (1922) A. I R. (J. C.) 158 235

Commission—Application by defendant asking for commission to examine himself—Discretion of Court—Appellate Court, interference by—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XVI, rr. 19, 21, O. XXVI, r. 4.

Rules 19 and 21 of O. XVI of the Code of Civil Procedure have no application to a case where a party to a suit desires to give evidence of his own motion in his own favour. A case of this description is governed by O. XXVI, r. 4 of the Code.

In cases under O. XXVI, r. 4 of the Code of Civil Procedure a distinction must be observed between an application by a plaintiff asking for a commission to examine himself and an application by a defendant asking for a commission to examine himself. Where an application is made by a defendant who lawfully resides out of the jurisdiction of the Court, according to the ordinary course of his life and business, the Court will not regard the case with the same strictness as the case of the plaintiff who has instituted his suit in a forum of his choice though he resides beyond the jurisdiction of such Court.

A Court of Appeal should exercise great caution when invited to interfere with an order of the Trial Court made with jurisdiction in the exercise of its discretion as to the granting of a commission. Each case must depend upon its own circumstances and no rule as to the exercise of that discretion can be laid down.

In this case the suit was instituted in the Burdwan Court and the defendant resided in the Rajshahye District; the lower Court refused the application of the defendant to be examined on commission. This order was set aside by the High Court, and the defendant was allowed to be examined on commission in Calcutta on payment of Rs. 1,000 as costs to enable the plaintiff to make arrangements for his cross-examination, the sum to be retained by the plaintiff irrespective of the result of the suit. C SARAT KUMAR RAY v. RAM CHANDRA CHATTERJEE, 35 C. L. J. 78; (1922) A. I. R. (C) 42 9

Companies—Contract entered into on behalf of Company before incorporation—Company, ratification by—New contract.

A contract entered into by the promoters of a Company prior to its incorporation, is not binding on the Company; nor can a Company ratify or adopt such a contract: it may enter into a new contract embodying the terms of that contract or adopting it.

The mere affixing of a copy of an agreement to the Articles of Association is not equivalent to effecting a new contract by the Company and would not estop the Official Liquidator from objecting to a claim on behalf of the persons with whom that contract was entered into. L SURRENDRO AND COMPANY v. LIQUIDATOR, PUNJAB TANNERY CO. LTD. 787

Companies Act (VI of 1882), s. 163.
See COMPANIES ACT VII OF 1913, S. 284 792

Companies (Act VII of 1913), s. 234—Companies Act (VI of 1882), s. 163—Winding-up commenced under old Act—Appeal—Notice.

Under section 284 of the Companies Act, 1913, where proceedings for the winding-up of a Company have commenced before the commencement of the said Act, all subsequent proceedings connected with such winding-up, continue to be governed in all respects by the provisions of the Companies Act of 1882. Therefore where an appeal arises out of such proceedings notice of appeal must be served in accordance with the provisions of section 163 of the Companies Act of 1882. L HEM RAJ v. BEANT SINGH, VAKIL, LIQUIDATOR THE PUNJAB TANNERY CO. LTD. 792

Composition deed, setting aside of—Position of parties.

When a compromise-deed is set aside, the parties are remitted to their original rights as they stood before the compromise. M RAJARAJESWARA SETHUPATHI AVERGAL v. KUPPUSAMI IYER, 41 M. L. J. 474; (1921) M. W. N. 722 352

Confession by co-accused, value of—Co-accused not intending to implicate himself.

A confession made by one of several accused persons by which he does not intend to implicate himself, although he actually does so, may be taken into account as against the accused making the confession, but should not be taken into account as against his co-accused. L HAYAT v EMPEROR, 4 L. L. J. 41; 23 CR. L J 661; (1922 A. I. R. (L.) 119 401 ——— of co-accused.

A confession made by a co-accused after the whole of the prosecution evidence has been recorded can be used as evidence against the person making it, but cannot be used as against his co-accused either as evidence in itself or as corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice. L NARAIN DAS v. EMPEROR, 4 L. L. J. 91; 3 L. 144; 9 P. W. R. 1922 CR; 23 CR. L. J. 513; 1922) A. I. R. L.) 119 113

Construction of Statutes—Courts to follow long established decisions.

Where an Act of Parliament has received a judicial construction, putting a certain meaning on its words, and the Legislature in a subsequent Act in pari materia uses the same words, there is a presumption that the Legislature used these words intending to express the meaning which it knew had been put upon the same words before, and unless there is something to rebut that presumption, the Act should be so construed even if they were such that they might originally have been construed otherwise. C ISHAN CHANDRA BAKSHI v. SEFATULLA SIKDAR, 35 C. L. J. 219 36; 26 C. W. N. 03

Contingent contract—Contract to sell balance of goods, after satisfying certain other demands, if void for uncertainty—Damages, ascertainment of—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 73.

Where a person agrees to sell the balance of certain goods in stock after satisfying the demands of certain other persons, but on account of a rise in the price of goods neither sells the goods to the buyer nor to those other persons within the time specified, the contract is not void for uncertainty but is a contingent contract enforceable in the ordinary manner and damages for its breach can be ascertained in the usual manner N KANCHEDILAL v. MOTIRAM, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 192 720

Contract—Earnest money—Question of fact—Appeal, second.

The question as to what is and what is not earnest money turns on the construction of the document which contains the contract, but where there is no written contract, the question must be decided according to the evidence on the record, and becomes a question of fact and a decision on that question cannot be disturbed in appeal. A MADHO DAS v. GOKAL DAS, 20 A. L. J. 742; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 208; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 478 761

Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 11, 12—Unsoundness of mind—Presumption in favour of sanity—Temporary aberrations of intellect—Burden of proving insanity.

In all transactions there is a presumption in favour of sanity of the contracting parties, and the test of soundness of mind is, that a person entering into a transaction, is capable of understanding the business, and of forming a rational judgment as to its effect upon his interests. Where, therefore, in a suit challenging the validity of certain deeds, the plaintiff relies on unsoundness of mind, he must establish it sufficiently to satisfy this test Mere weakness of mind is not sufficient, nor is it necessary to prove utter mental darkness or congenital idiocy.

Mistaking one person for another, dusting the wall, drinking tea from tea pot and mistaking grapes for pieces of stone indicate only temporary "aberrations of intellect" or temporary "insane delusions" and when occurring in isolated cases, few and far between, would not necessarily indicate that the person subject to them was incapable of managing his affairs. Pat MOHAMMAD YAKUB v. ABDUL QUDDUS 372

——s. 16—Undue influence—Indebtedness, effect of.

The mere fact that a person at the time of entering into a contract is indebted to the other party would not by itself be sufficient to establish undue influence. N MAHADEO v. KISANLAL, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 219 597

——s. 16—'Undue influence,' proof of, requisites of—Suit to set aside gift for undue influence—Cause of action.

A person is said to be in a position to exercise undue influence over another, when the former is in a position to dominate the latter's will. If when in such a position of dominance he uses it to obtain an unfair advantage over the person dominated, the transaction brought about by such use is voidable by the latter.

The expression 'undue influence' cannot be properly used unless either (1) confidence has been reposed on the person charged, as where the latter is a solicitor, trustee, guardian, etc, or (2) unless the influence of the man exercising it is such that the person influenced stands in some sort of respect, awe or fear of him.

Where a legacy bequeathed by a Will or a gift inter vivos is sought to be set aside on the ground of undue influence, it is not sufficient to prove that the legatee was in a position to exercise influence, but it must also be proved that the influence was unduly exercised, the burden of proving this latter circumstance being on the party attacking the legacy.

Courts do not look with favour on attempts to attack bequests on the ground of undue influence. M RAJARAJESWARA SETHUPATHI AVERGAL v. KUPPUSAMI IYER, 41 M. L. J. 474; (1921) M. W. N. 722 352

——s. 23—Mortgage—Consideration—Promise to abandon prosecution of non-compoundable criminal case.

Where the consideration of a mortgage-bond is an agreement on the part of the mortgagee to abandon the prosecution of the mortgagor in a non-compoundable criminal case the bond is void, even if part of the consideration of the bond was good in law. C KARUNA KRISHNA v. RAKHALDAS 721

——s. 23, operation of. See GOVERNMENT SERVANT 648

——s. 25 (3)—Bond executed by Hindu father in lieu of time-barred debt—Contract, validity of—Sons, liability of, on death of father.

It is within the competency of a Hindu father to execute a bond in lieu of a time-barred debt, and the bond amounts to a valid contract against him, under section 25 (3) of the Contract Act; on his death, therefore, his sons are liable to pay the money which he was bound to pay. A RAM KISHAN RAI v. CHHEDI RAI, 20 A. L. J. 577; 44 A. 628; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 402 235

——s. 63—Acceptance of smaller sum than amount due—Discharge—Presumption—Question of fact.

Where a plaintiff agrees to accept a smaller sum in full payment of the amount due to him, it is not open to him to go behind that admission and claim the recovery of the balance. On the other hand, if he does not agree to accept that amount in full satisfaction of his claim, he cannot claim the benefit of section 63 of the Contract Act, for that section only applies where a promisee agrees to remit wholly or in part the performance of a promise made to him or accepts instead of it any satisfaction which he thinks fit.

Where a debtor sends to his creditor a cheque for a smaller amount than what he owes, the mere retention and encashment of the cheque by the creditor, who at the same time refuses to receive the amount in full discharge of the payment of the debt, does not raise any conclusive presumption that he had accepted the cheque as a conditional offer by the debtor,

A finding that a plaintiff did not really agree to accept a smaller sum in full discharge of his debt a question of fact. A BASDEO RAM SARUP v. DILSUKHRAI SEWAK RAM, 20 A. L. J. 717; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 461 783

——— ss. 63, 73—Sale of goods—Extension of time—Breach—Damages, measure of.

Section 63 of the Contract Act does not entitle a promisee for his own purposes and without the consent of the promisor to extend the time for the performance of the contract to his own advantage. There must be an agreement or mutual understanding to waive.

The measure of damages in a case of non-delivery of goods contracted to be sold is the sum by which the contract price falls short of the price at which the purchaser might have obtained goods of like quality at the time when the goods should have been delivered L ASMAT ULLAH v. BIHARI LAL & SONS 912

——— ss. 69, 70—Sale of dar-patni in execution of decree for arrears of rent against some only of dar-patnidars—Sale set aside by deposit of decretal amount by co-sharer—Contribution, suit for.

The plaintiff and the defendants were co-sharers in a dar-patni which had been sold by the patnidar in execution of a decree obtained in a suit for arrears of rent in which the plaintiff had not been made a party. The plaintiff had the sale set aside by depositing the decretal amount together with the statutory compensation due to the auction-purchaser. In a suit by the plaintiff for contribution against the defendants:

Held, that the suit was maintainable under section 70 of the Contract Act, and not under section 69, and the defendants were liable to contribute in respect of the amount due under the decree as also towards the statutory compensation. C KANGAL CHANDRA PAL v. GOPINATH PAL, 24 C. W. N. 1068 104

——— s. 73. See CONTINGENT CONTRACT 720

——— s. 73. See INTEREST 678

——— s. 74. See INTEREST 497

——— s. 74—Penalty, nature of—Damages for breach of contract stated in agreement—Damages, award of.

A penalty clause in a contract providing for the payment of a fixed sum of money by the person committing a breach of the same should not be looked upon as a mere brutum fulmen, an agreement that neither party had any intention of enforcing at all to any extent. The object of such a clause is to fix a maximum for damages which would be difficult to estimate in money. Therefore, even if a Court is not disposed to enforce such a clause this would not deprive the aggrieved party of his right to damages that he has actually suffered. N BALAJI v. SUKAMIYA 605

——— s. 78—Contract to purchase ascertained goods—Delivery postponed by agreement—Property in goods, when passes—Suit to recover price of goods, maintainability of.

When a purchaser of goods agrees to take the goods as ascertained, but at his request delivery is postponed, the property in the goods passes to the purchaser, under section 78 of the Contract Act, as soon as the proposal for sale is accepted, and a suit to recover the price of goods is maintainable. A DWARKA DAS-AJODHYA PRASAD v. RAM RATAN, 20 A. L. J. 679; (1922) A. I. R. (A. 458 239

——— s. 78—Sale—Specific or ascertained goods—Seller and buyer, position of.

Where specific goods are sold and agreed to be delivered wholesale at a certain rate, it is for the buyer to get the goods weighed and delivered to him and the latter cannot by delay in weighing the goods prevent the transfer of the ownership to him.

The sale of an entire heap of bark stored in a godown approximately of a certain weight, is, practically, a sale of specific or ascertained goods within the meaning of section 78 of the Contract Act, and the seller is entitled to claim the price, less earnest-money, if any, already paid therefor. O ANNAN v. DUBAR, 9 O. L. J. 339; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 95 969

——— Ch. IX, s. 151—Hotel-keeper and guest—Hotel-keeper, liabilities of, by what law regulated—Theft of property of guest—Hotel-keeper, liability of.

The liabilities of a hotel-keeper in India to his guests are regulated by the Contract Act, and not by the Common Law of England in force against innkeepers, and in the absence of any specific agreement in a given case, the rules in Ch. IX of the Contract Act are applicable.

It is the duty of a hotel-keeper to keep his premises in such a condition of safety as would reasonably prevent theft and take such care of the property of his guests as a man of ordinary prudence would, under the circumstances, take of his own goods. Where he fails in such a duty, he is, in case of a theft of the property of a guest, liable for its value. A JAN AND SON v. CAMERON, 20 A. L. J. 728; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 471; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 214 679

——— s. 178—Documents of title—Railway Receipts, negotiability of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s 137, scope of.

Railway Receipts are "Mercantile Documents of Title to Goods" within the meaning of section 178 of the Contract Act, but they are not by law negotiable: in order to give them the attribute of negotiability, it must be established by the custom of merchants that they are treated as negotiable in the particular trade and at the particular place where the claim to negotiability is advanced. From the mere fact that they have acquired the attribute of negotiability in one City in a particular trade, it does not follow that they are invested with that attribute in another City in an altogether different trade.

Section 137 of the Transfer of Property Act merely deals with the manner in which the documents to which it relates can be transferred, but it does not affect the result of the transfer when made. In order that such a transfer should, in the case of Railway Receipts, have the effect of transferring the ownership of the goods, it must be established that they are negotiable. They are not negotiable by law, nor are they rendered negotiable by section 137 of the Transfer of Property Act. L B ARUNACHALAM CHETTY v. PO KO YAN, 11 L. B. R. 341 694

Contract Act—contd.

——— s. 231, cl. (1), application of. See HINDU LAW—JOINT FAMILY 462

——— s. 238—Principal and agent—Fraud or misappropriation by agent—Liability of principal—Fraud need not be for principal's benefit.

A principal is liable for the fraud of his agent acting within the scope of his authority, whether the fraud is committed for the benefit of the principal or for the benefit of the agent. This is in accordance with the law as enacted in section 238 of the Indian Contract Act. There is nothing in that section to show that, in order to render the principal liable, the fraud must be committed for the benefit of the principal.

Defendants Nos. 2 to 4 who were manjhis or boatmen, as agents of defendant No. 1, the owner of the boat, entered into a contract with the plaintiff to carry his goods from one place to another. The goods having been misappropriated on the way by defendants Nos 2 to 4 the present suit was brought for the recovery of the price thereof:

Held, that the defendant No. 1 (and not defendants Nos 2 to 4 only) was liable for the loss occasioned to the plaintiff's goods by reason of the goods having been misappropriated by his agents, the defendants Nos. 2 to 4, as there was no question that the goods were entrusted to them and were being carried by them in the course of their business when the misappropriation took place C DINA BANDHU SAHA v. ABDUL LATIF, 27 C. W. N. 18 439

——— s. 253 (10)—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 106—Dissolution of partnership—Death of partner—Contract to continue partnership.

Section 253 (10) of the Contract Act, which provides for the dissolution of a partnership on the death of a partner, must be read as qualified by the introductory words "in the absence of any contract to the contrary."

Where parties to a contract agree expressly or by necessary implication to continue the partnership, as if no dissolution had taken place, upon the death of one of them, a suit for accounts would not be barred under Art. 106, Sch. I, to the Limitation Act. L HARI CHAND v. JUGAL KISHORE, (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 349 722

——— s. 264—Partnership, dissolution of—Notice, absence of, effect of—"Persons dealing with firm," meaning of—Retirement of partner—Liability.

Section 264 of the Contract Act is an illustration of a particular form of estoppel by conduct, and a person is not entitled to take advantage of it unless the facts raise a presumption that the absence of notice excited in him a belief which caused him to do something that he would not otherwise have done. The section must not be construed as an absolute proposition of law but must be read with section 115 of the Evidence Act.

The expression "persons dealing with a firm" in section 264 of the Contract Act, indicates only such persons who have been in the habit of dealing with the firm previously. The section does not contemplate such persons who deal with a firm for the first time after the retirement of some of the partners.

Where a partner retires from the partnership and the remaining partners carry on the business of the firm under the old name and style, the fact that the business is so carried on does not make the partner who has retired liable for the transactions entered into subsequent to his retirement. L BICHHIA LAL v. MUNSHI RAM 932

Contract Act—concld.

Contribution, suit for. See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, ss. 69, 70 104

Conveyance, forms of, in Mofassil.

In India the forms of conveyance are not strictly observed, especially in the Mofassil. M VAITHINATHA AIYAR v. THEYAGARAJA AIYAR, 41 M. L J. 20 631

Conviction—Proof.

An accused person must be convicted upon evidence which is on the record and on nothing else.

A conviction cannot be based upon evidence which it is believed the witnesses might have given but have not in fact given. L MURAD v. EMPEROR, 23 CR L. J. 606 830 ——— Separate sentences—Solitary confinement—Period spent in lock-up.

Where a person is convicted of separate offences, separate sentences of solitary confinement are not illegal, but as a matter of practice a sentence of more than three months' solitary confinement should not be passed on a person convicted at one trial of more offences than one

A Magistrate in awarding a sentence has no jurisdiction to direct that any portion of the period during which the accused has been detained in custody as an under-trial prisoner should count as part of the sentence. L DANGAR KHAN v. EMPEROR 23 CR L. J. 593 817

Co-sharer—Suit for partition—Limitation—Possession of one co-sharer, when adverse to the others—Exclusion and ouster—Knowledge.

There can be no dispossession by one joint tenant in the absence of an assertion of a hostile title by him to the knowledge of the other joint tenants sought to be excluded from the joint tenancy: and if no notice is given to the co-sharer of the denial of his right, the occupant must make his possession so visibly hostile and notorious and so apparently exclusive and adverse as to justify the inference of knowledge on the part of the co-owner sought to be ousted and of laches if he fails to discover and assert his rights

The possession of one co-owner is the possession of all for the purpose of limitation, although the sole possession of one co-owner for a very long period may, having regard to other circumstances, show exclusion or ouster. The principle does not depend upon whether the parties are members of a joint family but rests upon the ground that they are co-owners, and is applicable to all cases of co-owners.

In order to prove dispossession of one co-sharer by another it must be shown that there was exclusion or ouster to the knowledge of the former. C JOGENDRA NATH MUKHERJEE v. RAJENDRA NATH BHATTACHARJEE, 26 C. W. N. 850; (1922) A I. R. (C.) 54 200

Co-sharer landlords—Suit for possession against trespasser—One co-sharer, whether may sue to recover entire holding.

One of several joint owners of a holding cannot bring a suit for possession of the entire holding

Co-sharer landlords—concld.

where the person in occupation of the land is not a tenant but a mere trespasser He can only sue for possession of his own share. L DIPA v. LAL CHAND, 69 P.L R 1922; (1922) A. I R. (L.) 393 428

Costs, award of, in revision cases—Revision creature of Statute.

A High Court has no power to grant costs to the successful party on a revision petition brought by a private prosecutor against an acquittal

Where a Statute gives a Court power to grant costs in specific instances and the same Statute gives the Court its whole criminal jurisdiction, it excludes any other right of granting costs. The Code of Criminal Procedure excludes any such right except where it confers it specifically, viz., among others, under sections 148, 434, 485, 526 and 545.

Per Coutts-Trotter, J.—Revision is not an inherent power of any Court, the whole machinery of revision is a creature of Statute and has to be found within the four walls of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and a Court cannot posit an inherent power to supplement that purely statutory machinery by assuming the power of supplementing it by the awarding of costs. M SANKARALINGA MUDALIAR v NARAYANA MUDALIAR, 16 L W. 413; 43 M. L J. 361; (1922) M. W. N. 579; 31 M. L. T. 342; 23 CR L J 583; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 502 615

—— in proceedings under s 145. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, ss 1 5, 148 44

—— Question of principle—Second appeal.

When the question is one of principle a second appeal lies to the High Court on the question of costs only. C RAMESH CHANDRA SIRKAR v CHANDRA GUHA DEB BARUA, 35 C. L. J. 156 600

—— Taxation—Appeal preferred in case where none allowed—Appeal, dismissal of—Counsel's fees, taxation of—Refresher, if allowable—Rules and Orders of the Original Side, Calcutta High Court, Chap. XXXVI, r 57.

When an appeal is preferred in a case where no appeal lies, the fees of only one Counsel should, having regard to the provisions of Chapter XXVI, r 57, be allowed on taxation on the dismissal of the appeal. No refreshers, too, are allowable in such a case C SARAT CHANDRA v. BIRAJ MOHUN, 26 C. W. N. 826 451

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), ss. 5, 7 (iv) (c)—Taxing Officer, decision of, final—Value of suit—Plaintiff to fix value—Arbitrary or incorrect value—Suit under s 7 (iv), valuation of—"Confirmation of possession," meaning of.

The Taxing Officer of a High Court has jurisdiction to fix the amount of the Court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal to that Court, and if he decides that the value put by the appellant upon the relief is incorrect, he has the power to correct it, and the High Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with his decision, even though he has done something which the law does not allow him to do.

Section 7, clause (iv) (c) of the Court Fees Act requires that the plaintiff shall truly state the value of his relief, but it is not open to him to give an arbitrary and incorrect valuation.

In the absence of rules framed under the Suits Valuation Act for the value of an interest in land which is the subject-matter of a suit under section 7, clause (iv) of the Court Fees Act, the value of the suit is the value of the subject-matter of the relief, that is to say, the money value of the loss which the plaintiff apprehends.

Court Fees Act—contd.

The words "confirmation of possession" mean and include a prayer for recovery of possession if the Court thinks the plaintiff is out of possession, and is, therefore, consequential relief within the meaning of section 7 (iv) (c) of the Court Fees Act. Pat RAM SEKHAR PRASAD SINGH v. SHEONANDAN DUBEY, (1922) PAT. 337 316

—— s. 7 cls. (iv) (c) and (v)—Alienation by widow—Gift—Reversioner's suit for possession after widow's death—Declaratory decree—Consequential relief—Unnecessary prayer for relief—Duty of Court—Interpretation of Statutes—Fiscal Act—Relief asked for necessary or unnecessary—Court-fee.

Per Special Bench, (Coutts, J. dissenting):—Where a plaintiff claims relief, to which he is not entitled until some decree or alienation of property which stands in his way has been avoided, or until his legal character or title, which has been called in question, has been declared by a decree of the Court, his suit is one for a declaratory decree with consequential relief and comes under clause (iv) (c) of section 7 of the Court Fees Act, even though the declaration, which it is necessary for him to obtain before the further relief can be granted, has not been in terms asked for in the plaint. But where such a declaration is not necessary to enable the plaintiff to obtain possession of property or other relief for which the suit is really brought, the suit does not fall under clause (iv) (c) merely because a declaratory decree is sought. The prayer for such a decree should be treated by the Court as a mere surplusage.

In a suit by a reversioner on the death of a widow to recover possession of immoveable property of her husband from her donee, it is unnecessary for the plaintiff to seek a declaration that the gift is not binding on him And even if such an unnecessary declaration is asked for the suit comes under clause (v) and not under clause (iv) (c), section 7, Court Fees Act.

The Court is, in all cases, bound to adjudicate upon the matters in issue between the parties and it is unnecessary for the parties to pray that this should be done

Per Coutts, J—The Court Fees Act is a purely fiscal Act, and in deciding what Court-fee is payable on a plaint the question whether any relief asked for is necessary or not does not arise Pat RAMASUMRAN PRASAD v GOBIND DAS (1931) PAT 29; 4 U. P. L R. (PAT) 75; 3 P. L T 704 700

—— s. 7 cls. (iv) (c), (v) (a)—Suit for cancellation of sale-deed and possession—Suit essentially for recovery of possession—Property in suit assessed to revenue—Valuation for purposes of Court-fee—Decree for possession—Appeal—Court-fee.

The share of the plaintiff in a joint property was sold by his co-sharer without his concurrence The suit, which he brought, however, instead of being framed as one for recovery of possession pure and simple, asked for the cancellation of the sale-deed as well. The property being Zemindari property, the plaintiff valued the suit for purposes of jurisdiction at Rs. 10,000 but paid Court-fee on ten times the Government revenue under section 7 (v) (a) of the Court Fees Act which worked out only at Rs. 75. The lower Court gave a decree for possession merely and the defendant appealed, also paying Rs 75 as Court-fee. On a stamp reference that the suit as well the appeal should have been assessed under section 7 (iv) (c) of the Court Fees Act on the stated value of the property:

Court Fees Act—contd.

Held, (1) that the essential relief sought being recovery of possession, the suit could have been framed for recovery of possession pure and simple:

(2) that it was against the intention of the legislature that in a suit or appeal where the question in issue is the possession of land assessed to revenue, the valuation of the property for purposes of the Court-fee assessment should be otherwise than under section 7 (v) of the Court Fees Act;

(3) that, however, the plaint as worded fell within the purview of section 7 (iv) (c) and the plaintiff must pay Court-fee accordingly unless he was permitted to amend either (a) the plaint itself or (b) the statement of "the amount at which the relief sought is valued" in the said plaintiff at the hearing of the appeal:

(4) that the position of the appellant was different who was entitled to appeal against the decree as it stood and to value his appeal for purposes of Court-fee under section 7 (v) (a) of the Court Fees Act. A RUP NARAIN v. ISHWA NATH SINGH, 20 A. L. J. 857; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 192; 44 A. 628; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 858 265

——— s. 7 (v), Schs. I and II—Decree directing payment of certain amount as condition precedent to getting possession—Appeal against the conditional order—Court-fee payable.

Where, in a suit for possession, the Court decrees possession on condition of the plaintiff paying a specified amount to the defendant, and the plaintiff appeals, the memorandum of appeal is chargeable with Court-fees calculated ad valorem on the amount from which he seeks to escape liability.

The value of an appeal is not in all cases the value of the suit as originally filed, but the value of the relief granted by the decree which a party wishes to get rid of. M PORKODI ACHI, In re, 14 L. W. 624 41 M. L. J. 57; (1921) M. W. N. 854; 30 M. L. T. 88; 45 M. 246; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 211 444

——— s. 7 (v) (c)—"Garden," what is—Garden assessed to revenue with house, suit in respect of—Court-fee

Where a sale-deed describes the thing sold as a garden together with a house and out-houses and trees of all kinds, the property sold is a garden within the meaning of section 7 (v) (c) of the Court Fees Act and even though the same be assessed to land revenue a suit, in respect of it, must, for the purposes of the Court Fees Act, be assessed at its market value and not on ten times the amount of the revenue. L BEHARI LAL v. NAND LAL, 2 L. L. J. 362 345

——— s. 17, applicability of. See VALUATION OF SUIT 226

Court Fees Act—concld.

——— Sch. II, Art. 6—Security bond by claimant in claim case—Stamp duty payable.

A security-bond given by a claimant in a claim case agreeing to be liable for a certain sum of money in case he failed to produce the property attached, should bear a Court-fee stamp of eight annas under Art. 6, Sch II, of the Court Fees Act C SARBO MUSSALMANI v. SAFAR MANDAL 730

Court of Wards Act (IV of 1912), s. 45—Ward of Court, death of—Property retained under superintendence by Court of Wards—Successor of ward, whether disqualified from incurring liability.

Where a Court of Wards takes under its superintendence the property of a disqualified proprietor, and on the death of that person retains superintendence over the property under section 45 of the Court of Wards Act, the successor to the property of the deceased does not thereby become a Ward of Courts, and is not disqualified from incurring any liability which might affect the property after the debts and liabilities of the deceased have been discharged A DALEEP SINGH v. KHURSHED HUSSAIN, 20 A. L. J. 75; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 459; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 216 747

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 4 (h) 199—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 498—Enticing married woman, charge of—Complaint to Police, if sufficient.

A "complaint" within the meaning of s 4 (h) of the Criminal Procedure Code can only be made to a Magistrate Therefore a complaint to the Police of an offence under section 498, Indian Penal Code, is not sufficient for the purposes of section 199 of the Criminal Procedure Code. M ARUMUGA MUDALIAR, v. EMPEROR, 16 L. W. 494; 31 M. L. T. 251; 43 M. L. J. 564; (1922) M. W. N. 801; 23 CR. L. J. 592 624

——— ss. 54, 59, 60, 177, 491—Martial Law Ordinance (II of 1921), cls 6, 16—Offence committed in Martial Law area—Arrest of offender outside area, legality of—Summary Magistrate, remand by, of offender arrested outside Martial Law area, legality of—Habeas corpus, writ of—Jurisdiction of High Court.

It is not illegal for a Summary Magistrate appointed under Martial Law Ordinance II of 1921 to remand a person arrested by the Police outside the Martial Law area but charged with the commission of coguizable offences within the said area Nor is the arrest by the Police outside the area illegal, as the Police only purport to exercise powers vested in them under the Criminal Procedure Code.

The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure are not abrogated or suspended by the introduction of Martial Law The Courts constituted under the Ordinance will follow, as far as possible, the procedure laid down in the Code

Per Spencer, J.—The ordinary rule as to jurisdiction is that it is the area within which the offence is committed and not the place where the offender, may be found that determines the Court which has jurisdiction to try the offence.

Quære.—Whether the jurisdiction of the High Court to issue writs of habeas corpus is not excluded by clause 16 of Martial Law Ordinance II of 1921,

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Per Kumarasawami Sastri, J.—Clause 16 of the Martial Law Ordinance does not refer to the general jurisdiction of the High Court to issue writs of habeas corpus. The section does not apply where the acts of the Martial Law Magistrates are wholly without jurisdiction.

A Magistrate appointed under clause 6 of the Ordinance cannot try offences committed outside the Martial Law area or hold Court outside. But where he has powers as a Magistrate under the Criminal Procedure Code, there is nothing in the Ordinance to prevent the exercise of functions assigned to such Magistrate outside the area when the proceedings have not reached the stage of a trial but are only in the course of investigation preliminary to the offender being charged before a Magistrate.

When a Magistrate, who is vested with more than one power, under one of which only he has power to order a remand, purports to act in the exercise of another power which gives him no authority to do so, the case is one of irregularity which can be curred by the amendment of the order where there is no prejudice to the accused. M KOCHUNNI ELAYA NAIR, In re, 41 M. L J. 411; 14 L. W. 465; (1921) M. W. N. 708; 45 M. 14; 23 CR. L. J. 490; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 215 26

——— s. 103. See PUBLIC GAMBLING ACT, 1867, ss. 3, 4, 5 845

——— ss. 107, 145—Dispute about land—Complainant out of possession—Proceedings justified under s 145—Opposite party, whether may be bound over under s. 107.

A dispute about land which would justify proceedings under section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not bar proceedings under section 107 of that Code. But if the complainant is out of possession of the land in dispute, and there is no danger of a breach of the peace unless he resumes possession, he should be referred to his remedies under section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure or in the Civil Courts, and the facts that his attempting to resume possession may cause a breach of the peace and that his dispossession was illegal are not sufficient grounds for binding over the opposite party to keep the peace. N DHUMA v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 567 407

——— ss. 107, 514—Proceedings under s. 514 initiated within period of bond—Expiry of period under bond no bar to prosecution.

Where proceedings under section 514 of the Criminal Procedure Code are initiated within the period prescribed in a bond furnished under section 107 of the Code, the expiry of the period before the completion of the case is no legal bar to its prosecution under section 514 of the Code. A UMA DUTT MISIR v. EMPEROR, 20 A. L. J. 693; 44 A. 657; 23 CR. L. J. 623; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 503 847

——— s. 110—Sureties—General repute, hearsay evidence of, inadmissible.

A Court is not justified in refusing as "unfit" persons who are offered as sureties under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code, on mere hearsay evidence of general repute, especially where the sureties offered are men of means and have sufficient influence to exercise control over the persons required to furnish security. O SHEOPAL v. EMPEROR, 9 O. L. J. 353; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 92; 23 CR. L. J. 639; (192) A. I. R (L. C) 227 959

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— ss. 133, 137, 537—Conditional order under s 133—Enquiry referred to another Magistrate—Final order passed by First Magistrate—Illegality—Consent of parties, effect of.

It is open to a Magistrate making an order under section 133, Criminal Procedure Code, to direct the party to appear before himself or before some other Magistrate of the First or Second Class at a certain time and place to be fixed by the Court. If, however, he orders the party to appear before himself, he cannot refer the matter for enquiry to some other Magistrate and then pass the final order on the report submitted by that Magistrate. It is incumbent upon him, under section 137 of the Code, to himself take evidence as in a summons case.

The failure to act according to the manner abovementioned vitiates the final order and even the consent of the parties cannot cure the illegality.

Per Shah, J.—The record of evidence by one Magistrate and decision thereon by another is opposed to the scheme and provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code bearing on the point. B In re KARIYAPPA NINGAPPA, 24 BOM. L. R. 807; 23 CR. L. J. 587; (1922) A. I. R. (B) 384 619

——— s. 144, scope of—Order under section, when may be rescinded—High Court, power of, to interfere—"Made under this section", meaning of—"Alter or rescind," meaning of—Possession, dispute as to, remedy, proper—Proceeding under s. 144—Magistrate, power of, to convert, into inquiry under s. 145—High Court, when to be resorted to.

Clause (1) of section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code is not confined to cases where there has been a change of circumstances since the original order was made, and, although a Magistrate ought not to interfere with an order once made under the section unless very good reasons are disclosed for doing so, he may rescind such an order, if he is satisfied that it ought never to have been made.

Per Mullick, J.—The expression "made under this section" in clause (1) of section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code, means, "legally made or purporting to be made" under this section.

Section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code is of general aplication and contains nothing which ousts the Magistrate's jurisdiction in cases of bona fide dispute as to possession of land. But where section 107 or section 145 will meet the requirements of the case, section 144 is not an appropriate remedy, and ought not to be used as a substitute for those sections.

The words "alter or rescind" in clause (1) of section 144, Criminal Procedure Code, clearly empower a District Magistrate to modify or cancel an order under that section upon any ground whatsoever.

Per Jwala Prasad, J.—When one party is clearly in the wrong and threatens to usurp the rights of another who is in actual possession of the land in dispute, the proper remedy is an order under section 144 or section 107 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Where in a proceeding under section 144, Criminal Procedure Code, a Magistrate comes to the conclusion that there is a bona fide dispute as to the possession of the parties, then he is bound to start an enquiry under section 145 either in continuation of his order under section 144 or in supersession thereof, for section 145 is the only section under which an enquiry in the case of a danger of a breach of the peace concerning a dispute as to land can be made.

The words "rescind or alter" in clause (4) of section 144 are wide enough to vest the Magistrates mentioned in that clause with unlimited power to deal with an order passed under clause 1 of the section on the question of jurisdiction as well as upon the merits.

Ordinarily, a party should exhaust all remedies in the Courts below before he comes to the High Court. This is a very desirable practice, but there is, however, no absolute bar in law to the party coming direct to the High Court under section 107 of the Government of India Act. Pat SHEBALAK SINGH v. KAMARUDDIN MANDAL, 3 P. L. T. 573; (1922) PAT. 241; 4 U. P. L. R. (PAT.) 57; 23 CR. L. J. 549; (1922, A. I. R. (PAT.) 435 149

——— ss. 144, 145—Proceedings under s. 144—District Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to direct substitution of proceedings under s 145—Procedure.

A District Magistrate setting aside an order by a Subordinate Magistrate under section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code, has no jurisdiction to direct him to substitute therefor a proceeding under section 145 of the Code As the Superior Court, the District Magistrate can only recommend to the Magistrate concerned to draw up a proceeding under section 145, if he is satisfied that the dispute is likely to cause a breach of the peace, and it is open to the Magistrate to look into the circumstances and to find out whether, in the circumstances of the case, a proceeding under section 145 of the Code should or should not be instituted Pat TILOKI RAI v. EMPEROR, 2 P. L. T. 392; 23 CR. L. J. 498 4

——— s. 145, dispute relating to claim to weigh grain and realise weighment dues, whether covered by

A claim to weigh grain in a market and realise the weighment dues is not covered by section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code. A MAQBUL AHMAD v. EMPEROR, 20 A. L. J. 663; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 430; 23 CR. L. J. 612 836

——— s. 145, proceedings under—Attachment of property by Deputy Magistrate—District Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to interfere—Procedure.

An order passed by a Deputy Magistrate in a proceeding under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code cannot be upset by the District Magistrate; the remedy is to move the High Court in revision, or to go to the Civil Court for a decision of the claims of the parties. Pat RAMKUMAR LAL v. THAKUR OJHA, 4 U. P. L. R. (PAT.) 57; (1922) PAT. 224; 3 P. L. T. 648 23 CR. L. J. 562; (1922) A. I. R. (PAT.) 554 402

——— ss. 145, 148 - Costs in proceedings under s. 145—Jurisdiction.

In awarding costs in proceedings under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, a Magistrate is restricted to the amount awarded as Pleader's fees (if any) and costs for witnesses; any order about costs passed arbitrarily is without jurisdiction and must be set aside. Pat HIRA MAHTON v. RAJKUMAR MARTAN, 3 P. L. T. 484; 23 CR. L. J. 558 44

——— s. 110—Security for good behaviour—Powers when to be used.

The powers conferred by section 110, Criminal Procedure Code, ought to be exercised very sparingly and in those cases only where the evidence is very clear and precise. Evidence of general repute, or that the person proceeded against has a bad character, without any specific instances, is not sufficient to justify an order against him under section 110 nor would the fact that on three occasions - the last one being sixteen years ago—he has been required to furnish security. L JAGAT SINGH v. EMPEROR, 2 L. L. J. 237; 23 CR. L. J. 507 43

——— ss. 164, 364—Incomplete chalan—Statement of accused, record of, by Magistrate—Section applicable—Confession—Informal procedure, effect of—Dead body, pointing out of.

If an incomplete chalan is sent up and the evidence available is recorded by a Magistrate, the statement made by the accused is not a statement made under section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure but a statement recorded under section 364 of the Code

Where proceedings as to the recording of a confession are not in conflict with any section of the Criminal Procedure Code, the confession of the accused person should not be rejected simply on the ground of informality of procedure

The mere pointing out of the dead body by the accused would not by itself be sufficient evidence for sustaining a conviction for murder, but it would be otherwise where the accused fails to explain how he came by his knowledge of the place where the body lay L BHAI KHAN v. EMPEROR, 4 L. L. J. 229; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 189; 23 CR. L. J. 617 841

——— s. 179. See INCOME TAX ACT, 1918, s 40 843

——— s. 195—Sanction to prosecute—Application by person not party to suit.

No Court should entertain an application for sanction to prosecute made under section 195 of the Code of Criminal Procedure by a person, not a public servant, who was not a party to the suit out of which the proceedings have arisen. L PRABH DIAL v. GURDIT SINGH, 4 L. L. J. 89; 22 CR. L. J. 510; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 94 46

——— ss. 195, 407 (2)—Sanction to prosecute, refusal of Magistrate specially empowered to hear appeals, if can grant sanction.

A Magistrate of the First Class upon whom special powers of appeal have been conferred by the provisions of section 407 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, is not a Court to which an appeal "ordinarily" lies under section 195 (7) of the Code from the orders of a Magistrate exercising Second Class powers.

Accordingly, where sanction to prosecute under section 195 of the Code is refused by a Magistrate of the Second Class it is not open to a Magistrate specially empowered under section 407 (2) of the Code to hear appeals to grant the sanction on appeal. L JIWANI v. EMPEROR, 2 L. L. J. 660; 23 CR. L. J. 572 412

——— ss. 195, 476—Grounds of inquiry—Duty of Court.

If a Court believes that a false charge has been made in proceedings before it and there is a fair possibility that enquiry will lead to the discovery of evidence sufficient to make a conviction highly probable these are grounds for an enquiry of which section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code speaks, and the Court fails in its duty if it does not hold an enquiry of its own motion under that section and leaves it to be taken by a party under section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code. N TULSIRAM v. TILOKCHAND, 24 CR L. J. 605 829

Criminal Procedure Code-contd.

——— ss. 195, 476—Jurisdiction of Court to investigate offence committed before it, after transfer of case—Revision—High Court, duty of.

If a Court is of opinion that there is ground for enquiry into any offence referred to in section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code committed before it in the course of a judicial proceeding, it can proceed under section 476 of the Code even though the case has passed out of its hands and been decided by another Court which has arrived at a different conclusion on the merits.

In such a case, however, when the matter is brought to the notice of the High Court in revision it is its duty to satisfy itself that there has been no unreasonable delay, that the order passed under section 476 is not vexatious and that the charges are not of a flimsy character. A SUNDAR LAL v. EMPEROR, 20 A. L. J. 666; (1922 A. I. R. (A.) 233; 41 A. 642; 23 CR. L. J. 603 827

——— s. 195 (1) (a)—Public servant, order of, disobeyed—Public servant also Court—Sanction to prosecute—Subordination for purposes of sanction

Under clause (a), sub section (1), of section 195, if a public servant making the order is a Court, in respect of that order, the Court to which that Court would be subordinate would be the Court to which appeals would ordinarily lie. B BADIUDDIN SARFUDDIN, In re, 24 BOM. L. R. 810; 23 CR. L. J. 576 416

——— ss. 195 (6), 439—"Any sanction given or refused," meaning of—Order of Sessions Judge passed on application against order of Subordinate Court—High Court's power of interference—Inveterate enmity between parties—Sanction, whether should be given.

The words "any sanction given or refused" under section 195 (6) of the Criminal Procedure Code are applicable only to a sanction given or refused upon an original application, and sub-section (6) does not provide for interference by a third Court. Consequently, the High Court has no power to interfere under that section with an order granting or refusing sanction passed by a Sessions Judge on an application against the order of a Subordinate Court.

A High Court has, however, power to interfere with such an order of the Sessions Judge in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under section 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Where there is inveterate enmity between parties, it is neither desirable nor in the interests of justice that sanction to prosecute should be granted. O NAZIR HASAN v. MOHAMMAD YAMIN, 9 O. L. J. 282; 23 CR. L. J. 574; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 225 414

——— s. 195 (7)—Sanction to prosecute—Judge of High Court exercising Original Civil Jurisdiction, refusing to grant sanction—Appeal, forum of.

A Judge of a High Court sitting in the exercise of Original Civil Jurisdiction is a Court subject to the Appellate Jurisdiction of that High Court, so where a Judge in the exercise of such jurisdiction grants, or refuses to grant, sanction to prosecute, an appeal lies by virtue of clause 7) of section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to the same High Court, on the Appellate Side

Per Shah, C. J. Quære:—Whether an order refusing to grant sanction to prosecute under section 195, Criminal Procedure Code, is a judgment within the meaning of clause 15 of the Bombay High Court Letters Patent B ABDUL LATIF v TAR MAHOMED, 24 BOM. L. R. 817; 23 CR. L. J. 497 33

——— s. 193—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 498—Enticing away married woman—Husband minor—Complaint by father-in-law.

Except where the husband of a woman is absent and she is left in the care of her father-in-law, the latter cannot lodge a complaint under section 498 of the Penal Code in respect of enticing the woman away, even though the husband may be a minor.

There is nothing to prevent a minor husband from lodging a complaint under section 498 of the Penal Code. L WALIA v. EMPEROR, (1922 A. I. R. (L.) 168; 23 CR. L. J. 613 837

——— s. 209—Case triable by Sessions Court—Inquiry—Committing Magistrate, power of, to discharge.

Where in the course of an inquiry held by a Magistrate into a case triable by the Court of Session he finds that the evidence tendered by the prosecution is totally unworthy of credit, it is his duty, under section 209 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to discharge the accused. L AHMAD v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 601; 4 U. P. L. R. (L.) 108 825

——— s. 250 (Prov.)—Compensation to accused—Duty of Magistrate to hear complainant—Absence of complainant on days of hearing—Effect.

A Magistrate is bound to hear the complainant before making any order against him under proviso to section 250 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

No inference can be drawn against the complainant from the mere fact that he has been absenting himself on the appointed days of hearing. B MAHADEV RAMKRISHNA KARKARE, In re, 24 BOM. L. R. 605; 23 CR. L. J. 574; (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 409 414

——— s. 288—Statement made before Committing Magistrate—Transfer to Sessions record.

The Sessions Court has absolute discretion to allow the statement of a witness made before the Committing Magistrate to be transferred to its own record under section 288 of the Criminal Procedure Code, but it should not allow the statement to be read out to the witness before the defence has had an opportunity of cross-examining him. L NARAIN DAS v. EMPEROR, 4 L. L. J. 91; 3 L. 144; 9 P. W. R. 1922 CR.; 23 CR. L. J. 513; (1922 A. I. R. (L.) 1 113

——— ss. 366, 367, 435, 439, 537—Judgment—Order directing release of accused—Full judgment, delivery of, later—Irregularity

Where a Sessions Judge agreeing with the assessors simply makes an endorsement that the accused is acquitted and directs that he be set at liberty and writes the full text of his judgment assigning reasons for his order a few days later, he commits an irregularity under section 537 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, but such irregularity does not vitiate

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

the proceedings. M SANKARALINGA KUDALIAR v. NARAYANA MUDALIAR, 16 L. W. 413; 43 M. L. J. 33; (1922 M. W. N. 579; 31 M. L. T. 342; 23 CR. L. J. 583; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 703 615

——— s. 370 (1)—Judgment not stating reasons for finding.

A Criminal Court should, in its judgment, state reasons for its finding as required by section 370 (1), Criminal Procedure Code M VARADARAJULU PILLA, In re, 16 L. W. 826; 31 M. L. T. 430, 23 CR. L. J. 702 826

——— s. 421—Appeal through Jail Authorities summarily rejected—Appeal subsequently through Counsel, whether entertainable

An order dismissing an appeal under section 421 of the Criminal Procedure Code is a final order, therefore, where a petition of appeal by a prisoner in Jail is received through the Superintendent of the Jail and is summarily rejected, he is not entitled to be heard upon a petition of appeal presented subsequently on his behalf by Counsel. A KHIALI v. EMPEROR, 20 A. L. J. 759; 23 CR. L. J. 505; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 163; (1922) A. I. R. A. 430 41

——— s. 435—District Magistrate as Court of Appeal, whether inferior to Sessions Judge

A District Magistrate sitting as a Court of Appeal is an inferior Criminal Court to the Sessions Court for the purposes of section 435 of the Criminal Procedure Code L KALLU v. EMPEROR, 3 L. 23; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 85; 23 CR. L. J. 507 609

——— s. 437—Order of discharge—Further inquiry, direction of, when justified—Improper direction—Revision

The essential matter for consideration in setting aside an order of discharge and directing a further inquiry under section 437, Criminal Procedure Code, is the prospect of any public advantage from the case being re opened Where there is no such prospect, by reason of the comparatively insignificant character of the offence, of the considerable time which has elapsed since its commission and of the evidence being of no special strength, an order directing further inquiry would be without jurisdiction and liable to be set aside by the High Court in revision. M KRISHNA PILLAI, In re, 16 L. W. 555; 43 M. L. J. 655; 31 M. L. T. 419; 25 CR. L. J. 600 824

——— s. 476—Sanction to prosecute—Perjury—Forgery—Duty of Court—Sanction to private persons.

It is the duty of every Court to take action of its own motion in every apparent case of forgery or perjury which is committed before it, or is brought to its notice, and to institute proceedings in all such cases if there is a reasonable probability of the prosecution resulting in a conviction

If a Court holds that a case is a proper one for prosecution but that a sanction to prosecute should not be granted to a private person, it is its duty to take action under section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

If a sanction has been granted to a private person it is too late to substitute official agency for the prosecution by means of a complaint under section 476 of the Act. N GANGA PRASAD v. SHYAMLAL, 23 CR. L. J. 600 45

——— s. 522—Criminal force essential to confer jurisdiction—Appellate Court, finding of, that force not used—Possession, order for, reversal of.

The use of criminal force is an essential ingredient to give Criminal Courts jurisdiction to act under section 522 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Where, therefore, an Appellate Court reverses a conviction on the ground that no force was used, it ought also to reverse the order awarding possession, and to restore the parties to their original positions M RAJATHAMMAL v. RAJAMANIKKAM PILAY, 15 L. W. 533; (1922) M. W. N. 356 31 M. L. T. 20; 23 CR. L. J. 502; (1922) A. I. R. M. 188 33

——— s. 537. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O XVIII, RR 5, 6 36

Criminal proceedings, stay of—Civil suit—Subject-matter of both identical—Cheating—Charge, contents of.

Where the subject-matter in both a criminal proceeding and a civil suit is identical, and the main questions for decision are the same, the criminal proceedings should be stayed, pending the decision of the civil suit, if the same was brought without undue delay.

Obiter.—In framing a charge for cheating, the manner in which the alleged cheating was committed should be set out. L JANKI DAS v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 595; 38 P. L. R. 1922; 4 L. L. J. 409; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 124 819

Criminal revision. See PRACTICE 32

Cross-objections—Petition stating reasons for supporting decree—Court-fees, payment of.

If, for the purpose of supporting the decree of the Trial Court dismissing the plaintiff's claim, the defendant files a petition in the Appellate Court stating the reasons on which he supported the decree, that would not amount to cross-objections for which an ad valorem Court-fee would be payable. A RAM PRASAD KALWAR v. AJANASIA, 44 A. 577; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 250 861

Custom—Exclusion of daughters, whether amounts to their exclusion from mother's or maternal grandmother's property—Strict proof of custom necessary.

The existence of a custom of the exclusion of daughters and their issue from inheriting their father's or maternal grandfather's property, as the case may be, does not lead to a necessary inference of the exclusion of the same from their mother's or maternal grandmother's property, without strict proof of such a custom. O BIJAI BAHADUR SINGH v. MATHURA SINGH, 9 O. L. J. 327; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 66; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 278 555 ——— Succession—Exclusion of half blood—Janjuhas of Shadia, Tahsil and District Mianwali.

Among Janjuhas of Shadia, Tahsil and District Mianwali, the whole blood excludes the half blood in cases of collateral succession L KHUDA YAR v. AMIR, (1922) A. I. R. L. 169 681 ——— Succession—Jats of Ludhiana District—Daughter-in-law, whether succeeds along with son.

Among Jats of the Ludhiana District the widow of a predeceased son succeeds to the property of her father-in-law along with the latter's surviving sons. L JAGIR SINGH v. SANTI, 3 L. 181 711 ——— Succession—Non-proprietors.

By ordinary village custom a near collateral is entitled to retain possession of the house of a deceased Kamin in the village abadi in preference to a proprietor.

Custom—concld.

A collateral in the third degree is 'a near collateral' within the meaning of this rule.

Where the custom of a particular village is uncertain, the rule of general custom should be applied. L HARJAS v. HARKE, 46 P. L. R. 1922; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 306 885

——— Succession—Non-proprietor—Grandson of first cousin.

As a general rule, a grandson of a first cousin has no right to succeed to the rights of a non-proprietor in a village. L SHER DIL v. GHULAB 767 ——— Succession—Re-marriage of widow—Issue, whether legitimate—Manjh Rajputs of Jagraon Tahsil, Ludhiana District.

Although among certain sections of Manjh Rajputs of the Jagraon Tahsil, in the Ludhiana District, the re-marriage of widows is not recognised, yet where such a re-marriage takes place the issue of the marriage are legitimate and have an equal right of succession to the property of their father, along with the issue of any other marriage. L MAULA BAKHSH KHAN v FATEH JANG, (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 358 857 ——— Succession—Right of predeceased appointed hair's son.

In the absence of a special custom to the contrary, the son of an appointed heir who predeceased the appointer is not entitled to succeed to the property of the latter. L MELA SINGH v. GURDAS, 3 L. 262 853

——— Succession—Self-acquired property—Sonless proprietor—Daughter, whether excluded by collaterals—Gill Jats of Amritsar District—Property originally ancestral, purchase of, by collateral

Where property, originally ancestral, is acquired by a collateral, other than by descent or through relationship to a common ancestor, it loses its ancestral character in the hands of the collateral.

Among Gill Jats of the Amritsar District daughters are not excluded by collaterals from succeeding to the self-acquired property of a sonless proprietor.

Ordinarily, daughters exclude collaterals in succession to self-acquired property, the onus of proving a custom opposed to the general custom is, therefore, on the collaterals. L GURDIT SINGH v. ISHAR KAUR, 3 L. 257; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 392 551 ——— Widow, act of, prejudicing estate—Creation of occupancy rights—Reversioner, position of.

An act of a widow prejudicing the estate of her deceased husband is not binding on the reversioners except for the life of the widow, and the reversioners are not bound to contest the widow's act during her lifetime.

The creation of occupancy rights by a widow, being a transfer of valuable rights, can be challenged by the reversioner. L NAND SINGH v. DHAN KAUR, 2 L. L. J. 573 299

——— Widow—Partition.

A widow governed by agricultural custom and having only a life-estate in the land left by her husband is entitled to claim partition in cases in which she cannot secure the full enjoyment of her rights other wise. L SHADI v. JEONI, 3 L. 236; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 362 553

Cutchi Memons—Succession—Hindu Law, applicability of—Ancestral property, son, whether takes vested interest in.

The application of the rules of Hindu Law by custom to Cutchi Memons is limited to rules of inheritance and succession, and does not extend to the rules relating to the joint property as applicable to Hindus.

A son of a Cutchi Memon has no vested interest by birth in the ancestral property of his father, and dealings with the property belonging to Cutchi Memons are conducted on this basis. B HAJI OOSMAN HAJI ISMAIL v. HAROON SALLEH MAHOMED, 24 BOM. L. R. 978 862

Decree, fictitious, if requires to be set aside.

A decree which is fictitious does not require to be set aside. C SASHI KUMAR SORKHEL v. CHANDRA KUMAR SAMADDAR, 35 C. L. J. 318 322

——— mortgage, for foreclosure of village—Khudkasht fields specified—Decree-holder, whether can claim field not specified

If a mortgage-decree foreclosing a village specifies particular khudkasht fields by their number and does not refer in a general way to lands held in khudkasht right it is not open to the decree-holder to claim a particular field not specified in the decree. N H ZARILAL v. HAZARIMAL 476

Deed, alteration of—Explanatory alteration immaterial—Deed not vitiated.

A deed is vitiated and deprived of all its effect by the making in it of a material alteration without the knowledge of the party affected by it. But the alteration must be material, the mere addition to a deed of words explaining it, would not vitiate it. N GANGA PRASAD v. MOTIRAM, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 191 268

Definitions:—

Against a Carrier for losing or injuring goods. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ARTS. 30, 31 981

Agent duly authorised. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 20 100

Alter or rescind. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, s. 141, SCOPE OF 149

Any sanction given or refused. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, SS. 195 (1), 439 414

Appeal. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ART. 182 (2) 728

Confirmation of possession. See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, ss. 5, 7 (iv) (c) 316

Co-sharer. See U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT, 1901, s 107 989

Creditor. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT 460

Engagements. See ABWAB 161

Execution of Law. See POLICE ACT, 1861, ss. 30, 30A, 32, SCOPE OF 945

Garden. See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, s. 7 (v) (c) 345

Holding. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT, 3 (3) 907

Include. See PENAL CODE, ss. 361 EXP. 366 620

Law. See POLICE ACT, 1861, ss. 30, 30A 30A, SCOPE OF 945

Made under this section. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, ss. 144, SCOPE OF 149

Definitions—concld.

Malik. See HINDU LAW 555
Marketable Title. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 25 562
May apply. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 50, O. XXI 667
Moveable. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH I, ARTS, 89, 115, 116, 132 562
Opium See OPIUM ACT, 1878, ss. 3, 9 612
Orasa. See BUDDHIST LAW—BURMESE 49
Ordinary Law. See OUDH ESTATES ACT, 1869, ss 22 (1), 23 1000
Person against whom. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O XXI, R 103 271
Physical possession. See PUNJAB PREEMPTION ACT, 1913, s. 20 811
Plaintiff. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ART 9 352
Premises. See CALCUTTA RENT ACT, 1920 907
Price. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882 ss 9, 54, 118 687
Provable debt. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT, 1920 340
Public place. See PUBLIC GAMBLING ACT, 1867, s. 13 613
Rajaswa. See CESS ACT, 1880, s. 41 937
Resistance. See POLICE ACT, ss. 30, 30A, 32, SCOPE OF 945
Right to sue. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O XXII, RR 3, 10 942
Sir. See WILL—INTERPRETATION 876
Sirat. See WILL—INTERPRETATION 876
Sirat Makbuza. See WILL—INTERPRETATION 876
So far as it relates to the suit. 232
Street. PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ACT, 1911, ss 3 (13), 172, 193 675
Successor. See MUHAMMADAN LAW—SUNNI ACT, 254
Sufficient Cause. See LIMITATION 1908, s 5 812
——— See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. IX, R 13 971
Tenant. See CALCUTTA RENT ACT, 1920, s 11 361
Wrongful gain. See PENAL CODE, 1860, ss. 21 (10), 24, 403, 405 157
Wrongful loss. See PENAL CODE, 1860, 21 (10) 24, 403, 405 157
Wrongful loss. See CATTLE TRESSPASS ACT, 1871 47

Dharmakartha, position of.

The position of a dharmakartha is not that of a shebait of a religious institution, or of a mahant of a mutt, which functionaries have a much higher right with larger power of disposal and administration and have a personal interest of a beneficial character.

A dharmakartha is literally and no more than the manager of a charity and his rights are never in a higher legal category than that of a mere trustee. P. C. SRINIVASA CHARIAR v. EVALAPPA MUDALIAR, 31 M. L. T. 1; 16 L. W. 247; 45 B. 565; 43 M. L. J. 536; 24 BOM. L. R. 1214; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 325; 36 C. L. J. 574 1

Divorce Act (IV of 1869)—Divorce, suit for—Husband or wife, uncorroborated evidence of, if sufficient—Adultery, charge of, against known person—Necessary co-respondent.

In an action for divorce under the Divorce Act, the evidence of the husband or wife alone ought never to be accepted without corroboration either by witnesses, or at least by strong surrounding circumstances.

Where charges of adultery are made against a known person, that person must be made a co-respondent unless the Judge otherwise directs. M PENDURTI JOSEPH v. PENDURTI RAMAMMA, 43 M. L. J. 441; (1922) M. W. N. 637; 16 L. W. 689; 31 M. L. T. 416 931

Document, admission of—Appellate Court, duty of.

When a document is admitted in evidence at the appellate stage and is relied upon by the Appellate Court in its judgment, it ought to record an order admitting the document in evidence and should also record its reasons for admitting it in the appellate stage. C AMBICA CHARAN SEN v. GIRISH CHANDRA SEN 719 ——— Construction—Sale by legal and beneficial owner—Suit for specific performance—Limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch I, Art. 113.

The suit villages originally belonged to the plaintiff's deceased father. They were sold in Court auction in 1879 and purchased by the defendant. The plaintiff alleged that this purchase was made on behalf of the plaintiff's father, that a part of the purchase-money was paid out of his funds and the balance obtained from one K to whom the suit villages were sold by the defendant subject to a condition of re-conveyance on payment of a stipulated sum. A suit to compel such re-conveyance was instituted and a decree directing the re-conveyance obtained in 1889. In 1885 during the pendency of the suit an agreement was entered into between the plaintiff's father and the first defendant which recited :—

"Under these circumstances, under the orders of M (plaintiff's father) the accounts were looked into in respect of items due to S, first defendant, relating to the said villages, and also relating to the transactions between S and M. On looking into the accounts the amount found due to S was Rs. 99,568-4-3. S consented to receive the same and sell the aforesaid villages to M." The agreement further stated that on the defendant's succeeding in his suit against K. he should sell the suit property to the plaintiff's father on payment of the sum found due to the defendant. There was also a stipulation in the contract for the payment of interest until payment of the sum above mentioned and for the plaintiff's father's giving a mortgage to the defendant to secure the payment of the sum. The plaintiff in 1909 instituted the present suit for possession of the villages on payment of such sum, if any, as may be found due :

Held, that whatever might have been the nature of the original purchase by the defendant, the contract of 1885 treated him as the beneficial and legal owner and the plaintiff's suit, being one for the specific performance of a contract, was barred by Art. 113 of the Indian Limitation Act. P. C. SUBBARAYA PILLAI v. VENKATA PERUMAL, 16 L. W. 169; 31 M. L. T. 140; 45 M. 645; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 345 172

Document—concld.

———, interpretation of—Will—Power to sell, whether includes power to mortgage.

Where by a Will power is given to sell property to pay off debts, that power includes the power to mortgage, unless there be some reason to be gathered from the will itself why it should be excluded. M PARTHASARATHI NAIDU v MUKUNDAMMAL, 43 M. L. J 551; 16 L W. 670; (1922) M. W. N. 729; 45 M. 867 856

———, proof of, waived—Effect of wavier.

Formal proof of a document when it is required to be proved in a certain way may be waived by any of the parties whose interests it may affect, but such waiver would not affect the legal character of the document Pat BAIJNATH SINGH v. BRIJRAJ KUER, (1922) A. I. R. (PAT.) 514 383

Easement—Rights to go on another's land to gather fruit—Right unknown to law.

The right to go on to a neighbour's land to collect the fruit of a tree which falls therefrom from such portion of a tree which belongs to the asserter of such right is not an easement within the meaning of the Easements Act. Such a right is unknown to the law. M SARANGAPANY IYENGAR v. SADAGOPA NAIDU, 16 L. W. 98; (1922) M. W. N. 421; 3 M. L. T 78; 43 M. L. J. 152 (1922) A. I. R. (M) 398 968

Easements Act (V of 1882), s. 60—License—Personal—Successor or transferee of grantor not bound—Revocation, notice of.

A license under the Easements Act is of a personal character, not merely as regards the grantee but also as regards the grantor. With the latter's death it comes to an end and his successor is entitled to treat the licensee as a trespasser even without a notice of revocation. N KARELAL v. BADRIPRASAD, 18 N. L. R. 76 (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 162 107

Ejectment of tenant—Tenancy right, extinction of.

Ejectment of a tenant merely extinguishes the tenancy right, it does not transfer it to the ejector. N GANPAT TELI v. DAJI 855

Endowments—Temple property—Origin traceable to trust—Conversion by trustee—Onus on trustee.

Where the discoverable origins of property show it to be trust property, the onus of establishing that it must have illegitimately come into the trustee's own right does not rest upon the beneficiaries The onus lies heavily on the trustee to show by the clearest and most unimpeachable evidence the legitimacy of his personal acquisition

In the absence of unique circumstances, a property discovered to be originally trust property, cannot be allowed to be converted into the private property of the trustee. P. C. SRINIVASA CHARIAR v. EVALAPPA MUDALIAR, 31 M. L. T. J; 16 L. W. 247; 45 B. 165; 43 M. L J. 536; 24 BOM. L. R. 12 4; (1922) A I R. (P C.) 325; 26 C. L. J. 524 1

Estates Partition Act (V B. C. of 1897), ss. 7, 99—Joint estate—Partition by private arrangement—Tenure, creation of—Partition, regular, under Act—Tenure, voidance of.

Section 99 of the Estates Partition Act has no application to a case where the tenure sought to be avoided was created by a co-sharer in respect of land allotted to him under a private partition and which was held by him in severalty at the time of the creation of the tenure.

The main test of the applicability of section 99 is holding the land in severalty under a private arrangement. This arrangement need not be so complete or so formally made as to exclude partition on the application of some of the proprietors under section 7 of the Act C PROSANNA KUMAR BEDANTA TIRTHA BHATTACHARJYA v. MADHU BADYA 500

Evidence, admissibility of—Copy of copy when admissible.

Where a copy of a person's statement is a copy of a copy, it is inadmissible in evidence, except when the statement has been put to the person making it and admitted as having been made by him. O PARBATI v. MUHAMMAD HADI, 9 O. L. J. 304 534

———, admissibility of—Document, invalidly registered.

A deed which is not legally registered is invalid and a nullity and as such is inadmissible in evidence. L HAR BHAGWAN v. HUKAM SINGH, 4 L. L. J 245; 3 L. 242; (1922) A. I. R. (L) 243 769

———, admissibility of—Recitals of boundaries in documents between third parties, if admissible—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 11, 13, 32 (3).

Recitals of boundaries in documents between third parties where they throw light on the question of the ownership of the property in suit are not admissible in evidence under section 11 or 13 of the Evidence Act. But they may be admissible under clause (3) of section 32 of the Act when they are the statements made by persons of the character described in the opening sentence of that section, that is to say, persons who are dead or who cannot be found or for other reasons there stated cannot be examined as witnesses. C ABDUL RAHIM v. JONABALI SIKDAR 329

———, admissibility of—Unstamped receipt—Secondary evidence—Payment, independent proof of.

An unstamped receipt cannot be proved at all either by primary or by secondary evidence. But in order to prove the payment, evidence other than the document is not excluded by the existence of the document. N RAMPRASAD v. NATHURAM 494 ——— Burden of proof, question of, when immaterial.

The question of onus of proof loses its importance when both parties to a litigation have adduced evidence in support of their respective cases and the Court, on an examination of such evidence, shifts the burden of proof from one party to the other. C SHIB CHANDRA SINGHA v GOUR CHANDRA PAL, 35 C. L. J. 473; (1922) A. I. R (C.) 160; 27 C. W. N. 184 86

——— Document relevant as evidence of transaction—Recitals, if and when relevant.

Where a document containing assertions by a person who is alive is admitted in evidence as evidence of a transaction, the recitals in the document do not become part of the evidence unless the person making the assertions is brought before the Court. C NEHAR BEWA v KADOR BAKAS MOHAMMED 282 ——— Entire evidence before Court—Question of onus academical.

Evidence—concld.

Where the entire evidence on both sides is once before a Court, the question as to onus becomes purely academical P. C. CHIDAMBARA SANNADHIGAL v VEERAMA REDDI, 31 M L. T. 54; 16 L. W. 102; 45 M. 588; (1922) M. W. N 749, 43 M. L. J. 619; (1922) A. I. R (P. C.) 292 538 ——— Evidence, improper, admitted—Exclusion by High Court—High Court, appraisement of remaining evidence by.

It is not possible for the High Court in second appeal to say whether, after the exclusion of evidence improperly admitted, there is sufficient evidence left to justify the decree of the lower Appellate Court. This is a matter which must be considered by that Court. C UJIR ALI SIRDAR v. SHADHAI BEHARA, 35 C. L. J. 182; (1922) A. I. R. (C) 185 1003

Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 11, 13, 32 (3). See EVIDENCE, ADMISSIBILITY OF 329

——— ss. 11, 13, 32 (2)—Documents containing recitals as to boundaries, admissibility of—Persons making them alive and testifying to them—Documents, admissibility of, whether affected.

Documents not inter partes containing recitals as to boundaries and throwing light on the question of the ownership of the property in suit, are not admissible under section 11 or section 13 of the Evidence Act, but are admissible under section 32 (2) of that Act. The mere fact that the persons concerned in the transactions are alive and actually testify to them, would not render such documents inadmissible. N TRIMBAK v. GANESH 314

——— ss. 13, 35, applicability of. See LANDLORD AND TENANT 676

——— ss. 18, 21, 32 (5)—Relevancy of statement about relationship—Means of special knowledge—Statement by deceased person as to his adoption while small child—Admission under s. 18, relevancy of.

The statement of a person made when he was thirty-six years of age that he was adopted when he was four years old is admissible in evidence after his death to prove the fact of his adoption under section 32 (5) of the Evidence Act, as he possessed the special means of knowledge about the relationship required by the section. The fact that the person making the adoption died while the person adopted was too young to remember him would not be material, as the latter would surely be able to declare positively that he had been adopted from that acquaintance with the history of his family which he would necessarily possess.

Section 18 of the Evidence Act does not by itself make relevant the admissions therein mentioned. N GULAB THAKUR v FADALI 566

——— s. 24—"Person in authority," if include the prosecutor—Confession suspected to be obtained by inducement—Prosecution to show that confession freely made

The words "person in authority" in section 24 of the Evidence Act include the prosecutor.

If, in the circumstances of a case, it appears to the Court that there is reason to suspect that a confession was obtained by inducement so as to bring it under the provisions of section 24 of the Evidence Act, the prosecution, to make the confession admissible in evidence against the accused, must show that it was freely made. C ASHTOSH DUTT v. EMPEROR, 26 C. W. N. 54; 23 CR. L. J. 573 413

Evidence Act—contd.

——— s. 27—Confession—Material corroboration.

The discovery of the dead body of a person, alleged to have been murdered, at a place indicated in a confession, would be material corroboration of the confession, but where it is difficult to say whether the discovery was made before the confession or afterwards the confession ought not to be accepted. O HINGA v EMPEROR, 9 O. L. J. 190; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 50; 23 CR L. J. 481; 1922) A. I. R. (N) 202 17

——— ss. 68, 69, 70, 71. See ATTESTED DOCUMENT 86

——— s. 91—Ejectment suit—Tenants pleading permanency—Settlement papers not produced—Oral evidence—Inference of lease being temporary—Tenant building while landlord stands by—Estoppel.

In an ejectment suit where the tenant pleads permanency of title but does not produce settlement papers in support of it, section 91 of the Evidence Act prevents him from giving any oral evidence at all as to the terms of the settlement of land with him and the only inference that can be drawn is that his lease is temporary and that he is a tenant-at-will.

In such a case if the landlord stands by while the tenant builds his house, there can be no question of estoppel because the tenant knows his rights perfectly well and any inaction on the part of the landlord cannot deceive him.

Obiter.—Where by the terms of a lease no power whatsoever is given to the tenant to erect anything in the nature of a permanent building and the landlord either by his omission to interfere or by his active intervention encourages the tenant in the mistaken idea that he has power to build such a house and that he has permanent interest in the land, the landlord cannot afterwards turn round and say that he had only a temporary interest.

In such case it must also be shown that the landlord was aware of what his rights were and had power to prevent the tenant from building. Pat BUDHAN TELI v. MADAN MOHAN LAL, 3 P. L. T. 485 653

——— s. 92—Pro-note—Separate oral agreement to pay additional interest, whether provable

Where in a suit on a promissory-note the plaintiff alleges an oral agreement to pay interest at a higher rate than mentioned in the pro-note, he is not entitled to prove the alleged oral agreement by parol evidence. O HABIB ALI KHAN v RAM NARAYAN, 9 O. L. J. 273; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 69; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 270 520

——— s. 92—Unconditional promise to pay—Oral agreement, calculated to make it conditional, admissibility of.

Where there is an absolute, unconditional promise to pay a certain amount as liquidated damages, oral evidence of a contemporaneous agreement which has the effect of making it conditional and defeasible, is inadmissible. ... SUBBAYYAR v. SUBBARAYALUA IYER, 1921 M. W. N 736; 14 M. L. J 541 75

——— ss. 105, 114 ill (b), 133, 154—Cross-examination of witness by party producing him—Accomplice—Corroboration.

Evidence Act—contd.

A Public Prosecutor is not bound to produce witnesses whom he considers to be false and the Court should not allow him to cross-examine prosecution witnesses immediately they are produced.

The burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing a case within any of the general exceptions of the Penal Code rests upon the accused and section 105 of the Evidence Act says the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances.

Section 133 of the Evidence Act lays down the rule of law regarding the testimony of accomplices, and section 114, illustration (b), is merely a guide to assist the Court, though in a vast majority of cases prudence requires that there shall be corroboration. No hard and fast rules can, however, be laid down to regulate the extent and nature of this corroboration, this being dependent entirely on the circumstances of each case.

The evidence of one approver cannot be said to corroborate that of another except where both have, at the earliest opportunity, and before there has been any chance of corroboration, deposed to the same acts as having been committed by a particular accused person.

The Court should insist on there being unanimity as to the incidents deposed to, or a sufficient number of them, by two approvers before their uncorroborated testimony is deemed sufficient to warrant a conviction thereon. L NARAIN DAS v. EMPEROR, 4 L. L. J. 91; 3 L. 144; 9 P. W. R. 1922 CR.; 23 CR. L. J. 513; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 1 113

——— s. 112—Presumption of paternity—Facts necessary to be proved.

A person relying on the presumption of paternity under section 112 of the Evidence Act must establish all the facts mentioned in the section before he can ask the Court to treat them as conclusive proof of his paternity. N MAROTI v. BHAGI 465

——— s. 114—Presumption—Court, duty of—Document produced by obligor.

When a document creating an obligation is produced by the obligor the strength of the presumption authorised by section 114 of the Evidence Act varies in different circumstances and the Court has to take into regard any facts or circumstances indicating that the document might have been stolen.

In a suit upon a bond if the latter is produced by the defendant with an endorsement of payment on it, the burden of establishing that the debt was still outstanding, or in other words, of showing that the bond came in the possession of the defendant by dishonest means and that the signatures to the endorsements were either forgeries or unauthorised, is on the plaintiff. O RAM NATH v. RAGGHA SAH, 25 O. C. 125; (1922) A. I. R. (N. 24) 892

——— s. 114, ill. (e)—Appeal—Objection taken in grounds of appeal not mentioned in judgment—Presumption.

In illustration (e) of section 114 of the Evidence Act it is laid down that the Court may presume that judicial and official acts have been regularly performed, a presumption which, like all other presumptions, may be rebutted but, unless rebutted, is conclusive Evidence Act—concld.

Where it is the duty of a Court to do a particular thing it must be assumed that the Judge of that Court did his duty.

It is the duty of a District Judge to record a finding on all points argued before him, and where a judgment makes no mention of an objection taken in the grounds of appeal, the presumption, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, is that the objection was abandoned. L ABDUL KARIM v. THAKAR RAM-JAGGU RAM 740

——— s. 120—Testimony of party to suit, value of—Omission to call important witness—Presumption.

There is no rule that if a party, plaintiff or defendant, gives his testimony, he must be disbelieved, because he is a party to the suit. When a plaintiff has deposed in support of his case, his testimony must be scrutinised in the same manner as that of any other witness.

Per Buckland, J.—If a party wishes not to have a presumption raised against him by the fact that an important witness has not been called, he should exhaust to the utmost of his power every means to bring that witness before the Court. C JOGENDRA KRISHNA ROY v. KUPPAL HARSHI & Co, 35 C. L. J. 175; 49 C. 345 993

——— s. 159—Police diary—Investigating Police Officer permitted to refer to, to refresh memory—Defence, right of, to inspect diary.

When an Investigating Police Officer appears as a witness for the prosecution, and is permitted by the Magistrate to refresh his memory in respect of a particular question by referring to the Police diary, the accused is entitled to an inspection of that portion of the diary only from which the witness refreshed his memory, and not to the whole diary. Pat LACHMI SINGH v. EMPEROR, 3 P. L. T. 562; 23 CR. L. J. 591; (1922) A. I. R. (PAT.) 562 623

Execution of decree—Application for issue of notice—Step-in-aid of execution—Objection as to limitation not taken—Objection, if can be taken in subsequent proceedings—Res judicata.

An application praying for issue of notice upon the judgment-debtor is an application in aid of execution.

Where after due notice upon the judgment-debtor the Court decides that the execution is in order and that it should proceed, it is not open to the judgment-debtor in subsequent execution proceedings to challenge that order and set up a plea that the previous execution proceedings were barred by limitation. Pat GOUR CHANDRA RAY v. JANARDAN PRASHAD THAKUR 337

——— Auction-sale—Reversioners not allowed to go behind decree.

Where an alienee, who is an outsider, finds that the alienor's debt is a decretal debt, he need not make any further enquiry and the reversioners will not be allowed to go behind the decree This rule, however, does not apply where it is clear that the alienee's suspicions should have been aroused by the surrounding circumstances or where it is proved that he actually had knowledge of the bad faith of the decretal transaction. L RAN SINGH v. RULLIA, 3 L 139; (1922) A. I. R. (L. 299 99

Execution of decree—contd.

——— Decree-holder seeking to certify payment made to him out of Court—Limitation—Application to certify payment, if must be distinct from application to execute decree—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O XXI, r. 2 (1)—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch I, Arts. 174, 181, application of.

Where a decree-holder seeks to certify a payment made to him out of Court by the judgment-debtor under sub-rule (1) of r. 2 of O. XXI of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Article of the Limitation Act applicable to an application for the purpose is Art. 181, and the right of the decree-holder to apply accrues as soon as he receives payment.

The Code of Civil Procedure does not prescribe that an application to certify payment by a judgment-debtor must necessarily be distinct from an application for execution of the decree; there can be no objection to a combined application embodying a two-fold prayer, namely, first, that the alleged payment be recorded, and secondly, that the decree be executed for the balance of the judgment-debt.

Art. 174 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act is applicable only to a case under sub-rule (2) of r. 2 of O. XXI of the Code of Civil Procedure. It has no application to a case under sub-rule (1). C BALEY MAHAMMAD SAHI v. AIJANMAI, 35 C. L. J. 71; 25 C. W. N. 529; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 30 780 ——— Limitation—Application for execution, when may be treated as one in continuance or revival of a previous application.

An application for execution of a decree may be treated as one in continuation or revival of a previous application, similar in scope and character, the consideration of which has been interrupted by the intervention of objections and claims subsequently proved to be groundless or has been suspended by reason of an injunction or like obstruction.

On the 24th June 1915 an application was made for the execution of a decree passed on the 26th June 1915, and the process and process-fees filed. The judgment-debtor filed a petition under O. XXI, r. 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure to the effect that the decree had been satisfied out of Court. This objection was numbered as a separate case. On the 9th December 1916 the objection case as well as the execution case came up for consideration. The objection case was dismissed for default. With regard to the execution case the following entry was made in the order sheet: "The Pleader for the decree-holder has no objection to his case being dismissed provided he gets his costs. The execution case is dismissed for default. The decree-holder will get his costs." In a subsequent application for execution of the decree presented on the 17th November 1919 objection having been taken by the judgment-debtor that the application was barred by limitation inasmuch as it was presented more than 3 years after the 24th June 1916, when the previous application for execution had been made:

Held, that as soon as the objection was abandoned, it became the duty of the Court to proceed with the application for execution so that the order for dismissal passed on the 9th December 1916 must be treated as equivalent to an order for striking off the case or removing it from the file for the convenience of the Court. Consequently, the subsequent application for execution was not barred by limitation. C AJODHYA NATH PAHARY v. SRINATH CHANDRA PAHARY, 35 C. L. J. 84; 26 C. W. N. 348 207

——— Limitation—Execution stayed by order of Court—Period of stay, if can be deducted.

In computing the period of limitation for an application for execution of a decree, the decree-holder is entitled to deduct the period during which the execution of the decree was stayed by an order of Court. C CHABU CHANDRA v. FANINDRA NARAIN 897

Execution proceedings—Execution application, dismissal of, in default—New application filed before dismissal—Proceedings, whether independent—Limitation, plea of, not raised in previous proceeding—Objection, whether entertainable in subsequent proceeding.

Although the execution of a decree may have been actually barred by time at the date of an application made for its execution, yet, if an order for such execution has been regularly made by a competent Court having jurisdiction to try whether it was barred by time or not, such order, although erroneous, must, if unreversed, be treated as valid.

An application for the execution of a decree was made more than three years after the last application for execution. One of the judgment-debtors appeared and raised various objections but did not take any objection about limitation. This application was dismissed for want of prosecution. Before the dismissal of the above-mentioned application, another application for execution was made:

Held, (1) that the present application for execution was substantially an independent proceeding;

(2) that the judgment-debtor, not having raised an objection about limitation in the previous execution proceeding, was precluded from raising the said objection in regard to that execution in the present execution proceeding. O GANGA DIN v DIP SINGH, 25 O. C. 13; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 117 267

———, revival of—Execution, application for, defective—Defect immaterial—Application returned for amendment—Re-filed after expiry of limitation—Decree-holder prepared to fall back on previous application—Previous application, whether revives.

On 25th September 1915 a preliminary decree for sale was passed. On 11th December 1918 the decree-holder made an application for the preparation of a final decree for sale, but since it was not correct, the Court returned it to the decree-holder on 21st December 1918 for amendment, without fixing any time for its presentation after amendment. The only amendment needed in the application was in respect of the amount claimable under the decree, which was entered less than what was actually due to the decree-holder, and a defective description of the mortgaged property. The decree-holder did not file the application after amendment till 29th May 1919, but was, however, prepared to accept a decree for the amount stated in the original application:

Held, that in view of the decree-holder's attitude the application dated 29th May 1919 was in any case an application for the continuation or revival of the previous application and was, as such, not barred by time. A KALLU MAL v. KASHI NATH, 20 A. L. J. 880; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 190; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 446 175

Execution proceedings—concld.

Execution sale—Knocking down of property and acceptance of deposit by Nazir, whether make sale final—Discretion of Court to accept or reject bid—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), Sch. I, App. E, Form 29.

An execution sale is not concluded when a property is knocked down to a bidder and the necessary deposit of 25 per cent. made by him and accepted by the Nazir. Having regard to the provisions of the third condition of sale set out in Form No. 29, Appendix E, of the First Schedule to the Civil Procedure Code, the Court has a discretion in the matter of accepting or rejecting the bid and the Court's order directing a re-sale of a property after it has been knocked down and the deposit accepted by the Nazir, is not without jurisdiction. C FAZIL MEAH v. PROSANNA KUMAR ROY 305

Factum valet—Mortgage—Foreclosure proceedings—Voluntary surrender by mortgagor of equity of redemption—Mortgagee in proprietary possession for great length of time—Redemption, suit for, on ground of defects in foreclosure proceedings and surrender, maintainability of—Adverse possession, plea of, by mortgagee.

A mortgagee applied for foreclosure under Bengal Regulation XVII of 1806 but the case was consigned to the records before the period of one year's grace usually allowed for payment had expired. Subsequently, when the mortgagee was contemplating the filing of a suit for proprietary possession of the mortgaged property, the mortgagor voluntarily gave him possession and got mutation effected in his favour. The mortgagee remained in possession of the property for a number of years when the plaintiffs filed a suit contending that the surrender was not valid for want of registration and that they were entitled to redeem the mortgage on payment of the amounts due thereon:

Held, (i) that the subsequent proceedings taken by the mortgagor to deliver possession and get mutation effected in favour of the mortgagee operated as a surrender by the mortgagor of his equity of redemption in recognition of the validity of the previous foreclosure proceedings;

(ii) that even if there was any defect in the original foreclosure proceedings, the mortgage could not be treated as subsisting and the transaction re-opened after the lapse of a large number of years from the date when the equity of redemption was surrendered;

(iii) that even if the rights conferred by the private settlement were defective and inchoate or legally insufficient for the extinction of the equity of redemption, the acts of the parties had been such as to supply all defects; and

(iv) that although exclusive possession by a mortgagee for any length of time short of the statutory period of sixty years would not invest him with an adverse title, yet in this case the possession for more than 12 years of the mortgagee obtained aliunde in recognition of his proprietary right after the termination of the foreclosure proceedings operated as a bar

Factum valet—concld.

or defence to a suit for redemption, more so as by virtue of the mortgage the mortgagee was not entitled to possession of the mortgaged property. O BASHIR HUSAIN v. CHANDRAPAL SINGH, 25 O. C. 83; (1922) A. I. R. (O. C.) 133 223

Family Settlement—Consideration.

Although in a deed of family settlement the Court should not scan with much nicety the quantum of consideration, yet to make the compromise of any value the parties must be at arm's length, on equal terms, with equal knowledge and with sufficient advice and protection.

A family arrangement to be operative must be without fraud; it would not be supported if founded on mistake of either party to which the opposite party was an accessory, or if either party has been misled by the concealment of material things, for the essence of the matter is mutual communication of all relevant circumstances. C SATIS CHANDRA GHOSH v. KALIDASI DASI, 34 C. L. J. 529; 26 C. W. N. 177; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 203 577

Father, if representative. See REGISTRATION ACT, 1877, ss. 3, 74 754

Finding as to custom—Finding not disputable in second appeal without certificate—Punjab Courts Act (VI of 1918), s. 41, 3.

When the decision of a case depends upon a finding as to custom such decision cannot be disputed in second appeal without a certificate. L FATEH MUHAMMAD v. IMAM-UD-DIN, 2 L. L. J. 188 106

General Rules and Circular Orders of Calcutta High Court, Chap. XI r. 46, cls. (e) (f). See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. III, R. 4 (1), O. IX, R. 4 659

Gift—Gift of income, whether gift of property.

A gift of the income of a property without any limitation is a gift of the property itself. M VAITHINATHA AIYAR v. THEYAGARAJA AIYAR, 41 M. L. J. 20 631

——— Intention—Gift to adopted son—Adoption declared invalid—Gift, validity of, how determined—Motive of donor—Construction of document—Reference to similar documents

Where a person makes a gift to another describing him as his adopted son and the adoption turns out to be invalid, the validity of the gift depends upon the question whether the donor merely described the donee as his adopted son or intended that the validity of the gift should be conditional on the validity of the adoption.

The distinction between what is description only and what is the reason or motive of a gift or bequest may often be very fine, but it is a distinction which must be drawn from a consideration of the language and the surrounding circumstances.

The Court should not strain to adopt a construction, which would defeat the intention of the testator, unless it is absolutely certain from the words of the Will that the testator intended to make the gift to the donee conditional on the adoption being valid.

A Hindu adopted his daughter's son J. Some nine years after the adoption he by Will made a gift of his property, "to my adopted son J." After the death of the testator the adoption was declared invalid and the question was about the validity of the gift:

Gift—concld.

Held, that it was clear that the testator made the gift out of natural love and affection and that in making his Will he merely described the donee as his adopted son in the ordinary course without intending that the gift should be conditional on the validity of his adoption.

The language of one instrument does not afford much assistance in the construction of another. B BAI DHONDUBAI v. LAXMANRAO TRIMBAKRAO JAVADEKAR, 24 BOM L. R 794; (1922) A. I R. (B.) 352 504

Government of India Act, 1915, s. 107. See CALCUTTA RENT ACT, 1920, ss. 15, 18 274

Government servant—Acquisition of immoveable property benami—Government Servants Conduct Rules—Fraud—Public policy—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 23, operation of.

The acquisition of an interest in immoveable property by a Government servant in the name of another to evade the rules made in that behalf for regulating the conduct of public servants, may be very reprehensible by reason of his violation of the said rules, but it cannot simply for that reason be described as fraudulent or opposed to public policy so as to attract the operation of the law laid down in section 23 of the Contract Act.

No Court can invent a new head of public policy or condemn an agreement because, in its opinion, it is not consistent with public interest.

Government Servants Conduct Rules are rules of conduct and not statutory prohibitions, so that a disregard of those rules does not necessarily taint transactions by Government servants with immorality or illegality. C DHIRENDRA KUMAR BOSE v. CHANDRA KANTA ROY, 36 C. L. J. 82 648

Guardian, unauthorised, sale by—Suit for possession by minor—Compensation to vendee—Relegation of parties to original position—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), ss 38, 41.

An unauthorised guardian sold certain property of a minor. Out of the sale-proceeds certain other property of the minor was freed from a mortgage charge. In a suit by the minor for possession of the property, the vendee contended that the sale should be set aside only on the condition of his being compensated by the minor for the money that he had expended:

Held, (1) that as the action of the unauthorised guardian was ultra vires, the sale must be regarded as void ab initio and the minor must be given a decree for possession of the land free from all payments:

(2) that, however, having regard to the provisions of sections 38 and 41 of the Specific Relief Act, the parties were to be relegated to the position which they held before the deed of sale was executed. L FATEH KHAN v. LANGRA, 2 L. L. J. 154; 4 U P. L R. (L.) 91 15

Guardian and ward—Court's duty—Minor's welfare.

In matters of guardianship the main question for a Court is the welfare of the child and it need not assign the personal guardianship of the child to a person merely because, in other respects, he has the best title to be guardian. O GANGA JALI v. DIP NARAIN, 9 O. L. J. 325; (1922) A. I. R. (O. C.) 123 553

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), s. 7—Minor—Guardianship of property—Relatives desiring appointment of somebody else—Mother, claims of, if can be ignored.

The bare desire of the relatives of a minor that some person other than the mother should be appointed a guardian of his property is not a sufficient reason for depriving the mother of her recognised claim to be the guardian of her minor child's property, if she is otherwise fit to be appointed as such by her character and capacity. N LAXMIBAI v. ABDUL KADIR 474

——— ss. 11, 13, 48—Application for appointment as guardian refused—No appeal—Second application by same person, whether entertainable—Application for appointment as guardian after removal of existing guardian, rejection of—Appeal—Procedure under Act, whether summary—Provisions of Act ignored—Material irregularity.

Where an application for appointment as guardian of a minor is refused, and there is no appeal against the order of refusal, a subsequent application by the same person for a similar purpose, cannot be entertained.

No appeal lies from an order rejecting an application charging a guardian with misappropriation and asking for the appointment of the applicant as guardian, but it is open to the High Court to treat the appeal as an application for revision, under section 48 of the Guardians and Wards Act.

Proceedings under the Guardians and Wards Act are not intended to be summary, and the procedure of a District Judge in appointing a guardian would be materially irregular, if he ignored the procedure enacted in sections 11 and 13 of the Act, and failed to consider whether the guardian was by character and capacity a fit person, and whether his appointment was for the welfare of the minor. N GOPALRAO v. SHRAWAN 291

——— ss. 19, 25—Hindu father—Guardianship of minor son, application for—Application to be treated as one for custody.

An application under section 19 of the Guardians and Wards Act by a Hindu father to be appointed the guardian of his minor son who is living with his mother is not competent, because, under the Hindu Law, the father is already the natural guardian of his minor son. Any such application should be treated as one made under section 25 of the Act for the custody of the minor and decided accordingly. B BAI TARA v. MOHANLAL LALLUBHAI, 24 BOM. L. R. 775; (1922) A. I. R B.) 405 518

——— s. 29—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O XXXII, r. 7—Lease by guardian in terms of compromise entered into with leave of Court—Consent of Collector, if necessary

Where, in accordance with a compromise entered into on behalf of a minor with the sanction of the Court under O. XXXII, r. 7 of the Civil Procedure Code, the guardian of the minor grants a lease, the consent of the Collector under section 29 of the Guardians and Wards Act is not necessary. C ABDUR RASHID v SHEIKH KHANDKAR, 35 C. L. J 206 997

Gujrat Talukdars Act (Bom. Act VI of 1888), s. 29E—Notification by Talukdari Settlement Officer—Claims, submission of—Claim already known, whether must also be submitted.

Gujrat Talukdars Act—concld.

Upon the issue of a Notification under section 29B of the Gujrat Talukdars Act by a Talukdari Settlement Officer, as Managiag Officer of a Talukdari estate, every person who has a claim against the estate must give a notice in writing of such claim. The fact that such officer is otherwise aware of a claim—in this case a mortgage—would not save the claimant from the consequences of the failure to give the notice required. B TALUKDARI SETTLEMENT OFFICER v. AKUJI ABHRAM MUSE, 24 BOM. L. R. 762; 46 B. 993; (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 359 487

Habeas Corpus, writ of—Jurisdiction of High Court. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, ss. 54, 58, 60, 177, 491 26

High Court, power of, to determine issue or remit case for finding on that issue.

A High Court has the power of determining an issue, left undetermined by a lower Appellate Court, on the evidence on the record or of remitting the case to the lower Court for a finding on that issue, with liberty to the parties to adduce additional evidence if they choose to do so. P. C. CHIDAMBARA, SANNADHIGAL v. VEERAMA REDDI, 31 M. L. T. 54; 16 L. W. 102; 45 M. 586; (1922) M. W. N. 749; 43 M. L. J. 649; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 292 538

Hindu Law. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 92 631

——— Concubine — Right of residence—Maintenance.

Under the Hindu Law, the concubine of a deceased Hindu has no right of residence in a co-parcenary house, but the person who succeeds to the house is bound to maintain her, the amount of the maintenance being a charge upon the house. N BANSILAL v. ACHRAJ KUNWAR 394

——— Extinction of claims by efflux of time

Hindu Law does not recognise any rule as to the extinction of claims by efflux of time. A RAM KISHAN RAI v. CHHEDI RAI, 20 A. L. J. 577; 44 A. 625; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 402 235

——— Jaiswar Kalar—School, by which, governed—Situation of property—Residence—Determination of domicile and personal law.

A person belonging to the Jaiswar sub-division of the Kalar caste and living in a village in the Central Provinces is prima facie governed by the Benares School of Hindu law.

The place where a person's property is situated is not a decisive factor in the determinatiou of his domicile.

A Hindu residing in a particular province is subject to the particular doctrines of Hindu Law recognised in that province. N GOVIND v. RADHABAI KALAR 325

——— Adoption—Full operation postponed for two lives—Validity of adoption.

An adoption with a condition that the adopted son shall not get any interest in the property of his adoptive father, till after the death of the survivor of two living persons, is valid. N KOLHI v. CHOTTIBAI, 294

——— ——— of great-grand-father's great-grandson, validity of

Under Hindu Law the adoption of a cousin standing in the same degree from the common ancestor, such as paternal great-grandfather's great-grandson, is not invalid.

Hindu Law—contd.

Obiter—One reversioner should not be regarded as deriving his interest from another in whom no interest ever vested, even though that other was his own father. N GULAB THAKUR v. FADALI 566

——— Adoption of married man, validity of.

Under Hindu Law, among the twice-born classes a boy may be adopted at any time before his investiture with the sacred thread, and among Sudras an adoption is valid only up to the time of marriage and not later. L HIRA v. HARDAT SINGH, 47 P. L. R. 1922 763 ——— Antecedent debt, what is.

In order to validate a transaction of mortgage of family property by a father or manager on the ground that it was entered into to pay off an antecedent debt, there must be shown not only formal antecedency but antecedency in date combined with real dissociation in fact. Mortgages brought into existence merely to cover a breach of trust and what is called an unreal antecedency should not be given effect to by Courts. A PEARE LAL v. SUNDER SINGH, 20 A. L. J. 658; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 436 805

——— Debts—Joint family property—Liability for father's debts—Pious obligation of sons to pay father's debts during his lifetime—Property passed out of family in satisfaction of father's debts—Sons' right to recover back.

Under the Hindu Law, subject to certain limited exceptions, the whole of the undivided estate of a point family is liable in the hands of sons for the debts of their father, unless the debts are taken for illegal or immoral purpose. There is a pious obligation on the sons to pay such debts. This liability, however, so long as the father is alive is only contingent.

Although where the father is alive the sons may be able to question a debt incurred by their father before the family property is sold in satisfaction of the same, if the property has passed out of the family without any objection having been taken by them or on their behalf, and rights of persons outside the family have sprung up with regard thereto, those rights cannot be defeated by the sons simply questioning the necessity for the debt. They have further to establish that the debt was one for the payment of which there was no existing or contingent obligation on them to discharge; or, in other words, that it was a debt taken for illegal or immoral purposes. O BINDESHARI SINGH v. AUDESH PRASAD SINGH, 25 O. C. 16; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 85 253

——— Gift—Father's power to gift moveable property to daughter.

A father has the power under the Hindu Law of making, within reasonable limits, gifts to a daughter of moveable property including gifts of sums of money. P. C. RAMALINGA ANNAVI v. NARAYANA ANNAVI, 20 M. L. T. 265; (1922) M. W. N. 389; 43 M. 489; 26 C. W. N. 929; 43 M. L. J. 428; 16 L. W. 639; 24 BOM. L. R. 1203; 20 A. L. J. 889; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 201 451

——— ——— from father—Property, whether self-acquired in hands of donee.

In the absence of any express limitation or condition to the contrary, all property obtained by gift or devise becomes self-acquired in the hands of the donee or devisee. Consequently, any property obtained by virtue of a gift from the father, grandfather or great-grandfather would be self-acquired in the hands of the donee if it was not ancestral property in the hands of the donor or was acquired by him without detriment to the joint estate O KANHAI LAL v. RAM RATAN, 2 O. C. 80; 1922 A. I. R. J. C. 138 217

——— Gift—Gift by Hindu lady with reservation of usufruct for her life, validity of.

A Hindu lady who is the full proprietor of immoveable property can by a registered document, duly signed and attested, validly make an immediate gift of it, although she reserves to herself the enjoyment of the usufruct or profits of a part of the property for her lifetime and without retaining power of alienation over it.

There is nothing in the Hindu Law which on principle would make a reservation of the usufruct of a part of the property for life by the donor, or the postponement of the enjoyment by the donee of a part of the profits till after the donor's death, a repugnant condition and render the gift invalid. A LALLU SINGH v. GUR NARAIN, 20 A. L. J. 744; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 457 798

——— ——— subject to mortgage—Acceptance by donee—Donee, whether can avoid mortgage on ground of absence of legal necessity—Alience for value, and donee of gift, difference between.

Although it is open to an alienee for value to raise the question of legal necessity, a donee who accepts a gift burdened with a mortgage cannot plead the absence of legal necessity for the mortgage. N NARAYAN v. SHANKERLAL 503

——— Joint family — Acquisition during jointness—Presumption—Burden of proof

Where one finds people living as joint and properties are acquired during this time the presumption is that they are acquired for the benefit of the joint family as a whole. The burden of adducing evidence to rebut the presumption is on the side who denies the jointness. S SASHI KUMAR SORKHEL v. CHANDRA KUMAR SAMADDAR CHOWDHURI, 35 C. L. J. 348 322

——— ——— Co-parcener, contract by—Contract in own name but really as agent of manager—Liability of manager and family—Personal liability—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 23, cl. 1, application of.

Where a single member of a joint Hindu family enters into a contract in his own name but really as the agent of the manager, the manager as well as the whole family is bound

So far as the manager is concerned, it is a case of an undisclosed principal and has reference to the Law of Agency. So far as the family is concerned, it is a case of the application of the Hindu Law wherein the acts of the manager are binding on the family.

In such a case, therefore, the contracting member, and (with reference to the first clause of section 23 of the Contract Act the manager may be personally liable but not the other members. A OBILISETTI VENKATA KRISHTNIAH v. ATAYAM SUBBIAH, 14 L. W. 530; 41 M. L. J. 554; (1921) M. W. N. 810 462

——— Joint family—Debt—Father, decree against—Liability of father's interest in family property

Under the Mitakshara Law a simple money-decree against a Hindu father which is not shown to have been on the basis of a debt which was tainted with immorality, can be executed against the ancestral property, and the father's interest therein can be attached and sold. A KALYAN SINGH v DHARAM SINGH, 20 A. L. J. 721; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 489 794

——— ——— Debt incurred by karta—Presumption.

There is no presumption that fathers of joint Hindu families or managers or kartas necessarily go out of their way to borrow money for purposes which they know to be unlawful and which can confer no benefit upon the general body of the family to which they belong A PEARE LAL v. SUNDER SINGH, 20 A. L. J. 658; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 436 805

——— ——— Father adjudged insolvent—Son's estate, whether can be dealt with by Receiver.

Where the father of a joint Hindu family is adjudged an insolvent, the estate of the sons cannot be dealt with by the Receiver L SHIB CHARAN v. MUHAMMAD ISMAIL, 2 L. L. J. 401 179

——— ——— Father and son—Initial presumption of jointness.

There is an initial presumption in favour of jointness in a Hindu family and this presumption is particularly strong in the case of a father and his only son. O PARBATI v. MOHAMMAD HADI, 3 O. L. J. 304 53

——— ——— Invalid alienation by manager—Suit for possession by co-parcener—Alienation declared valid to extent of alienor's share—Plaintiff, right of, to possession of entire property—Mesne profits, determination of—Alienee, suit by, for partition of item sold, whether maintainable.

A Hindu co-parcener has the right to require an alienee of joint property to deliver possession of the entire property in cases where the alienation by the manager is not binding on the plaintiff. The purchaser cannot sue for a partition of the item sold to him and obtain an allotment by metes and bounds of his vendor's share in that portion of the property but is bound to file a suit for a general partition.

In such a case where there has been no repudiation of the alienation on the part of the other co-parceners before the institution of the suit, the claim for mesne profits would be limited to the period from the date of suit M SUBBE GOUNDAN v. KRISHNAMACHARI, 34 M. L. T. 217; 15 M. L. J. 475; 15 L. W. 537; (1922) M. W. N. 269; 45 M. 449; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 112 869

——— ——— Partition—Notice of intention to separate, effect of—Partial partition.

Under the Hindu Law it is open to the members of a joint family to make a division and a severance of interest in respect of a part of the joint estate whilst retaining their status as a joint family and holding the rest as the properties of a joint undivided family

Under the Law of the Mitakshara an unambiguous and definite intimation of intention on the part of one member of the family to separate himself and to enjoy his share in severalty has the effect of creating a division of the interest which, until then, he had held in jointness P. C. KAMALINGA ANNAVI v. NARAYANA ANNAVI, 30 M. L. T. 255; (1922) M. W. N. 399; 45 M. 439; 26 C. W. N. 929; 43 M. L. J. 425; 16 L. W. 639; 24 BOM. L. R. 1219; 20 A. L. J. 839; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 201 451

Hindu Law—contd.

——— Joint family property — Legal necessity—Improvident transaction - Presumption—Jurisdiction—Relief for possession not claimed in plaint—Appellate Court, if can decree formal possession.

Where a father, as manager of a joint Hindu family, enters into an agreement to sell the family immoveable property in his hands, the mere facts that he repents of the agreement and that his sons apply to contest the suit brought with the object of enforcing the agreement, raise a presumption that the agreement is an improvident one.

The mere existence of an antecedent secured debt cannot of itself justify the father in alienating practically the whole of the immoveable property belonging to himself and his sons if the debt can be discharged by alienating only a part of the property.

An alienation of joint family property effected by the concerted action of the adult members of the family, raises a presumption in favour of the alienation having been made for real family necessity.

Where the father enters into an improvident transaction to rid himself of his immediate embarrasments without due regard to the necessities of the case and the interests of the minor members of the undivided family, the vendee must be held to have taken the risk involved therein.

Per Piggott, J.—In a suit to avoid alienation in which no relief for possession is asked, a formal decree directing the plaintiff to be restored to possession, whether conditional or otherwise, cannot and ought not to be passed.

Per Walsh, J.—When an Appellate Court is seized of the whole matter, it should not hesitate to pass such orders as are necessary to terminate the controversy and to do justice between the parties. Consequently, in a suit by sons to avoid alienation made by the father, although no relief as to possession may be claimed, it is not incompetent for the High Court on appeal to decree possession to them. A GOVIND DASS v. RAM CHARAN SONIA, 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 25 307

——— Mitakshara as interpreted in Berar—Power of undivided co-sharer to sell—Severance of estate how effected—Agreement to divide, effect of

According to the law of Mitakshara, as interpreted in Berar, an undivided co-sharer can sell his share in joint family property without the consent of his co-owners

In the case of a joint Hindu family, subject to the law of Mitakshara, a severance of estate is effected by an unequivocal declaration on the part of one of the joint holders of his intention to hold his share separately, even though no actual division takes place, and the commencement of a suit for partition is sufficient to effect a severance in interest even before decree. So also is a claim by one member of a co-parcenary for his share followed by an agreement under which all the members appoint an arbitrator to divide their property and agree to accept whatever partition he might make. P. C. KASAM v. MORAWAR SINGH, 31 M. L. T. 46; 15 L. W. 223; 5 N. L. J. 209; 18 N. L. R. 127; 43 M. L. J. 676; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 3 573

——— Mitakshara—Insanity — Inheritance and partition, exclusion from—Insanity need not be congenital.

Under the Mitakshara Law, a person is disqualified from succeeding to property, if he is insane when the succession opens, and cannot demand a partition or share in one when it actually takes place.

Insanity, as a ground for exclusion from inheritance under Hindu Law, need not be congenital. N VITHOBA v. WAMAN, 18 N. L. R. 80; (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 161 111

——— ——— Vyavahara Mayukha—Common passage—Partition—Indivisibility.

On the authority of the Mitakshara and the Vyavahara Mayukha, land which is reserved as common passage is not divisible. The rule applies equally to a common passage reserved at the time of a partition. B SHANTARAM BALKRISHNA v. WAMAN GOPAL, 24 BOM. L. R. 1079 682

——— Mortgage of family property—Onus of necessity on creditor, when shifted.

The onus of proof to support a mortgage of family property lies upon a creditor.

In the absence, however, of evidence tending to shake confidence in the transactions themselves or in the conduct and care of a manager or a creditor, the onus is shifted back on to the sons or members of the family who desire to repudiate the transactions. A PEARE LAL v. SUNDER SINGH, 20 A. L. J. 654; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 46 805 ——— Partition — Partial partition—Presumption—Onus of proof.

Where a partial partition of the property of a joint Hindu family is admitted, the presumption is that there was a complete partition embracing the whole of the family property: where, therefore, it is subsequently alleged that some property is still undivided, the proof of such allegation rests upon the person making it. L KISHEN CHAND v. BEHARI MAL, 2 L. L. J. 570 297

——— Succession — Illegitimate son—Succession Certificate Act (VII of 1889)—Illegitimate son of Sudra Succession by survivorship—Succession Certificate, whether necessary

Under the Hindu Law an illegitimate son in the three high classes never takes by inheritance but is only entitled to maintenance from the estate of the father. The illegitimate son of a Sudra might, under certain circumstances, inherit either jointly or separately.

The illegitimate son of a Sudra can be a co-parcener with his father, when he would be competent to sue to recover a debt due to his father without the production of a Succession Certificate. N GANULAL v. KASHIRAM 417

——— ——— Widow, death of—Next reversioners, not seeking to obtain possession of estate—Remoter reversioners, right of.

One K died leaving a widow after whose death a dispute arose as to succession. K.'s daughter sued for declaration and obtained a decree against next reversioners. Upon a suit brought by the remoter reversioners who alleged a custom excluding daughters from inheritance, which they said, the next reversioners being in collusion with the daughter had failed to urge in the previous suit :

Held, that the suit was not maintainable, inasmuch as even if the custom as alleged were found to exist, the persons entitled to succeed would be the next reversioners and if the latter did not choose to avail themselves of their right to the possession of the property, such inaction on their part would not confer any right on the remoter reversioners. A BIND BAHADUR SINGH v. RITURAJI, 20 A. L. J. 702; (1922) A. I. R. (A) 420 776

——— Widow—Accumulations—Personal estate—Intention—Accumulations, physical possession of, whether essential.

A widow has full power during her lifetime to invest or otherwise dispose of accumulated income accruing during her possession of a widow's estate.

The question whether such property would after her death form part of her personal estate, depends on whether she has shown any intention of appropriating it for her own benefit in her lifetime. A mere expression of opinion as to what she would do with it, would not amount to an act of appropriation. But where she has entered into an agreement showing how the property will be appropriated, her intention that it should form part of her personal estate, is sufficiently manifest.

It is not necessary that such property should have come into her physical possession during her lifetime and a widow is competent to appropriate property to which she has established her title even though the same be wrongfully withheld from her by a person in unlawful possession of it. O SHYAM NARAIN v. JADUNATH SINGH, 25 O. C. 41; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 118 242

——— ——— Alienation, validity of—Reversionary heir, rights of—Consent of immediate reversioner—More remote reversioners, right of, to impugn alienation—Inaction of reversioner, effect of—Gift by Hindu widow, validity of, against reversioner.

A sale or mortgage by a Hindu widow which purports to pass or hypothecate the absolute title is valid against everyone except the reversioners and unless the reversioners elect to treat it as a nullity it subsists as against every one else

A Hindu widow is not a tenant for life, but is owner of her husband's property subject to certain restrictions on alienation and subject to its devolving upon her husband's heirs upon her death. But she may alienate it subject to certain conditions being complied with. Her alienation is not, therefore, absolutely void, but it is prima facie voidable at the election of the reversionary heir. He may think fit to affirm it, or he may, at his pleasure treat it as a nullity without the intervention of any Court, and he shows his election to do the latter by commencing an action to recover possession of the property.

The consent of the immediate reversioner to a gift by a Hindu widow does not bar the right of a more remote reversioner to challenge the transaction.

A gift of the whole of her husband's property made by a Hindu widow, not challenged by the reversioners during her lifetime and acquiesced in by those who would take a vested interest after her death, can be challenged by the reversioners alone and by no one else If they choose not to challenge it, and the donee remains in possession under a claim of right for 12 years, he will acquire an indefeasible title even against the reversioners.

In considering the validity, as against the reversioner, of a gift by a Hindu widow, the true view is that it is not binding upon him and he can elect to treat it as a nullity and sue for possession at any time within 12 years of his interest becoming vested without first suing to have the gift set aside, notwithstanding Art. 9 of the Limitation Act. He may, on the other hand, elect to treat it as valid but no third person can claim this option or set up the plea that such a gift is void merely because it may have been but was not so treated by the reversioner. Pat KESHO PRASAD SINGH v. CHANDRIKA PRASAD SINGH, 3 P. L. T. 797 394

——— Widow, assignee of—Accretions.

The position of an assignee of a Hindu widow in possession of the estate of her deceased husband is the same as that of the widow, so that where he omits to recover any sums due to the estate during the lifetime of the widow, they become an accretion to the estate and the right to recover them passes to the reversioners. O MOHAMMAD HADI v. PARBATI, 9 O. L. J. 512; 25 O. C. 2; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 31 549

——— ——— Mortgage—Legal necessity—Necessity for particular rate of interest and terms—Onus—Redemption postponed for long period—Reversioners of widow's husband, if bound—Suit before expiry of period, if competent.

In case of a mortgage made by a Hindu widow of her deceased husband's immoveable property, it is incumbent on the mortgagee to show not only that there was a necessity to borrow but also that it was not unreasonable to borrow at some such high rate and upon such terms, and if this is not shown, the rate and terms would not stand, even though the charge might be upheld.

Where in a mortgage executed by a widow the terms and conditions are such as to postpone redemption for an unduly long period without any corresponding advantage to the mortgagor and in fact to render redemption practically impossible, they are clearly oppressive and unreasonable, intended more to fetter the right of redemption than to secure any advantage to the mortgagor and a reversioner of widow's husband is not bound by them and can bring a redemption suit before the expiry of the stipulated period. O DARYAO SINGH v. KALI SINGH, 9 O. L. J. 213; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 63; (1923) A. I. R. (J. C.) 175 164

——— ——— Surrender to reversioner, validity of—Bona fides—Question of fact.

In the case of a surrender by a Hindu widow in favour of the next reversioner the question whether an undertaking by the reversioner to discharge the existing debts of the widow would revalidate the surrender depends upon the circumstances of each case, the test to be applied being to see whether the transaction is a bona fide surrender or a mere device to divide the estate with the reversioner. O GOBIND v. BASUDHAR, 5 O. L. J. 370; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 93 972

Hindu Law—concld.

——— Will in favour of wife, devising milkiat of property—Absolute estate—'Malik,' meaning of.

Where a Hindu makes a Will in favour of his wife wherein it is stated that she is the malik of the property devised and has interest of milkiat in the same, she acquires an absolute estate in such property under the Will

The word "malik" is not a term of art, it does not necessarily define the quality of the estate taken but the ownership of whatever that estate may be. O BIJAI BAHADUR SINGH v. MATHURA SINGH, 9 O. L. J. 327; 4 U. P. R. (J. C.) 66; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 278; 25 O. C. 345 555

Hindu Law or custom—Alienations—Will—Aroras of Taunsa, Town, District Dera Ghazi Khan—Pre-sumption—Revocation of Will—Part of property alienated during testator's lifetime.

The Aroras of Taunsa, in the District of Dera Ghazi Khan, are not governed in the matter of alienations by agricultural custom.

An Arora belonging to a mercantile community and residing in a town, is presumably governed by his personal law in the matter of alienation

A Will is an ambulatory document and operates only upon the property which exists at the time of the testator's death. The mere fact that the testator during his lifetime disposed of part of the property specified in the Will, would not be regarded as a revocation of the Will. L ASA NAND v. ROSHNI BAI, 2 L. L. J. 178 92

Hindu widow, possession, adverse, against—Possession, whether adverse against reversioners.

Possession which commences during the lifetime of a Hindu widow with a limited interest cannot be adverse to reversioners. O PARBATI v. MOHAMMAD HADI, 9 O. L. J. 364 534 ———, suit against—Husband's estate, representation of.

Where a bona fide suit is brought against a Hindu widow in respect of a genuine debt incurred by her husband, the widow, for the purposes of the suit, represents the husband's estate and the estate would be bound by the decision thereof.

But where the suit is a fictitious one, the decree would not bind the estate or the reversioners. C SASHI KUMAR SORKHEL v CHANDRA KUMAR SAMADDAR, 35 C. L. J. 348 322

Hyderabad Assigned Districts Land Revenue Code of 1816—"Ante-jagir tenant" of alienated land, payment by, whether revenue or rent—Charge under s. 56.

Under section 4 (12) of the Hyderabad Assigned Districts Land Revenue Code an ante-jagir tenant of alienated land is an inferior holder and not a tenant and the amount payable by him to the jagirdar is not rent as defined in section 4 (24) of the Code, but land revenue which, under section 56 of the Code, is a paramount charge on the holding. N SHAMRAO v. SHRI SITARAM MAHARAJ 289

Inam, meaning of—Intention of donor.

The term "inam", an Arabic word meaning a reward, does not give any indication of the intention of a donor. P. C. CHIDAMBARA SANNADHIGAL v. VEERAMA REDDI, 31 M. L. T. 54; 16 L. W. 102; 45 M. 586; (1922) M. W. N. 748; 43 M. L. J. 640; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 292 538

Inam—concld.

——— *grant—*Varam—Presumption.

There is no presumption of law that an inam grant of a village is prima facie a grant of melvaram right only or of both melvaram or kudivaram. Each case must be considered on its own facts, with special regard to the evidence and circumstances therein. P. C. CHIDAMBARA SANNADHIGAL v. VEERAMA REDDI, 31 M. L. T. 54; 16 L. W. 102; 45 M. 586; (1922) M. W. N. 748; 43 M. L. J. 640; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 292 538

Income Tax Act (VII of 1918), ss. 19, 51—S. 19, meaning of—Income of firm—Year of registry and prior year in which firm not registered—Adjustment.

S. 19 of the Income Tax Act, 1918, means that if, at the end of the year, it is found that the amount at which the income was assessed has been either exceeded or reduced, there is a right and a duty to deal with the matter accordingly.

An adjustment of income-tax can be made during a Financial year in which the Collector's certificate of registration under section 12-A of the Income Tax Act is in force in respect of the income of a firm for the previous year in which the firm was not registered. M SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE v. MOHAMMAD SHERIFF HUSSAIN MEAH, 16 L. W. 333; 43 M. L. J. 434; (1922) M. W. N. 583 655

——— s. 40—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 177—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s 179—False verification in income-tax petition, complaint of—Forum, proper—Place where return received, Court having jurisdiction over, competency of, to try offence.

The offence of making a false verification in an income-tax petition is legally triable only by a Court having jurisdiction over the place where the verification was made. The place where the petition was received by the authorities does not determine the jurisdiction. M MOHIDEEN PAKKIRI, In re, 16 L. W. 335; 31 M. L. T. 282; 43 M. L. J. 475; (1922) M. W. N. 690; 23 CR. L. J. 619; 45 M. 839 843

——— s. 46—Notice, service of—Method of service.

Section 46 of the Income Tax Act, (VII of 1918), does not require that service of a notice under it must be effected by the officer of the Court himself placing the notice in the hands of the person named therein: the section in no way excludes any of the other forms of service permitted by O V of the Civil Procedure Code of 1908, and allows a notice to be sent by post. N LOCAL GOVERNMENT v. ISMAIL BHAI, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 187; 23 CR. L. J. 591 623

Indian Soldiers (Litigation) Act (IX of 1918), ss. 5, 6, 7, 11, application of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 48 369

Insolvency—Manager of joint Hindu family adjudicated insolvent—Official Assignee, rights of.

The Official Assignee, on the insolvency of the managing member of a joint Hindu family, succeeds to,—

(a) the undivided interest of the insolvent in the joint property, and

(b) his rights as managing member, so far as they can be exercised for his benefit;

Insolvency—concld.

he is not entitled to have vested in him the shares of the other members, although he can deal with them if the insolvent could lawfully have done so if there had been no insolvency.

The Official Assignee is entitled to all the rights of the insolvent, including the right to possession, except such rights as are in their nature personal to a member of the family as such. M OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE OF MADRAS v. RAMACHANDRA AIYAR, 16 L. W. 559; ('92) M. W. N. 653; 43 M. L. J. 569 898

Interest—Bond—High rate of interest—Court not to interfere unless interest penal—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s 74.

Unless satisfied that the rate of interest charged in a bond is a penalty within the meaning of section 74 of the Contract Act, a Court cannot interfere with the stipulated rate of interest, as it is not open to it to make a new contract between the parties. C SATYABHAMA SUNDARI v. MOHAMED ESAHAK MEAH 497

——— Penalty - Question of law.

Where the question whether the interest claimed on a mortgage-deed is a penalty, depends on an interpretation of a clause in the deed, the question is not a simple question of fact, and may be raised for the first time in first appeal

Where a mortgage-deed provides for the payment of an increased rate of interest in case of default in paying the mortgage-money, and such increased rate is payable from the date of the mortgage, the provision is a penalty and ought not to be allowed. L B KO TINE v ISMAIL CASSIM MOORAD, 11 L. B. R. 356 887

——— Suit on balance struck after account —Agreement or notice as to interest, absence of— Interest Act (XXXII of 83)—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 73.

No interest is chargeable either under Act XXXII of 1839, or as damages under section 73 of the Contract Act on a balance struck after an account between the plaintiff and the defendant wherein no mention is made of interest and where no notice has been given that interest would be charged. L RANJIT SINGH v KARIM BAKHSH 678

Interest Act (XXXII of 1839). See INTEREST 678

Interpretation of Statutes - Court, duty of

It is not within the competence of any Court to usurp the functions of the Legislature, and a Court cannot in any way limit or extend the scope of any provision of the law on grounds of policy or other considerations Pat SHEBALAK SINGH v KAMARUDDIN MANDAL, 3 P. L. T. 574; (1922 PAT 4 ; 4 U. P. L. R. (PAT) 57; 23 CR. L. J. 519; ('9 2) A. I. R PAT) 435 149

Joint Hindu family—Karta, contract by, for family benefit—Minor members, suit by, for specific performance—Lack of mutuality, plea of— Karta, relation of, to minor members

Where the karta of a joint Hindu family enters into a contract which is binding on the minor members as well, as for instance, where it is for the family benefit, the minor members are entitled to bring a suit for its specific perfo. mance. There is no lack of mutuality in such a case betw the minor members and the other party to the contract so as to stand in the way of their suit

The relation of the manager of a joint Hindu family to a minor is not the same as that of a guardian to his ward The manager is not an agent of the other members, nor is he a mere manager. He is much more like a trustee for the other members N HARGOVIND v. MEHTAB SINGH, 8 N. L. R 67; (1922) A. I R (N) 9; 346

Joint possession. suit between co-owners for —Partition suit pending between the parties— Court, if should disturb existing possession—No hard and fast rule - Justice, equity and good conscience.

No hard and fast rule can be laid down for the decision of the question whether a co-owner has the right to joint khas possession of the lands which have been exclusively occupied by another co-owner Each case must be decided on its merits according to justice, equity and good conscience.

Where during the pendency of a suit for partition one co-owner brings a suit against another for joint possession of certain lands comprised in the joint estate, the Court should be unwilling to disturb the existing possession of the lands during the pendency of the suit for partition between the parties, unless it feels bound to do so for very cogent reasons. C MOHAMMED HYDER ALI KHAN v. MOHAMMAD WAJID ALI KHAN, 36 C. L J 155 285

Jurisdiction—Non British subject retaining stolen property in Native State—Theft committed in British India—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 8 8), s 80, application of

A non-British subject retaining property in a Native State, stolen from British India, is not amenable to the jurisdiction of British Courts, and section 180 of the Criminal Procedure Code does not confer any such jurisdiction on them L MUHAMMAD HUSSAIN v. EMPEROR, 2 L. L. J. 3 8; 28 CR. L. J. 860 160

——— Partition, suit for—Title, questions of, decision of—Conflicting claims as to shares, determination of—Equity and Law.

All persons who have an interest in the partition are proper parties to a partition suit and matters in controversy amongst persons so interested in the partition must be decided in the suit.

A suit for partition may and does often involve the investigation of disputed questions of title an attempt to avoid them can only lead to needless multiplicity of litigation, and there is no reason why such questions should not be decided in the course of the suit for partition.

The Courts in India, having as they do jurisdiction to administer both legal and equitable remedies, may, in a suit for partition, determine issues of title, investigate disputes between different parties claiming the same share, and then proceed with the partition so as to dispose of the whole controversy between them.

Where there is conflicting claim to share in the land under the same right under which partition is sought the determination of the conflict is incidental to the partition and cannot be avoided before partition is directed Such a case does not fall within the category of claims utterly hostile where Jurisdiction—concld.

each demands not a share but the whole. C ANNAPURNA DEBYA v. AMIYA NATH BANERJEE, 35 C. L. J. 540 (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 307 432

Jury trial—Judge's charge to Jury—Judge, duty of, in stating law Judge giving his own opinion—Misdirection.

Where in a trial by Jury the Judge wishes to inform the Jury as to what are the terms of a particular provision of the law, it is necessary for him to read the actual words of the section containing that provision to the Jury, and, if necessary, to explain what is meant by the section: if, instead of doing this, the Judge gives his own opinion of the meaning of the section, that would amount to a misdirection C EMPEROR v. DURGA CHARAN BEPARI 36 C. L. J. 171: 26 C. W. N. 1002; 23 CR. L. J. 567; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 124 407

——— Language of charge to Jury—Misinterpretation of words by Jury.

Where, in dealing with one of the charges against the accused, the Judge in charging the Jury uses words which the Jury might misinterpret, and might thereby be induced to come to the conclusion that there was nothing more to be said about the matter, that would amount to a misdirection. C EMPEROR v. DURGA CHARAN BEPARI 36 C. L. J. 171; 26 C. W. N. 1002; 23 CR. L. J. 567; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 124 407

Khoti Khasgi lands, purchaser of—Faida, liability to pay.

A purchaser of Khoti Khasgi lands from one of the co-sharers Khots, is liable to pay Faida, unless he is able to show that by virtue of some custom or agreement amongst the Khots the Faida is not payable B JAYANT BAISHA SAVANT v. ABDUL RAHIMAN MAHOMED IBRAHIM, 24 BOM. L. R. 358; 46 B. 819; (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 245 335

Khoti Settlement Act (Bom. Act I of 1880), s. 10—"His land," meaning of—Khoti lands—Occupancy tenant—Unauthorised transfer of part of land—Forfeiture by landlord—Statutes, construction of—Clauses involving forfeiture.

Where the occupancy tenant of Khoti land transfers a portion thereof without the consent of the landlord the latter is not entitled to take possession of the entire land comprising the tenancy under section 10 of the Khoti Settlement Act.

Per Shah, J.—In the case of an unauthorised transfer of any part of Khoti land by the occupancy tenant the consequences must be limited to the land transferred and cannot be reasonably extended to the entire holding or to all the lands comprised in the occupancy. For this purpose the smallest unit recognised by the Khoti Settlement Act must be taken, i. e., a Survey Number or a recognised sub division thereof, as defined by the Bombay Land Revenue Code.

The Courts must construe clauses of forfeiture in Statutes so as to involve the least interference with the existing rights consistently with the plain meaning of the words used by the Legislature.

Per Pratt, J.—The phrase "his land" in the penal part of section 10 of the Khoti Settlement Act means the portion of the land in the holding which is purported to be transferred or in which an interest is purported to be transferred.

Khoti Settlement Act—concld.

If there is any ambiguity in a Statute, the Courts may adopt that construction which avoids hardship or injustice. B MADHAVRAO MORESHWAR BHANDARKAR v. KRISHNAJI SATURAO RANE, 24 BOM. L. R. 131; 4 B. 470 277

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894)—Acquisition proceedings, commencement of—Owner of land, right of, to effect private sale, if determined.

The commencement of proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act for the acquisition of a piece of land does not estop the owner from entering into a binding agreement for a private sale of the same. Such an agreement can be enforced like any other contract. P. C. FORT PRESS CO., LTD. v. MUNICIPAL CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BOMBAY, 43 M. L. J. 419; 15 L. W. 154; 24 BOM. L. R. 1228; (1922) M. W. N. 798; 46 B. 767; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 365; 36 C. L. J. 559 980

——— s. 18—Compensation, measure of—Valuation of immoveable property—Hypothetical calculations, value of—Important points that arise on compulsory acquisition.

A purchase of property by a willing purchaser from a willing seller, is direct evidence of the market-value of the property, and when Government notifies its intention to compulsorily acquire a property, they are bound to offer what was given for the property, unless they are able to show conclusively that a fair value had not been given for the property here, however, the purchaser claims considerably more than what he gave for the property, he must show that in the neighbourhood there has been a general rise in the value of property between the date of his purchase and the date of the compulsory acquisition by Government

The valuation of immoveable property is not an exact science and the very best efforts of an expert or a Court to fix a market value for a property can never amount to much more than a quasi scientific guess which the Court should, in the case of compulsory acquisition, temper with liberality. Hypothetical calculations when put forward before a Court of first instance should be seriously considered, but they are usually of no assistance whatever in enabling it to come to a decision with regard to the market value of the property.

Where land is compulsorily acquired by Government under the Land Acquisition Act, the two most important questions that arise are:

(1) Whether the claimant has paid so high a price that a Court may consider that he has not displayed the ordinary caution which a purchaser of land should display.

(2) Whether there has been any increase in the value of property in the neighbourhood within the time which elapsed between his purchase and Government Notification, to show that the property is worth more than what he gave for it. B FRENCHMAN v. ASSISTANT COLLECTOR, HAVELI, 24 BOM. L. R. 782 (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 459 521

Landlord and tenant—Agricultural lease, expiry of before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act—Holding over, effect of—Stipulation in the original kabuliyat as to rate of interest, if enforceable—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 53, 54 cl. (3), 67.

The plaintiff brought a suit for arrears of rent in respect of an agricultural tenancy which had commenced with the execution of a registered kabuliyat for a term of three years on the 7th May 1896, the defendants in the suit were the sons and son-in-law of the executant of the kabuliyat and they or their predecessor had been holding over since the expiration of the first term of the kabuliyat The rent was payable partly in cash and partly in kind and the condition as to interest contained in the kabuliyat was that the tenant should pay interest at 6 pies per rupee per mensem on the cash rent and one kotta per rupee per month on the rent payable in paddy:

Held, that the provisions of section 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act were a bar to the plaintiff's getting any higher rate of interest than that provided in the section.

Section 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not limited in its application to a case where produce rent is paid quarterly.

Clause (3) of section 54 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not so exhaustive a definition which includes every kind of arrears of rent. It only deals with cases of rent payable in instalments. C BRAHMAMOYI DEBYA v. SOMARALI SHEIKH, (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 77 109

——— Dispossession of tenant by landlord from portion of holding—Suspension of rent.

A, B and C succeeded to a tenancy. A who was entitled to a 12-annas share took possession of the same. The landlord, not knowing the exact shares to which the heirs were entitled, made a settlement of an 8-annas share with B and C. The effect of this settlement was that A was unable to realize rent from some of the under-tenants who took advantage of the situation In a suit by the landlord to recover rent :

Held, that there was a dispossession of the principal defendant from a portion of the holding such as to cause a suspension of the rent of the same. C RAMANI KANTA ROY v HARA CHANDAR DAS 495

——— Lease for a term of years—Lessee put into possession—Legal documents not executed and registered—Lease, if can be surrendered before expiry of term—Lessor's remedy—Damages or rent.

When in pursuance of an agreement to transfer property, the intended transferee has taken possession, though the requisite legal documents have not been executed and registered the position is the same as if the documents had been executed, provided that specific performance can be obtained between the parties to the agreement in the same Court and at the same time as the subsequent legal question falls to be determined.

A lessee of a tenancy for a term of years is not entitled to terminate it by notice of surrender before the expiry of the term of the lease.

Where a contract of tenancy, under which rent is payable periodically is unlawfully brought to a premature termination by the tenant, the landlord is entitled only to damages and not to rent for the unexpired term of the lease Acceptance of surrender does not preclude the lessor from suing for damages for the breach of contract by the lessee, as it does not destroy the existing cause of action C JOGENDRA KRISHNA ROY v. KURPAL HARSHI & CO. 35 C. L J 75: 44 C. 345 993

——— Occupancy holding, non-transferable—Sale only of share, if entitles landlord to khas possession—Abandonment—Payment or offer of payment of rent by tenant, effect of.

A sale only of a share of a non-transferable occupancy holding does not entitle the landlord to khas possession unless it is shown that there has been an abandonment.

There can be no abandonment of a holding where there has been all along payment or offer of payment of rent by the tenant. C SARAT CHANDRA DE v MONORAMA DEBI 295

——— Partial transfers—Occupancy holding non-transferable—Usufructuary mortgage by tenant—No abandonment—Landlord, if entitled to enter—Execution of usufructuary mortgage—Abandonment.

A transfer by way of usufructuary mortgage stands on the same footing as other partial transfers.

Where there has been no abandonment by the tenant, the mere execution by him of a usufructuary mortgage in respect of a non-transferable occupancy holding, followed by possession of the mortgagee, does not entitle the landlord to re-enter on the holding or recover possession.

The mere execution of a usufructuary mortgage might not of itself be sufficient to establish abandonment. C AMBIKA DEBI v SWARNAMAYI DASI, (1932) A. I. R. (C.) 135 425

——— Rent fixed by contract, if can be raised by settlement of rent under Diara Act (XXXI of 1858), —Settlement of rent under Chap. X of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), effect of—Appeal.

A contract contained in a solenama between a landlord and a tenant under which the tenant is liable to pay rent at a certain rate, cannot be affected by the settlement of rent at a different rate under the Diara Act (XXXI of 1858). But if the rent fixed under the Diara Act is also the rent settled under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the tenant, in spite of the contract is liable to pay the rent settled under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C AMBICA CHARAN SEN v. GIRISH CHANDRA SEN 719

——— Tenancy, denial of, by landlord—Road Cess Return, admissibility of, in evidence—Batwara khasra, admissibility of—Batwara khasra if "record"—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 13, 35, applicability of

A Road Cess Return signed by a landlord is admissible as against him to prove the relationship of landlord and tenant.

A batwara khasra is not a "record" within the meaning of section 35 of the Evidence Act and an entry made therein of the name of a tenant in possession is not admissible to prove the fact of his tenancy.

There is nothing, however, to prevent a tenant from putting the batwara khasra in evidence under section 13 of the Evidence Act to show the past history of the land before the creation of the tenancy in his favour if that can in any way lend support to his contention. Pat SABUJ SARAN v. AMBIKA LAL 873

Landlord and tenant—concld.

Third person, suit for possession by, against tenant—Landlord not party to suit—Decree for possession by receipt of rent—Subsequent rent suit by landlord—Tenant, whether entitled to deduct rent paid to third person—Title paramount, eviction by, what is—Physical dispossession, whether necessary—Landlord's covenant for quiet enjoyment, meaning of—Tenant, whether entitled to be indemnified against acts of strangers—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 108 (c).

Eviction by title paramount means eviction by a title superior to the titles both of lessor and lessee against which neither is enabled to make a defence.

To constitute eviction by title paramount it is not necessary that there should be a forcible expulsion of the tenant, nor is it necessary that the tenant should actually go out of possession, and if, upon a claim being made by a person with title paramount, the tenant consents by an attornment to such person to change the title under which he holds or enters into a new arrangement for holding under him this will be equivalent to an eviction and a fresh taking. But an eviction, whether actual or constructive, must be by a party having a good title.

Section 108, clause (c) of the Transfer of Property Act, provides for an implied covenant to the lessee to hold a lease without interruption and the clause is wide enough to include disturbance of possession by a person with a paramount title. But it does not include a case of disturbance by persons having no lawful title or right of entry.

The plaintiff let out a certain plot of land to the defendant who obtained possession and was in possession, when a third party S. brought a suit for possession against him alone for a portion of that same land and obtained a decree for possession by receipt of rent In a suit by the plaintiff for rent the defence was that the defendant had been ejected from a portion of the land by a title paramount and that he was, therefore, entitled to a proportionate abatement of rent :

Held, (1) that, although S. had obtained a decree against the defendant, it could not be said that he had got a title superior to that of the plaintiff who was no party to the suit brought by S. and had no opportunity of showing that he had a title to the land and that, therefore, the defendant was not entitled to abatement of rent ;

(2) that the plaintiff, having once put the defendant in actual physical possession of the land, was not bound by any implied covenant to restore the defendant to possession unless it was shown that S. had a title superior to that of the plaintiff.

Obiter:—The express covenant for quiet enjoyment without any interruption or disturbance by the lessor, his heirs or assigns, even though followed by the words 'or by any other person or persons whomsoever,' does not extend to the unlawful acts of third persons having no title. C BANKA BEHARI GHOSH v. MADAN MOHAN ROY, 23 C. W. N. 143 477

Legal inference from facts, if may be examined in second appeal.

Legal inferences drawn from facts may be examined in second appeal. L GURDIT SINGH v. ISHAR KUAR, 3 L. 257; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 392 551

Letters Patent (Mad.), cl. 15—Decision on preliminary issue, whether judgment—Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), s. 13 (2).

The decision of a Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court on an issue set for trial before the rest of the suit is a judgment within cl 5 of the Letters Patent. M KANALAL BHOYA v. BALARAM PARAMSUKDOSS, 31 M. L. T. 284; 43 M. L. J. 450; 16 L. W. 608 921

Limitation, computation of—Appeal, limitation for—Appellant, if entitled to deduct period during which review application pending.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for preferring an appeal, the appellant is entitled to deduct the period during which an application for review was pending C PURNA CHANDRA v. MABUD BUKHSH 200 ———, law of, method of construing.

Inasmuch as the Law of Limitation restricts the enforcement of rights, it should be construed strictly, and if there is any doubt, the interpretation should be in favour of the right to proceed. L ANANT RAM v. INAYAT ALI KHAN, 2 L. L. J. 549 135

——— Mesne profits, decree for, affirmed on appeal—Application for determination of mesne profits—Limitation terminus a quo

Where a decree for mesne profits is affirmed on appeal, the limitation for an application for determination of mesne profits is to be computed from the date of the decree of the Appellate Court. O KUBER SINGH v. RAJ KUNWAR, 26 O. C. 132; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 197 896

Limitation Act (IX of 1903), s. 5—Period of limitation, extension of Revision.

Where a lower Appellate Court exercises the discretion conferred by section 5 of the Limitation Act and extends the prescribed period of limitation, a High Court cannot interfere under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. M PERUMAL MOOPAN v. VENKATACHARIAR. 15 L. W. 506; 42 M. L. J. 563; (1922) M. W. N. 263; 31 M. L. T. 35; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 193 910

——— s. 5—"Sufficient cause," what constitutes—Litigant acting on Counsel's incorrect advice—Time, extension of.

The English rule, that a mistake made by a Solicitor of a party, who is applying for an extension of time, is not a sufficient ground for extending it, is a salutary one and the Courts should ordinarily insist upon legal practitioners giving correct advice. But considering the present state of the profession, an honest mistake, even though a negligent one, ought not to be allowed to operate to the prejudice of clients.

What constitutes "sufficient cause" within the meaning of section 5 of the Limitation Act cannot be laid down by hard and fast rules, and must be determined on a reference to the circumstances of each case. The expression "sufficient cause" should be liberally construed, so as to advance substantial justice. An honest mistake made by a litigant upon incorrect advice given to him by his lawyer is a sufficient cause within the meaning of section 5 of the Act

Where an appellant is advised by his Vakil that copies of the judgment and decree of lower Appellate Court are sufficient for the purposes of his appeal to the High Court and he honestly believes that the advice given to him is correct and, consequently, makes a delay in the presentation of the copy of the judgment of the Court of first instance and asks that his appeal be admitted although the period of limitation has expired, such an honest mistake made by a litigant upon incorrect advice given to him by his lawyer is a sufficient cause within the meaning of section 5 of the Limitation Act and entitles him to have his appeal admitted A SHIB DAYAL v JAGANNATH PRASAD, 20 A. L. J. 674; 44 A. 636; (1922) A. I. R. A 490 12

——— ss. 5, 12—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 90-), s. 12?, O. XLI, r. 1—Appeal, second—Limitation—Time spent in obtaining copy of First Court's judgment, whether can be excluded—Extension of time—Sufficient cause.

Under section 12 of the Limitation Act the time requisite for obtaining the copy of the judgment on which the decree appealed against is founded can alone be excluded in computing the period of limitation In the case of a second appeal, therefore, the period spent in obtaining a copy of the First Court's judgment cannot be excluded under the provisions of this section, even where the Rules of the High Court require a copy of the First Court's judgment to be filed along with the memorandum of appeal

A High Court has power to alter, amend and add to rules of procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure according to section 122 of the Code, but it has no power to alter the period of limitation provided by the Limitation Act.

A Court is not bound to show indulgence to an appellant under section 5 of the Limitation Act, who has not been prompt in applying for copies L MADAN GOPAL v. MALAWA RAM 777

——— ss. 5, 14—Appeals, admission of, after limitation—Court whether may follow provisions of s. 14

In the exercise of its discretion under section 5 of the Limitation Act in regard to the admission of an appeal, the Court may very well be guided by the provisions of section 14 of the Act, although the same do not in terms apply to appeals. C KUMUDINI RAY v KAMALA KANT SEN, 35 C. L. J. 106; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 247 575

——— s. 12 (2)—Judgment delivered on last day before vacation—Application for copy made on first day after re-opening—Time requisite for obtaining copy—Vacation included.

The general rule is that the time requisite for obtaining a copy does not begin until an application for copy has been made.

Where, however, judgment is not delivered until the last day before the vacation and the application for copy is made on the first day after re-opening, it is only reasonable to include the vacation as part of the time requisite for obtaining the copy. O ABDUL GHAFFAR v. RASUL-UN-NISA, 25 O. C. 71; 9 O. L. J. 46; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 39 250

——— s. 12 (2)—Time requisite for obtaining copy of decree, how determined—Conduct of appellant.

In determining what is the requisite time for obtaining a copy of a decree, the conduct of an appellant must be considered. No period can be regarded as requisite under section 12 of the Limitation Act which need not have elapsed, if the appellant had acted with reasonable promptitude and taken reasonable and proper steps to obtain the copy. P. C. PRAMATHA NATH ROY v. WILLIAM ARTHUR LEE, 31 M. L. T. 193; 4 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 103; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 352; 43 M. L. J. 765; 27 C. W. N. 1?6 900

——— s. 13—Foreign territory—Basra, whether under administration of Government of India—Period of absence in Basra, exclusion of.

The fact that the territory of Basra was occupied by troops sent by the Government of India for the campaign in Mesopotamia and that the despatches relating to the operations of those troops were published in the Gazette of India, is insufficient to show that Basra was under the administration of the Government of India; for the purposes, therefore, of section 13 of the Limitation Act, absence in Basra is absence in a foreign territory, and a plaintiff is entitled to deduct the period of such absence from the period of limitation prescribed for a suit to recover on a pro-note executed by the absentee in British India. A FAKHRULLAH KHAN v. RAM SARUP, 20 A. L. J. 736; 4 U. P. L. R. A. 218 978

——— s. 18, application of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. XXI, R. 2 (3) 92+

——— s. 18, Sch. I, Art. 62—Fraud, plea of—Burden of proof—Party defrauded, right of, whether affected by lapse of time—Suit for money belonging to plaintiff received by defendant—Art 6?, application of—Appeal, second—New and inconsistent plea.

A person, who desires to invoke the aid of section 18 of the Limitation Act, must establish that there has been fraud and that by means of such fraud he has been kept from the knowledge of his right to sue or of the title whereon it is founded. Once this is established, the burden is shifted on to the other side to show that the plaintiff had knowledge of the transaction beyond the period of limitation. Such knowledge must be clear and definite knowledge of the facts constituting the particular fraud, it is not sufficient for the defendant to show that the plaintiff had some clues and hints which, perhaps, if vigorously and acutely followed up, might have led to a complete knowledge of the fraud

Where a remedy is given on the ground of fraud, it is governed by this important principle that the right of the party defrauded is not affected by lapse of time or, generally speaking, by anything done or omitted to be done, so long as he remains, without any fault of his own, in ignorance of the fraud that has been committed.

The form of suit indicated by Art. 62 of the Limitation Act is applicable where defendant has received money which, in justice and equity, belongs to plaintiff, under such circumstances as in law renders the receipt of it a receipt by the defendant to the plaintiff The Article most nearly approaches the formula of money had and received by the defendant for the plaintiff's use, if read as a description and apart from the technical qualifications imported in English Law and procedure.

A suit was brought to recover a certain sum of money deposited by the plaintiff's sister in law in a Bank through the defendant and withdrawn by the latter on her death In reply to the plaintiff' allegation that it had been misappropriated by the defendant, the latter repudiated the claim as unfounded and even denied that the money belonged to the plaintiff's sister-in-law. This fact was falsified by the information obtained by the plaintiff from the Bank. The defendant at last asked for permission in the second appeal to plead that he had been guilty of fraud and that as the plaintiff had been in full possession of the material facts for more than three years prior to the suit, the suit was time-barred:

Limitation Act, 1908—contd.

Held, that the suit was governed by Art 62 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act and would be barred except for the provisions of section 18 of the Act, to the benefit of which the plaintiff was entitled;

(ii) that the defendant could not be allowed to set up and establish a position which would be contradictory to what had hitherto been his defence. ⚖ BIMAN CHANDRA DUTTA v. PROMOTHO NATH GHOSE, 36 C. L. J. 295; 49 C. 886; ('922) A. I. R. (C.) 157 94

——— s. 19—Mortgage—Bond executed subsequently acknowledging liability to pay interest—Acknowledgment, whether extends to mortgagor's obligations under mortgage-deed.

An admission of liability to pay interest due on a mortgage-deed, contained in bonds executed subsequently, amounts to an acknowledgment of liability under the mortgage, including liability to give possession to the mortgagee L ANANT RAM v. INAYAT ALI KHAN, 2 L. L. J. 543 185

——— s. 20—Authorised agent—Judge paying decree-holder money deposited in Court by judgment-debtor—Judge signing paper indicating payment—"Agent duly authorised," construction of.

A sum of money was deposited in Court in part-payment of a decree and the Judge while paying it to the decree-holder signed a paper indicating the payment in his presence and through Court The decree-holder took out execution for the balance of the money due under the decree, within three years from the date of payment by the Court but more than three years from the date of the decree:

Held, (i) that the execution was within time, as the part-payment gave a fresh starting point of limitation under section 20 of the Limitation Act:

(ii) that the fact that the Judge signed a paper indicating the payment in his presence and through Court, satisfied the condition that the fact of payment should appear in the handwriting of the person making the same:

(iii) that a Court paying in the course of its duty the money due by judgment-debtor is also a legally constituted agent of the judgment-debtor for that purpose

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—In construing the words "agent duly authorised," Courts ought to be as liberal as possible The authorisation need not be a voluntary authorisation. The Law of Limitation is partly intended to promote diligence on the part of creditors in the matter of recovery of their debts. The provisions of sections 9 and 20 of the Limitation Act are intended to show that a creditor will not be penalised by the bar of limitation, if he had been diligent enough to get the handwriting of the debtor to evidence an acknowledgment of the fact of part-payment within the period of limitation. These sections, however, have not been based upon the fiction of an implied new promise to pay, for an acknowledgment signed by the party liable is sufficient, even when accompanied by a refusal to pay

Per Coutts Trotter, J—If a debtor's assets are so placed, either by his own act or by operation of law, that if some one other than he alone can realise them for the purpose of making payments due from him, then the act of that other in operating upon the debtor's assets must be treated as the act of the debtor himself, the volition of the debtor in such a case being neither requisite nor relevant. M GOVINDASAMI PILLAI v. DASAI GOUNDAN, 14 L. W. 3 0; (1921) M. W. N. 68?; 41 M. L. J. 423; 44 M. 971 100

——— Sch. I, Art. 9—'Plaintiff' in Col. III, meaning of—Proof of knowledge, onus as to.

A suit to set aside a deed of gift for undue influence is governed by Art. 91 of the Limitation Act.

The cessation of undue influence has no relevancy on the question of limitation, unless the matter could be brought under the heading of fraud so as to attract the operation of section 18 of the Limitation Act.

In cases to which Art. 9 of the Limitation Act is applicable the onus is not on the defendant to prove that the plaintiff's knowledge arose more than 3 years before suit

The word 'plaintiff' in Art. 91, column 3, includes his predecessor. M RAJARAJESWARA SETHUPATHI AVERGAL v. KUPPUSAMI IYER, 41 M. L. J. 474; (1921) M. W. N. 722 352

——— ——— Arts. 11, 11A—"Person against whom," meaning of.

The opening words of Art. 11 of the Limitation Act, namely "a person against whom" include a decree-holder. A BHIKHARI DAS v. ABDULLAH, (1922 A. I. R. (A.) 403; 20 A. L. J. 578; 44 A 607 241

——— ——— Art. 11A, applicability of.

See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. XXI, RR 98, 99, 102, 103 524

——— ——— Arts. 30, 31—"Against a carrier for losing or injuring goods," meaning of—Loss, time of, proof of—Onus—Non-delivery of goods—No refusal to deliver—Limitation, operation of—Reasonable time for delivery

Art 30 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act refers to losing or injuring goods by the Carrier, and not by the consignee, that is to say, time begins to run from the time when the Carrier lost or injured the goods, and not from the time when the consignee may be said to have suffered loss The words "against a Carrier for losing or injuring goods", obviously suggest not a mere loss of goods to the owner, which might be caused by non-delivery, but an actual losing of goods by the Carrier himself, and the burden of proving that the goods were lost more than one year before the institution of a suit for damages, is on the Carrier

There is no inflexible rule that, in an action to recover damages for non-delivery of goods against a carrier, time, under Art. 31 of Sch I to the Limitation Act, must begin to run from the expiry of the ordinary period of transit.

In an action for damages for non-delivery of goods consigned to a Railway Company, where no time is fixed for delivery, if the correspondence between the parties shows that the matter was being inquired into and that there was no refusal to deliver well within a year of the suit, Art 31 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act cannot be pleaded as a bar, for, in such a case, it cannot be said that the suit was brought more than a year from the expiry of a reasonable time within which the goods should have been delivered. A JUGAL KISHORE v. GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY, 10 A. L. J. 792; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 219 981

——— Sch. I, Arts. 44, 144—Hindu Law—Alienation by co-parcener of minor co-parcener's share—Suit by minor to recover possession—Limitation

A suit by a co-parcener in a Hindu joint family to recover possession of his share of the property alienated during the plaintiff's minority by another co-parcener who purported to act as, but was not in fact, the guardian of the plaintiff is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 44 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act. L SUNDER v. SHIAMAN, (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 286 731

——— ——— Arts. 57, 64, 85—Suit to recover money from agent after balance struck—Limitation.

Plaintiffs alleging that the defendants were their gumashtas set forth in their plaint that by agreement between the parties the plaintiffs financed the defendants and took with them an equal share in profit and loss on the defendants' transactions On the other hand, inasmuch as the plaintiffs financed the defendants, defendants undertook to pay interest. The plaint further recited a series of transactions terminating in the striking of a balance by the defendants in the plaintiffs' favour. Plaintiffs brought a suit upon the account supported by the acknowledgment:

Held, (1) that although there had been a mutual and current account between the parties, it was not open and current at the time of the suit, and that, therefore, the suit was not governed by Art 85 of Sch I to the Limitation Act;

(2) that if the suit was regarded as one for money payable for money found to be due on an account stated, it was governed by Art 64 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act;

(3) that if it was regarded as a suit for money payable for money lent, or as a suit for the re-payment of principal and interest less any credit due to the defendants in respect of profit on transactions effected by the defendants, then Art. 57 of Sch. I of the Limitation Act would be applicable. L FIRM GURDAS RAM-KOTU RAM v. BHAGWAN DAS, (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 82 815

——— ——— Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Test of mutuality—Shifting balance.

Where one party only makes payments to, or for, or on account of, the other and that other only from time to time makes payment in re-payment, the accounts cannot be said to be mutual within the meaning of Art. 85 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act.

The test of mutuality is the presence in the accounts of a shifting balance sometimes in favour of one side and sometimes in favour of the other, but its absence is not conclusive proof against mutuality. The fact that the balance no longer shifted is not in itself sufficient to justify the conclusion that the account had ceased to be a mutual, open and current account. L B ARUNACHALLAM CHETTY v. SOMASUNDARAM CHETTY, 11 L. B. R. 369 928

——— Sch. I, Arts. 89, 115, 116, 132—Suit for accounts—Limitation—"Moveables," if include money—Termination of agency—Question of fact—Omission to render accounts—Refusal

Art 89 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act, applies to a suit for accounts by a principal against his rent collector, as the term "moveable property" in that Article includes money.

To make Art. 116 of Sch I to the Limitation Act applicable, it must be shown, as provided in Art 115, that the suit is of a nature not specifically provided for in the Schedule.

The question whether an agency has terminated within the meaning of Art. 89 of the Limitation Act is a question of fact

An omission to render accounts where accounts are demanded may operate as refusal.

When a suit for accounts is decreed, the accounts are not necessarily restricted to the three years preceding the institution of the suit or three years preceding the termination of the agency. But where by reason of the happening of events the claim for accounts up to a certain date is barred by limitation at the date of the institution of the suit, the defendant can only be called upon to render accounts only in relation to transactions which took place after that date.

Obiter—Where immoveable property is hypothecated to secure the performance of an obligation undertaken by an agent, a suit by the principal may in essence be regarded as a suit to enforce a charge on immoveable property within the meaning of Art 132 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act and may, consequently, be governed by the period of 12 years provided by that Article. C PRANRAM MOOKERJEE v. JAGADISH NATH RAY, 35 C. L. J. 41; 26 C. W. N. 61; 47 C. 250; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 355 562

——— ——— rt. 106. See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 253 (10) 722

——— ——— Art. 116—Vendor and purchaser—Sale-deed, construction of—Covenant for title and quiet enjoyment, breach of—Damages, suit for—Limitation, starting point of—Cause of action.

A sale-deed executed by defendant and another to plaintiff contained the following covenant: "If there is any dispute in respect of this by Gnatis, Samantas and others, etc., we shall settle them out of our expense and we shall be bound to carry out this sale without obstruction." The other vendor's son sued plaintiff for recovery of half the land comprised in the sale and obtained a decree in 1916 The present suit was filed by plaintiff in 1917 for recovery of half the sale price:

Held, that even assuming that there was no covenant for quiet enjoyment there was clearly a covenant for title and the suit would be governed by Article 116 of the Limitation Act. M SISTLA SUBBAYYA v. PATA PITCHANNA, (1922) M. W. N. 420 190

Limitation Act, 1908- contd.

——— Sch. I, Art. 120. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, 1885, s. 111A 489

——— ——— Art. 132, applicability of. See MORTGAGE 707

——— ——— Art. 134—Transfer of title by mortgagee—Mortgaged property under ownership of Hindu widow—Reversioner, suit by, to recover possession—Limitation—Reversioner's disability, nature of—Acquiescence by female owner, effect of—Art. 141, application of.

Where the mortgagee of an estate in the ownership of a Hindu widow transfers absolute title to the same, the reversioner must bring a suit for recovery of possession under Art. 134 of Sch I to the Limitation Act, as Art. 141 has no application to such a case.

Per Spencer, J.—A reversioner's disability to sue for possession while a Hindu female is the owner in possession of the estate is not on the same footing as disability of a minor, an idiot, or an insane person in whose favour an extra period of limitation has been allowed for instituting their suits, whatever may be the Article applicable to a suit of the same description by a person not so disabled

A female owner's acquiescence in the transfer of an estate made by the mortgages will not amount to an act of alienation which a reversioner on succeeding to the estate can sue to set aside.

The expression "hereby otherwise specially provided for" in Art. 144 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act, indicates that that Article is the residuary Article for suits for the possession of immoveable property, but before a plaintiff can have resort to this Article, he must first show that Art. 134 is inapplicable.

Per Ramesam, J.—Art 141 covers only those cases in which the cause of action is simply the death of the female and the only obstacle to the reversioner seeking to obtain possession is either an act of the female or her inaction—in either case resulting in the loss of possession to a stranger and the need of a suit on behalf of the reversioner. But this Article applies only when the suit is of a kind not described in Arts. 134, 135, 138, 140, 142 and 143.

The object of Art. 134 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act is to cut down the period available to the mortgagor under Art. 48 and to compel him to watch the conduct of the mortgagee and to intervene on a transfer.

Though it is true that a reversioner cannot sue to redeem during the lifetime of a widow, yet if the intervening female's conduct is such as to raise an apprehension that the property will never be redeemed or altogether lost, a reversioner can maintain an action for the preservation of the property. M NARAYANASAMI NAICKER v PERIASAMY ODAYAR, 14 L. W. 116; (1922) M. W. N. 465; 43 M. L. J. 163; 44 M. 951 734

——— ——— Art. 139—Tenant holding over—Adverse possession - Landlord, suit for possession by—Limitation.

A tenant who holds over cannot set up adverse title to the landlord, nevertheless under Art. 139 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act, the latter can only recover possession if he sues within 12 years. A DEBI PRASAD v. GUJAR, 20 A. L. J. 696; (1922) A. I. R. (A) 423 750

——— Sch. I, Arts. 141, 144—Suit by reversioners for possession of immoveable property—Adverse possession—Limitation.

A suit by the reversioners of a deceased person, for possession of immoveable property originally owned by him, against the person in occupation, would be governed by Art. 141 of the Limitation Act, unless the defendant could show that adverse possession started in the lifetime of the deceased. L CHANAN SINGH v SALIG RAM, 36 P. L. R. 1922 177

——— ——— Art. 144—Proof of title by plaintiff—Burden on defendant to prove possession for over 12 years before suit—Constructive possession—Title—Constructive possession always follows title.

In cases falling under Art 144 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act, it is not incumbent on the plaintiff to establish possession within 12 years of suit. He has to prove title and it then rests on the defendant to prove that he and those under whom he claims have been in possession for over twelve year before suit. N SAKHARAM v. DEOBA 320 ——— ——— Arts. 165, 181—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 100—Application by judgment-debtor for restoration of excess property delivered in execution—Limitation.

An application under O XXI, r. 100 of the Civil Procedure Code for restoration of excess property delivered in execution, is, where the applicant is the judgment-debtor, governed by Art. 181 and not Art. 165 of the Limitation Act. B RASUL MALIK PINJAR v AMINA HANIF, 24 BOM. L. R. 771; (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 271; 45 B. 1031 349

——— ——— Arts. 174, 181, application of. See EXECUTION OF DECREE 783

——— ——— Arts. 181, 182. See APPLICATION FOR POSSESSION BY PURCHASER, NOT STEP-IN-AID OF EXECUTION 635

——— ——— Arts. 181, 182—Preliminary decree—Amendment after expiry of limitation for applying for final decree—Final decree, application for—Extension of time.

The holder of a preliminary decree applied for amendment of the same on the ground that the sum as entered in the decree was less than that granted by the judgment. The application was made after the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed for applying for a final decree. The Court made the amendment as desired The decree-holder preferred an application for a final decree counting the limitation from the date of the amendment:

Held, that the application was not maintainable as the decree-holder by postponing his amendment till after the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed for making the preliminary decree final, could not revive his right to obtain a final decree by reason of such a variation in the preliminary decree. N NANEHLAL v GULSHAN RAI, 18 N. L. R. 58; (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 217 919

——— ——— Art. 182—Execution of decree—Incompetent appeal by judgment-debtor—Limitation, running of, whether suspended.

Limitation Act, 1908—concld.

The running of limitation against a decree-holder is not suspended by reason of an incompetent appeal by the judgment-debtor, such as an appeal against an order dismissing his application for review against the decree. C RAM RATAN v. UPENDRA CHANDRA 727

——— Art. 182 (2)—"Appeal," meaning of—Appeal against order dismissing application to set aside ex parte decree whether included.

The words "where there has been an appeal" in clause 2 of the Art. 182 of the Second Schedule to the Limitation Act mean an appeal from the decree or order sought to be executed, and do not include an appeal from an order dismissing an application to set aside an ex parte decree. N JABARKHAN v. RAHIMKHAN, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 197; 18 N. L. R. 190 728

——— Art. 182 (5)—Decree transferred to another Court—Application for further transfer made to First Court not step-in-aid of execution.

When a Court which has passed a decree transfers it for execution to another Court, an application for transfer to still another Court should be made to the Court to which the decree has already been transferred. Such an application made to the First Court cannot be treated as a step-in-aid of execuion, as it ceases to be the proper Court within the meaning of Sch. I, Art. 182 (5) of the Limitation Act, as soon as it has transferred the decree B RANGASWAMI SHETTI v SHESHAPPA MANJAPPA SHIMPI, 24 BOM. L. R. 798; (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 359 566

Local inspection—Magistrate, power of, to view the locus in quo for understanding evidence taken.

It is legitimate for a Magistrate trying a case to make a local inspection at the request of the parties and in the presence of their leaders for the purpose of enabling him to understand the evidence which had been taken in the case. C AZIZ MANDAL v. GIRISH CHANDRA CHOUDHURY, 23 CR. L. J. 502 38

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908)—Affirmation of old customary law—New right, creation of, by Act to settle disputes between landlord and tenant.

In declaring the rights of occupancy raiyats and emphasizing the distinction between a landlord's "private lands" and "raiyati lands", the Madras Estates Land Act affirmed the old customary law that has always been recognised by the British Administration Apart from the rules relating to procedure and jurisdiction of Revenue Courts, it created one new right in order to settle the constant disputes between landlords and tenants and gave occupancy rights to all raiyats in occupation of lands within an "estate" at the time it was passed. It also declared and gave statutory recognition to existing rights and status These remarks do not apply to raiyatwari tracts in the direct possession of Government which are let out to mirasidari or hereditary raiyats for purposes of cultivation. P C CHIDAMBARA SANNADHIGAL v. VEERAMA REDDI, 31 M. L. T. 54; 16 L. W. 102; 45 M. 586; (1923) M. W. N. 74; 43 M. L. J. 640; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 292 538

——— s. 3 (3)—"Holding" whether means ascertained holding—Co-tenants—Ejectment suit—Suit for ascertainment of shares in holding—Civil Court, jurisdiction of.

Under the Madras Estates Land Act a tenant cannot sue for ejectment of his co-tenant in the case of an unascertained holding, for the definition of the word "holding" in section 3 (3) of that Act shows that only ascertained holdings are contemplated by it.

Therefore, although in the case of a tenancy-in-common, a tenant cannot bring a suit for ejectment of his co-tenant in a Civil Court, yet he can sue for ascertainment of his share in the holding in that Court to enable him to bring the ejectment suit in the Revenue Court. M DUVVURY RAMAMURTHY v. PABBINEEDI BULLIRAJU, 41 M. L. J. 431; 14 L. W. 500 907

Madras High Court Original Side Rules, r. 63 (a), scope of.

Per Schwabe, C. J.—Rule 63 (a) of the Original Side Rules includes all documents in the nature of negotiable instruments specifically described in it and the questions of how far a particular Bill of Exchange might be negotiable or what the restrictions might be on its negotiability are alien to the rule. M KANALAL BHOYA v BALARAM PARAMSUKDOSS, 31 M. L. T. 284; 43 M. L. J. 480; 16 L. W. 603 941

Majority Act (IX of 1875), s. 2—Muhammadan Law—Guardian for marriage—Majority.

The age of majority of a Muhammadan guardian, so far as his capacity for giving a person in marriage is concerned, is to be determined by the Muhammadan Law, and such age under that law is fifteen years. L YUSAF v ZAINAB 727

Mamlatdars' Courts Act (Bom. II of 1906), s. 5, Explanation—Ouster by co-owner, whether amounts to dispossession—Jurisdiction of Mamlatdar to award joint possession.

A Mamlatdar has no jurisdiction to award joint possession under Bombay Act II of 1906.

The meaning of the explanation to section 5 of the Mamlatdars' Courts Act is that any action of one co-owner who has rights over the whole property, although it may interfere with the joint ownership of his co-owner, does not amount to dispossession under the Act, and it was not intended that ouster by one co-owner of the other should amount to dispossession within the meaning of the Act, so as to entitle the Mamlatdar to award joint possession. B JINA JIBHAI v. MATHUR JIBHAI, 23 BOM. L. R. 1016; 45 B. 289. (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 126 225

Martial Law Ordinance (II of 1921), cls. 6, 16—Offence committed in Martial Law Area—Arrest of offender outside area, legality of—Summary Magistrate, remand by, of offender arrested outside Martial Law Area, legality of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, ss. 54, 58, 60. 177, 491 26

——— ss. 6, 7—Offence, commission of, in Martial Law area—Trial by Summary Magistrate outside area, legality of—Habeas corpus, writ of, issue of, to jailor of prison where prisoner confined, validity of—Jurisdiction.

The trial of a person for an offence committed in the Martial Law area proclaimed under Ordinance II of 1921 by a Summary Magistrate holding his Court outside such area is illegal and a conviction following thereon is liable to be set aside.

In case of such conviction the High Court has power to interfere by the issue of a writ of habeas corpus to the jailor of the jail in which the prisoner is confined. M ERADA PADINHAREDIL GOVINDAN, In re, 16 L. W. 349; 43 M. L. J. 356; 31 M. L. T. 304; 24 CR. L. J. 614 (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 499 838

Mesne profits, application for ascertainment of—Venue—Application, nature of—Interest—Discretion—High Court, power of, to interfere

The proper Court in which to institute proceedings for the ascertainment of mesne profits is the Court passing the decree, even though the claim exceeds the ordinary pecuniary jurisdiction of such Court

An application for ascertainment of mesne profits decreed is not a suit, but a proceeding in a suit, consequently, where mesne profits are decreed, the plaintiff is entitled to such profits for three years before the date of the suit.

It is entirely within the discretion of a Court to fix the rate of interest decreed, and the High Court will not, in second appeal, interfere with that discretion. Pat SURAJ PRASAD v. SOMAR MAHTO, 2 P. L. T. 648 903

Minor, sale in favour of, validity of—Minor, whether can sue for possession of property sold.

There is nothing in the law to prevent a minor becoming a transferee of immoveable property and a minor in whose favour a valid deed of sale has been executed is competent to sue for possession of the property conveyed thereby. N BALKRISHNA v. LAKHU, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 239 191

Mortgage—Covenant postponing redemption, when amounts to clog on equity of redemption—Redemption before expiry of term, when allowed.

A covenant postponing redemption for a long term need not necessarily of itself amount to a clog on the equity of redemption, but the effect of all the conditions in the deed must be considered as a whole, and if those conditions would result in making redemption very difficult, if not impossible, at the end of the term, a Court may ignore the covenant postponing redemption and may allow redemption at any time on such terms as it thinks fit. O KUNJ BEHARI LAL v. PRAG NARAYAN, 9 O. L. J. 294; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 283 529

——— Perpetual lease in favour of mortgagee—Same transaction—Clog on redemption

Where a perpetual lease by a mortgagor in favour of the mortgagee of the property mortgaged and the mortgage form one and the same transaction, the lease acts as a clog on the equity of redemption and the Courts are bound on principles of equity to relieve against it N VITHAL v. BHOLU 237

——— Redemption—Long term—Clog—Usufructuary mortgage for long term—Term, particular, void and unenforceable, effect of—Mortgage, whether invalid as a whole.

A long term in a mortgage does not necessarily amount to a clog on the equity of redemption It only does so where it is such as to render redemption practically impossible or where the bargain is unconscionable and the long term is unaccompanied by any corresponding advantage to the mortgagor. A long term in a usufructuary mortgage is less likely to operate as a clog on redemption than in any other class of mortgage, because redemption is effected on payment of a fixed sum and there is no danger of arrears of interest mounting up to an extent which may far exceed the value of the property.

Where in consideration of a reduction of interest a long term is agreed upon between the parties to a usufructuary mortgage and the other terms are also such as are naturally incident to a possessory mortgage for a long term, there is no clog on equity of redemption.

The fact that a particular covenant in a mortgage, (e. g, that the mortgage is not to be redeemed with borrowed money, is void and unenforceable does not invalidate the mortgage as a whole. O ZULFIQAR ALI v. SURAJ PRASAD, 9 O. L. J. 365; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 221 998

——— Subrogation—Purchaser of equity of redemption paying off incumbrances—Subrogation, right to, on sale being set aside—Suit to enforce security—Limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 132, applicability of.

The right of subrogation can be claimed only by a person who, though not primarily liable to discharge a debt, discharges it for his own protection or at the request of the party ultimately bound. It cannot be claimed by a mortgagor or any other person who has assumed the payment of the mortgage-debt without having any interest to protect

However, a purchaser of the mortgaged premises, not under a covenant to pay, who pays off incumbrances on the property becomes entitled to the benefit of the securities when the purchase is afterwards set aside,

A suit seeking to enforce such securities is governed by Art. 132, Schedule I, to the Limitation Act and must be brought within 12 years from the date of the mortgage.

Subrogation is, in most cases, rather an additional remedy than an additional right and may exist concurrently with and as a further security to the right to a simple action for reimbursement.

A second mortgagee paying off a prior mortgagee neither "acquires" a charge on the property nor does he acquire it on the date on which he pays off the prior mortgagee. The charge is already there; all that he acquires is a right to enforce the charge and to a cession in his favour of the securities held by the prior mortgagee. Pat SIDHANAND MISRA v. JAGMOHAN LAL, 3 P. L. T. 533; (1922) PAT. 331; (1922 A. I. R. (PAT.) 499; 1 PAT. 780 707

——— Subsequent invalid sale by mortgagor—Mortgagee, adverse possession by.

A mortgagee cannot rely upon the twelve years' rule of limitation in support of a plea of adverse possession unless he can prove a subsequent valid sale.

Where one of several mortgagors effects a sale of the equity of redemption the mortgagee cannot set up the plea of adverse possession as against those mortgagors whose shares have been illegally sold. L AMIR v. NADIR ALI 733

Mortgage decree for sale—Execution—Claim to mortgaged property, if entertainable—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 58, applicability of.

Mortgage decree—concld.

It is not open to an Execution Court to entertain and adjudicate upon a claim to property under O. XXI, r. 58 of the Code of Civil Procedure in the course of executing a mortgage-decree which contains a provision that the property in question should be sold. C MAHABIR PRASAD SINGH v. NOGENDRA NATH MANDAL, 26 C. W. N. 50 271

Mortgagee in possession, duty of.

Where a mortgagee is put in possession of the mortgaged property the intention of the parties is that the land shall be properly cultivated and that the mortgagee shall put it to the best use, so that a fair amount of profits may be realised and credited towards interest due on the principal mortgage debt. L ZORA v. CHANDU 883

Muhammadan Law—Legitimacy—Acknowledgment.

The rule of legitimation by acknowledgment permitted by the Muhammadan Law applies only when the alleged marriage is uncertain, that is, not proved, but no benefit can be derived from this rule when it is found as a fact that the alleged marriage never took place. L HUSSAIN BAKHSH v. JHANDA SINGH, (1922) A. I. R. L.) 460 749 ——— Lien for unpaid dower on husband's property in possession of wife—Lien, nature and extent of.

The lien of a divorced Muhammadan wife or widow for unpaid dower attaches her to her husband's property in her possession. No lien exists during the continuance of the marriage relation M NARAYANA AIYAR v. BIYARI BIVI, (1922) A. I. R. (M) 221; 14 L. W. 524; 41 M. L. J. 557; (1921) M. W. N. 808; 45 M 103 673

——— Sunni—Gift—Will—Distinction—Gift, essentials of—Usufruct, reservation of, by donor—Possession, constructive, by donee—Registration—Zemindari estate—Mutation of names—Construction of document—Gift or Will—Taluqdari law—Primogeniture sanads—"Successor," meaning of.

In Muhammadan Law the broad distinction between a gift hiba and a bequest wasiat is that in the case of a gift the immediate right of property in the subject-matter of the gift is conferred and in the case of a bequest the vesting of the right of property is postponed.

For a valid gift inter vivos under the Muhammadan Law three conditions are necessary:—( ) manifestation of the wish to give on the part of the donor, ( ) the acceptance of the donee, either expressly or impliedly, and ( ) the taking of possession of the subject-matter of the gift by the donee, either actually or constructively.

The reservation of usufruct by a donor does not by itself make a gift of the property void under Muhammadan Law.

A Taluqdar made a gift to the following effect: "I have gifted my moveable and immoveable property, all my Zemindari and lambardari estate, etc. to M with the exception of the villages set out below which will remain in my possession for the duration of my life and dependent relatives free of rent and Government revenue . such villages will be kept by me without transfer by mortgage or sale or gift for my lifetime and after my death the donee will be the proprietor malik of the aforesaid excepted property whose revenue the donee will pay from the Ilaqa, and will pay all the debts outstanding against the estate." M did not take physical possession of the excepted villages till after the death of the donor nor did he apply for mutation of names in his favour in respect of them. He, however, obtained mutation of names in his favour of all the other Zemindari property and paid the Government revenue which became due in respect of the taluqdari part of the entire property :

Muhammadan Law—contd.

Held, (1) that the document could not even in regard to the excepted property be regarded in any respect as a Will but was a deed of gift inter vivos;

(2) that the whole Zemindari property mentioned in the deed must be regarded as one property, the taking possession of any part of which being constructively a taking possession of the whole.

(3) that the actual physical possession of the donee over a portion of the zemindari estate and the mutation of names in respect thereof and the payment of Government revenue by him in respect of the taluqdari part of the entire estate must be regarded as amounting to constructive possession of the donee over the whole property, subject of the gift in question, and that the gift of the excepted villages was also consequently valid.

In considering what is the Muhammadan Law on the subject of gifts inter vivos it must be borne in mind that when the old and admittedly authoritative texts of Muhammadan Law were promulgated there were not in the contemplation of any one any Transfer of Property Acts, any Registration Acts, any Revenue Courts to record transfers of the possession of land or any zemindari estates, large or small, and that it could not have been intended to lay down for all time what should alone be the evidence that titles to lands had passed. The object of the Muhammadan Law as to gifts apparently was to prevent disputes as to whether the donor and the donee intended at the time that the title to the property should pass from the donor to the donee, and that the handing over by the donor and the acceptance by the donee of the property should be good evidence that the property had been given by the donor and had been accepted by the donee as a gift.

The word "successors" in a primogeniture sanad means those designated persons who would succeed in the event of an intestacy and not persons who may take by sale, gift or bequest. P. C. ABDUL GHANI KHAN v. FAKHR JAHAN BEGAM, 25 C. W. N. 95; 31 M. L. T. 21; 44 A. 201; 9 O. L. J. 369; 43 M. L. J. 453; 24 Bom. L. R. 1265; 27 C. W. N. 53; 20 A. L. J. 94; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 281 254

——— Trust property—Power of Mutwalli. See RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS ACT, 1863, s. 7 764

——— Widow in possession of husband's property in lieu of dower-debt—Right to transfer lien apart from dower-debt—Construction of sale-deed—Transfer of dower-debt.

A Muhammadan widow in possession of her husband's estate in lieu of her unsatisfied dower cannot transfer the lien on the property without also transferring her dower-debt as the lien is not an interest in property which can be severed from the right to dower and transferred as a separate interest.

Muhammadan Law—concld.

The widow may, however, as long as she does not transfer the dower-debt or that debt remains undischarged, transfer for her lifetime, the possession of the property the proceeds of which belong to her until the debt is paid off. The possession of the transferee in such a case might constructively be regarded as the possession of the widow.

A sale-deed executed by a Muhammadan widow after reciting that the widow was in possession of the property of her deceased husband, "by virtue of inheritance and in lieu of dower" purported to transfer to the vendee, "the whole and entire property owned and possessed by me together with all rights and appurtenances" It further added, "In short, the proprietary interest and all rights, title and interest which I had in the vended properties have under this sale-deed been transferred from me and become extinguished in so far as I am concerned and have devolved on and vested in the said purchaser and his heirs and representatives":

Held, that the deed transferred simply the share to which the widow was entitled in the property of her deceased husband as an heir and not the dower-debt. Pat ABDUR RAHMAN v. WALI MOHAMMAD, (1922) PAT. 313 601

Murder—Jury, method of charging.

In charging a Jury in a trial for murder, and in directing them as to what constitutes murder, the Judge should refer to the sections of the Penal Code which relate to culpable homicide, and direct the Jury as to what is culpable homicide, and in what circumstances culpable homicide amounts to murder. To direct the Jury that "murder is the intentional killing of another human being with malice aforethought," although a comprehensive way of describing what the meaning of murder is, is not the way in which a Jury ought to be charged, and amounts to a misdirection C EMPEROR v. DURGA CHARAN BEPARI, 36 C. L. J. 171; 26 C. W. N. 1002; 23 CR. L. J. 567 (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 124 407

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), s. 4—Promissory-note—Instrument containing unconditional undertaking to pay certain sum with interest annually, whether pro-note.

An instrument in writing which contains an unconditional undertaking to pay a certain sum of money with interest annually is not a promissory-note within the meaning of section 4 of the Negotiable Instruments Act. L JOTI PARSHAD v. BRIJ RAJ SHARAN, 52 P. L. R. 1922; 4 U. P. L. R. (L.) 97 461

——— s. 13 (2). See LETTERS PATENT (MAD.) CL. 15 921

——— s. 48 (a)—Pro-note — Consideration — Presumption — Onus of proof.

Although under the law there is a presumption that the maker of a pro-note has received the consideration for it, yet if the statement of the plaintiff's agent as to consideration is altogether inconsistent with the plaintiff's allegation in his plaint, the onus will shift to the plaintiff, and he must prove that consideration passed. L SIRAJ-UD-DIN v. CHAMPO, 3 L. L. J. 439 443

Notice, constructive—Registration.

Registration does not operate as constructive notice and a purchaser from an ostensible owner whose title-deeds are themselves complete is not bound to search the registration office to see if the original owner may not have given a title to somebody else N KASTURIBAI v BALIRAM 732

——— to quit—Delay in suing for ejectment, effect of—Fresh notice not necessary.

Where a notice to quit is served upon a tenant his possession thereafter is that of a trespasser. Mere inaction on the part of a landlord to sue for ejectment after a notice to quit has been served on a tenant, does not amount to acquiescence of his possession as a tenant on the part of the landlord, as no fresh notice is necessary. N YESHWANT v. SHIWAPPA 178

Official Assignee, rights of. See INSOLVENCY 898

Opium Act (I of 1878), ss. 3, 9—"Opium," whether includes morphia.

Though morphia is not a preparation or admixture of opium, yet it is an intoxicating drug prepared from the poppy and, as such, fulfills the requirements of the definition of "opium" contained in section 3 of the Opium Act. L EMPEROR v. ROBINSON, 3 L. 230; 24 CR. L. J. 580; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 216 612

Order dismissing execution petition for default if appealable.

No appeal lies from an order dismissing an application for execution on account of the decree-holder's failure to prosecute it. Pat GOUR CHANDRA ROY v JANARDAN PRASHAD THANUR 337

Ostensible owner—Alienation—Suit by real owner to recover property—Notice of title—Burden of proof—Question of fact, decision on—Decision, when not final.

In order to allow the real owner of property to recover from an alienee the property taken from a person allowed by the real owner to hold himself out as the owner, he must prove either direct or constructive notice of the title or the existence of circumstances which ought to have put the purchaser on an enquiry which if prosecuted would have led to a discovery of the real title.

Ordinarily, a decision on a question of fact is final, but when it is shown that that decision was reached without assessing the evidence on the record at its proper value and that, while appraising that evidence, various important factors were not considered, the decision cannot be accepted as final. N LALSINGH v PARSHRAM, (1922 A. I. R. (N.) 226 332

Oudh Estates Act (I of 1869), ss. 22 (11), 23—Succession—'Ordinary law," meaning of.

The expression 'ordinary law,' referred to in section 23 of the Oudh Estates Act, is the law which would govern the parties apart from the Statute, and includes any Sanad giving title to the property in dispute. P. C. BADRI NARAIN SINGH v. HARNAM KUAR, 44 A. 449; 31 M. L. T. 196; 4 O. L. J. 425; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 289; 27 C. W. N. 129; 25 O. C. 313 1000

Parda-nashin lady, transactions with—Principles applicable—Persons standing in relation of personal confidence—Absolute strangers—Independent and competent advice, what is.

Parda-nashin lady—contd.

All transactions with parda-nashin ladies fall broadly into two groups, namely, first, cases where the person who seeks to hold the lady to the terms of the transaction is one who stood towards her in a fiduciary character or some relation of personal confidence and, secondly, cases where such person was an absolute stranger and dealt with her at arm's length. In the former class of cases, the Court will act with great caution and will presume confidence put and influence exerted: in the latter class of cases, the Court will require the confidence and influence to be proved intrinsically. The fairness of the bargain is the crucial test

The Court, when called upon to deal with a deed executed by a parda-nashin lady, must satisfy itself upon the evidence, first, that the deed was actually executed by her or by some person duly authorised by her, with a full understanding of what she was about to do: secondly, that she had full knowledge of the nature and effect of the transaction into which she is said to have entered and thirdly, that she had independent and disinterested advice in the matter.

The circumstances under which a parda-nashin woman agrees to transfer property in which she is interested must be carefully examined in order to ascertain that she had independent advice and that the lady had sufficient intelligence to understand the relevant and important matters, that she did understand them as they were explained to her, that nothing was concealed, and that there was no undue influence or misrepesentation

It is not necessary to insist upon a test which depends upon a clear understanding of each detail of a matter which may be greatly involved in legal technicalities: it is sufficient that the general result of the transaction should be understood and that people disinterested and competent to give advice should, with a fair understanding of the whole matter, advise the lady.

Independent and competent advice does not mean independent and competent approval; it simply means that the advice should be removed entirely from the suspected atmosphere, and that from the clear language of an independent mind, free from taint of interest, the party acting should know precisely the nature and consequences of the transaction

The absence of advice would not by itself necessarily vitiate a transaction, if it is otherwise established to be righteous, that is, such as a right-minded person might be expected to do

The Court must have regard to the intellectual attainments of the lady concerned and will naturally be disinclined to set aside the deed where she is proved to have been of business habits, to have been literate and to have possessed a capacity to judge for herself.

The above are only general principles. There is a great fear of failure of justice, if they are moulded into inelastic formulas or crystallised into inflexible rules and treated as of universal application, regardless of the special facts and surrounding circumstances of the concrete case requiring adjudication.

Whenever any person derives a benefit under a deed, if any confidential or fiduciary relation subsists between the parties, the Courts so far presume against the validity of the instrument as to require some proof, varying in amount according to circumstances, of the absence of anything approaching to imposition, overreaching, undue influence or unconscionable advantage.

If a confidence is reposed and that confidence is abused, Courts of Equity will grant relief. Equity demands in such circumstances the most abundant good faith (uberrima fides) in the transaction between the parties. There need not necessarily be misrepresentation by one party to the other to invalidate the deed if there is any concealment of a material fact, any failure to disclose material information or any just suspicion of artifice, equity will interpose and pronounce the transaction void and, as far as possible, restore the parties to their original right. SATISH CHANDRA GHOSH v. KALIDASI DASI, 34 C. L. J. 529; 26 C. W. N. 477; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 203 577

Parda-nashin woman, disposition of property by—Court, duty of.

A Court when dealing with the dispesition of a property by a parda-nashin woman ought to be satisfied that the transaction was explained to her and she knew what she was doing. Consequently, a deed of relinquishment written by a parda-nashin lady, during the course of her illness of which she died and in the house of the person in whose favour it was executed without having had any opportunity of consulting her relatives, is open to grave suspicion and it lies heavily upon the person relying upon the deed to show that it was properly obtained and that the lady knew what she was about. L HARI CHAND v. UGAL KISHORE, (1924) A. I. R. L.) 349 722

Parties—Co-sharers—Partition suit by transferee of one co-sharer—Transferor, whether necessary party.

Where the interest of one of several co-sharers has been transferred to a third person and has property vested in him, he can bring a suit for partition without joining his transferor, for the latter, although a proper party to the suit, is not a necessary party. Pat NANDKESHWAR MISRA v. SUDARSHAN RAM TEWARI 804 ——— Sale in insolvency proceedings—Appeal against order confirming sale—Auction-purchaser and Official Receiver, whether necessary parties.

In an appeal from an order confirming a sale in insolvency proceedings, the auction purchaser and the Official receiver are necessary parties and the omission to make them parties is fatal to the appeal. TARLOK DEVI v. OTI RAM 716

Partnership Suit by one of surviving partners respecting partnership transaction, whether maintainable

A suit by one of two surviving members of a partnership, after dissolution of the partnership, in respect of a transaction with the partnership, is not maintainable. M. ADITHAYYA CHETTY v. SOMASUNDARAM CHETTY, 16 L. W. 427 927

Patwari, whether "public servant." See PENAL CODE, (10, ss 21 (10), 24, 403, 405 157

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s 21 (10), 24, 403, 405—"Wrongful loss"—"Wrongful gain"—Temporary wrongful loss or gain, meaning of—Criminal breach of trust, what constitutes—Patwari, whether "public servant"

Penal Code—contd.

Temporary wrongful loss and temporary wrongful gain are within the meaning of "wrongful loss" and "wrongful gain", contained in section 24 of the Penal Code.

Reading sections 403 and 405 of the Penal Code together, it is clear that criminal breach of trust is a species of criminal misappropriation, being a criminal misappropriation by a person entrusted with the property misappropriated, and as regards criminal misappropriation, a dishonest misappropriation for a time only is misappropriation. The same principle applies to temporary misappropriation.

Under section 158, Land Revenue Code, cesses can be collected as if they were land revenue, and as it is within the duties of a Patwari to collect land revenue and cesses due on land in his village he is a public servant within the meaning of section 21, clause (10) of the Penal Code. N LOCAL GOVERNMENT, C. P. v. MADHO PATWARI, 23 CR. L. J. 557 157

——— ss. 23, 425—Mischief—Wrongful loss—Causing injury to neighbour's wall by digging one's own land, whether mischief.

The essential element of the offence of mischief in section 425, Indian Penal Code, is the causing of "wrongful loss" to another's property, which is defined in section 23 of the same Code as being loss caused by "unlawful means".

The right to lateral support from an adjacent land belonging to others is a right which can only be acquired by prescription,

Therefore, where a person by digging his own land causes injury to the wall of his neighbour provided the latter has not acquired by prescription the right to lateral support from that land, his action, however malicious, does not amount to mischief within the true construction of section 425 of the Penal Code. M ATHI IYER, In re, 14 L. W. 728; 23 CR. L. J. 107 831

——— s. 34—Isolated assaults—No common object—Joint trial, legality of

During a trial, for a political offence a crowd gathered with a view to make a demonstration and as a result a number of Policemen posted to keep order received injuries and the assailants were tried together under section 332/34 of the Penal Code and convicted:

Held, that their joint trial was illegal and section 34 of the Code did not apply, because the assaults on individual members of the Police force were isolated and the accused were not actuated by any common object A FATEH CHAND v. EMPEROR, 20 A. L. J. 706; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 423; 23 CR. L. J. 596 820

——— ss. 34, 73, 395, 397—Dacoity—Use of deadly weapons.

Where several persons join in committing a dacoity and some of them use deadly weapons, all of them are liable to be punished under section 397 of the Penal Code. The provisions of section 34 of the Penal Code are applicable to such a case. L DANGAR KHAN v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 593 817

——— ss. 100, 102—Right of private defence of body, when commences.

Penal Code—contd.

Section 100 of the Penal Code gives the right of private defence of the body only against actual assailants, it does not authorise the killing or causing of hurt to persons who may in the future when re-inforced by others become assailants. The right arises only on the occurrence of an offence, or of an attempt to commit an offence, and as soon as a reasonable apprehension of danger to the body arises from an attempt or threat to commit the offence, though the offence may not have been committed. L NARAIN DAS v EMPEROR, 4 L. L. J. 91; 3 L. 144; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 1; 9 P. W. R. 1922 CR 23 CR. L. J. 513 113

——— s. 145, conviction under. See POLICE ACT, 1861, ss. 30, 30A, 32, scope of 945

——— s. 177. See INCOME TAX ACT, 1918, s. 40 843

——— s. 300, Excep. (1)—Grave and sudden provocation—Continuing under influence of provocation—Act, whether must immediately follow provocation.

Accused suspected his wife of being intimate with one M. and frequently remonstrated with, and warned her: one night accused and his wife were sleeping in the courtyard of their haveli when, after some little time, accused awoke and found his wife's bed unoccupied: his suspicions being aroused, he immediately proceeded to the khola adjoining the haveli, where he found his wife and M. together: he attacked M. and killed him, and then attacked his wife and killed her also: he was placed upon his trial for the offence of murder and was sentenced to death, the Sessions Judge holding that the accused did not receive such grave and sudden provocation as to deprive him of the power of self-control. On appeal:

Held, that the provocation received by the accused was grave and sudden, and he continued to be under the influence of provocation until he had killed his wife, and that he was entitled to the mitigation provided in Exception (1) to section 300 of the Penal Code, as that exception does not contemplate that, in order to entitle an accused person to earn the mitigation, the act must immediately follow the provocation. L KADIR BAKHSH v EMPEROR, 2 L. L. J. 406; 24 CR. L. J. 563 403

——— ss. 361, Exp., 366—Guardianship, lawful, kidnapping from—Kidnapping minor while under temporary custody of servant or friend—Consent of custodian, whether material—"Include," meaning of

The fact, that a mother allows her minor girl to be in the custody of a servant or friend for a limited purpose and for a limited time, does not determine the mother's rights as guardian or her legal possession for the purposes of the criminal law, and if an accused kidnaps her from the possession of such servant or friend and marries her without the consent of her mother, he is guilty of an offence under section 366 of the Penal Code. The consent of the servant or friend is immaterial.

The word "include" in the Explanation to section 361 of the Penal Code is not intended to limit the protection which the section gives to parents and minors but rather to extend that protection by including in the term "lawful guardian" any person law-

Penal Code—concld.

fully entrusted with the care and custody of the minor. L BAZ v. EMPEROR, 3 L. 215; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 1380; 23 CR L. J. 588 620

——— ss. 408, 477A—Forgery—False entries made to cover defalcation—Offence.

Where an accused person makes false entries in an account with the object of covering a defalcation made by himself, his conviction for forgery is not sustainable. A SHUJA-UD-DIN AHMAD v. EMPEROR, 20 A. L. J. 662; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 425; 23 CR. L. J. 610 834

——— s. 420 Cheating—Dishonest intention

In cases under section 420 of the Penal Code the evidence must establish the existence of a fraudulent or dishonest intention at the time of the commission of the act in respect of which the cheating is alleged N JAFFAR AYUB KATCHI v. EMPEROR, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 195; 23 CR L. J. 589 621

——— s. 426—*Mischief—Removing fruit from trees—Essential to be established—*Bona fide dispute between contending parties—Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to take cognizance.

In order to invest a Magistrate with jurisdiction to summon a person charged with having committed the offence of mischief under section 426 of the Penal Code by removing the fruits of certain trees, it is essential for the complainant to make out a prima facie case in his petition of complaint or, in his statement on oath, of any deterioration caused by the accused in the value or utility of the fruit, and unless such deterioration is made out there can be no conviction for the offence of mischief.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to take cognizance of a case of mischief where there is a bona fide dispute between the contending parties with regard to the right in, and possession of, the property, the subject-matter of the charge. Pat GAINU PANDAY v. EMPEROR 2 P. L. T. 394; 23 CR L. J. 504 40

——— s. 498. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, ss. 4 (h), 199 624

Pensions Act (XXIII of 1871), s. 7—Pension, attachment of—Facts showing attachability be set out.

Ordinarily a pension is not attachable for sale. Where a decree-holder wishes to attach and sell a pension, and his case is that the pension belongs to that class which is referred to in section 7 of Act XXIII of 1871, it is his duty to set out the facts and prove his case by appropriate proof. A MAZHAR ALI KHAN v. MAHFUZ HASAN, 20 A. L. J. 679; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 429; 44 A. 697 854

Pleading—Fraud—Variance between pleading and proof—Plaintiff, position of.

The determination in a cause should be founded upon a case either to be found in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with the case thereby made.

Every variance between pleadings and proof is not fatal; the Court must carefully consider whether the objection is one of form or of substance.

When a plaintiff impeaches a transaction on the ground of fraud, the facts which constitute the alleged fraud must be distinctly, specifically and accurately stated; for, it is only fair play between man and man that the defendant should know what is charged against him. A charge of fraud must be substantially proved as laid, and when one kind of fraud is charged, another kind of fraud cannot, upon failure of proof, be substituted for it.

Pleading—concld.

Per Buckland, J.—In a case of fraud, it will not suffice to find fraud otherwise than as alleged on behalf of the plaintiff, and even should the Court find that fraud was practised, if such fraud is other than the fraud alleged, the defendant is entitled to have the suit dismissed. This is a proposition which may be applicable in cases between man and man or where a parda-nashin lady is not concerned But where a parda-nashin lady is involved, other rules have to be applied and conformity with them has to be established. C SATIS CHANDRA GHOSH v. KALIDASI DASI, 34 C. L. J. 529; 26 C. W. N. 177; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 203 577

Pleadings—Amendment.

An amendment in the pleadings should be made if thereby the real substantial question can be raised between the parties and multiplicity of legal proceedings avoided O HAMID MIRZA BEG v. AHMAD MIRZA BEG, 9 O. L. J. 359; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 89; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 266 986

Police Act (V of 1861), ss. 30, 30A, 32, scope of—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860*),* s 145, conviction under—Essentials—General notification prohibiting procession without license—Notification by Executive Authority, whether law—"Resistance", meaning of—Power to prohibit procession whether incident to power to regulate—Power of Police to prohibit procession—Rule and enactment, difference between—"Law," meaning of—"Execution of law," meaning of—Offence created by Statute—Indictment under general law.

Section 30*A* of the Police Act only applies where there is a violation of the conditions of a license granted under section 30 (3) of the Act, not where a procession is formed without a license.

Per Mullick and Coutts, JJ.—In order to secure the conviction of an accused under section 145 of the Indian Penal Code, some formal evidence should be given to prove a common object to resist the execution of an order promulgated by a lawful authority, and the accused should be given an opportunity of meeting the case in the Trial Court

The words of section 30 of the Police Act are sufficiently general to enable a Superintendent of Police to issue a general notification containing a prohibition, without any limit of time, against convening or collecting assemblies or directing or promoting processions without a license and any person contravening the terms of such notice is punishable under section 32 of the Act. A person is free to join an assembly or a procession, which has already been collected, if he has no notice that the convener or promoter has omitted to take out a license but if, after becoming aware of this fact, he persists in remaining with the assembly or procession he will be said to share the common object of such person to resist the execution of the notification

When a notification is issued by an Executive Authority in exercise of a power conferred by Statute, that notification is as much a part of the law as if it had been incorporated within the body of the Statute at the time of its enactment. A notification, issued in compliance with section 30 of the Police Act, is a law and certainly a legal process. It is immaterial if the wording of the notification is not in the exact language of the section so long as there is, on the whole, a substantial compliance and the public are in no error or doubt as to its purport

Police Act—concld.

Resistance connotes some overt act: mere words without any intention of carrying them into effect, are not sufficient to prove an intention to resist.

Per Das, J.—Section 30 of the Police Act does not prohibit the common rights of a subject to form a procession on a public road or in a public street or a thoroughfare

A power to prohibit a procession is not incident to a power to regulate. The power of licensing is a power to regulate not a power to prohibit.

Under sections 30 and 30A of the Police Act, the Police have no power to prohibit a procession where the persons directing and promoting such procession decline to apply for a license, although there is such power where such persons take out a license and violate its conditions But the Police have no power to issue an order to have operation for a certain period, each case must be dealt with as it arises and discretion must be exercised by a District Magistrate on each occasion.

There is no difference between a rule and an enactment where there is a provision in the enactment that the rules shall be of the same effect as if they were contained in the Act; there is a wide difference between the two when there is no such provision. An order issued by a Superintendent of Police, under section 30 of the Police Act, cannot be regarded as law as there is no provision in the Act giving to such order the same effect as if it were contained in the Act.

"Law" means something which is enforceable and not capable of being rejected by a Court as unreasonable or repugnant to the law of the land. Rules, regulations and bye-laws, which cannot be canvassed in a Court of Law on any ground, have the character of law and are in fact law.

"Execution of the law" means enforcing it, and to be lawful it must follow the procedure laid down in an Act.

Resistance on the part of a person forming a procession must not be to the law but to the execution of the law. It means something more than non-submission and consists of an overt act showing an intention to make opposition to the execution of the law.

A person cannot be convicted under the Penal Code for an offence under the Police Act. Where a Statute creates a new offence which is not an offence at Common Law and imposes a penalty in respect of such offence, a person committing such offence can only be proceeded against under the Statute which creates the offence and cannot be indicted under the general law. Pat EMPEROR v. ABDUL HAMID, 3 P. L. T. 585; (1922) PAT. 274; 4 U. P. L. (PAT.) 79; 23 CR. L. J. 625 945

Practice—Criminal revision—Case referred by Sessions Judge for enhancement of sentence—Application by accused thereafter on the merits, whether barred—Alternative charges—Complainant, whether can alter election.

The mere fact that a reference has been made to the High Court by a Sessions Judge for enhancement of sentence, has not the effect of depriving Practice—concld.

the accused of the right to apply to the High Court in revision

It is contrary to public policy and to the recognised principles of the administration of the Criminal Law that when a charge has been launched which requires sanction by a particular authority and that authority has refused sanction, to hold that it is open to a complainant to alter his election, shift his ground and start a fresh charge on an alternative section which does not require sanction. A KOHNA RAM v. EMPEROR, 20 A. L. J. 775; 23 CR. L. J. 496; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 162; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 502 32

Pre-emption—Perpetual under-proprietary lease—Rent reserved exceeding Government revenue—Nature of transaction—Lease or sale.

Where a grantor reserves no right of re-entry, whether the document is described as a lease or a sale, the test applied to determine its real nature is whether any rent was reserved to the grantor over and above the Government revenue, which he himself had to pay on the land. This applies only to deeds executed by the superior proprietor whereby an under-proprietary right is created in the grantee

A transaction, therefore, called a pattah istimrari matahti, that is, a perpetual under-proprietary lease, which reserves an annual rent, a portion of which is payable by the lessee as Government revenue and the remainder to the lessor, is a lease not giving rise to a right of pre-emption O SAHEB BAKHSH SINGH v. THAKUR DIN SINGH, 9 O. L. J. 334; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 85; (1922) A. I. R. J. C. 229 966

——— suit—Sale—Cause of action—Registration—Limitation, operation of—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s 47, application of

A right of pre-emption arises only when a sale is completed, that is, when there is an entire cessation of right on the part of the vendor, and until a registered deed is executed there cannot be such cessation of right and no right of pre-emption can arise.

Therefore, the period of limitation for a pre-emption suit runs from the date of the registration of the sale-deed.

Section 47 of the Registration Act has no application to such a case. M RAGHO v. SAKHARAM, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 200 715 ——— Valuation—Compensation for improvements, whether to be included in valuation.

In determining the value for purposes of jurisdiction of a suit for pre-emption any compensation found to be equitably due to the vendee and not as a part of the price paid by the vendee, ought not to be taken into consideration. L CHIRAGH DIN v. SERAJ DIN, 3 L. 386 890

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, ss. 19, 41. See CITY CIVIL COURTS ACT, 1892, S 3 983

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), s. 36, scope of—Matters involving difficult questions of title.

Section 36 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, like section 26 of the Indian Insolvent Act 1848, which it replaced, is discretionary.

The Court should not deal with a matter under, section 36 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, if it involves difficult questions of title but should leave the parties to litigate such matter in a regular suit.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act—concld.

Quære:—Whether a suit is maintainable for the determination of the question of title after the matter has been decided under section 6 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act? C RASH BEHARI GHOSE v. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE OF CALCUTTA, 25 C. W. N. 852 341

Probate application—Verification, whether essential.

The provision about the verification of an application for Probate by an attesting witness is directory and not mandatory and an omission of the verification is not fatal to the Probate proceedings. N RAM SINGH RAJPUT v MURTIBAI 940

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), s. 50—Hindu reversioner, whether entitled to be heard in Probate proceeding—Application for revocation of Probate—Immediate female reversioner not entitled to maintain application—Next reversioner, if can apply—Minor reversioners—Natural guardian omitting to apply for revocation—Reversioners, whether estopped.

Although a reversioner under the Hindu law has no present interest in the property left by the deceased, yet the reversioner, whether male or female, is substantially interested in the protection or devolution of the estate, and, as such, is entitled to appear and be heard in a Probate proceeding. If the immediate reversioner is a female, the male reversioner in the second or third degree, as the case may be, (for instance, where the deceased has left a widow, daughter, mother and brother), is similarly entitled to be heard.

Where the immediate reversioner, a female, has rendered it impossible for himself by her own conduct to successfully maintain an application for revocation of a Probate, the application may be made by the next male reversioner who is unquestionably a proper party to the Probate proceedings.

A reversioner who was a minor at the time of the grant of the Probate is not estopped from making an application for revocation by reason of the fact that his father who was his natural guardian did not intervene on his behalf at the time when the Probate was granted. C HARIDASI DASI v BIDHUMUKHI DASI, 35 C. L. J. 66; (1922) A I. R (C.) 88 795

——— ss. 67, 77—Probate, grant of—Additional District Judge acting as District Judge, powers of.

Under the Probate and Administration Act there can be no District Delegate except by appointment by a High Court: an Additional District Judge, in the absence of such appointment, cannot act as a District Delegate and grant Probates in a contentious case. But when he is exercising powers as a District Judge he can grant Probate or Letters of Administration in all cases whether there is contention or not N RAM SINGH RAJPUT v. MURTIBAI 940

——— s. 83, meaning of. See PROCEEDINGS FOR GRANT OF LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION 671

Proceedings for grant of Letters of Administration—Finding as to title to property—Finding, whether res judicata in, subsequent suit to establish title—Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), s. 83, meaning of.

Proceedings—concld.

In a proceeding for grant of Letters of Administration, the question before the Court is one of representation to the estate and not of distribution, and it is only for the purpose of determining the question of representation that the Court is called upon to decide whether the applicant is entitled to the whole or any part of the estate of the deceased within the meaning of section 2 of the Probate and Administration Act, and such finding is not res judicata in a suit in which the question of title to the properties has to be determined.

Section 83 of the Probate and Administration Act is merely a rule of procedure and does not lay down that proceedings under the Act shall become or be deemed to be a suit. L B MAUNG TUN YIN v. MA SEIN YIN, 11 L. B. R. 331 671

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), s. 16 (2) (a)—Acquisition of property by insolvent after adjudication—Receiver, vesting in—Declaratory suit by Receiver, competent

All property which is acquired by or devolves on an insolvent after the passing of an order of adjudication and before his discharge, vests in the Court or Receiver and becomes divisible among the creditors in accordance with the provisions of section 16 (2) (a) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, and the Receiver is entitled to a declaration that such property is saleable for the benefit of the creditors; he is under no obligation to sue for physical possession of the insolvent's property and can seek mere declaratory relief. A FATIMA v. MOHAMMAD MASHUQ ALI, 20 A. L. J. 569; 4 U. P. L. R. (A) 181; 44 A. 617; (1922) A I. R. (A) 448 245

——— s. 37—Secured creditor, whether "creditor."

The word "creditor" in section 37 of the Provincial Insolvency Act includes a secured creditor. N JASKARAN v. GAIND PRASAD, (1922) A I. R. (N.) 235 460

Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920), ss. 24, 25—Insolvency petition by creditor—Debt, proof of.

Where a creditor applies to have his debtor adjudged an insolvent, the Court is bound to require the creditor to prove his debt, and ought not to require him to do this by means of a regular suit. L B A. K. R. M. C. T. CHETTY FIRM v. MAUNG AUNG BWIN, 11 L. B. R. 351 885

——— ss. 28 (2), 34—"Provable debt," meaning of—Obligation incurred subsequent to adjudication, effect of.

D. was adjudicated an insolvent in 1914. His father died in 1917 leaving him separate property. In 1918 P. sued D. and his mother on a bond executed by his father in 1915 and obtained a decree in execution of which he attached certain property which D had inherited from his father. It was objected that the debt was one provable in the Insolvency Court, and that, consequently, the proceedings in execution in the ordinary Court were barred under section 28 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act:

Held, that according to the definition in section 34 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, a "provable debt" was one to which an insolvent became subject by reason of an obligation incurred before the date of his adjudication as an insolvent; that as the obligation in the present case was not incurred until after that date, the debt was not a "provable debt," and that, therefore, the bar of section 28 (2) of the Act did not apply to it. N KESHEORAO v. GOVINDRAO 340

Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920—concld.

——— s. 51 (1) Excep.—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 73—Rateable distribution, order for—Money not drawn by creditors—Intervening insolvency of judgment-debtor, effect of—Official Receiver, rights of, to amounts ordered to be rateably distributed.

Where rateable distribution has been ordered under section 73, Civil Procedure Code, the exception to section 51 (1) of the Provincial Insolvency Act applies not only to the amount credited in favour of the attaching decree-holder but also to the amounts rateably distributed to the other decree-holders under the section.

Where the insolvency of the judgment-debtor supervenes before the moneys allocated for rateable distribution are actually distributed to the creditors, they do not vest in the Official Receiver, but belong to the creditors from the date of the order. The order for rateable distribution removes the money from the operation of the Insolvency Act altogether. M THE OFFICIAL RECEIVER OF TANJORE v. VENKATARAMA IYER, 15 L W. 37; (1922) M. W. N. 51; 30 M L. T. 67; 42 M L. J. 361; (1922) A. I. R (M) 31 512

Public Gambling Act (III of 1867), ss. 3, 4, 5—Keeping gaming house and being found in it—Joint trial—Search—Procedure—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 103.

The joint trial of the keeper of a common gaming house and of other persons for being found in the house is not illegal.

A search conducted after the issue of a warrant under section 5 of the Public Gambling Act is not a search under Chapter VII of the Criminal Procedure Code, and section 103 of the Code has, therefore, no application to such a search. L KHILINDA RAM v. EMPEROR, 3 L. 359; 23 CR. L. J. 621; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 458 845

——— ss. 5, 8—Seizure of money found upon search of persons—Forfeiture, whether legal.

Section 5 of the Public Gambling Act merely authorises, among other things, the search of a common gaming house and the seizure, among other things, of all monies found therein It does not authorise the seizing and forfeiture of money found on the persons of individuals in the house at the time of the search N CHATURBHUJ v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 608 832

——— s. 13—Foot-path running through private grove—Public place.

A foot-path running through a private grove is a public place if it is used by the public as of right. O EMPEROR v. LALJI, 25 O. C. 114; (1922) A. I R. (J. C.) 196; 23 CR L. J. 579 611

——— s. 13—Public place—Blind alley removed from highway.

A blind alley approachable by a circuitous lane and at a considerable distance from a highway is not a "public place" within the meaning of section 13 of the Public Gambling Act. L MUHAMMAD ALI v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 624 848

Public Gambling Act—concld.

——— s. 13—"Public place," meaning of—Publicity of situation.

A public place must be a place which is either open to the public or is used by the public and the mere publicity of a situation does not make it a public place within the meaning of section 13 of the Public Gambling Act. O EMPEROR v. BASHIR, 9 O. L. J. 288; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 69; 23 CR. L. J. 581; (1922) A I. R (J. C.) 275 613

Punjab Courts Act (VI of 1918), s. 41, (3). See FINDING AS TO CUSTOM 106

——— s. 41 (3)—Grazing rights—Question of custom—Appeal, second—Certificate.

A question relating to grazing rights claimed by the tenants of a village over the shamilat area of the village by virtue of custom is a question of custom and cannot be agitated in second appeal without a certificate. L SARUP SINGH v. KHEMAN, (1922 A I. R. (L. 470 751

——— ss. 41, 42. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. XLI, R. 23, O. XLIII, R. 1 (4) 849

Punjab General Clauses Act (I of 1893), s. 22. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, 1913, s. 6 729

Punjab Municipal Act (III of 1911), ss. 3 (13), 172, 193—"Street," what is—Lane looked after by mahalladars but accessible to public, whether street—Committee, refusal of, to allow projection over such lane—Jurisdiction of Civil Court to interfere.

A lane which is accessible to the public, whether permanently or temporarily, is a 'street' within the meaning of the definition contained in section 3 (13) of the Punjab Municipal Act.

The fact that the arrangements for lighting and clearing the lane are made by the mahalladars at their expenses, and that the lane is comented by them, is not material; nor the fact that the mahalladars have a right to close the lane to the public, if, as a matter of fact, the public have never been prevented by any physical obstruction from entering it.

A Municipal Committee has full power to withhold permission for the building of a structure that will project over a street, and a Civil Court has no jurisdiction to interfere in such a matter.

Section 193 of the Punjab Municipal Act refers only to buildings to be erected on private property and has no application to a structure that projects over a street L GANGA RAM v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, AMRITSAR, (1922) A. I. R (L.) 41 675

——— s. 61 (B) (b)—Profession tax—Offerings made by disciples whether income derived from profession or calling.

The income derived by a spiritual leader from offerings made by his disciples is income derived from a profession or calling within the meaning of section 61 (B) (b) of the Punjab Municipal Act. L MOTI SINGH v. PRESIDENT OF THE NOTIFIED AREA COMMITTEE OF ANANDPUR 996

Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), s. 4—Village immoveable property—Building, standing, apart from site.

A standing building in a village is village immoveable property and is liable to pre-emption, even apart from the site. L WAUGA v. MUHAMMAD ALI, 2 L. L. J. 345 193

Punjab Pre-emption Act, 1905—concld.

——— s. 7. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, 1913, s. 6 729

Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), s. 4—Sale.

A., the owner of certain land, stipulated with B. that if the latter built a well on the land and brought it into working order within a certain period he would become the owner of a one-third share in the land :

Held, that the transaction did not amount to a sale and was not, therefore, liable to pre-emption L ALLAH RAKHIYA KHAN v. AHMAD 1008

——— s. 6—Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), s. 7—Punjab General Clauses Act (I of 1898), s. 22—Notification under repealed Act whether cancelled by repealing Act.

A notification made under section 7 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act of 1905, excluding an area from the scope of the Act, is not automatically cancelled by section 6 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act of 1913, and continues in force by virtue of section 24 of the Punjab General Clauses Act until such time as Government sees fit to cancel it. L JALAL DIN v NATHURAM, 1924 A. I R. (L.) 474 729

——— s. 30—Limitation—Physical possession—Joint holding.

A share in an undivided mahal is not susceptible of physical possession within the meaning of section 30 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act. L MUHAMMAD ATA ULLAH KHAN v. GOPALA MAL 906

——— s. 30—Pre-emption suit — Limitation—Physical possession—Land in possession of tenants.

The term "physical possession" used in section 30 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act means personal and immediate possession and not merely proprietary possession.

Land which is in possession of tenants is not capable of physical possession within the meaning of section 30 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act of 1913. L HAIDER ALI SHAH v BHIKHE SHAH 811

——— s. 30—Pre-emption suit—Sale of undivided share in joint holding—Limitation—Physical possession of part.

Inasmuch as a co-sharer in a joint undivided property has a right to every part of that property until partition, what he sells is his share or a fraction of his share in the whole of that undivided property; in other words, he sells to the extent of his interest or a portion of his interest therein the whole property, and if his assignee takes possession under the sale of any portion of that joint property, limitation for a suit for pre-emption in respect of such a sale begins to run under the second clause of section 30 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act of 1913, from time of such assumption of possession. L SARDAR ALI v. FAZIL 895

Punjab Tenancy Act (XVI of 1887), s. 59—Succession to occupancy rights—Customary heir—Adopted son.

In order that an adopted son may succeed to the occupancy land left by his adoptive father, the adoption must be under Hindu Law, and must comply with the requirements of that law as applicable to the parties concerned, the mere appointment as an heir according to custom is not sufficient. L HIRA v. HARDAT SINGH, 47 P. L. R. 1922 763

Question of onus mixed question of fact and law.

The question of onus is not a mere question of law. Once the principle of onus has been settled, the question still remains in the decision of each particular case as to whether, having regard to the transactions which have been established by evidence, the onus still remains where it was or whether, on the other hand, it has been made to shift So that in each particular case whether the onus has been shifted or not becomes a mixed question of fact and law.

The onus may be totally shifted without any express evidence beyond what may be afforded by documents or the admitted circumstances of a case. A PEARE LAL v. SUNDER SINGH, 20 A. L. J. 658; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 736; 44 A 756 805

Railway Company—Delivery of goods—Consignee, inspection by—Damage to goods—Delivery Register, note in—Register, signing of, if constitutes "clear receipt"—Unconditional offer to pay damages—Liability, acknowledgment of.

A consignee of goods by Railway has no right to demand that the goods shall be opened and inspected on the Railway premises before he can be called upon to take delivery.

There is no provision of law, nor any statutory rule which obliges a Railway Company to make, or allow to be made, in its Delivery Register any note alleging that goods are in a damaged condition, and the refusal by a Railway Company to make such an entry in their books is no justification for refusing to take delivery.

Where a consignee of goods by Railway signs the Delivery Register of the Company, such signature does not constitute a "clear receipt" so as to bar a suit against the Company for damages.

Where goods travel over the systems of several Railways, compensation for damages is only recoverable from that Railway on which damage is proved to have been caused.

An unconditional offer by a Railway Company to compensate a consignor of goods for damage caused, amounts to an acknowledgment of liability on the part of the Company for such damage. A SRI GANGAJI COTTON MILLS CO LD. v EAST INDIAN RAILWAY CO, 20 A. L. J. 761; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 222; (1922 A. I. R. (A.) 514; 44 A. 763 961 ——— Risk Note, Form B—Consignment, loss of—Proof necessary to render Company liable.

Where, while goods are being carried by a Railway Company, a theft occurs while the train is running, the Railway Company is protected by the Risk Note. It is, however, open to a plaintiff in such a case to prove that theft did not occur in a running train or that it was brought about by the Company's servants. B B. B. & C. I. RAILWAY v. SAKARCHAND, 24 BOM. L. R. 787; (1922) A I. R. (B.) 256 534

Railways Act (IX of 1890), s. 72—Consignment of goods under Risk Note, Form H—Contract, if legal—Suit for damages—Onus probandi—Undue delay, if actionable without proof of its being wilful.

When goods are consigned under a special Risk-Note form exempting a Railway Company from liability except under certain contingencies, the liability of the Company is not the general liability imposed on common carriers or imposed by section 72 of the Railways Act and the onus of proving the fact necessary to bring the Company within the terms of the contract is on the consignor.

Railways Act—concld.

There is nothing illegal in a consignor, in consideration of the reduced rates charged, agreeing to hold the Company liable only on certain specified contingencies.

Delay in the delivery of goods in order to be actionable must be shown to be wilful. It does not follow that because there was delay it was wilful. M ALBUQUERSQUE & SONS v. SOUTH INDIAN RY. CO., LTD, (1922) M. W. N. 328; 43 M. L. J. 90; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 231; 16 L. W. 667; 31 M. L. T. 470 269

——— ss. 120, 121 — Obstructing Railway servant—Abuse, whether obstruction—Travelling without ticket—Removal from carriage.

Travelling without a ticket is not one of the circumstances mentioned in section 120 of the Railways Act as justifying the removal of a person from a Railway carriage by a Railway servant.

The complainant, a Station Master, removed the accused from a Railway carriage as the latter was travelling without a ticket. Accused used abusive language towards the Station Master and was convicted of an offence under section 121 of the Railways Act:

Held, (1) that abuse or insult did not necessarily constitute obstruction or impediment to a Railway servant in the discharge of his duties, and that there was nothing to show that it had done so in this case,

(2) that, therefore, the accused could not be convicted of an offence under section 121 of the Railways Act. L RADHA KISHEN v. EMPEROR, 23 CR. L. J. 622 846

Record of Appeal to Privy Council, inclusion of irrelevant matter in, condemned.

The wholesale inclusion of irrelevant documents in the record of a Privy Council appeal prepared in India, condemned as "a scandal and a hindrance to the proper administration of justice." P. C. BIJAI RAJ KUNWAR v. JAI INDRA BAHADUR SINGH, 31 M. L. T. 69; 9 O. L. J. 385; 44 A. 435; 4 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 76; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 317; 43 M. L. J. 632; 36 C. L. J. 511; 25 O. C. 260 876

Redemption of Mortgages (Punjab) Act (II of 1913), s. 12—Redemption proceedings—Possession delivered to mortgagor by Collector's order—Suit by mortgagee for mere declaration, if maintainable.

Where by an order under the Redemption of Mortgages Punjab Act, the mortgagor obtains possession of the mortgaged property on payment of a sum fixed by the Collector, the mortgagee, if aggrieved by the order, can, under section 12 of the Act, sue for a mere declaration without suing for possession. L NARINJAN SINGH v. CHARN DAS, 3 L. 239; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 363 557

Register, signing of, if constitutes "clear receipt." See RAILWAY COMPANY 961

Registration Act (III of 1877), ss. 3, 34—Hindu married woman—Minor—Father, if "representative."

The father of a Hindu minor girl ceases to be her natural guardian on her marriage and if he has not been appointed her legal guardian, he is not her representative within the meaning of section 3 of the Registration Act. P. C. AMBA v. SHRINIVASA KAMATHI, 14 L. W. 575; 26 C. W. N. 369; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 135 754

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17—Deposit of tittle-deeds—Document amounting to charge also executed—Document containing reference to execution of formal mortgage-deed later on—Document, registration of, if necessary—Registration not effected—Mortgage, enforcement of—Formal mortgage, right to demand execution of.

Although it is a well-established rule of equity that a deposit of a document of title without more, without writing, or without word of mouth, will create in equity a charge upon the property referred to, the general rule will not apply where there is a deposit accompanied by an actual written charge. In that case one must refer to the terms of the written document, and any implication that might be raised, supposing there were no document, is put out of the case and reduced to silence by the document by which alone the parties must be governed. Such a document must be registered.

Where there is a document amounting to a complete contract containing a reference to a more formal document to be executed later on if desirable, it takes effect unless there is a condition that it is not to take effect unless the second document is executed.

The defendant deposited the title-deeds of a house with the plaintiff, and on the same day passed a chithi in respect thereof which after reciting the taking of a certain sum of money stated: "I have given my house in mortgage for the above amount and.....shall execute a pucca document in respect of the same whenever you may ask me. The interest is settled at the rate of eight annas ... ...This is agreeable and binding on me." This chithi was not registered. The plaintiff sue to recover his money by sale of the mortgaged house, or in the alternative for a registered mortgage-deed thereof:

Held, (1) that the chithi required registration;

(2) that in the absence of such registration, the plaintiff was not entitled to a declaration that he had a charge on the property mentioned in the title-deeds deposited with him, or to an order for sale of that property to satisfy his claim;

(3) that the plaintiff was not entitled to obtain a mortgage-deed from the defendant as he had already got a mortgage and the only effect of his getting another document would be to have the terms of the mortgage settled in a more formal manner and that if the first document was not registered, he could not by getting another document cure the defect. B CHUNILAL SOMESHVAR BHATT v. VITHALDAS KARSANDAS, 24 BOM. L. R. 502; (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 440 1005

——— ss. 17, 49—Kararnama virtually deed of partition, admissibility of, without registration.

A kararnama, which is virtually a deed of partition affecting property, valued at more than one hundred rupees, is inadmissible in evidence to prove the partition unless it is registered. N ABDUL RAHIM v. SHEIKH KAWADOD, (1922) A. I. R. (N.) 236 712

Registration Act—1908—concld.

—— — s. 22 (1) (2)—Notification under cl. 1—Description of property—Refusal of Registration—Sufficiency of description for identification

The mere fact that there has been a notification under clause (1) of section 22 of the Registration Act would not, under clause (2) of the same section, be enough for refusal of registration to a document not described according to that notification, unless the power of refusal in such a case was expressly given by the notification.

Where a notification merely provides that in certain districts the description should be in a certain manner and does not give any further direction, the proviso under clause (2) of section 22 of the Registration Act would have the effect of entitling a document to be registered provided the description is sufficient to identify the property.

Where a compromise agreement contains a recital that "all the immoveable property pertaining to the family of the executants and mentioned in Schedule A described herein below shall be divided into four equal shares," the description of the property, for purposes of registration, is sufficient for its identification. M APPALACHARYULU v. RAMACHANDRACHARYULU, 16 L. W. 287 901

——— s. 47, applicability of. See PRE-EMPTION SUIT 715

Regulation (XVII of 1806), ss. 7, 8—Mortgage—Foreclosure notice, proper form of—Defective notice, effect of.

Section 7 of Regulation XVII of 1806 provides either for payment or tender to the mortgagor or for deposit in Court, and a notice which simply informs the mortgagor that he must pay the money within the year and says nothing as to the alternatives of tenders and deposit in Court is misleading and the defect is not cured merely by the addition of the words "in the manner provided for in section 7 of the Regulation"

A defective notice is fatal to the validity of proceedings taken under Regulation XVII of 1806. L ZORA v. CHANDU 833

Religious Endowments Act (XX of 1863), s. 7, Committee appointed under—Mosque property—Lease of shops—Committee, powers of, whether restricted to those of Mutwalli under Muhammadan Law—Muhammadan Law—Trust property—Power of Mutwalli—Lease of house property for more than one year.

The powers of an "Islamia Committee" appointed under section 7 of the Religious Endowments Act to take charge of a mosque and the property attached to it are not necessarily governed by the rules of Muhammadan Law relating to the powers of a Mutwalli. Such a Committee can, in a proper case, lease house property for more than one year.

Obiter:—According to the Muhammadan Law, a Mutwalli is not in general authorised to make a lease of house property for a period longer than one year, but a Qazi might empower him to grant leases for a longer period if such a grant is for the benefit of the trust estate. A BAIJNATH v. MOHAMMAD ISMAIL, 20 A. L. J. 697; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 417; 44 A. 617 764

Remand, propriety of—Inherent jurisdiction—Appeal—Remand order, treatment of, as preliminary decree.

Remand—concld.

Where an Appellate Court can pass a preliminary decree it is its duty to do so and a remand as to matters which can be the subject-matter of the preliminary decree is not warranted.

Where a decree, being in substance a preliminary decree is not passed as such by an Appellate Court and the case is wrongly remanded, it is open to the High Court, in second appeal, to allow the appellant to argue the appeal on the footing that, though the form of the decree was wrong, it was in substance a decree adjudicating finally the rights of the parties and was thus appealable as a final decree. M SUBBE GOUNDAN v. KRISHNAMACHARI, 30 M. L. T. 217; 42 M. L. J. 372; 15 L. W. 537; (1922) M. W. N. 269; 45 M. 449; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 112 869

Res judicata—Decision in rent suit on question of title—Suit for possession by receipt of rent—Limitation—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), Sch. III, Art. 3, applicability of.

The plaintiff brought a suit for a decree for possession of land upon a declaration that he was entitled to receive rent at a certain rate from defendant No 2 upon a finding and a declaration that the plaintiff was a tenant under defendant No. 1 in respect of the land under claim. The defendant No. 2 was on the land holding under defendant No. 1 but the plaintiff claimed that he took a settlement of the land from defendant No. 1 and that as a result of such settlement the defendant No. 2 was bound to pay the rent to him which he had previously paid to the first defendant. Previous to the present suit the plaintiff had unsuccessfully brought a rent-suit against the second defendant in which the latter had put forward the defence that he held the land not under the plaintiff but under the first defendant who was no party to that suit:

Held, (1) that as the present suit was not a suit as between landlord and tenant, the special rule of limitation contained in Art. 3, Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act had no application and the general law of limitation was applicable to the suit;

(2) that the decision in the previous rent-suit on the question of the plaintiff's title did not operate as res judicata even though the question of title had to be investigated in that suit by reason of the fact that defendant No. 2 was previously on the land. C GOPINATH JALUA v. BHAJAHARI DAS ADHIKARI 472

——— Execution proceedings. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908 239

——— Rent-decree—Rate of rent—Presumption arising from entry in the Record of Rights, rebuttal of.

A rent-decree may not be res judicata in the sense that it finally decided the rate of rent between the parties but it is res judicata that for the years for which that suit was brought the rent was the amount then found. Hence the decision may be sufficient to support a finding that the presumption arising from an entry (of a different rate of rent) in the Record of Rights has been rebutted. C BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY v. SOMAR ALI 298 ———, rule of, application of.

In applying the rule of res judicata Courts should be influenced by no technical considerations, but by Res judicata—concld.

matters of substance within the limits applied by law. L B MAUNG TUN YIN v. MA SEIN YIN, 11 L. B. R. 331 671

Revision against acquittal, when lies.

Where there is an appeal by a Public Prosecutor or the Crown from an acquittal, the High Court sets its face against revision. But when an aggrieved complainant moves the Government to appeal under section 417 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and the Government refuses, he can move the High Court in revision, but the latter will exercise its jurisdiction sparingly and only where it is urgently demanded in the interests of public justice. M SANKARALINGA MUDALIAR v. NARAYANA MUDALIAR, 16 L. W. 413; 43 M. L. J. 364; (1922) M. W. N. 579; 31 M. L. T. 342; 23 CR. L. J. 583; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 502 615

——— High Court, duty of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, ss. 195, 476 827

Revenue and Civil Courts. conflict of—Landlord, civil suit by, for declaration that defendant not adopted son of deceased occupancy tenant—Relation of landlord and tenant subsisting between the parties—Civil Courts, jurisdiction of—Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), ss. 58, 95, 167—Revenue Courts—Jurisdiction to decide questions of status or adoption.

While it is necessary to guard against formulating any such general rule as that a suit for a declaration of legal status cannot be entertained by a Civil Court merely because such a suit may be brought in consequence of a dispute which originally arose between landlord and tenant, nevertheless where it appears on an examination of the plaint in the light of the surrounding circumstances that the suit in fact offends against the provisions of section 167 of the Agra Tenancy Act, the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts is ousted.

In all such cases it must be determined what is the real contest between the parties and what is the real object of the suit.

L. an occupancy tenant died. The defendant alleging that he was the adopted son of L. applied for mutation of his name in place of the deceased. The landlord brought this civil suit for a declaration that the defendant was not the adopted son of L. From an examination of the pleadings it appeared that the relationship of landlord and tenant subsisted between the parties and the only dispute was as to the nature of the tenancy:

Held, (1) that the appropriate suit by either party would be under section 95 (a) and (b) of the Agra Tenancy Act, a suit as to which the cognizance of the Civil Courts was expressly ousted;

(2) that the object of the present suit being to forestall that suit or else to enable the plaintiff to bring a suit for ejectment under section 58 on the ground that the defendant was a non-occupancy tenant, it was not cognizable by the Civil Court.

A Revenue Court has jurisdiction to decide a question of status or adoption. A JAGANNATH v. BALWANT SINGH, 20 A. L. J. 570; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 372; 4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 194; 44 A. 692 247

Riwaj-i-am, entry in, unsupported by instances, value of.

An extract from the riwaj-i-am containing merely an expression of opinion and unsupported by instances, cannot be raised to the dignity of a custom, unless it is followed in practice for a sufficiently long period and recognised as binding by the members of a community. L ASA NAND v. ROSHNI BAI, 2 L. L. J. 178 92

———, entry in, value of—Burden of proof.

An entry in a riwaj-i-am, even when unsupported by instances, is a strong piece of evidence in support of the custom which it records and is sufficient to shift the onus of proof on to the party which disputes the correctness of the custom laid down in the riwaj-i-am. L JAGIR SINGH v. SANTI, 3 L. 181 711 ——— of 1865, how far evidence of custom.

The value of the Riwaj-i-am of 1865 is considerably minimised by the fact that it did not lay down what the custom was but what the compilers thought it to be. L GURDIT SINGH v. ISHAR KUAR, 3 L. 257; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 392 551

Rules and Orders of the Original Side Calcutta High Court, Chap. XXXV, r. 57. See COSTS—TAXATION 451

Sanad—Primogeniture, rule of—Custom—Instances prior to sanad—Evidence.

Where a Sanad, under which an estate in Oudh is held, lays down the succession according to the rule of primogeniture, evidence of a single unexplained instance of the widow of one of the grantees having succeeded to the exclusion of male heirs, is insufficient to establish a custom binding on another branch of the family. Similarly, evidence of widows having succeeded prior to the grant of the Sanad cannot be used to set up a rule of succession directly contrary to the terms of the Sanad under which the estate is held P. C. BADRI NARAIN SINGH v. HARNAM KUAR, 44 A. 449; 31 M. L. T. 195; 9 O. L. J. 425; 1922 A. I. R. P. C.) 289; 27 C. W. N. 129; 25 O. C. 313 1000

Shah jog hundis whether negotiable instruments.

Shah jog hundis are negotiable instruments. M KANALAL BHOYA v BALARAM PARAMASUKDOSS, 31 M. L. T. 84; 43 M. L. J. 480; 6 L. W. 608 21

Specific performance of contract, who can sue for—Geneal rule.

No person can sue for specific performance, if he cannot be sued for it, whether because he is a minor or for any other reason. N HARGOVIND v. MEHTAB SINGH, 18 N. L. R. 67; 1922) A. I. R. N.) 193 346

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 9—Archaka of Temple, suit by, against trustee for possession, maintainability of—Master and servant, relationship of, as between trustee and archaka.

Though hereditary archakaship is treated under Hindu Law as immoveable property divisible among co-parceners, it is not immoveable property under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act

An archaka of a Temple who has been dispossessed by the trustee cannot maintain a suit against the latter for possession

Section 9 of the Specific Relief Act does not confer on a servant a right of suit against his master.

Specific Relief Act—contd.

Obiter.—Joint possession cannot be given under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act M VANAMAMALAI JEER SWAMIGAL v. PERIA VENKATARAMANA CHARIAR, (1922) M. W. N. 422; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 183; 16 L. W. 931 183

——— s. 9—Execution of decree—Order in execution—Appeal.

An order passed in execution of a decree under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act is not appealable. L WARIS v. FATEH DIN 760

——— ss. 9, 56 (b)—S. 9, object of—Decree for restoration of possession—Suit by person in possession to restrain execution.

The object of section 9 of the Specific Relief Act is to discourage people from taking the law into their own hands, however good their title may be It provides a summary and speedy remedy through the medium of a Civil Court for the restoration of possession to a party dispossessed by another leaving them to fight out the question of their respective title by a regular suit if necessary.

Where a person obtains a decree for restoration of possession of land under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act, the person against whom it is passed and who is in possession of the land, can institute a suit to establish his title to the land and obtain an injunction to restrain the decree-holder from dispossessing him by enforcing his decree, notwithstanding the provisions of section 56, clause (b) of the same Act. B MARI DODDATAMMA MARKUNDI v. SANTAYA RAMAKRISHNA PAI, 24 BOM. L. R 768; (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 216 490

——— s. 23—Contract, enforcement of—Stranger—Equity.

A stranger to a contract is, as a rule, not entitled to sue, but relief may sometimes be granted in his favour on principles of equity.

B contracted to sell certain property to N. in order to satisfy a money-decree obtained against him by S. The consideration was fixed at Rs 2,900. Out of this B. actually received Rs. 300 and the balance of Rs 2,600 was left with the purchaser for payment to S. The sale, however, was not carried out, and eventually S. himself got a sale-deed from B. of the same property and out of the price fixed appropriated Rs. 3,000 to the satisfaction of his decree. Subsequently N. sued B. for specific performance The suit was decreed and S. lost possession of the property. S brought the present suit to recover from N. Rs 3,000 being the amount appropriated in satisfaction of his decree. The lower Courts held that although N. was not liable to pay Rs. 3,000 he was liable to the extent of Rs. 2,600, being the amount which under his contract with B was left with him for payment to S. In second appeal N contended that S being not privy to that contract was not entitled to enforce any covenant under the same:

Held, dismissing the objection, that though S was at the outset a stranger in dealings between N. and B., nevertheless by reason of the subsequent proceedings terminating in the decree for specific performance, S. was brought into a degree of privity with N so as to be entitled to relief on principles ofequity. A NEHAL SINGH v. FATEH CHAND, 20 A. L. J. 708; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 426; 44 A. 702 778

Specific Relief Act—concld.

——— s. 25—"Marketable title," meaning of.

The phrase "marketable title" is equivalent to the phrase "a title free from reasonable doubt" in section 25 of the Specific Relief Act

The question whether a "marketable title" free from reasonable doubt has been made out or not, must be answered with reference to the facts of each case. B HAJI OOSMAN HAJI ISMAIL v. HAROON SALLEH MAHOMED, 24 BOM L R. 978 862

——— ss. 38, 41. See GUARDIAN 15

——— s. 42—Declaration contemplated by section—Suit for declaration by candidate at Municipal Election that election of his competitor illegal.

Section 42 of the Specific Relief Act does not sanction every form of declaration, but only a declaration that the plaintiff is entitled to any legal character, or to any right as to any property.

Quære.—Whether the provisions of section 42 of the Specific Relief Act are applicable to a suit by an unsuccessful candidate for election as a Municipal Commissioner, for a declaration that the election, being in contravention of the plaintiffs' right and franchise, right of election and right of being present at the election, was not, according to law, proper and valid, and that the election of his competitors was illegal. C CHAIRMAN OF THE MUNICIPAL COMRS. OF KATRUNG v. CHARU CHANDRA MUKERJEE, 26 C. W. N. 91 229

——— s. 42, proviso—Person in joint possession with another—Declaratoy suit that other person has lost his interest in property, whether maintainable.

A person in joint possession with another cannot sue for a mere declaration that the other person has lost his interest in the property and is not entitled to remain in possession because in such a case the plaintiff can and should sue for exclusive possession. L SHANKARI v. JODHA, 3 L. L. J. 47 576

Statutes, interpretation of—Long and established interpretation.

Where the terms of a Statute or Ordinance are clear, a long and uniform course of judicial interpretation of it may be overruled, if it is contrary to the clear meaning of the enactment, but where such is not the case, it is the duty of a Judge to accept the interpretation so often and so long put upon the Statute by the Courts, and not to disturb those decisions. A LALLU SINGH v. GUR NARAIN, 20 A. L. J. 744; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 467 798

Subrogation—Reimbursement, right of—Distinction.

The right to reimburse arises on a contract, express or implied, to reimburse and the party who claims the right enforces it in his own right and not in the right of another. Consequently, the right does not arise until he has discharged the debt of another. But the right to enforce a security by virtue of subrogation is a right which equity concedes to a person who not being primarily liable to discharge an obligation, does discharge it and it is a right to demand the performance of the original obligation and the application thereto of all the securities held by the creditor.

The right to reimbursement accrues to the person paying off a debt on the date on which he pays Subrogation—concld.

it off, while the right to enforce a security arises from the date of mortgage. Pat SIBANAND MISRA v. JAGMOHAN LAL, 3 P. L. T. 533; (1922) PAT. 331; (1922 A. I. R. (PAT.) 499; 1 PAT. 780 707

Succession Exclusion from inheritance—Murderer—Descendants, lineal, position of—Personal law—Public policy.

A murderer as well as his lineal descendants are precluded from inheriting the property of the person murdered.

The question of the exclusion of the murderer and his lineal descendants from inheritance has reference to the broad view of public policy and justice rather than to the provisions as to exclusion from inheritance of the personal law to which the parties may be subject.

Therefore, the son of a Hindu murderer is also excluded from inheriting to the murdered person even though under his personal law he may have a right to succeed to the murdered man independently of his father. L HAR BHAGWAN v. HUKAM SINGH, 4 L. L. J. 245; 3 L. 242; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 243 769

Succession Certificate Act (VII of 1889). See HINDU LAW—SUCCESSION 417

——— s. 1 (4)—Will not governed by Succession Act or Hindu Wills Act—Succession Certificate, grant of, to executor—Jurisdiction—Sub-Judge, Second Class, invested with powers of District Court—Jurisdiction to entertain application for collection of debts exceeding Rs. 5,000.

Section 1 (4) of the Succession Certificate Act does not preclude the executor of a Will, to which neither the Succession Act nor the Hindu Wills Act applies, from obtaining a certificate under the Succession Certificate Act, authorising him to collect debts due to the deceased. The mere fact that the executor might have applied for Probate of the Will is not an adequate ground for refusing to entertain his application for a Succession Certificate.

Where a Sub-Judge of the Second Class is invested with the functions of a District Court under the Succession Certificate Act, and no restriction is placed on the limits of his jurisdiction, he is competent to entertain and adjudicate upon an application for a Succession Certificate involving debts the amount of which exceeds Rs 5,000. L RATTAN SINGH v. RAJ SINGH, 2 L. L. J. 578 302

Suit, dismissal of, in default—Restoration against some defendants and exemption of others by plaintiff—Court's power to restore against others.

Where after the dismissal of a suit in default the plaintiff applies for restoration against some only of the defendants and exempts the rest, the Court has no power to take action suo motu and restore the suit as against those so exempted. O NAGESHAR v. BHAGY DUBEY, 25 O. C. 67; (1922 A. I. R. (J. C.) 160 246

——— , events happening subsequent to institution of—Declaration of title, suit originally brought for—Possession, relief as to becoming necessary—Trial Court, power of—Plaint, amendment of.

If events which have happened subsequent to the institution of a suit render the relief prayed for useless, if granted, and introduce matters which become the real questions in controversy between the parties, a Court of Original Jurisdiction at any rate has power to order such an amendment as may be necessary for the purpose of determining questions so arising.

Suit—concld.

Where a suit as originally brought is for a mere declaration of title, but subsequent events render it necessary to claim possession of the property to which the title related, the Trial Court is quite competent to order amendment of the plaint so as to include the relief as to possession as well. O HAMID MIRZA BEG v AHMAD MIRZA BEG, 9 O. L. J. 359; 4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 89; (1922) A. I. R. (J. C.) 266 986

——— to enforce registration—Necessary parties.

When a document purports to be executed by certain persons it is essential that those persons, even though they are minors, should be brought on record in a suit to enforce registration so as to make the proceeding binding upon them in so far as the proceedings have been conducted bona fide by their guardians. M APPALACHARYULU v. RAMACHANDRACHARYULU, 16 L. W. 287 901

Summons, mode of service of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. V, r. 15—Requirements of Statute to be strictly carried out.

Before making an ex parte decree against a defendant the requirements of the Statute as regards the service of summons should be strictly complied with. The inquiry contemplated by r. 5 of O. V of the Civil Procedure Code should not be confined to the son of the defendant, or to a person related to him. An attempt should be made to find the defendant by an inquiry from his neighbours or other persons. C DHARAM CHAND GAIN v KANAK SARKAR, 26 C. W. N. 359; 35 C. L. J. 203 991

Sureties—Magistrate, duty of—Police report, acting on, illegal.

A Magistrate ought not to reject sureties on the report of the Police: when sureties are offered, it is the duty of the Magistrate to accept them, unless he is satisfied that they are not proper persons. A GOPI KHATIK v. EMPEROR, 20 A. L. J. 760; 23 CR. L. J. 499; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 541 35

Taluqdari Law—Primogeniture Sanads. See MUHAMMADAN LAW—SUNNI 254

Teji-mandi contracts—Wagering contracts—Intention.

Teji-mandi contracts cannot be held as wagers on account of their apparent nature and characteristics alone without any other proof of the intention of the contracting parties. The party who pleads that a teji-mandi contract is in the nature of a wager must prove that fact B MANILAL DHARAMSI v. ALLIBHAI CHAGLA, 24 BOM. L. R. 812; (1922 A. I. R. (P.) 408 481

Tenancy—Tenant-at-will, mortgage by—Mortgage, whether void ab initio—Landlord, position of—Suit for redemption, maintainability of.

A mortgage by a tenant-at-will is not binding on a landlord, but it is open to the latter to recognise it by accepting rent from the mortgagee during the currency of the tenancy. Such a mortgage is not ab initio void and a suit to redeem it is maintainable.

Where a tenant effects a mortgage with possession of his tenancy holding and subsequently sues